U. S. Protests to Japan on Customs Seizure

JOINS BRITAIN IN WARNING ON CHINESE INCOME

Hull Seeks to Guard 30 Million Loan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The United States joined with Great Britain today in protesting to Japan against any seizure of Chinese customs receipts during hostilities in the far east.

The protests were made after consultations among the United States, England, and France. It was understood here France is making a similar protest to Japan, although no official announcement of that action comes from Paris tonight.

The action of the United States and the European powers is due to the fact that a large part of Chinese customs revenues are pledged to the payment of foreign obligations which total nearly a billion dollars. These debts are guaranteed by agreements which mortgage the receipts. Concern is expressed by the protesting nations that Japan may divert these revenues from the channels pledged by China.

Empower Ambassador to Act.

American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in Tokio has been given full authority to take whatever diplomatic action in the matter he sees fit as new situations arise, not only in Shanghai but throughout China, Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced. The United States' stake in the customs guarantees is 30 million dollars.

The latest figures on China's customs collections are for the year 1935 when they amounted to about 117 millions American dollars.

Among the Chinese commitments in the United States which would suffer from Japan's seizure of revenues at Shanghai, through which flows a large percentage of oriental trade, are the wheat and cotton credits of $16,680,000 extended to China in 1931 and 1932 by the Export and Import bank.

Boxer Indemnity Involved.

A second item which concerns the United States is the Boxer indemnity. The principal and interest on this is $1,919,000 annually between 1935 and 1941 and $539,000 a year between 1942 and 1946. While the United States has been turning back the money allocated to it from this indemnity, its payment is secured by customs. The Chinese have used the funds to send students to America and to stimulate education in China.

Another obligation in which the United States has an interest is the international bond issue which China floated in 1911 of which some 5,650,000 pounds sterling [about $28,250,000] still is outstanding. This issue is guaranteed in part, after 1941, by customs receipts.

British Message Sharper.

The British warning, delivered through Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie, was understood to be in more incisive language than the American, leaving no doubt in the Japanese mind that the British government must be consulted on any seizures of customs revenues.

In London the Japanese situation put all other British foreign problems into the background. British interest was much aroused by the simultaneous protest from the United States, even though it was considered milder than the frigid warning delivered by Ambassador Craigie.

The British have about 750 million dollars tied up in customs guarantees, it was reported. The British were told that the Japanese also have seized the postoffice and the radio services, and planned to take charge of the cable heads of the American and other foreign owned cable lines.

Strikes at British Purse.

Dispatches from London pointed out that the bombing of Chinese cities in violation of the nine power treaty of 1922, which guaranteed China's integrity, did not move the British very vigorously, but the danger of seizure of Chinese customs receipts, which would put a serious crimp in British financial interests in China, caused incisive British action.

Already the Chinese-Japanese war has so cut into trade that customs receipts barely cover foreign obligations, it was said in London.

NOTRE DAME AND ARMY TRIUMPH; AUSTIN WINS, 26-0

Notre Dame defeated the Southern California football team, 13 to 6, before 43,000 at Notre Dame yesterday. Army conquered Navy, 6 to 0, at Philadelphia while 102,281 looked on. Austin High school, led by its star, Bill DeCorrevont, beat Leo for the Chicago prep football championship at Soldiers' field. A record crowd, estimated at 120,000, saw the game. Other scores:

Pittsburgh, 10; Duke, 0.
Fordham, 20; New York U., 7.
Columbia, 0; Stanford, 0.
Nebraska, 3; Kansas State, 0.

THE GREATEST STOCK SHOW ON EARTH OPENS

Thousands Visit 7 Acres of Exhibits.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Again the greatest show on earth!

It is the International Live Stock exposition, a show that is as beautiful as a Rosa Bonheur picture, as exhilarating as a circus, and as instructive as a semester of university lectures on national economics.

It was opened yesterday morning at 7 o'clock and by 10 o'clock last night—when the arena was darkened and the weary grooms and herdsmen and shepherds snuggled to their rest on cots spread alongside prize animals that for eight days are never out of their sight—45,000 people, largest first day's attendance in the nearly four decades of the show's history, had viewed exhibits which fill seven acres of floor space in the vast stockyards arena and pavilions at 43d and Halsted streets.

They had seen 5 million dollars' worth of cattle, horses, sheep and swine numbering 13,000.

History of Agriculture.

They had seen exhibits of grain that carry the history of the agriculture of the western world back to the time of the Peruvian Incas and they had seen descendants of the Rambouillet sheep which Napoleon—ever keeping a sharp eye open for the interests of French husbandry—imported from Spain a century and a quarter ago. But their fame long antedates Napoleon, for their ancestry traces back to the merinos which the conquering Moors were breeding in Spain 700 years ago, sheep of which the wool was so fine that the ceremonial habiliments of popes were woven from it.

And, viewing the stock show sheep, the throngs, if they gave heed to the fascinating discourse of such scientists and historians on the scene as Prof. John T. Caine and young William E. Ogilvie, found reason for honest pride—not the ballyhoo brand of boasting—in the peacetime triumphs of American agriculture. For our sheep breeders have bettered the instruction of the Moors and of Napoleon and are raising a grander type of merinos than the caliphs and the emperor did.

Peace Time Triumphs.

Peace time triumphs is no idle phrase at the International. One-fifth of the animals on view come from Canadian farms and colleges and experiment stations, and Frank Ridgway, THE TRIBUNE'S agricultural editor, who has followed the International shows for years, believes that the annual contacts which Canada's participation in our International has established and the good understandings and the heartfelt friendliness which those contacts have engendered, are worth more to the cause of international peace than all the devious treaties that diplomats could write—and scrap. "Those solid men of Canada and of our country," he said, "are not tolerant of the wild talk that breeds wicked wars. They are not going to have their vital interests and the friendships of 37 years — the first show was held in 1900—imperiled by sabre rattlers and

WHERE THE TROUBLE STARTED

In 1932 Japan grabbed Manchuria and Britain failed to support American protests and switched the responsibility onto the league.

The league denounced Japan as the aggressor and retired while Mussolini and, later, Hitler observed Japan's success in defying the league and the nine power treaty.

Encouraged by this success, the have-not nations proceed to defy British opposition in a big way, with present-day consequences in China and Japan.

Berlin Strives to Oust Paris as Style Capital

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Paris will have to hustle if it wants to keep its dressmaking laurels. The Koelnische Zeitung [Cologne News] reports that Berlin's new German Institute of Fashions is ready to challenge the supremacy of the Paris gown with a "German line."

The institute, the membership of which includes all designers and dressmakers approved by the Nazis, has issued directions telling German designers what should be their inspiration for spring fashions in 1938. Though instructed to make their own styles, the designers were given detailed plans and color schemes for their work.

Says Paris Star Is Setting.

"This activity is setting in at a time when the star of Paris as a style setter is definitly on the wane," the Koelnische Zeitung said.

"Paris is no longer the sole world center of fashion. A decentralization process has been going on for a long time. Now is the moment for German dressmakers to go out on their own and further home industries."

Heretofore, Germany has specialized in the manufacture of "ready to wears" copied from Paris models.

Germany's attempt to create gowns which "correspond to the healthy German taste" and compete with Paris is justified, says the Koelnische Zeitung, "because there is enough talent now in Germany to give our fashion industry its own characteristics."

Use Synthetic Fabrics.

Lest anybody misunderstand the new movement, the Koelnische Zeitung explained that German fashions failed heretofore because they were "more artistic than productive. In this they combined in an excellent way creative power with richness of ideas and taste with good craftsmanship. Thus we have the most important requisites needed to play a leading part in fashion creation."

Germany's synthetic fabrics will help it win fashion glory because artificial textiles are "becoming increasingly prominent in the Paris exhibitions, not only because they are cheaper but because they can be used in such many-sided ways with entirely new effects," the paper said.

"For a long time there have been no sensations in the field of fashions—at least, Paris no longer has the influence to put them through," and it is up to the well trained Nazi industry of fashion to replace it, the article concluded.

SCHOOLING OF 4 HINGES ON WHICH SIDE OF THE TABLE THEY SIT TO EAT

Stow, Mass., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Brindley and their four children moved last summer into a house which straddles the dividing line between the towns of Stow and Hudson. This raised the question of where the children would go to school, and because it hasn't been settled they have stayed home for the last six weeks.

Solution of the problem appeared today to depend on which side of the dining room the children eat. The Stow school has refused to accept them unless assured that most of their living activities take place within Stow's town limits. And the dividing line runs through the dining room. Hudson's school officials have said the children are welcome there, but their father objects to the two mile trip to that school.

The state department of education, aroused over the situation, said a ruling would be sought from the attorney general unless the question is settled at once.

PRODUCE LIVING CREATURES WITH NEITHER PARENT

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Chemical creation in the laboratory of early embryonic forms of life from microscopic fragments of eggs that contained neither the male nor the female nucleus, thus bringing into existence for the first time living creatures that had neither father nor the principle element provided by the mother, was reported here today before the American Philosophical society. The society was founded in 1727 by Benjamin Franklin.

The experiments, reported by Dr. Ethel Browne Harvey of the Princeton university department of biology, throw new light on the mechanisms of the development of life in its early stages and mark a further step toward that "brave new world" predicted by J. B. S. Haldone, Aldous Huxley, and George Bernard Shaw, in which mammalism creature, including men, would be fathered by a chemical and brought into the world by a glass jar.

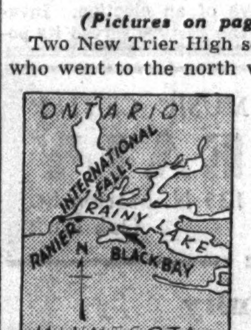
Two New Trier High school seniors who went to the north woods for an outing and a hunt over the Thanksgiving week-end, were the objects of an all day search yesterday in the murky waters of Black bay, near International Falls, Minn., in which they were believed to have perished Friday.



Scene of disappearance of Wilmette youths.

The boys are Jack Jennings and Jay Crowell, both 17 years old, of Wilmette. They had gone to International Falls with Arne Bridges, instructor in French at New Trier, who owns a lodge and summer camp on Bushyhead Island.

Decide to Cross Ice.

Friday afternoon the two youths decided to cross the thin ice of the bay to the town of Ranier, about three miles from International Falls, to pick up the mail. Friday evening Sherif Hugh Reidy got a telephone call from an old time resident along the shore that he could see a hole in the ice and two caps lying nearby.

Dark had settled by the time the sherif reached the scene, and by Saturday morning the ice had broken up in the unusually mild weather, causing all visible evidence of the location to be lost. The sherif and a crew of men dragged the area all day yesterday without result. Bridges stayed in International Falls to aid in the search.

Sherif Calls Families.

Sherif Reidy yesterday called the families of the boys in Wilmette and notified them of his fears after he had checked all residents and visitors in the area and found the two were the only ones missing.

The Jennings boy is the son of Ralph C. Jennings, 126 Broadway avenue, Wilmette, owner of a chemical sales concern in the Mercantile Exchange building. Young Crowell is the son of Francis J. Crowell, 623 Lake avenue, Wilmette, of the George A. McDevitt company, publishers' representatives, 919 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Jay has a sister, Jane, 12 years old.

Jack Jennings is known at New Trier as "Strappy," and achieved a reputation as a track star. He is captain of the school's track team. He has a twin brother, Bill.

Good Fellows! Time Again to Help Out Santa

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Here's Mr. Good Fellow again, to bring you for the twenty-ninth time the theme of the empty stocking.

It has been brought in many forms, but it all started with one man's idea. It was simple. Instead of going out and spending a lot of money for a big time, why not do a little something for the folks that Santa Claus forgot?

It worked. It works not only in Chicago, under the sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE, but it works in nearly every big city and many small ones in the country, every year.

No Limit to Membership.

The Good Fellows are not limited as to sex, race, creed, or color. Even the utter cynic, who believes all human acts are selfish, can come in under the banner of the Good Fellow, for the kick he will get out of brightening a home, of filling a stocking, of feeding the needy, will fulfill the aims even of the most waspish philosophy.

"The poor ye have always with you," and the Good Fellows have not failed them for twenty-eight years. These kindly ones ask you who have not known the joy of giving to swell their ranks for this twenty-ninth campaign. Your sole recompense will be the inner joy you will derive from putting a smile on the pinched lips of little children, from erasing the wrinkles on the brows of distracted parents.

Good Fellows do not solicit money. They are asked to buy their gifts and deliver them in person to a family or group of families of their own choice on Christmas eve. That's part of the fun and no small part. The personal touch means more both to the recipient and the donor. It's more blessed to give than receive, but it's still more blessed to watch the receiving.

How Good Fellows Work.

Many are the tales of friendships made in the past on these visits. There have been families rescued from disaster, bread winners employed again, children put back on the road to health and happiness through the ministrations of these Good Fellows.

And if you can't find your own needy THE TRIBUNE, as before, stands ready to help you with it. The Good Fellow bureau opens tomorrow at 1 South Dearborn street, the public service office. It will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. every week day. John Gillespie is in charge. The telephone number is Superior 0100.

Every one of the thousands of families that are on relief or who write in and ask for a basket will be investigated by this bureau. Only those actually in need will be served. You can be assured that any name supplied you will be a bona fide prospect for your philanthropy.

Happiness Is Real.

The happiness Good Fellows bring is real, not dreamy. It is not a case of making happy children happier, but of making unhappy children happy. There's quite a difference. All one needs to do is to read some of the pathetic letters asking for

BREAK BAD NEWS AS ROOSEVELT TAKES VACATION

Time Is Too Short, Says Barkley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Any tax relief for stricken business at this special session of congress was ruled out flatly and completely today by Senator Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], majority leader of the senate, following a conference with President Roosevelt.

Emerging from the White House, the senator said there was "no use kidding the country" about taxes. Only three weeks of the extraordinary session remain, he declared, and it is impossible for congress to shape a bill in that time.

A few hours after the conference the President left by special train for Miami, Fla., where he will embark on a fishing cruise in southern waters, leaving Mr. Barkley to convey the bad news to those demanding tax relief the decision to pass up the problem at this session.

Members Begin to Grumble.

The departure of the President from Washington while the congress is in special session brought some grumbling from members because of being summoned to Washington to take up the program of legislation Mr. Roosevelt had asked, which included, in addition to tax relief, farm subsidy legislation, wages and hours bill, government reorganization regional planning, peace with utility interests, and other points.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes accompanied the President on the trip and WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins will board the special at Bennett, S. C. The last time the pair accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on a fishing cruise was two years ago, when they were vieing for the rôle of the biggest spender in the administration. Hopkins and his leaf raking projects won over Ickes' public works program.

Dashes Early Repeal Hopes.

The bluntness of the pronouncement on taxes, coming as it did from the lips of a powerful administration leader, dashed hopes for immediate reduction or repeal of the stiff levies on undistributed corporate surpluses and capital gains as the best means for halting the business recession.

Yesterday the President had let in a little ray of hope when he remarked at a press conference that he was in favor of tax revision just as soon as congress was ready for it. Today, he let his senate leader do the talking.

Senator Barkley said he and the President had talked at length about taxes, including the cost to the government of any revision, but that no conclusion was reached.

Declares Time Too Short.

"There's no use kidding the country into believing we can do something we can't do," said Senator Barkley. "With only three more weeks left of this session of congress and with the house ways and means committee not yet ready to report a bill, it is perfectly obvious we cannot complete tax legislation at this session."

A subcommittee of the house ways and means committee has been delving into plans for revising the tax structure during recent weeks, but has yet made no report to the full committee. This and other legislative technicalities and red tape, the senate leader inferred, would force postponement of any action until the regular session, which convenes in January.

Holds Business Can't Wait.

Tax relief sponsors continued their campaign despite the lukewarm attitude of the administration. Representative Emanuel Celler [D., N. Y.] called a meeting of sixty house members to consider possibilities for immediate action on repeal of the capital gains and undistributed surplus taxes. He proposed repeal be made retroactive for 1937.

"Business can't wait," Celler asserted. "It is so frightened that there must be some temporary emergency legislation."

The President's views on the pending agricultural bill were included in a letter to Senator Barkley. Although the phraseology was mild, some observers read a warning in the message when the President's secretary, Stephen Early, said he was very likely to veto farm legislation which called for expenditures for which congress had made no provision in revenue.

Earlier Mr. Roosevelt warned congress to hold the cost of the new compulsory crop program within 500 million dollars or vote additional taxes.

Hopes for Balanced Budget.

In his communication the President also revived his oft-repeated hopes for a balanced budget.

"It is obvious that a constant increase of expenditures without an equally constant increase in revenue can only result in a continuation of deficits," wrote President Roosevelt. "We cannot hope to continue on a sound basis of financial management of government affairs unless the regular annual expenditures are brought within the revenues.

"I feel that every effort should be made to keep the new farm program within the present limit of 500 million dollars per annum. If this is not possible I then urge that steps be taken to provide the necessary increase in revenue to meet any expenditures under the new farm program in excess of this sum."

The senate and house will meet Monday to debate the farm measures, both worded differently but containing the same provision of a dictatorship over most of agriculture. The scheme would control the production of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, and rice, imposing marketing quotas for all the producers in any one commodity on the vote of two-thirds. Fines, penalties, and stiff taxes would fall upon the farmer who failed to comply.

A minority report of the house agricultural committee assailing the dictatorial and economic tinkering provisions of the plan will be made public tomorrow by Representative August H. Andresen [R., Minn.]. A week ago Andresen asserted the scheme was "regimented control in its worst form and will eventually place all agriculture under one dictator." At the same time the Democratic majority on the committee under Chairman Marvin Jones [D., Tex.] will announce its report for the bill.

Attack from New Angle.

The bill was attacked from another angle in the house today. Representative Gerald J. Boileau [Prog., Wis.], asserted the program would hurt the dairy farmer inasmuch as payments would be made to farmers who diverted acreage from the five controled commodities to unrestricted cultivation of grasses and legumes, known as soil conserving crops. But these crops, Boileau pointed out, are used exclusively for feed for live stock in general and dairy cows in particular.

"Farmers who produce the crops designated for special legislative favor will be paid hundreds of millions of dollars as a subsidy to enable them to compete, primarily with dairy farmers," declared Boileau. "The dairy industry objects to the federal government subsidizing any group of farmers to compete with them especially when such subsidized dairying will result in increased production and will lead directly to the creation of vast surpluses which will demoralize the market."

Kentucky Doctor Held as Slayer of Wife's Parents

Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Dr. H. E. Martin, 51 years old, a physician of Lafayette, Ky., is in jail here today, charged with the murder of his fourth wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grant McNichols. The fatal shootings which occurred last Monday in the Martin home were said to have followed months of bitter feeling between the physician and the elderly farm couple. Dr. Martin says he shot in self-defense when McNichols drew a gun. Bond for Dr. Martin was set at $30,000 at his examining trial before Judge W. O. Soyards of Christian county.

Roosevelt Signs on Dotted Line; Pages Will Get Pay

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Senate and house pages, sixty-eight youngsters who run errands for congressmen, are sure of their pay for the special session of congress. President Roosevelt signed legislation today to make $8,836 available for salaries of the forty-seven house pages and $3,948 for the twenty-one in the senate. The boys get $4 each day the session lasts.

ROOSEVELT AIDS PINNING HOPE ON SWING TO RIGHT

Anxiously Scan Skies for Signs of Gains.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—With President Roosevelt retreating on every front from the attacks he has inspired on private enterprise and organizing new ventures in pump priming and other government stimulation of business, Democratic leaders are anxiously scanning the horizon for signs of abatement of the new depression.

In unconcealed alarm at the gravity of the business recession, which unfeeling persons persist in designating the Roosevelt depression, the President has been traveling to the right with increasing velocity for the last three weeks. So far to the right has he gone that Senator George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.], Representative John E. Rankin [D., Miss.], and other colleagues on the left have begun to cry out in anxiety.

Cultivates Big Business.

With all the ardor with which he once denounced "princes of privilege" and "economic royalists," the President is now cultivating the good will of the barons of big business. He is full of solicitude for the health of private enterprise, eager to lighten its tax burden, to curb government competition therewith and otherwise to implant assurance that it has nothing to fear from his administration.

Mr. Roosevelt has even called in a dozen or more of the business princes and royalists for heart to heart talks on how to halt this business recession, which is fraught with so much peril for the country, not to mention Democratic candidates in the congressional elections next year.

Some of the Democratic leaders are beginning to wonder what further concessions Mr. Roosevelt must make to the inexorable and inscrutable laws of the profit system to restore confidence and revive business. They had noted that the President's call of an extraordinary session of congress to round out his program of social and economic innovations had been followed by a greater recession of business and that his message to congress produced not a rise but a further decline of the stock market.

Hoping for Response.

Now that business has been promised tax appeasement, government competition appeasement and other concessions, the Democratic leaders are wondering why the stock market, car loadings, trade indices and other barometers fail to respond with a show of business confidence.

One theory widely held is that neither repeal of punitive taxes on business nor any other specific concession by the Roosevelt administration to profit system economics is going to inspire the business community with sufficient confidence to revive large scale business activity. The distrust of the President among business men is so deep, according to this theory, and the fear of the ultimate effect of his policies is so great that only a well tested reversal of his whole attitude toward private enterprise will encourage business expansion.

Record Is Cited.

So long as the President wields the enormous power conferred upon him by congress in the stress of economic emergency his merest word will spell life or death for this or that enterprise. In 1933 and 1934 he pursued a policy, designed, he said, to raise prices to the 1926 level. But before they came anywhere near that level he declared six months ago that prices were too high and announced measures to check their further rise.

Many economists hold that the business recession dates from that pronouncement in which the President withdrew the government from the market for steel, copper, cement and other durable goods.

Not unless congress repeals the powers of the President to change the value of the dollar, to inflate the currency, to put the government into competition with privately owned public utilities, to manipulate prices, to harass business and to do many other things of an autocratic nature, and not until he balances the budget will the business community, it is argued, regain confidence in the government and be willing to risk investment again in gainful enterprise.

Distrust there is also of the President in his current veering to the right. It is not the first time that he has seemed to be putting his radical experiments behind him and turning conservative. In the past, however, his turns to the right have proved to be mere gestures, occasioned by the transient need of placating the conservative vote generally on the eve of an election. Invariably after the gesture served its political purpose the President has turned leftward again.

As a result of this distrust of the President business leaders are saying that they look for no lasting revival of private enterprise unless the concessions now held out by the President in an effort to restore confidence are written into law by congress. What is needed to end the new depression, say business men, is a government of law instead of a government of men—and one man, at that.

Roosevelt Retreating.

Whether his turn to the right be lasting or not Mr. Roosevelt is now retreating from the radical position he once held. He is now ready to scrap the undistributed profits tax, which less than a year and a half ago he conjured forth as another leveler of the rich. He is now courting the utilities on which he has made war for five years. He is calling in utility officials and giving them assurances that government competition in the development of electric power will not be extended.

In these conferences with the economic royalists of the utility field the President has treated the St. Lawrence seaway with its vast water power development as an exceedingly remote project which need not inspire fear of government competition. Likewise he has led them to believe that the pending bill for extending the TVA system of state socialism to the entire country does not involve the development of hydroelectric power with competition with private plants.

Makes Pledges to Business.

The President furthermore has promised business men that they need not be afraid of the scheme for the political recognition of wages and hours of labor. This bill, according to the President, is to be so modified that there will be no fixing of wages and hours for some time to come. He merely wants to establish the principle, he says.

Likewise the President has given assurance that he is not going to tinker with the dollar and that he is going to balance the budget next year. He has promised to cut expenditures and is going to take the first step in a message to congress Tuesday recommending reduction of government appropriations for highways.

By way of stimulating business the President in a message to congress on Monday will propose the enlistment of capital on a vast scale in home building, through government insured mortgages.

RUSSIANS PRAISE MUSIC OF MAN ONCE RIDICULED

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—Dmitri Shostakovich, Russian composer, whose works are known in America, apparently is on the way to complete rehabilitation after a spectacular fall from favor in February, 1936. Until then he had been praised in Russia as a genius and his works were performed widely.

Without warning, however, his ballet, "Limpid Stream," was removed from the Bolshoi theater and his opera, "Lady Macbeth," canceled on the eve of opening in a theater which had spent a fortune preparing it. He was denounced in the press.

Shostakovich has been busy writing ever since. This week the Leningrad Philharmonic orchestra played the première of his new work, "Fifth Symphony," and at the conclusion the audience rose and gave him an ovation. Today the Moscow Daily News—a soviet English publication—ran an enthusiastic criticism.

U. S. TRADE PACT WITH BRITISH HITS A POLITICAL SNAG

London Tries to Tangle Up America wtih Europe.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Chances for a new British-American trade pact receded still farther today. British banking and commercial sources disclosed that what they designated as a "slight impediment" had developed in the conversations between the United States and the United Kingdom over trade negotiations.

The difficulties are conceded to have arisen over the fact that the British injected political import into what was regarded on the other side of the Atlantic as purely a new trading arrangement. The snag apparently is a serious one and may result in the postponement of the pact unless all political motives can be disassociated from it.

Tangled in Affairs of Europe.

It appears the American negotiators discovered the trade talks had been given implications which they [the Americans] never intended, and they found themselves neck deep in European affairs before the actual negotiations got underway. They now are trying to extricate themselves from this predicament.

The British believe Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham, who has returned to the United States for treatment for malaria, may be able to save the day.

The industrial section of middle and northern England, which is more interested in the strictly trading aspects of the projected pact than is the British government, deplore this complication.

Strike Political Fog.

The Liverpool Post, commenting on the situation said:

"Having passed successfully through many of the more complicated issues and having come within sight of placating imperial interests involved, the pact makers suddenly find they have run into a political fog.

"There are mutterings to the effect that the atmosphere is not as purely commercial as it should be. This comes from the fact that after the prime minister [Neville Chamberlain] had announced the success of the preliminary talks, there was a good deal of speculation about the treaty being a sort of retort to the German-Japanese-Italian front [the pact against communism].

"Denials that it is anything of the sort, at least in immediate intention found opposite speculation busy—namely that the treaty is designed with a mind to saving poor old crazy Europe from going stark, staring mad. Neither of these interpretations has pleased American opinion which we know, or should know by now, is extraordinarily sensitive to any suggestion of involving the United States in European disorder."

HOLD PRIESTS FOR BREAKING MEXICO RELIGIOUS LAWS

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Three priests were under arrest here today on charges of violating Vera Cruz state's anti-religious laws, against which Catholics conducted a "peaceful rebellion" last February.

The Rev. Raymundo Lopez was accused of officiating at a wedding before the couple had been married by a civil service. The Rev. Jose Garcia and the Rev. Prudencio Ortiz were charged with conducting services without licenses.

Although a group of Catholic women attempted to obtain releases for the priests, the office of the state attorney general directed that they be fined.

The Catholic "peaceful rebellion" against laws that had kept churches closed ten years forced their reopening and brought about less rigid enforcement of the state regulations.

BLINKS HIS BLACK EYES AT JUDGE; WINS FREEDOM

Thomas Maynard, 39 years old, who said he is a Detroit attorney, blinked two blackened eyes yesterday at Judge John T. Zuris in the State Street court.

"I came to Chicago Tuesday to see about getting a friend a job," he said "Wednesday night two men jumped on me in an alley and took $10 from me, leaving me only a dollar."

That was all Maynard could remember. A policeman said he arrested Maynard for intoxication Wednesday night in front of 608 North Dearborn street. Maynard said he would hurry home if Judge Zuris would dismiss the disorderly conduct charge against him. Judge Zuris did.

Hunt Missing Girl, 14, and Her Son of 1 Year

Search was begun yesterday for Alice Downes, 14 years old, who fled with her son, Ward, 1 year old, from her grandmother's home at 1526 Congress street Thursday morning. Mrs. Millie Bergner, the grandmother, told the Desplaines street police the girl had been deserted by her husband, Sherwood Rafferty, a day after their marriage on Sept. 12, 1936.

To Chicago Good Fellows

Original Good Fellow Letter Printed in The Tribune Dec. 10, 1909—Campaign Again Open

My dear Friend —

Last Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Last Christmas morning over five thousand children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our-own, but they seemed far away and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over an empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. I've tried it for the last five years and ask you to consider it. Just send your name and address to THE TRIBUNE—address Santa Claus—state how many children you are willing to provide against grief over an empty stocking, inclose a 2 cent stamp, and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you; you do the rest, select your own presents, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not one cent more than you want to pay—every cent just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; you deal with no organization. No record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. THE TRIBUNE was asked to aid in reaching the Good Fellows by publishing this suggestion, and to receive your communication, in order that you may be assured of good faith, and to preserve the anonymous character of this work. The identity of the writer of this appeal will not be disclosed. He assumes the responsibility of finding the children and sending you to their homes, and guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you, then you have wasted your time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the Good Fellows of Chicago.

Perhaps a 25-cent doll or a 10-cent toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the poor child these in an otherwise empty stocking mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and the meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the Good Fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies—the children's real Christmas.

Sincerely
Good Fellow

60 Stevedores Held at Bay in $1,232 Pay Roll Holdup

Holding sixty stevedores at bay, two young gunmen robbed the paymaster of the North Pier Terminal Warehouse company, 589 East Illinois street, of $1,232 yesterday in the basement dock tunnel of the building. While W. A. Machin, the paymaster, was on his way from his office on the first floor to his cage in the tunnel, one of the bandits demanded the money. The second bandit waited near by at a stairway, training his gun on the stevedores.

Prince von Starhemberg Has Marriage Annulled

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—Prince Ernst Ruediger von Starhemberg's marriage to Countess Maria Elizabeth Salm-Reifferscheid-Raitz was annulled today by the Salzburg arch-episcopal court and the decision was confirmed by the Austrian Supreme court. The former vice chancellor's marital affairs have interested the public for more than three years and for a time were even a political issue.

10 Day Fort Sheridan Quarantine Is Lifted

The quarantine which was placed over Fort Sheridan ten days ago when nine soldiers became ill with bacillary dysentery was lifted yesterday by Col. Edgar King, M. D., the fort's medical officer. There were nineteen suspected cases of the disease in addition to the positive diagnosis.

GOOD FELLOWS! HERE'S CALL FOR 29TH CHRISTMAS

It's Your Chance to Get and Give Joy.

Christmas cheer, to measure the joy a material answer will mean. Many letter writers are mere juveniles, wanting their younger brothers and sisters to be remembered.

There was a letter a year ago that is still remembered—not as an outstanding illustration, but as a typical one. The writer was Catherine, only 12 years old.

"There is no one working in our house," she wrote. "Father is sick. Mother can't work now that we have a small baby . . . My father and mother are worrying that there won't be any Christmas for us. Last Christmas eve we hung our stockings up, and when we went and looked Christmas morning the stockings were empty, and my mother was crying, and we hardly had enough to eat Christmas day. I don't ask for much . . . just a Christmas basket for our dinner, a doll for my sister, and a little doggy for my baby brother. . . . I don't want nothing. I am too old to play."

You may be sure that the Good Fellows visited Catherine's home.

What You Get Out of It.

Neither you nor THE TRIBUNE gets anything out of this except the knowledge that you have saved some child from sorrow and a blasted faith in Father Christmas.

It's your campaign, your fun, and your reward. In this edition will be found the Good Fellow coupon to jog your memory. All old Good Fellows are expected to reënlist, and the thousands who never have joined but would like to will be welcomed with open arms.

Let there be no empty stockings and none forgotten by Santa Claus this year.

Rescue 2d Victim of Mine Cavein; 1 Dead, 1 Missing

Mount Carmel, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Rescue workers tonight freed the second of three miners trapped Friday by a cave-in in a makeshift mine slope near the Potts colliery of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. Charles Puganis, 34 years old, was taken to a hospital in a serious condition with a fractured arm and a possible fracture of the pelvis. John Plichesski, 29, died soon after he was brought to the top last night. Charles Bolinski, 55, remained somewhere in the mine.

SHE DIES AT 108 YEARS.

Kill Parents, Beat Child, 5, Who Limps a Mile to Tell

Wheat Basin, Mont., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Larry Kuntz, 5 years old, bruised and dazed, limped into a store here today and told how his father, Mike Kuntz, and his mother had been shot to death by two hitch hikers who also beat him. Later the child took searchers to the Kuntz automobile, a mile away, where the bodies were found. Larry told Undersherif Jack Benjamin that his father and mother had been flagged down by a man and a woman who got into the car. Then a quarrel started, he said, and that was all he could tell.

DIES OF BROKEN SPINE.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Orville C. Deweese, 20 years old, of Delevan, who suffered a spinal fracture two months ago in an auto accident, died here today.

World Can Quit Worrying; Savant Says It Won't Explode

Folks who are alarmed about reports that the universe is blowing up can quit worrying, according to Dr. Ira M. Freeman, associate professor of physics at the Central Y. M. C. A. college. It looks like there's another billion years to go.

In a paper read yesterday before the American Physical society's meeting at the University of Chicago, Dr. Freeman advanced the theory that the total of gravitational force in the universe is lessening slightly each year and that it has been lessening for untold ages. He said the blowup theory originated several years ago when scientists noted that light received from distant stars was redder than that from nearby celestial objects.

Account for Reddening Light.

"The simplest explanation," Dr. Freeman said, "was that all bodies in space were rushing away from each other at terrific speed—a general flying apart of the whole universe. Now we find by computation that the reddening of light can be adequately accounted for by assuming that the gravitational constant, the number that expresses the force of attraction pulling all bodies in the universe toward each other, has been lessening about one billionth of its value each year.

"The mathematical results agree with known facts and remove the necessity for assuming the very distasteful business of a universal blowup."

Verify Experiments.

Two Notre Dame scientists, George B. Collins and Victor G. Reiling, reported to the meeting that they had verified and carried to more exact lengths the experiments of the Russian Cerenkov in the production of light.

Cerenkov's method was to pass electrons through liquids or solids with a velocity greater than the velocity of light in that medium. Dr. Collins and Dr. Reiling used an electrostatic generator producing a million and a half volts in their experiments. Cerenkov used only relatively weak sources of power.

The Notre Dame experimenters reported that, no matter what substance was used as the medium through which to pass the electrons, the light produced always was blue. But they learned its direction changed as the substances and the speed of the electrons were varied.

Atomic Sling Energy.

Dr. M. E. Rose and Dr. H. A. Bethe of Cornell university expressed the belief that the so-called "atomic sling," which steps up the electric charge on tiny particles of matter and shoots them at a target, with the purpose of disrupting atoms, will never produce charges of much higher energy than those now produced.

Their experiments indicated, they said, that a magnetic field of the correct size cannot be maintained if the ions—charged particles—are moving a rate near that of the speed of light. Increase of speed, they said, was accompanied by an increase of the mass of the particles, and the conditions governing focusing for constant mass would no longer apply.

EPISCOPAL RITES TODAY TO STRESS CHURCH PERILS

Awakening of the Episcopalian laity to dangers of Christianity will be the theme of services to be held throughout the diocese of Chicago in connection with the church's celebration of holy communion.

In most parishes the services will begin at 7:30 a. m. At the Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue, Prof. Paul Rusch of St. Paul's university, Tokio, Japan, will speak.

THE GREATEST STOCK SHOW ON EARTH OPENS

Equals a Rosa Bonheur Picture for Beauty.

And so the annual International has a true spiritual note.

Show Drama Is Incessant.

The drama of the show is incessant. It moves in thrilling crescendo from hour to hour for eight days. By next Saturday night, when the lights go out on the 38th International, half a million people will have enjoyed its climaxes of spectacle, of feats of skill, and of the eagerly awaited judges' decisions which come roaring to the throngs through loud speakers and which go clicking out over telegraph wires near the ringside to make economic history the world over.

You are permitted to go behind the scenes of this mighty drama. You see among hundreds of gigantic Percherons—the ancestors of some of which were Napoleon's favorite artillery horses—a score in which the master of Pine Tree farms near McHenry, Ill., takes such pride that he has hung their stalls with hundreds of yards of white and green velvet—veritable velvet. The occupants of these stalls manifest a hauteur indicating that they take their luxurious quarters as a matter of course.

Get Beauty Treatments.

You see the caretakers who have charge of the cattle working like beauty parlor experts over the horns of their beasts. They smooth them with files and with emery paper hours before the animals are to go before the judges in the arena, and a few minutes before the entry they polish the horns with oiled rags until they shine like old fashioned jewelry of tortoise shell.

You see the men carefully mixing for their animals messes of cereals of such superior quality that, with the addition of a little sugar, they would make a breakfast food delicate and appetizing enough to set on an invalid's table. A dietitian in a hospital does not do his work more discriminatingly.

Behind the scenes you see the gay rosettes and cordons being woven into the manes of the horses, and as you watch the process you learn that it is quite an art and that the animals enjoy being fussed over and prettified as much as does the patroness of a beauty parlor. They love attention, but it must be bestowed without shouting or back-slapping. These prize beasts are high keyed. Intensive methods of developing them make them sensitive to boisterousness and they are alert to resent a liberty.

Where to Get Facts.

Visit with the men in a forthright way and you will learn many an interesting fact about the ways of cattle and of herdsmen. I say "in a forthright way" because if you are condescending and patronizing you will be snubbed. They patiently answer the questions of children, because children are not condescending but eager and grateful little knowledge getters. The replies of these men of the soil are shrewd and laconic. Sometimes they impart a pageful of agricultural economics in a sentence. With a terse reply they can provide a fresh point of view to men who have given their lives to the development of American agriculture. One of those men is Arthur G. Leonard, chairman of the board of the International and president of the Union Stockyard company. Chatting of this and that phase of farm policy with one of his farm managers he said: "Why don't you make more use of the tractor? It would be easier on you."

"Because," replied the man of few words and no illusions, "I raise the oats that feed the horses and, letting them do the work, I don't have to pay out four or five dollars a day for gasoline."

Bugle Notes Bring Drama.

Bugle notes ring out.

Hurry to the arena, for the drama of the eight nights and the four matinées at which all classes of horses are put through their paces, and other animals are exhibited—this afternoon and Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday afternoons—is about to begin.

The arena is one of the world's notable show halls. Its space for pageantry covers an acre and a half. On four sides of that space rise three tiers of galleries that seat 8,000 spectators. Four thousand more are peering over the high barricades which protect the public from any possible panic mood of a nervous animal. Last night every available space was filled for the first show. [Details in Sports Section.]

The lighting system, which is used day and night, is a triumph of distribution. A gratified horseman is saying, "I have showed in all the celebrated rings in Europe and America, and this is the first time I haven't been able to see the shadow of my horse under his belly."

Such perfect lighting means much to both spectators and judges.

Notables throng the scene, among them Belgium's ambassador to the United States, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, who is to distribute the prizes accorded to the Belgian breed of horses, and Alexander Ritchie who by permission of George VI. comes from the royal farms at Windsor, which were founded by the present king's great-great-great grandfather, George III., who liked to be called "Farmer George" and who was better in agriculture than he was in statesmanship. Mr. Ritchie's task is to judge the show's fat cattle and to select the grand champion beef animal which will go into history as the star animal of all American stock shows of this year.

Along with foreign statesmen and breeders is a host of American gentleman farmers, some of whom have come from remote parts of the nation for this International.

World Leaders Here.

Leaders in agriculture and its allied interests are here from Great Britain and Ireland, from Germany, Italy, and Denmark, from Brazil and the Argentine, and from Canada. What does "leaders in agriculture and its allied interests" mean? You may be surprised at the comprehensiveness of the answer. For, in the compact parlance of the show, it means breeders, feeders, killers, curers, sellers, buyers, shippers, packers, commission men, ranchers, veterinarians, manufacturers of farm machinery, manufacturers of feed, serums and medicines for stock, manufacturers of harness, saddlery, and fertilizers, agricultural journalists, and professors from agricultural colleges.

In other words the International is a vast congress of experts.

They are alert to the singing of the bugles and responsive as only experts can be to the historic and the practical significance of the pageantry that is unfolding in the arena. An item is that pageantry—and it is only one feature in this living picture of a nation's resources—is the million dollar parade of draft horses—five breeds—which represent the world's choicest in Clydesdales, Percherons, Belgians, Shires, and Suffolks.

Four more million dollars' worth of prize animals are to be seen—among them white Shorthorns that look as if they had stepped out of old engravings of the sacrificial beasts of the Old Testament and of classic drama.

On, on, on they come!

The arena is now a symphony of lowing cattle, bleating sheep, neighing horses. The clash of silver harness blends with the music of the band far aloft. Twelve thousand people burst into a roar of cheers. They have surrendered to the majestic spell of a spectacle that deals not with the make believe of the theater, but with the essential and eternal fundamentals of existence.

Anthems Take on a Meaning.

When, amid those high excitements, the band swings into "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "America the Beautiful" the anthems take on a meaning that perhaps they never before have held for newcomers to the show. The thought comes searchingly home to the heart that we ought to be very grateful that our lot has been cast in a land of so much bounty and so much beauty, and that, if we are not wisely administering the affairs of such a land, it is our solemn duty to learn how to be worthy of such a trust.

Looking on at the opulent spectacle Prof. Caine said that this year's show is, as to quality of the cattle, the finest in the thirty-seven years of the International's history. The professor, formerly a distinguished member of the faculty of Utah's state agricultural college, never makes a broad statement without backing it with reasons, and to my question, "Why is it the finest?" he replied:

"Because this year there has been more sifting of possible exhibits before the accepted ones ever got here. The sifting was done on the farms by the farmers. Prices for beef have been so high of late that animals not first rate went to the market. Hence selections for the show have been made from animals of very high quality.

"Present prospects are that, unless blizzard weather comes, this year's attendance at the International will reach nearly half a million. Total of attendance at the thirty-seven preceding shows was 7,400,000."

Now no show that makes an appeal solely to experts or only to a particular section of this country's population could draw such numbers. The glory of International is that it contains something for everybody.

It teaches housewives how to buy to the best advantage and it does that by means of charts and exhibits so vivid and practical that they can be taken in almost at a glance.

It entertains and instructs school boys and school girls—especially the city pent—who squeal with delight and gasp with amazement as they pass through the ailes and linger over the pens of what to them is a wonderland.

It satisfies serious minded students of economic trends and of national resources because it imparts history making facts.

The story of beef in America is illustrated by an exhibit of living animals which includes the buffalo of the plains and moves on through the time of the tough, wasteful, longhorned steer, to the compact, economic, and savory little beef producing animal of today. Show your boys and girls that living exhibit and they will learn a lesson in economics and in scientific breeding that they will never forget.

Most significant of all are the International's human exhibits. They number 2,000. Fifteen hundred of them represent the 2,000,000 members of that valiant, gifted, hardworking organization of young Americans, the 4-H clubs, who are building in this country a new agricultural gentry, a gentry that is not fretting to get away from the farm, but is helping fathers and mothers to make the farm a place of happy, high minded, and prosperous living. The 4-H exhibits at the International are so interesting that they will make an article for tomorrow's TRIBUNE.

CARLOAD OF 15 STEERS FROM IOWA AWARDED GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP

Fifteen Aberdeen-Angus steers won the grand championship honor for the Schmidt brothers of Delmar, Ia., in the carlot fat steer competition at the International Live Stock exposition yesterday. Seventy-three carloads were entered in this contest. The winners weigh an average of 1,100 pounds. All the animals exhibited in the carlot class will be sold Thursday at public auction.

Mercer county, Ill., won the ribbon in a state contest for the best group of three calves and then went on to win the championship ribbon in competition against other states. Illinois had the only entry and won the ribbon in the contest for the best state group of ten calves, mixed breeds.

A few awards in the grain show were made yesterday afternoon. John Hamilton of Coaldale, Alberta, won the championship in the field pea section of the grain show. H. J. Davis of Edgield, Saskatchewan, won the championship on small peas. The championship honor on both field and navy beans went to Albert C. Gohn, Emo, Ontario. Perry Graham of Spata, Tenn., won the championship award on mottled cowpeas.

BOOKS

Do you ever hear those Stump Me radio programs? You phone a request and the pianist plays it if he can. If he can't the announcer blows a chirping little bird whistle. Well, now, we hate to brag, OF COURSE . . but our technical department, directed by Mr. Norman Guess, practically invented this game years ago. When you want to know all about the action of Corliss Valves on a Stationary Steam Engine . . or arguments for the Planetesimal Theory of the Origin of the Earth . . or full facts on the Mendelian Law of Inheritance (nothing to do with taxes), why just come in and ask our technical department for the Right Book. If you stump them it's called a TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT and we give them "the bird," figuratively speaking. But watch out! They're fast and experienced boys, and apt to win the decision. Next time you need special information on a technical subject drop in or phone. See if you can floor them for the count!

WISCONSIN BOY'S CALF WINS JUNIOR HONORS AT SHOW

It's a Field Day for 4-H Clubs at International.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Jerry, a 1,243 pound Hereford steer that a young Wisconsin 4-H club boy bought a year ago as just a calf in a carload, yesterday was adjudged junior grand champion steer of the International Live Stock exposition.

Jerry, and the feat that his sleek perfection represented to his owner, Homer Graber of Mineral Point, Wis., as well as to Alexander Ritchie of Windsor, England, judge of the entries, was only one of a series of triumphs during the day for the 4-H boys and girls of America and their scientific husbandry.

Field Day for 4-H Clubs.

As has been customary in the last 12 years, opening day at the stock show was in reality a field day for the 4-H clubs. While 45,000 spectators gaped and cheered, husky, alert farm boys and rosy cheeked farm girls in trim dresses or in gay slacks, led 313 steers, so fat they could barely waddle, into the arena. Elsewhere, they displayed pens of lambs and beautiful, deodorized hogs.

Even working at top speed, judging the remarkable field of baby beeves required four hours. Finally, however, Homer Graber, a thin, slight youth in a khaki shirt, who at 18 has been in 4-H club work for seven years, was handed a purple satin ribbon, and Jerry, who has been stuffed with cooked barley, corn, oats, and mixed hay for a year, was the new junior grand champion.

He'll Compete with Veterans.

As such he will compete next week against the entries of veteran stock breeders from the United States and Canada for the grand championship of the show.

Stanley, a 1,140 pound Aberdeen-Angus that looked like a great bundle of curly black fur, was named junior reserve champion. He was entered by Jack Mahlstadt of Genesee, Ill. Jack, wearing a knit cap of 4-H colors, green and white, has been in 4-H work six years, and already owns a herd of six Angus calves!

The youngest, and the most obviously happy, winner of the day, however, was tiny Boyd Mayhew of Belleville, Ill., who celebrated his 14th birthday by having Sonny, Sammy, and Susie, his pet lambs, named as the junior grand champion pen of lambs.

Boyd is the first Illinois boy to win "crown of corn" for his lambs since 1924, and then, by a strange coincidence, the winner was his brother-in-law, Alvin Helms, with whom he lives at Belleville.

Arnold Moore of Union City, Okla., a youth of 20 who came typically attired in high-heeled cowboy boots, was the third grand prize winner of the day with The Champ, his Poland-China barrow. The Champ, fiercely black with a pink snout, is 7 months old and weighs 300 pounds. He was raised on corn, oats, and "prepared hawg fattener."

4-H Congress Is Tomorrow.

When the 4-H Club congress convenes tomorrow an Oklahoma boy and a Wisconsin girl will be named national achievement champions and an Indiana boy and an Oregon girl national leadership champions. Awards, which include $300 scholarships, will be made Tuesday night.

The achievement champions, selected for outstanding accomplishment and well rounded records in 4-H work, are Bob Morford of Amorita, Okla., who at 18 has raised 112 head of sheep, 10 hogs, 9 baby beeves, and 6 dairy cattle, and Viola Niedfeldt of Bangor, Wis., 17 years old, who has canned 4,007 pints of foods and made 47 garments, in addition to supervising 29 4-H clubs, in seven years.

The leadership champions are Clifford L. Breeden, 18 years old, of Lafayette, Ind., and Helen Michael, 16 years old, of Eugene, Ore. Both organized many groups, as well as completing an unusual array of 4-H projects.

Champion on His Birthday

This pen full of winners includes Boyd Mayhew, Belleville, Ill., and his pure bred Southdown wethers. Yesterday on his fourteenth birthday his pen of lambs was crowned junior grand champion at the International Live Stock show. Last year he was second and the year before third with his lambs.

Runaway Youths from Suburbs Held in Gary

Three runaway youths, missing from their homes in west suburbs since Friday morning, who were questioned by the Gary police after an unloaded revolver was found in their car, were held last night for their parents. They satisfied Gary authorities that they had not known the weapon was in the automobile. The youth are: George Demos, 16 years old, 111 South Marion street, Oak Park; Roy Gross, 16 years old, 109 South Marion street, Oak Park, and Edward Taylor, 17 years old, of Forest Park.

AGED ROMEO USES HATCHET.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Angered, police said, because his housekeeper repulsed his advances, Valentine Biesemeyer, 76 years old, today attacked her with a hatchet, set fire to the house, and then killed himself with a shotgun. The condition of the housekeeper, Mrs. Mary McLain, is serious.

VATICAN HONORS FRENCH FOREIGN CHIEF, STIRS ROW

CREMONA, Italy, Nov. 27.—[U. P.]—In a column headed "Just Recognition," Roberto Farinacci, fiery editor of the régime Fascista today took exception to the granting by the Vatican of a decoration to Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister.

"What does it matter," he wrote, "if priests are insulted on the public highways, what does it matter if young men, who wanted to hear holy mass, are assassinated? What does it matter if official France is marching side by side with godless Moscow and Red Spain, destroyers of the church who have massacred tens of thousands of ecclesiasticals?"

He concludes that no one would be surprised if Delbos was to appear at a meeting of a Masonic lodge proudly displaying the grand cordon of San Gregorio Magno.

UNIDENTIFIED INJURED MAN DIES.

Found unconscious with a cut over his left eye Thursday morning at Randolph and Halsted streets, an unidentified man died yesterday in the County hospital. He was about 50 and well dressed.

Await Capital's Word on WPA Armory Job

H. K. Seltzer, Chicago Works Progress administrator, said yesterday he is waiting for a report from Washington WPA officials on a new project to carry on improvements to the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue. A general WPA rehabilitation program, including basement excavation, electrical work, painting, and wall paneling, has been in progress at the armory.

REBEL BOMBERS ATTACK MADRID'S ONLY OPEN ROAD

Shells Drive Planes from Besieged City.

MADRID, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Insurgent bombing planes reached the outskirts of Madrid today before they were driven off by anti-aircraft guns within the long besieged former capital. Turned from the city itself, the rebel bombers raided Fuencarral, seven miles north of the center of Madrid, but their bombs did little damage.

Eighteen planes were counted in another rebel bombing raid, made at Tarancon, a junction point on the road to Valencia—the only one of seven main highways out of Madrid still in government control. Tarancon, also an important rail center, is fifty miles southeast of Madrid.

Troops on the Move.

Two villages—Santacruz de la Zara and the hermitage of Riansares—both within ten miles of Tarancon, also were attacked.

Military circles reported heavy insurgent troop movements during the last two days on the Jarama front, southeast of Madrid, and near Guadalajara to the northeast. These were regarded as significant in connection with the sudden reappearance of insurgent aircraft.

Government batteries on the Aragon front in northeast Spain pounded rebel positions throughout the day to prevent troop concentrations. Fighting in the Aragon sector, however, still consisted of long range shelling and occasional exploratory forays.

Franco Sends Ultimatum.

HENDAYE, France, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Spanish insurgent advices said tonight that Gen. Francisco Franco, rebel commander, had sent the Spanish government an ultimatum demanding unconditional surrender before Dec. 5. The information indicated Franco threatened to launch a general drive, ready since Nov. 10, if the government refused to accept.

Although Franco declared yesterday he would accept no armistice or compromise, authoritative sources said he had delayed his offensive in the hope of government capitulation. The nature of the government reply, if any, was not known. The advices indicated, however, there was little chance Franco's demands would be met.

Nebraskan Adds 49 Cents to U. S. 'Conscience' Fund

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—An unidentified person in Lincoln, Neb., figures that he owes the federal government 49 cents. He sent the money to be put into the fund that the government has set aside to relieve sore consciences.

Husband to Husband

MRS. RUTH DE MARIGNY.

Reno, Nev., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ruth Fahnestock Schermerhorn today divorced A. Coster Schermerhorn of the Long Island hunting set and was married immediately afterward to Alfred Fouquereaux de Marigny, wealthy Frenchman from the island of Mauritius. Mrs. Schermerhorn's decree was obtained on the ground of cruelty. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fahnestock. Her marriage to Schermerhorn was an event of the 1926 social season, the bride driving to St. Thomas church in the old family brougham.

2 Killed as Passenger Plane Crashes in China

HONGKONG, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A large passenger plane of the Southwest Aviation corporation today was reported to have crashed near the western border of Kwangsi province near Lungchow while en route to Hanoi, French Indo-China. The pilot and mechanic were killed and the co-pilot and some of the passengers were injured. The crash, which occurred Wednesday, was believed to have been caused by motor trouble.

Japanese Volcano Erupts; Tokio Shaken by Rumbling

KUSATSU, Japan, Nov. 27.—(AP)—After a five year silence volcanic Mount Shirane in central Honshu erupted today. Tokio was shaken slightly, but there were heavier shocks in regions closer to the volcano. Neither casualties nor damage were reported. Ashes covered the base of the mountain. Two hundred men who had been working on the slopes left Friday because of snow.

FRENCH PROTEST ITALIAN ATTACK ON NAVAL CHIEF

Demand Press Be Silenced and Ask Explanation.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Alexis Leger, permanent general secretary in the French foreign ministry, today protested against an Italian press attack on Cesar Campinchi, French naval minister. Leger summoned Renato Prunas, Italian chargé d'affaires, and asked for an explanation of the newspaper comments.

Leger pointed out that Campinchi's official denial he made the speech to which the Italian papers objected had not caused the attack on him to abate. He said such violent criticism of a man for remarks he never made should cease. The Italian press charged that Campinchi, in a speech aboard the warship General Bonaparte, accused Italy of planning to attack the French Island of Corsica.

New Attack Follows Protest.

Leger's protest was followed by a renewed attack in the Italian newspaper Popolo d'Italia. This time the paper attacked the French army. The Popolo d'Italia was reported to have said that the French army mutinied during 1917 and that only the Italian victories of the Piave and Vittorio Veneto saved France from defeat.

It was observed here that the Italian press campaign coincided with the arrival in Rome of Prime Minister Milan Stoyadinovitch of Jugo-Slavia and with a conference in London among Prime Minister Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Delbos of France and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Watch Italians in Spain.

Meanwhile one daily newspaper suggested that Frenchmen are awaiting the promised big attack by Italian troops on behalf of the rebels in Spain to see just how good they are.

HOME TOWN FRIENDS PAY LAST HONOR TO RAMSAY MACDONALD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—James Ramsay MacDonald, humble Scottish lad who rose to become the first labor prime minister of Great Britain, was buried today in Lossiemouth, Scotland, the village in which he was born.

Virtually the whole population of the town lined the approach to the station as the train bearing MacDonald's ashes arrived. On the platform to meet the mourners were twenty humble folk who had known and loved the man whom a nation mourned.

Headed by members of the town council, a procession formed and on its journey to the hillock in Spynie churchyard, where rested the body of MacDonald's wife, his sons, Alastair and Malcolm, carried the urn containing his ashes. The sons, and MacDonald's daughters, Ishbel, Sheila, and Mrs. A. MacKinnon, accompanied the ashes to Lossiemouth.

HONOR IMMIGRATION OFFICIAL.

James L. Houteling, recently appointed United States commissioner of immigration, will be honored Dec. 2 at the annual luncheon meeting of the Immigrants' Protective league in the Hotel La Salle.

WELDED HOMES WILL BE SET ON LOTS AT PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A subdivision with homes all built by welders instead of carpenters was assured for Peoria with the issuance of building permits to the Letourneau Foundation for ten all-steel houses. The houses will be factory built, and big cranes will put them in place.

The new housing project, to be located on the Illinois river, when completed, will furnish homes for the families of 24 employés of the R. G. Letourneau, Inc., road machinery plant, near by.

The Letourneau Foundation, sponsor of the colony, is a welfare and religious organization. Its head is R. G. Letourneau, president of the road machinery company. The first 10 homes in the subdivision, to be known as Letourneau Court, will have three rooms and a bath. They will be entirely of steel, factory made, and welded throughout. They will have double walls to insure an even temperature, and will have air conditioning. The permits set the cost at $2,500 each.

JAPANESE INVADE NEW PROVINCE TO ISOLATE NANKING

Thrusts Threaten to Trap Civilians in Capital.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 28 [Sunday].—(AP)—Japan's soldiers today pushed their conquests deeper into China's eastern provinces while Japan's representatives in the rear tightened their hold on the communications and customs services of conquered Shanghai.

Wuhu and Kwangteh, in Anhwei province, hitherto not invaded, were objectives of rapid thrusts which threatened to isolate Nanking even before the capital could be reached by other Japanese columns along the Shanghai-Nanking railway and perhaps before its defenders could withdraw.

Hangchow, beautiful and historic capital of Chekiang province, was menaced by other Japanese forces swarming through the hilly country 100 or more miles southwest of Shanghai.

Civilians Endangered.

The Japanese thrust toward Wuhu, treaty port on the Yangtze river fifty-five miles southwest of Nanking, threatened to bottle up all civilians remaining in the capital and cut off Chinese military forces in the entire Nanking region.

It was feared great loss of civilian life would result if the Japanese first isolated and then attacked Nanking. There was danger of total destruction of China's brilliant capital if its defenders were trapped and turned to fight within its walls.

One Japanese column captured Szean, 110 miles inland from Shanghai, and drove on toward Kwangteh, in Anhwei.

Other Japanese commands were marching along the highway to Ihing and cutting through hills from captured Changking to attack Liyang, only forty-five miles from Nanking.

Japanese Cut Through Hills.

Japanese units were moving on Hangchow from the north and east. The northern column from Kashing was spread-eagling as it slowly approached the city. The eastern unit had fought its way along the northern shore of Hangchow bay, captured Haiyen and was threatening Kanpoo.

Chinese said Japanese losses in the crossing of Lake Tai, the first move in the swing against Nanking from the southeast, were extremely heavy. Boats loaded with troops were said to have been sunk by Chinese regulars and the pirates who have infested the lake for many years.

U. S. Missionaries Withdraw.

With the fighting spreading throughout the Hangchow area, American missionaries were withdrawing. Twenty-two arrived at Shanghai today and more were expected within a few days.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson of the United States reported by radio to the cruiser Augusta at Shanghai that he and his staf had reached Hankow, 300 miles up the Yangtze from Nanking. He planned to establish a temporary embassy there, one of the new centers of China's dispersed government.

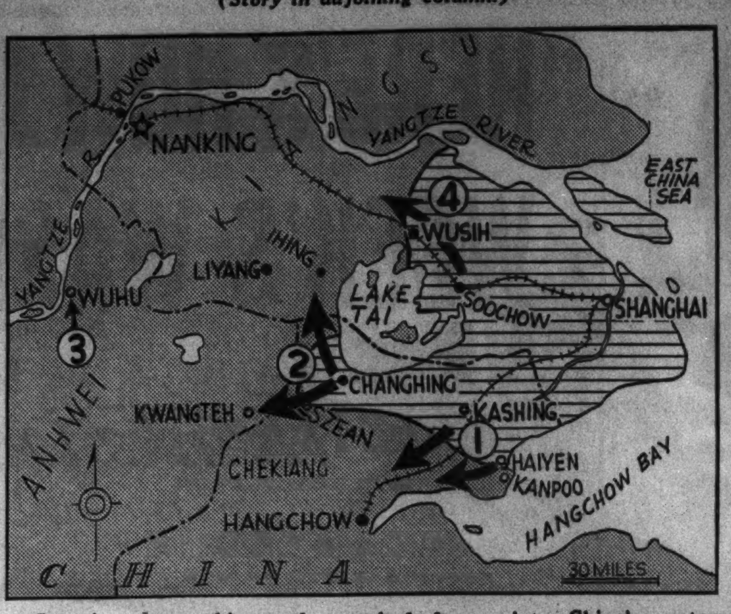
News that Great Britain had warned Japan the British government expects to be consulted about any changes in communications and customs services in Shanghai had no apparent effect on the Japanese program of consolidation here.

Japanese officers were seeking the coöperation of Chinese technicians and telegraphers to ensure uninterrupted operation of the radio and telegraph services in the Shanghai area over which the Japanese assumed control yesterday.

"Should our efforts [to obtain such coöperation] fail, temporary interruption of communications facilities would follow, to the regret of the Japanese authorities," said a Japanese spokesman.

Japanese Strike to Bottle Up Nanking

(Story in adjoining column.)



Japan's war machine today pushed deeper into China's eastern provinces in an attempt to isolate Nanking, the capital. (1) Two Japanese columns advanced toward Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province. (2) A third column captured Changhing and moved to attack Liyang in Anhwei province, 45 miles from Nanking. Another column took Szean and drove toward Kwangteh. (3) Wuhu, 55 miles southwest of Nanking, a Japanese objective. If Wuhu were captured, communications between Nanking and central China along the Yangtze would be cut. (4) Japanese reported gains directly west of Shanghai. Ruled portion of map shows area controled by Japanese.

RUSSIANS TO JOIN WORLD UNIONS TO FIGHT FASCISM

Would Line up A. F. L. and Soviet Labor.

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The soviet trade unions tonight agreed on a basis for affiliation with the International Federation of Trades Unions. A soviet communique explained that delegates of the two groups agreed on "the principal conditions for establishment of unity between the trade unions of soviet Russia and the International Federation of Trades Unions for a struggle against war and F scism." Executive committees of both organizations will be asked to approve the basis for unity.

Jouhaux Dickers with Russians.

"After the conditions are approved by both," the communique added, "questions on the entrance of soviet labor unions into the International Federation will be decided."

Leon Jouhaux, first vice president of the International federation, has been negotiating with officials of the soviet trade unions for the last five days. It was announced that the soviet trade unions embrace 20,000,000 members.

A. F. OF L. NOW A MEMBER.

The American Federation of Labor was accepted last July as a member of the International Federation of Trades Unions when the latter met in Warsaw, Poland. The American group gained membership, however, only after the opposition of radical elements favorable to John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, which pulled away from the American federation, was overcome. The American organization previously had resigned from the International federation because European majorities would have forced their decision on American labor.

Library Issues Index to Municipal Legislation

The Chicago municipal reference library has published a 250 page mimeographed "Index to Municipal Legislation" for the use of city officials, libraries, and students, it was announced yesterday. The index lists the legislative proceedings of thirty-eight cities in the United States and four foreign cities.

NEW JAPANESE PUPPET RULE INAUGURATED IN CHINESE PROVINCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 27.—A new pro-Japanese autonomous government was set up in Honan province, China, today. The formal inauguration of the government was held in the offices of the Anyang district government at Changte.

Gen. Hsaio Jui-chen, former divisional commander under Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, one time warlord of Honan province, was installed as chairman. Five hundred delegates attended the ceremony.

Gen. Hsaio read a manifesto announcing complete independence from the Nanking government. The manifesto pledged the autonomous government to work for the eradication of communism.

MOSCOW REJECTS TOKIO PROTEST ON MOVING COREANS

Russia Rushes Drive on "Foreign Spies."

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The soviet government announced tonight it had rejected a Japanese protest against involuntary transportation of Coreans from their homes in the Vladivostok region to Middle Asia. An official statement said:

"The Japanese embassy has protested to the foreign office over the migration of Coreans living in the Far East. The foreign office has rejected the protest or the ground that it could not recognize any Japanese right over Coreans who are soviet citizens."

Diplomatic circles said many of the 130,000 Coreans living in the Vladivostok region had been moved into the interior recently, presumably as a precaution against spying or pro-Japanese agitation along the frontier.

Push Drive on Foreigners.

A soviet drive against foreigners suspected of spying was linked to war fears in a speech by Michael Kalinin, president of the all Russia central executive committee.

"Such enemies are much more numerous than you think, comrades," he told a campaign meeting in Leningrad.

"It is necessary that the enemy [foreigner] feel a hostile atmosphere wherever he goes."

In case of war, Kalinin explained, "the fewer the threads connecting the capitalist world with the U. S. S. R., the stronger we will be and the better it will be for the red army at the front."

Six Condemned to Die.

Six convicted agricultural wreckers were condemned to death in Ordjonikidze province. In addition to agricultural wrecking, they were accused of plotting an insurrection against the soviet régime.

The action brought the total death sentences for various anti-soviet offenses reported in the provincial press to thirty-one for the week.

RESCUE WOMEN FROM BURNING ROOF.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Maude Nelson, 47, and Mrs. Gertrude Polland, 43, sisters, were rescued today by firemen from the roof of a two story building swept by flames. They occupied an apartment in the structure.

Christmas Crowds Again Throng Chicago Stores

Another typical Christmas crowd thronged department stores and shops throughout the city yesterday. Store officials, who saw their holiday season open Friday with a buoyant throng of buyers, reported sales were excellent and fully up to last year, which was the most satisfying one for retailers since the peak of 1929.

NAB RICH REALTY MANAGER AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

H. T. Smith Charged with Leaving Scene.

Harry T. Smith, 51 East Elm street, wealthy former shoe manufacturer, was charged this morning with leaving the scene of an accident several hours after his car had struck a man in front of the Edgewater Beach hotel, 5349 Sheridan road. The man, Earl Rook, 41 years old, 7627 Emerald avenue, a house detective for the hotel, suffered a leg fracture and possible internal injuries, and is in the Edgewater hospital.

According to Park Policeman Frank McAuliff, witnesses said that Smith's car knocked Rook down and continued on. Smith was traced through his license number and reached by telephone at the home of a friend in Glencoe, where he had gone after the accident. He voluntarily surrendered to police and explained that Rook had walked against his car and then walked away. He did not believe the the man was hurt or, he said, he would have stopped.

Freed on $100 Bond.

Police booked Smith and freed him on $100 bond. He will appear in court tomorrow. Smith is 54 years old and a former president of R. P. Smith & Sons, shoe jobbers. He now devotes his time to managing large real estate interests. He served as an army captain in the war. In 1919 he married Miss Josephine Harriman, then one of Chicago's leading stage dancers.

Joseph Lesser, 25 years old, 915 Wilson avenue, a United States mail truck driver, was fatally injured last night when he was crushed beneath his overturned truck at Irving Park boulevard and Leavitt street. He swerved to avoid another car and struck the curb. The truck overturned. He died in the Martha Washington hospital.

Father of Nine Killed.

A father of nine children was struck by one automobile and killed under the wheels of another last night at Huron street and Western avenue. He was Gerardi Scala, 42 years old, 2604 Superior street.

Scala was in the middle of the street when the car driven by Frank Bistille, 3301 North Ridgeway avenue, knocked him into the path of one driven by Otto Stuwer, 711 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park. Both drivers were held for the inquest tomorrow morning.

A motorcycle delivery messenger died of a skull fracture an hour after his machine struck a pedestrian at Commercial avenue and 83d place and then hit a light pole yesterday afternoon.

The messenger was Ellwood Eliason, 26 years old, 7346 Exchange avenue. The pedestrian was Alex Majewski, 8336 Colfax avenue, who was slightly injured, but went home unaided.

Pedestrian Is Killed.

William Bagniewski, 8 years old, 2839 North Campbell avenue, was crossing the street in front of 2876 Elston avenue last night when he was struck by an auto driven by Frank Brelle, 1772 Cora street, Des Plaines, and killed.

Jennie Becker, 54 years old, of 6129 South Green street, died at Englewood hospital last night after being struck by the car of a hit and run driver in Morgan street near 61st street.

William Paris Jr., a colored boy, 9 years old, who lived at 1417 Fulton street, was killed by an auto driven by Wallis Woods, 28 years old, colored, of 4147 Indiana avenue.

31,950 Killed in 1937.

Automobile accidents took 31,950 lives in the United States in the first ten months of this year, an 8 per cent increase over the toll of the similar 1936 period, the National Safety council announced yesterday. The council reported 3,800 persons were killed by automobiles in October, 6 per cent more than in September and 1 per cent over October, 1936.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 978 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 735 were killed in Chicago, where 20,800 were injured in the same period.

FINDS OWNER AFTER 19 YEARS; MAILS HIM WATCH LOST IN CAMP

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A watch lost nineteen years ago in a world war army training camp was mailed to its owner tonight. John M. Breeding found the timepiece in 1918, in Jackson barracks, New Orleans. It was inscribed: "To B. P. Shrier from his mother on his 21st birthday, March 4, 1914."

Breeding said he had written to many Shriers, living in many parts of the nation, attempting to find the watch's owner. Recently he received a letter from Ben P. Shrier of Peoria, Ill., who wrote he had been sent overseas shortly after losing the watch.

"I always wanted to keep it to remember my mother by," Shrier wrote. Breeding mailed the watch to him.

Five Boys in Stolen Car Arrested After They Crash

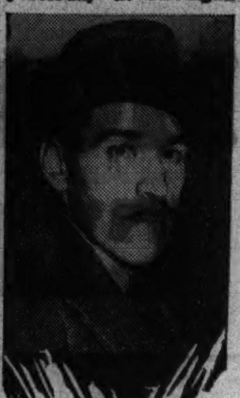
Five boys who went on a ride to Hammond, Ind., in a stolen car ended up in a crash last night in which one was injured. All were arrested. They are Chester Mozdzen, 18 years old, 5405 South Hoyne avenue; Frank Talarski, 17, of 5423 South Seeley avenue; Max V. Ignasiak, 17, of 2117 West 54th place; Steve Repiscak, 14, of 2118 West 54th street, and George L. Gaydos, 16, of 5334 South Hoyne avenue. Police said they stole a car belonging to Raymond J. Strang, 5740 South Hoyne avenue, drove to Hammond, stole two license plates there and returned to Chicago. At 78th street and Pulaski road their car overturned, injuring Gaydos.

POLITE DRIVER KEEPS CROSSING CLEAR; WINS $5

Aids Christmas Shopper by Courtesy.

BY HAL FOUST.

Policeman James Herbert, on duty yesterday at Michigan avenue and Ontario street, noticed a west bound sedan slowly approaching the red trafic light at the intersection. It was stopped with the front half of the car projecting into the cross walk on the east side of Michigan avenue. Pedestrians, including women shoppers, had to walk around the front bumper.



Vernon Rogers, who won politeness prize.

"Don't let your car stand there," the policeman called, approaching the car. "Back up to clear this cross walk."

Orders Car to Back Up.

"What cross walk?" asked the driver, who was wearing a letter carrier's hat. The policeman showed him the white lines on the pavement and had the car backed up 6 feet. The driver gave his name as Louis M. Greenspan, 3408 Grenshaw street.

"With Christmas shoppers beginning to crowd the sidewalks," Policeman Herbert commented, "it's increasingly importrnt that motorists should be considerate and courteous to pedestrians. Sometimes a driver is stopped on a cross walk by a change of the lights and he can't help himself because there's another machine directly behind him. But there was no excuse for that fellow crossing the white line.

Driver Clears the Way.

Half an hour or so later an old sedan, a bit rusty and battered, approached Michigan avenue from the east. A red light stopped it on the cross walk. The driver stuck his head out of the window to see that the way was free and then backed up to clear the pedestrian path.

This driver, Vernon Rogers, 23 South Honore street, was awarded THE TRIBUNE's $5 weekly prize for trafic courtesy. He was congratulated by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marie Biller, 16 South Honore street, who was riding with him.

SHOT AT COOP; DIES.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—John Plummer, 62 years old, died an hour after he was shot by Kenneth Clegg, who said he found him in the Clegg chicken house this morning. Clegg fired twice.

BLAZE TIES UP LOOP TRAFIC; SET DAMAGE AT $2,000

Trafic on the Lake street and Clark street car lines was tied up for a half hour yesterday as firemen battled a blaze in the basement of the Reed hotel at 210 North Clark street. Dense clouds of smoke, rising through the four storied building, drove thirty-five guests of the hotel from their quarters.

Two of the firemen, Joseph Harbor and Robert Porter, were overcome by an explosion which occurred while they were in the basement. They were carried out by other firemen and after being revived returned to duty. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

FRAGILE GOOD-WILL

By CALEB

(This was written to our employes. As an afterthought—in case you're interested—it is printed here.)

LAST week I talked with a number of women such as our store was created to serve. Two of them have extreme views about us.

One of them thinks we are wonderful. The other condemns us bitterly.

They were both speaking of the same store—one identical building in an identical block, and one great stock of merchandise. Do you know what caused their violently different views?

The answer is "People!" The people who meet and serve them here!

●

I HAVE a good friend who has a magnificent collection of very valuable objets d'art. There are among them many fragile porcelains worth their weight in gold.

This friend must entrust the dusting and cleaning of these priceless things to his employes. But, fortunately, he never has to do so until a long period of observation proves the employe is careful and trustworthy.

Our store is not similarly situated. Our priceless asset—our only priceless asset—is customer good-will; what the public thinks of us! And that, we must entrust to you whenever we permit you to meet customers on our floors.

It is far more fragile than the sheerest porcelain, and far more perishable than any orchid.

The slightest breath of discourtesy, indifference, or neglect on your part may kill forever some of that good-will which we have dearly bought. We have bought it through year on year of courteous, sincere service others of our employes have rendered our customers! We have bought it through extensive advertising which implies the kind of service this store intends to render. We have bought it through the combined efforts of all of us who have the Field spirit and an eagerness to deal well and truly with the world.

When you approach a visitor to our store, you are approaching the crucial test of your job. She or he must be treated as our guest. Will you, therefore, watch for your opportunity to eagerly serve and help that customer? Will you handle, with all the friendliness and sincerity you can, that fraction of our priceless good-will represented by the person before you?

No store in this world can match the good-will with which we entrust you. Mind it well. No store in the world is expected by its customers to treat them so well as we are expected to treat them. And that treatment is in your hands. Live up to the high trust our customers repose in us, and that we repose in you—for the customer's sake, the store's sake, and your own sake.

YOUTH CONFESSES PART IN SLAYING POULTRY DEALER

Names Colored Student as Actual Killer.

After long questioning by Capt. William A. Byrne of the Stanton avenue police district a colored robber confessed yesterday he was present Nov. 13 when Harry Rubin, 31 years old, was shot and killed in his poultry store at 118 East 51st street.

Capt. William A. Byrne.

Samuel Rubin, brother of Harry, who was wounded at the same time, is convalescing at the Jackson Park hospital.

The youth who confessed is George Johnson, 18 years old, 4831 St. Lawrence avenue. He named Allen Jones, colored, 19 years old, a student at the Phillips High school, as his accomplice, and accused him of firing the fatal shots. Jones is still at liberty.

"Even if I have to go to the chair," said Johnson, "I'm glad to get this off my chest. Jones went into that store with me and he did the shooting when the Rubins put up a fight. I never fired at all."

Detectives George Riley and Michael Tydings arrested Johnson and Warren Pinkston, colored, 19 years old, 123 East 46th street, in a stolen automobile last Wednesday. They admitted more than a dozen robberies.

Pinkston, however, denied any connection with the Rubin shooting and this was corroborated by Johnson. Both were sent to the detective bureau and will be in the regular showup this afternoon.

CLUB MEMBERS WILL TAKE FREE SYPHILIS TESTS

A step forward in the plan of the mayor's syphilis control committee to carry the free testing campaign to university and professional groups will be taken at 4 p. m. today when approximately 50 members of the Polish-American University club meets at 23d and Whipple streets to take tests.

These will be administered by a city physician, whose services the board of health has offered for all such anti-syphilis meetings. The club's members are young physicians, lawyers, teachers, and university students.

The campaign against venereal disease will be discussed at a joint meeting of the Illinois Social Hygiene league and the Chicago chapter of the American Association of Social Workers at Hull house tomorrow.

3 Deer Hunters Killed in Northern Wisconsin

Merrill, Wis., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two Hunters were killed today, bringing to three the number killed by gunfire since Wisconsin's three day deer hunting season opened yesterday. Erich Kubitz of Pine River was killed by a stray bullet as he stood on a stump in woods near Merrill. Jean Hodgson, 15, of Merrill, was killed by a bullet from his own weapon, accidentally discharged as he hunters were killed today, bringing hunted near Antigo. The first victim was O. G. Blakeslee, Medford city clerk, who was shot yesterday in the Mondeau forest. The state conservation department announced that 130,000 deer tags were sent into the thirty northern counties.

SLAIN RECLUSE A MYSTERY IN LIFE AND DEATH

Revealed as Broker and Daredevil.

In the unwritten history of a life that included fame as a public entertainer, a fortune won and lost on the Chicago Board of Trade and a long period of penurious, hermitlike existence, investigators were seeking last night for clews to explain the killing of a man known as William King.

William King.

King [his real name was Mortimer Hamburger] was shot down late Friday night in front of his home at 7324 Dante avenue. The original theory of the police, that he was the victim of a robber band, was modified when $745 was found in his pockets. It was held there was possibility that some action of his—perhaps in bygone years—had furnished the background of a revenge motive.

Victim Once a Jocky.

King, who was 52 years old and only 5 feet 2 inches tall, was once a jocky. Later, under the name "Flyer King," he was one of the most noted of those daredevil motorcycle riders who skimmed the slant walled motordromes.

During the world war, it was said, he served overseas. Then, coming to Chicago, he engaged in grain speculation. He was a familiar figure around the Board of Trade prior to 1926. He associated with Arthur W. Cutten and other big traders and the smaller fry called him "The Little Mascot." Reputedly he had once, built on paper, a fortune of a half million dollars.

Goes Broke Later.

Luck turned and King went broke. He turned to a less spectacular way of making a living; became a furniture salesman. The last job he had was with the South Side Furniture and Commission house, 7006 South Chicago avenue. His last home was a room in the house on Dante avenue, and for that he paid $4 a week.

"He was the stingiest man I ever knew," said William Loeffler, manager of the furniture store.

Policemen Thomas Dorgan and Robert Walsh were informed King had a safe deposit vault in the Board of Trade Building vaults, and an attempt to examine the contents will be made tomorrow.

King's former wife, Miss Myrtle Newman, 7700 North Marshfield avenue, from whom he was divorced in 1929, told police she knew little of his life recently. She had seen him, she said, about a year ago. She expressed concern over a $1,600 diamond ring which he used to wear and which is now missing.

The circumstances of the attack that brought his death were peculiar. As King approached the house two men leaped out of an automobile and began beating him on the head. A shot was fired. Possibly it came from his pistol. Then there was another shot. Mrs. Hazel Smith of 7331 Dante avenue, looking out of a window, heard King cry, "Don't do that!"

Tells of Seeing Shooting.

"One of the men was searching King," she said. "I saw him take something from his hip pocket. I thought it was a wallet. Then the men ran toward the car, but one returned to fire again at King."

There were tracings of blood from the body of King to the place where the car had stopped. One of his assailants, apparently, was wounded.

"I think some one who had a grievance killed King," said Capt. Patrick Brady of the Grand Crossing police.

King's cousin, Aaron Bodenweiser, 5459 Everett avenue, said King had not visited him for at least three years and that he knew of no enemies the one time speculator might have had.

ARRAIGN DOCTOR FOR FAILING TO PAY $740 ALIMONY

Dr. Michael Nelson, 63 years old, 1624 North California avenue, was arraigned on Friday in the Superior court of Judge John J. Lupe for failing to pay $740 alimony to his ex-wife, Evelyn, who also charged him with arbitrarily cutting her $80 monthly alimony payments in half.

Through his attorney, Harry X. Cole, the physician countered with a petition for custody of their son Norman, 15, a military academy student. Dr. Nelson said the boy complained that his mother was cruel to him.

Attorney Cole said Dr. Nelson reduced the alimony payments because the boy has lived with him since June. Mrs. Nelson, who lives at 4333 North Troy street, obtained a divorce Nov. 30, 1935.

Watchman Plunges Down Elevator Shaft to His Death

Joseph Weintraub, 50 years old, 1310 South Harding avenue, watchman for a private patrol, was killed early yesterday when he fell down an elevator shaft at 210 West Monroe street. Police said he apparently was confused and walked into the open shaft on the fourth floor level. The elevator was on the fifth floor.

Plans to Ask Death Penalty for 2 Young Train Robbers

Las Cruces, N. M., Nov. 27.—(AP)—District Attorney Martin Threet today began his fight to exact the death penalty for two pseudo cowboys whose attempt to rob a crack passenger train cost the life of a railroad trainman. Threet said he would arraign Henry Lorenz, 22 years old, and Harry Dwyer, aged 27, on charges of train robbery and murder, each of which carries a death penalty.

HITLER STARTS MAKING BERLIN AN ETERNAL CITY

Lays Corner Stone of New Military Academy.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today laid the corner stone of the new academy of military technology of the Berlin Technical university. The ceremony was the first step toward the creation of a "university city" on the western outskirts of Berlin and toward the reconstruction of the capital which Hitler has decreed.

In his speech the Fuehrer declared his "unchangeable will and decision" to provide Berlin with streets, buildings, and public places which will make it "eternally the worthy capital of the reich."

Plans Eternal Capital.

"The former residence of the Hohenzollern princes, kings, and kaisers henceforth shall become the eternal capital of the first German people's state," Hitler proudly exclaimed.

The task of rebuilding Berlin, he said, will not be based on present day requirements.

The German people, he said, have a historical and cultural history of 1,000 years and the idea is to build a city worthy of Berlin for 1,000 years to come.

Refuting the theory that ancient states collapsed owing to the expansion of their capitals, Hitler said: "The Roman empire did not collapse on account of Rome, without which there never would have been a Roman empire. Ancient states collapsed because they neglected racial laws."

Says Race Propels Science.

The same note was struck by Bernhard Rust, minister of culture.

"Science has received a decisive revolutionary impulse through the discovery of racial laws which have provided a new legal basis and a new outlook on life," he said. "The idea of race opens for us a world of active and creative humanity."

Rust added that the research work of the military technical academy aids not only national defense, but also research work in physics. Seven military technical departments will be installed in the new academy.

The site of the new "university city" is in the Grunewald, a forest of 7,576 acres near the Olympic stadium. Both Friedrich Wilhelm university and the Berlin Technical university—with their 16,000 students—will be removed to that area.

ILLINOIS PILOT'S WIFE ASKS ENTRY INTO REBEL SPAIN

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(U. P.)—Mrs. Edith Rogers Dahl, wife of Harold E. Dahl, American aviator held as a prisoner of the Spanish rebels, said today she would attempt to enter Spain by way of Portugal to seek her husband's freedom. Dahl, whose home is in Champaign, Ill., was sentenced to death Oct. 7 by a rebel court martial after his capture as a Spanish government aviator. Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel chief, reprieved him.

"If I could only reach Spain I am sure I could obtain Harold's freedom," Mrs. Dahl said. "The rebel authorities notified me they have no objections to my going to Spain, but French and American authorities will not give me the necessary papers."

Dahl is in Salamanca, Franco's headquarters, where he is said to be recovering from an appendicitis operation.

HOLY LAND ARAB HANGED IN WAR ON TERRORISTS

HAIFA, Palestine, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Sheik Farhan Saadi, Arab warrior who had been hunted for more than a year as a terrorist, was hanged today. Condemned by a military tribunal, he was the first victim of a new British effort to stamp out recurrent warfare between Arabs and Jews battling for supremacy in Palestine.

The sheik's body was left hanging for an hour, in accordance with Moslem law. Then it was cut down and carried to the village of Jenin, where the fiery Arab was dragged from a corn bind last Monday and given summary trial for possessing firearms and ammunition.

One Arab strike was declared at Acre in protest to the hanging. Police broke up protest demonstrations in other cities.

PARIS STRUGGLES TO RESTORE GRIP ON ITS COLONIES

Aims to Aid Natives in North Africa.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A program for resurrecting authority in France's North African colonies and at the same time making certain concessions to the natives in them was approved by the cabinet today. The program was submitted by former Premier Albert Sarraut.

Sarraut, who is "minister of state," with the special job of coordinating North African affairs, presented his plan after an investigation following recent disorders in the colonies.

Plans Public Works.

His proposals included:

Large scale public works in Algeria, Morocco, and Tunisia, partly to provide labor for the unemployed and partly for irrigation to furnish water for arid regions.

Allotment of land and financial aid to the fellahheen [peasants in Arabic speaking countries].

An increase in the number of government employés to provide for more natives.

Urges Radio Stations.

To counteract Italo-German radio propaganda, notably that broadcast by the Italian station at Bari, Italy, Sarraut proposed the establishment of certain French stations, the publications of tracts to meet foreign tracts and newspaper articles to challenge foreign newspaper propaganda.

Finally it was suggested that Sarraut's post be made permanent in future cabinets.

FRANCE WILLING TO GIVE HITLER SOME COLONIES

But Demands British Stick Close to Her Side.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—France has agreed to join Great Britain in satisfying Germany's colonial demands if the British continue to stick with Paris on other points, it was reported here tonight.

The talks of Premier Camille Chautemps of France with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on Monday and Tuesday are said to be based on an offer by France not to oppose the British move for a rapprochement with Germany. The French are reported ready to agree in principle to German colonial claims if the British continue their coöperation with Paris and help see that territorial changes in Europe are not attempted.

Ready to Help Pool Land.

The French also are said to be willing to contribute a share of a "pool" of colonies to satisfy the German claims.

France was reported to have put its foot down on any probable molestation of its ally, Czechoslovakia.

Austria will be the scapegoat of any German territorial move on the continent, diplomatic circles believe. The French are taking the stand that they can count on Italy to preserve Austria's independence. However, it is believed that Premier Mussolini agreed not to oppose the Nazis in Austria on his recent visit with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Japan to Keep Islands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 27.—Japan is unwilling to give up former German islands in the South Seas which were mandated to Tokio, a government spokesman said today in reply to reports that Japan is favorably inclined toward German's move to regain her colonies.

"It is the unalterable national policy of the Japanese empire to maintain mandatory rule over the South Sea islands," the spokesman said. "This point has been repeatedly declared to the world by the Japanese government since its secession from the league of nations."

See Pressure Put on France.

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The official soviet government newspaper Izvestia today expressed belief that British diplomats would try to force France to accept demands made by Germany on Great Britain.

In the approaching conversations at London with Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France, the article said it was to be "supposed" pressure would be brought to bear on France to compel its acceptance of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's program.

Hitler's program was accepted by Izvestia to mean "a continuation of the policy of unleashing a war of blackmail" with Czechoslovakia, Austria, and Lithuania as the likely victims.

BRAZIL BURNS FLAGS OF STATES TO MARK NEW VARGAS REGIME

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas today attended an open air ceremony symbolizing the new centralized régime he established for Brazil by his new constitution of Nov. 10. Flags of the republic's 20 states were burned on an altar behind which was impressively raised the national green and yellow banner of Brazil. Vargas' new constitution ended the virtual autonomy previously enjoyed by Brazilian states.

Egyptian Tries to Hurl Self Under Auto of King

CAIRO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Young King Farouk of Egypt was en route to a mosque for prayer today when a peasant, Hussan Mohamed Hassanein, tried to throw himself under the wheels of his automobile in an attempt to "get justice." The king's car was halted so quickly that it skidded around, missing the prostrate Moslem. Hassanein told police he wished to appeal to the king for a judgment in a claim to land which had been pending in court.

BUTCHER KILLS SELF.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Mark W. Needler, 47 years old, a butcher, killed himself in his East Peoria shop today. He left a note saying business was poor.

WAR AVIATOR GIVES BLOOD TO 'STREP' VICTIM

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A Canadian world war aviator, first of more than 2,000 volunteers whose blood met physicians' requirements, gave his blood in a transfusion today in an attempt to save the life of Weston Fletcher of Grand Blanc, Mich., suffering from a streptococcus viridans infection.

Ernest Vansickle, who contracted and recovered from the disease after his plane was shot down in France in 1916, came here from Brantford, Ont., after Fletcher's mother had made a radio appeal for aid.

Fletcher, who is 25 years old, did not see his benefactor until after the indirect transfusion was completed; then he feebly grasped Vansickle's hand.

Dr. H. A. Simpkins, attending the youth, said further transfusions may be needed. "It will require several days before the results will be known," he said. "The patient showed no immediate response, but his condition remains fair." Fletcher's wife, Fern, remained at his bedside constantly.

Investigator's Death Is Called Suicide by Jury

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Joseph E. White, 56 years old, 7000 Chappel avenue, who was found shot to death in his home Thursday, committed suicide while despondent over ill health. He was a former investigator for the state's attorney's office.

Find Missing Polish Plane; Passengers and Crew Dead

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Bulgarian mountaineers at Sweti Wratch today found the wreck of a Polish passenger airplane which had been missing for four days. Three passengers and the plane's crew of three were dead.

German Is Executed on Charge of Being a Spy

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Hubelt Sprengel, a German, 28 years of age, was executed today on a charge of espionage in the service of an unidentified foreign nation. It was charged that Sprengel came to Germany on frequent spying trips during the last year. He was caught by a soldier.

'ARSENIC ANNA' IS SENTENCED TO DIE; COLLAPSES

March 10 Set for Execution in Ohio Prison.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, sentenced today to die for the arsenic murder of Jacob Wagner, was in a state of collapse and under the care of a jail physician in her cell here tonight.

With her eyes red from weeping and glistening with tears, Mrs. Hahn listened calmly as Judge Charles S. Bell overruled a defense motion for a new trial and fixed March 10 as the date for her execution in the electric chair in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus.

Before passing sentence on the German born blonde, who is 31 years old, Judge Bell asked her whether she had anything to say.

Declares She's Innocent.

"I do," the defendant replied in a steady voice as her white hands clutched at the rail before the judge's bench. "I am not guilty, judge."

Mrs. Hahn's son, Oscar, 11 years old, who was the chief defense witness at her trial, and her husband, Philip, were not in the courtroom when sentence was passed.

Hiram C. Bolsinger of defense counsel announced that he would file an appeal next week before the Ohio Appeals court. This and other actions are expected to delay the execution for several months.

Killer Sobs Convulsively.

When she turned to leave the courtroom after hearing her sentence pronounced, Mrs. Hahn's tears gave way to convulsive sobs and she leaned heavily on the arm of Mrs. Maude Burkhardt, a jail attendant, as she was escorted to an elevator.

After she reached her cell she sank onto her cot, shaking with emotion.

Dr. W. T. Lindsay, jail physician, was summoned to the prisoner's cell to administer a sedative. A special guard also was stationed outside her cell door to guard against the possibility of a suicide attempt.

Special Cell Prepared.

Sherif George A. Lutz announced that Mrs. Hahn will be transferred early next week to the penitentiary at Columbus, where a special cell has been prepared for her.

Mrs. Hahn was convicted Nov. 6, after a month long trial, by a jury of eleven women and one man. Although she was tried only on an indictment charging her with the death of Wagner, who was an elderly Cincinnati gardener, the state introduced evidence that she poisoned four other elderly men to obtain their meager life savings. Three of these died, and the fourth, suffering from what was described as arsenic paralysis, appeared as one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution in her trial.

The evidence presented at the trial, Judge Bell declared today, was so overwhelming that no verdict other than guilty could have been reached by the jury.

In the investigation prior to Mrs. Hahn's trial she was linked to more than a dozen poison deaths in what officials asserted was the largest mass murder for profit in the history of the country.

WINDSOR ADOPTS PLAID OF BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Former King Edward VIII., now an exile from his homeland, has adopted the tartan of an earlier "King over the Water"—Bonnie Prince Charlie—it was revealed today. The kilt, being made in Scotland, will replace the regular Stuart plaid which the duke of Windsor used heretofore.

Bonnie Prince Charlie wore a variant of the well known Stuart plaid, which has blue, green, and yellow lines on a scarlet background. A variant of the style has broader lines of blue and green, hence less scarlet. Kilts of distinctive tartans were developed by the Scottish Highlanders. At one time they indicated the clan and section of the country they represented. Until 1782, the British government, in an act against Scottish rebels, made the wearing of tartans illegal.

On his recent hunting trip in Austria the duke of Windsor wore a kilt of hunting Stuart tartan—green and blue predominating. As king, he was credited with wearing a special Balmoral tartan, of grey, black, and red, but the truth is, he approved it officially and didn't wear it.

Chicago Community Fund Within 11 Pct. of Quota

The Community Fund campaign was only 11 per cent short of its goal of $3,550,000 yesterday, it was announced by Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman. Contributions and pledges at the close of the week totaled $3,144,051, or $416,949 under the quota. Gen. Wood said he hoped the goal would be reached by Dec. 8, but in case it is not the campaign will continue until the full sum is subscribed.

Tenor Returns to U. S.

[Wirephoto.]

Eyvind Laholm and daughter, Sybil, as they landed in New York yesterday.

Eyvind Laholm, American tenor who has been highly successful in opera in Europe, landed in New York yesterday to prepare for his activities there and in Chicago this season. He appears with the Chicago City Opera company a week from Saturday night in the title rôle of Wagner's "Lohengrin." Laholm was born of Swedish parents in Birmingham, Ala., 43 years ago. He lived in Colorado and later in Moline, Ill., which he considers his home town. He was in the United States navy in the world war. After the armistice, the singer settled down to serious study in New York and Europe, making his debut in Essen, Germany, in 1923.

N. U. BOOK FAIR OPENS THURSDAY FOR THREE DAYS

A book fair will be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday by the Women's Faculty club of Northwestern university. The proceeds will go to a fund to establish special projects for the Montgomery Ward clinics of the medical school. The fair will be climaxed by a book ball Saturday night at the Knickerbocker hotel, where many of the dancers will be costumed to represent characters in fiction and biography.

The fair will be held on the Chicago campus of the university. Special exhibits of rare books and prints will be featured in the law building and on Saturday afternoon an auction of a group of rare volumes, manuscripts, letters, and prints will be held. In Thorne Hall there will be a Christmas sale of selected books, magazines, maps, prints, lithographs, water colors, unusual gifts, and holiday cards.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings there will be lectures in the assembly hall. Leonarde Keeler will lecture on "Crime Detection" and discuss many new angles of criminology at 8:15 p. m. in Thorne Hall auditorium.

ASK JURY TRIALS FOR MEN SEIZED IN FRENCH PLOT

Police Tie Seized Arms to Arsenal Thefts.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The minister of justice was asked today to charge persons arrested in the current investigation of a widespread revolutionary movement with "plotting against the safety of the state."

The request, made by attorneys for men who are charged now with associating with malefactors and possession of arms, was designed to bring the conspiracy to trial before juries or even the senate. The attorneys said that defendants there would have a better chance of justice than if tried on the lesser charges in courts without juries.

Authorities believe plotters intended to overthrow the French republic and set up a dictatorship to be followed by restoration of the monarchy. Among several organizations under scrutiny is the secret Les Cagoulards [the hooded ones], believed to be a part of the Comite Secret d'Action Revolutionnaire, known by its initials as the "CSAR." It was the CSAR, police believed, which directed the dictatorship plot.

Raids Uncover Arms Supplies.

For 11 days the Surete Nationale [secret police] has been making raids, several of which resulted in arrests. Among those in custody now are: Eugene de l'Oncle, described as head of CSAR; Gen. Edouard Duseigneur, retired aviation chief of staff and said to be De l'Oncle's aid, and Duke Joseph Pozzo di Borgo, who told investigators he was allied with Duseigneur in a "union of committees for defense against a communist putsch." The duke was arrested yesterday after a raid on his home.

Thefts from French army arsenals during the last year fell today within the scope of the investigation when police disclosed that some of the seized arms had been stolen from these arsenals. Weapons enough to equip a small army of shock troops have been uncovered.

Find Army Machine Gun.

Police announced that a new Hotchkiss machine gun found in the Paris home of Pierre Parent, an architect, bore the same serial number as a gun stolen from the national defense depot at Laon, in the northern province of Aisne. Both the gun and the tripod were identified as having been stolen March 18. Detectives said the discovery was important because Hotchkiss guns are manufactured in nationalized arms plants.

Sue Governor for $150,000; Attack Kentucky Arrests

Harlan, Ky., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler and seven other persons were named defendants today in three damage suits following election day disputes in Harlan county Nov. 2. The plaintiffs, charging false arrest, demand $150,000.

IS IT PLANNED THAT WAY?

The administration submitted new tax proposals to congress in March of last year. In purpose and scope they startled even members of the ruling party. The emphasized feature was the killing tax on undistributed corporation earnings. Its proponents were unresponsive to warnings and rejected advice which pointed to the sustaining power during depression years of well managed companies with reserves.

The political campaign was coming along. Huey Long was dead but he had left his palaver that no income should be larger than 1 million dollars and no inheritance exceed 5 millions. Two per cent of the people own 98 per cent of the wealth was the fable and "soak the rich" was the slogan. The administration contended that 4½ billion dollars would be withheld from stockholders and taxation that year if the government did not force it into circulation.

Rexford Tugwell was still doing the collating and arranging of governmental purposes and he explained that if you could force producers into the market for new capital and lay down the terms on which it could be obtained the step to the governmental control of industry, by allocation of funds and distribution of quotas of production, was neither long nor difficult. But first you must break down the existing system, cause it to fail, to fall because of faults attributed to it.

Communism begins with the assertion that private enterprise, capitalism, the price economy is bound to fail as a doomed structure. Its convulsions increase in intensity and it will kick itself to death. Anything which can be done to make private enterprise fail will be used as proof against it. If it can be made sick by government then government can assert that the sickness requires the cure.

Until the present recession set in the administration chiefs said that the recovery had been planned in Washington. It was not the work of the private enterprises, except as they had proceeded under direction, regulation and correction. When they ceased going forward and things began to go back that was their own fault. The spokesmen for the party in power now talk to producers as if they would make a last plea to them to preserve private enterprise while they urge congress to tie them up in sacks.

If interference with agriculture, industry, commerce, and finance should cause another succession of black years the government will say that it has been forced into an economic dictatorship.

Our republic may be closer to its doom than many of us realize.

WHAT HAPPENED TO MAYA?

Archæologists of the University of Pennsylvania museum working in the Central American jungle on the remains of the Maya civilization offer an interesting theory to explain the destruction which overtook that culture. We know from the ruins discovered in recent years that the race of Mayas, long before the coming of the white man, had progressed a considerable way on the path of civilization, had created a powerful nation, had built great temples and palaces, had some respectable knowledge of science and arts of which there are relics that win the admiration of modern men. Their method of measuring time was more accurate than that of the contemporaneous Europe, and what little can as yet be learned of their social organization indicates a strongly ordered state. Today nothing remains but crumbled ruins of temples, palaces, and thrones engulfed in the depths of an unpeopled wilderness. The populous communities have disappeared, leaving only a few relics of their existence which only the patient and learned study of the archæologists is slowly and cautiously interpreting for the modern world.

What happened to Maya? Hitherto scientists have been inclined to believe that, with all their knowledge in some lines, the Mayas had not been able to cope with tropical nature. The jungle succeeded in overwhelming them or some natural force, disease perhaps, destroyed them. This was the theory held for many years to account for the abandonment of Ankhor, with its gigantic structures rediscovered by a French explorer seventy years or so ago after centuries of burial in the jungles of Cambodia. But this theory has been abandoned. War, it is now believed, forced the Khmers from their huge capital, repeated invasions of the Chams and Siamese, their neighbors. The Pennsylvania archæologists have now ventured a similar theory for Maya, but it does not suggest external wars. There were probably no neighbors strong enough to invade and overthrow the Mayan nation. The implication is that it was destroyed from within. Shattered thrones were found in parts widely separated in a way for which natural forces cannot account. Human agencies are the only conceivable explanation.

What caused destructive revolt among the Mayas? The archæologists suggest that the people rose against tyranny, probably of a ruling priesthood. The ancient communities were not cities in the ordinary sense of the word but rather religious centers. "The absence of kitchens or sleeping quarters in the palaces indicates that these structures were used primarily for religious and civil ceremonies," and what can be gathered from the ruins points to a government like that of ancient Egypt in which a priestly class was in fact the government with a priest king.

We are not likely to know much of the truth of this ancient tragedy and yet it is not impossible that the jungle may some day yield up more of its secrets, stone records which will tell the story or enough of it to suggest the main fact. Meanwhile it is interesting to speculate. At any rate we know that if the Mayas overthrew a priestly tryanny they did not build upon its ruins. They are believed to have died out gradually and the earlier theory of a mass migration from the old empire no longer seems as plausible as it has been deemed. Some vitality passed out of the people. They may have lost it with their religion.

THE HAND OF THE PAST.

Because a theretofore unknown Church of England clergyman flew from his parish in country England to give Edward VIII. and Mrs. Warfield the benefit of clergy and ritual at their wedding, Lord Hugh Cecil has asked parliament for a law forbidding the use of the marriage ceremony from the Book of Common Prayer in any remarriage of divorced persons whose former spouses are alive. The Cecils are the most devout of communicants.

Lord Hugh was immediately warned by his associates in parliament that it was dangerous to move a question of ecclesiastical import at this time because it might give momentum to the proposals for disestablishment of the church.

The English are the most conservative and stubborn of modern peoples in dealing with their traditions and vestiges of the past and, although they preserve some injustices which got quicker shift elsewhere, their stubbornness also may have the compensating value of protecting them from the volatile shifts which have upset other countries.

They often allow dust to collect on a statute rather than repeal it. At the present moment the writ of præmunire is under discussion. Although long obsolete, it is still in the law. Only lately there has been a request that parliament abolish it. The writ provides the process by which punishment was inflicted on any one who would assume to obey instructions on the ground that they were of superior authority to that of the king, specifically and particularly aimed at the authority of Rome. Thomas More lost his head to Henry VIII. on that writ and the law is still on the books.

As late as 1819 it was possible for a defendant to appeal to trial by combat, and when in that year a litigant did, to the dismay of the plaintif, parliament got around to repealing the law which made the appeal possible.

Even now the English are urging the correction of an injustice in the law of inheritance which permits a man to disinherit his wife and family as a testimonial of his grudge or hatred. Scotland, which adopted a large measure of Roman law when Justinian was being revived and received on the continent, prescribes that a third must go to the wife and a third to the children. The American law protects the dower rights. The English are aware that many injustices are done when wealthy men cut their families off without provision, but even where the equities rebuke the practices the English stubbornness is slowly moved.

That rock has endured and its virtues must be counted among its defects, although in the amelioration of many ills its movement is glacierlike.

HIGH COST OF BATTLE.

An Associated Press correspondent has gathered some statistics on the rise in the cost of military operations since the late war. The mechanization of armies has immensely increased the cost of equipment and inventions and improvements in weapons promise a large increase in the consumption of ammunition. This writer estimates that ammunition, as now used in Spain and China, costs from $800 to $1,000 a ton, or roughly 50 cents a pound for all kinds, from small arms to shrapnel and air bombs. A battle between more heavily equipped forces would expend more than the amounts reached in Spain or China. An army of six divisions of 150,000 men with 300 field guns, he estimates, can shoot away in one day of hard action 2,000 tons of artillery ammunition, 1,000 tons of small arms ammunition, and 100 tons of air bombs. One round fired by a 75 mm. gun costs about $10; shrapnel, $14 a pound. Two 1,000 pound air bombs cost about $800.

For naval warfare the cost of battleships has about doubled. They now cost to build and equip about sixty million dollars, against thirty or thirty-five at the time of the great war. A modern naval torpedo costs $14,500, and a 14 inch shell complete with detonating charge about $120. Aviation has greatly increased the outlay for war. The new flying fortress bombers of the American army cost $250,000 each.

Airplanes, tanks, poison gas equipment, antiaircraft artillery, and mechanical equipment for transport and combat are increasing the cost of preparedness and operations at a rapid rate. In England the fear of air raids is forcing large expenditures on gas masks and other protection for the civilian population.

If the cash cost of war weighed anything in the crises that explode in war we might hope that rising costs would serve as an increasing deterrent and lovers of peace could pray that the rise would pass quickly to the point at which its veto would be absolute. But that point, if it can ever be attained, is far away, and in the meantime the burden of armament and the cost of conflict grows ever more oppressive. There is no automatic check upon the process. Peace must be the achievement of human intelligence.

THE MEANING OF A MAP.

The map on the front page of today's Graphic Section goes far to explain the league of nations, the pacts against aggressor nations, the nine-power treaty, and the Brussels conference.

England, possessing its huge share of the land area of the world, is no longer able to protect its ownership. France, possessing the next largest colonial empire, is in the same position. France cannot protect what it owns. In fact, England and France together cannot guard their empires against the land-hungry dictatorships. England and France are not even sure they can protect their home territory from invasion. Their only salvation now, as in 1918, is the American army and navy.

American diplomats are willing to commit the American navy and American youth to the protection of the British and French possessions [including the islands off our coasts which might serve as submarine and air bases]. In return our diplomats expect social recognition from the British aristocracy and French officialdom. That has been substantially the only consideration for all the involvements into which our diplomats have led us in the years since 1917.

WHERE THEY GROW BEST.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Apple dumplings are plumper and pies are chock full of fruit this fall, a dispatch from Glassboro, N. J., announces, while the storage houses are crammed to the roof with the bumper crop that is being picked in South Jersey orchards.

At the same time we read in a Canadian exchange that Canada is the land of the apple, and are expected to believe that it is the only land where apples fit for kings are grown.

With due deference to these claims, we venture to say without fear of enlightened contradiction that no more delicious apples are grown anywhere in the world than those which are now being picked from Michigan orchards.

The public is sometimes fooled by the fancy packing of apples shipped into our cities from other parts of the country.

The flavor and texture of the perfect "eating" or cooking apple do not come out of the boxes.

They come out of the soil and climate, which have placed Michigan in the forefront of the world's fruit producing areas.

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

NERVE FATIGUE AND THE EMOTIONS.

SOME weeks ago I attended a large gathering of physicians. As with other meetings of its kind, the delegates learned more at the lobby and luncheon conferences—those informal "get-togethers" where a few kindred spirits chat over their problems. At one of these round table "confabs" the topic of neurasthenia [nervous exhaustion] was brought up. One chap was bold enough to assert that he had never seen a case; that as a disease it did not exist; though he admitted that he had encountered many individuals who were suffering from nervous debility or nerve fatigue.

Another remarked, "Perhaps there is no such thing as neurasthenia as described by G. M. Beard in the late '70s, but we all meet those who have aches and pains and upset emotions for which we are unable to account. I see plenty of them, as I am dealing with a rather high strung group of business men, their wives and families—most of whom are driving the vehicle of life at a furious pace."

A third felt that practically all the symptoms could be explained on the basis of toxemia; that absorption from foci of infection was responsible frequently not only for fatigue and inability to think, but for such manifestations as fears and mental depression. "Isn't it much like rheumatism?" he added. "At one time we called everything by that name that connoted pain in or about a muscle or joint."

The upshot of it was that the majority felt that some physicians were using the term as a sort of cover-all for numerous disorders which they were unable to interpret otherwise. In other words, that wastes within the body were accumulating more rapidly than elimination or repair could neutralize or counteract.

But what are these materials? They may be pus, or products of metabolism, or an out of balance of food elements, as a result of which certain substances were produced in excess, while others were lacking. Every one agreed that it was a disease of civilization, affecting particularly those who indulged their appetites and passions far beyond the ability of the nervous system to recoup. Of course, all admitted that certain temperaments were more susceptible than others—the sensitive constitution crashing before an onslaught far more rapidly than the phlegmatic type.

"Let me tell you about a patient that I had recently," said one of the most distinguished members. "He was an electrical engineer, about 45 years of age, and he told me that he had become more and more tired—even upon slight exertion. Various aches and pains were present throughout the body and there were definite pressure sensations on one side of his head. Digestion, too, was upset and every now and then—for hours at a time—he experienced creepy feelings up and down his spine. He could not concentrate and his family complained that he had become moody at times, irritable at others. Then sleeplessness appeared and after two restless nights he called at my office.

"Naturally I went over him with considerable care, but was able to find no physical abnormalities. I endeavored to worm out of this man his likes, dislikes, conceits, etc., and I found that his trouble had been ushered in by a disappointment over a large contract which he had expected to get. It seemed to me that the entire episode could be classified as an anxiety affair. He had worked for months only to have his masterpiece discarded. All that was needed in this case was to restore the man's confidence in himself. That was not difficult and soon the insomnia disappeared. Complete recovery followed within three or four months."

But we all agreed that focal infection, sepsis, and disease could so undermine reserve as to bring on a chain of symptoms involving almost every organ of the body. A careful physical examination, therefore, always is in order. By and large, however, most of these exhaustion states will be found to follow some psychic conflict. And here the rôle of the physician is all important. He can supply that craving for protection and sympathy which every one has.

CATARACTS.

O. L. D. writes:

1. You state that cataracts can be caused by old age. Do you consider 58 old age?

2. Do you advise taking alcohol moderately during treatment? This party has been drinking 20 years rather heavily.

REPLY.

1. Senile cataract may begin about the age of 50. Age is an individual matter—in fact some parts of the body age sooner than others. The year age is not always a measure of physical age.

2. The use of alcohol affects the eyes only as it affects the entire body. After 20 years of hard drinking, a gradual rather than a sudden cessation is indicated. Heavy drinking may be a factor in premature loss of vitality of certain tissues of the body.

DRY MOUTH.

L. W. W. writes: What are the reasons and the cure for dryness of the mouth which has troubled me for over a month?

REPLY.

Dry mouth may be due to nervous or emotional disturbances, drugs such as belladonna, acute fevers, and whenever there is an excessive loss of fluid. Sometimes there is a slowing down of the output of the salivary glands. Try chewing gum. Check the saliva ducts for stony obstructions. There are several drugs which will increase the flow of fluid into the mouth. Your physician can probably find the difficulty.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. CITIZENSHIP PROBLEM.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—My father came to the United States from Rumania in 1907. Three sons were born in the United States. The first one, A, was born in 1913. The second son, B, was born in 1915, and the third son, C, in 1917. Father returned to Rumania in 1919 with all three sons. Father obtained his first paper only in the United States. A returned to the United States. B joined the Rumanian army in 1935. C is living with his father.

1. Is A an American citizen?

2. Did B become a Rumanian citizen by joining the Rumanian army?

3. Is C eligible to return to the United States as an American citizen and remain in the United States permanently?

V. N.

1. It is assumed that A has not taken any affirmative steps to expatriate himself. Under the facts stated, it would appear that he is an American citizen.

2. Section 2 of the act of March 2, 1907, provides: "That any American citizen shall be deemed to have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state." If B took an oath of allegiance to Rumania when he joined the Rumanian army he lost his United States citizenship thereby.

3. It is assumed that C has not taken affirmative steps to expatriate himself. Under the facts stated it would appear that he is an American citizen.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

YARD CLEANUP.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—I have complained several times about my neighbor having ducks, geese, and a dog, but nothing has been done about it. It is impossible for me to sleep at nights. People in my building are complaining, too. Next to the yard where all the ducks, geese, and dog are roaming about are all the bedroom windows, so all of the odor is blown into my rooms. Rats are getting into my basement, damaging my floors. Will you have something done to stop this nuisance?

W. S.

As a result of an inspection made by one of our sanitary inspectors, the following notice was served upon the owner of the property: "Thoroughly clean and disinfect coops, sheds and space in yard occupied by dog and geese." This matter was followed up until Oct. 18, at which time the inspector reported full compliance with our orders.

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN,
President, Board of Health.

PROPERTY DEED.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In buying property in Indiana with a "guaranteed deed," will you please advise just what this covers?

A. D. O.

It is not clear whether you mean an ordinary warranty deed, in which the guarantor undertakes to stand back of the title, or a deed paralleled by a guaranty policy issued by a company in the business of guaranteeing real estate titles. We cannot advise without knowing the context in which your question arises.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—On Dec. 29 President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State will see the first part of his program fulfilled. On that date his new constitution will become operative.

This constitution is to take the place of the one enacted on the basis of the treaty by the Cosgrave government in 1922, when De Valera and his followers were in revolt against the Free State.

The new constitution envisages a completely independent country, free to adopt whatever form of government its people may decide. It is De Valera's claim that the country may, if it desires, declare a republic. Throughout its sixty-three articles there is no reference of the king of England or to the treaty.

One article of the constitution declares that "the national territory consists of the whole of Ireland, its islands and territorial seas." Herein lies a difficulty, for it is admitted that the northern portion is determinedly associated with Great Britain.

In order that the constitution can proceed to operate in the southern area, another article provides that "pending the reintegration of the national territory" government shall exercise jurisdiction only over what is now the Irish Free State.

The name of the state is to be Eire, in Gaelic, and Ireland in English, as from next Dec. 29 the designation Irish Free State, which since the Cosgrave treaty has been applied to the twenty-six southern counties, will cease to be recognized or used. The currency will be changed, but not for some time. However, there will be issued on Dec. 29 a commemorative postage stamp.

The constitution provides for a head of the state, known as an Uachtaran nah Eireann, or president of Ireland, who will be elected by the vote of persons over 21 years of age. The title of "president," as applied to the post now held by De Valera himself, will be dropped and he will be known as taoiseach or prime minister. His deputy will be called the tanaiste.

A new body, the council of state, will be created to advise the president. It will include the taoiseach, the tanaiste, the chief justice, president of the high court, chairman of the dail, chairman of the senate, the attorney general and any person who has held the post of president, taoiseach, chief justice or president of the executive council of the Free State. As a former president of the executive council, W. T. Cosgrave may, if he wishes, become a member.

The legislature under the new dispensation will be the same as at present with the exception that the senate, which De Valera disbanded a year ago, will be reëstablished.

While there is no reference to any function of the king of England, or to any relations with Great Britain, there is a carefully camouflaged paragraph which makes provision for the use of the king under certain conditions. It states that the government may avail itself of or adopt "any organ or method of procedure used by the members of any group or league of nations with which Eire is or becomes associated."

To understand the purport of this, it is necessary to substitute the words "king of England" for "organ or method," and for "any group or league of nations" "the British commonwealth."

Without the "organ" the Irish government could not send a minister plenipotentiary to any foreign state, receive a foreign minister, or issue passports.

THE CRIME OF LYNCHING.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The entire world is aghast at America's lynch record and the inability to obtain federal legislation to eradicate this form of bloody terrorism. This lynch record permits other nations to gibe America and American institutions, making many millions of patriotic Americans feel most keenly this national disgrace.

The staggering total of over 8,000 persons, the appalling average of over two per week for the last fifty years, have been barbarously murdered without due process of law. Many of these persons put to death were women; many were slain with the most fiendish fury and unspeakable savagery, being mutilated, tortured, or burned alive.

Since only a small proportion of the lynched were even accused of sex crimes, since the courts act promptly and harshly where Negroes are involved, and since in northern centers where the world's greatest concentrations of Negroes exist and where lynching is not the prevailing custom, the record of sex crimes by Negroes is proportionally no greater than for other races, lynching cannot be justified.

The "deploring of the lynching evil" by sectional officials and the recent statement by Senator Dixie Graves that . . . "lynching will die out in five years" would offer small comfort to those lynched and no protection for those who shall be lynched.

The infected areas have had over fifty years in which to eradicate mob anarchy but have demonstrated inability or unwillingness to do so; therefore, it remains necessary for the strong arm of the federal government to end the lynching atrocity.

I thank THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its past efforts against mob rule.

CASTINE A. DAVIS.

ANOTHER VIEW OF FINLAND.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—In your paper, Mr. Mason Warner, who has been traveling in Finland, has been telling us about it.

Very nice this listening to some one bragging about your birthplace, but why only tell about the bright side. According to him everybody in Finland is making a living and laying aside a little for later years.

In fact, over 70,000 are receiving help from the government and just as many more would take some if they could get it. And what is this help? It would not amount to $1.50 a week if somebody would be getting it here and paying our prices.

According to the highest army doctor in Finland, the biggest part of the young men who should enter the army each year are undernourished. They have to send thousands of them home each year in the hope that they will return next year a little better fed.

And then, over 6,000 persons died last year of tuberculosis in Finland! Why? Mostly because they were too poor to get help.

Then, about the wages in Finland. [Imagine telling us they are as high as here.] I have a letter in front of me from my sister. She is 28 years old, and has worked in a factory for the last six years. She is getting now 400 marks a month. That's $8.70. Now what can she buy with it? Two girls together can rent a room in the slum part of town for 250 marks a month. A pair of shoes costs from 90 to 130 marks; a dress, a $2 one, around 100 marks; a 35 cent meal in a cheap restaurant, 5 marks; a cup of coffee, 1 mark.

My brother is 23 years old. He is making 350 marks a month!

Is this enough for Mr. Mason, or shall I tell some more of the Finnish wonders?

GEORGE KARSKI.

PARKING NUISANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—I would like to find out if motorists are allowed to park their cars in the street for twenty-four hours a day. That's what we have to put up with day in and day out. I want to find out if anything can be done about this. It is the 1900 block on Wolfram street. The cars belong to the Stewart Warner & Co. employés. The company has parking lots but the men will not park their cars; they're afraid they will have to walk too far. Every eight hours there is a different crew. So what right has a taxpayer on the street with his car?

They have signs on the street saying no parking, but if you call the Sheffield avenue police you get no satisfaction.

Stewart Warner & Co. will not allow any one to park in front of their building for fear their fireproof building may burn down. But it doesn't make any difference if our old shacks burn down. We had a few fires on the street and the fire department had a tough time trying to get in.

A. GLANDER.

QUINTUPLET CALVES.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—In THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 18 I read under "Cow and Quads": "Their owner told passersby they were the only quadruplet calves on record."

This may be true but if the owner meant that four was a record for a multiple birth of calves he was mistaken.

Over forty-five years ago, on a farm at Mangere, near Auckland, New Zealand, a cow belonging to Mr. John Rae, a well known steeplechase jocky, with whom I was acquainted, produced a litter of five calves.

If the occurrence should be of sufficient scientific interest a letter to Mr. John Rae, Mangere, Auckland, New Zealand, would probably receive attention, including sex, duration of life, etc., which I have forgotten, if I knew.

Failing this, my son-in-law, Sir Cecil Leys, proprietor of the Auckland Star and other New Zealond papers, would, no doubt, give full particulars.

P. A. VAILE.

A SATISFIED PARENT.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—After reading and hearing the fuss that is being made against our Chicago schools, I think it is about time that some of us who have children in school looked around for some of the good things that are in the system.

One of my girls has just graduated from one of the west side schools and I have another girl ready to receive her diploma, while my son is in his second year in the same school.

Not only have my children been given a complete training in the fundamental subjects, but they have been given some fine training in instrumental music, art, and dramatics. Besides all of this the contact and association with the teachers has brought them much happiness and has given them a fine outlook on life. The Chicago school officials should feel proud.

A MILLION TONS SLIP FROM HILL IN LOS ANGELES

Section of Moving Mount Smashes Viaduct.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Elysian Park's moving mountain continued its relentless descent on Riverside drive and the Los Angeles river bed here tonight, and geologists warned that another avalanche is imminent.

Giant boulders, teetering on the edge of the 1,000,000 ton mass of earth and rocks which crashed yesterday onto a 600 foot strip of the drive, plunged at intervals down the creeping mass and bounded into the dry river bed skirting the highway.

Geologists who inspected the gigantic, gaping hole ripped in the face of the 350 foot high cliff by the slide asserted that 3,000,000 tons of earth still remains outside the fault, presenting the ever present danger it may come pounding down into the usually heavily traveled area below.

Fears Worst to Come.

"There is less hope than ever, and I am sure the worst is yet to come," said Dr. John P. Buwalda of the California Institute of Technology, after surveying the latest slides.

Los Angeles citizens are flocking to the scene by the thousands despite official warnings of the danger. It would take 100,000 ten ton trucks to cart away all the restless mountain's débris, it was estimated. But there's no possibility that 100,000 trucks will be assembled for the job. Most of the débris will be left where it fell, city officials said.

Mayor Frank Shaw and city engineers, after viewing the slide area, expressed the belief that only the huge concrete abutments of the Dayton avenue bridge approach to Riverside drive are holding back the major mass of the mountain.

"There is no doubt that if this bridge goes down there will be a bigger slide," the mayor said.

Strip Sinks Eighty Feet.

At Lookout Point, where the danger of a landslide first was betrayed by cracks in the pavement skirting the brow of the hill, the outer part of the concrete strip sank eighty feet. On the inner side of the former roadway a half moon segment 200 feet across the arc dropped fifty feet.

The slide played a whimsical trick at a bakery and the Riverside drive hotel at the foot of the cliff. Windows of both had been boarded up for protection. When the huge mass of earth and rock plunged down to the very doors of the two establishments, the pressure lifted the sidewalks a foot high and the débris scattered around the sides of the buildings, but the structures themselves were not moved.

Four hundred telephone subscribers still were without service tonight because of a broken section of underground cable, although repair crews have been working in shifts in an effort to make replacements.

In the face of the geologists' predictions that new and more perilous landslides will occur, additional precautions have been taken to safeguard spectators.

Avalanche Buries Busy Los Angeles Drive

(Story in adjoining column.)

A view from an airplane of the million tons of earth which roared down the moving mountain in Los Angeles' Elysian park district. It twisted and wrecked Riverside drive below, crushing a section of its causeway. The slide, expected for a long time, finally came late Friday night.

The crack which gave first warning of the landslide appeared on this roadway on the mountain top, where it was noticed by a highway inspector more than a month ago.

PAROLEE HUNTED AFTER SHOOTING 2 GIRLS, FATHER

Party Quarrel Leads to Gun Play; Sister Held.

Shelbyville, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Melvin Wall, 23 years old, a paroled convict, is being hunted by police and Shelby county deputies for the shooting last night of Reta Donnelson, 15 years old, and her father, Lloyd B. Donnelson, aged 45, both of whom are in a serious condition. Frances Donnelson, 13 years old, was grazed by a bullet that struck her father.

Fugitive's Sister Seized.

Elva Wall, 33 years old, sister of the parolee, is under arrest. She was with her brother at the time of the shooting and fled with him to their home, where she was found a short time after her brother escaped, still armed.

According to the story told Sherif R. O. Watson by Reta Donnelson, she had accompanied Wall and his sister to a party at Middlesworth last night. On the way home they quarreled over a game they had been playing. When they reached the Donnelson home, Wall accompanied Reta into the house and after a few more words drew a revolver and shot her.

Father Rushes to Girl's Aid.

Donnelson rushed into the room from the rear of the house, followed by his younger daughter. Wall turned and shot Donnelson, ordered his sister to come with him, and fled.

Wall served only eighteen months of a sentence for arson and has been at liberty for a similar period. He was convicted of having started nine fires in Shelbyville, causing losses of $75,000. Wall's father, Jesse, committed suicide when his son was in the penitentiary. The parolee and his sister lived with their mother.

CHILD DIES OF BURNS.

Hillsboro, Ill., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Joe Wilson, 2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of nearby Coffeen, was fatally burned late yesterday. His clothing was ignited by a heating stove while he was alone in the house.

DEWEY ROUNDS UP 300 IN DRIVE TO SMASH TAMMANY

Acts to Prove Official Is Ally of Thieves.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A secret roundup of 300 men and women who run the Tammany Hall machine of County Clerk Albert Marinelli was District Attorney Elect Thomas E. Dewey's dramatic answer today to the request of Gov. Herbert Lehman that he submit proof of his charge that Marinelli is the political ally of thieves, pickpockets, thugs, dope peddlers, and big shot racketeers.

At 10:30 a. m. Friday—half an hour after Lehman's letter reached the office of the incoming district attorney—a flying squadron of fifty policemen under Capt. Barney Dowd, was sent to sweep Marinelli's bailiwick on the lower east side.

His clubhouse was cleaned of its hangers-on. Bars were invaded. Homes were visited. Pedestrians were halted on the street and quizzed as to their Marinelli connections. The extraordinary grand jury sat until 2 a. m. today hearing evidence, and reconvened at 10 a. m.

Few Know of Roundup.

Yet, so efficiently was the roundup conducted that few knew of it until 1 p. m. today. At that time Dewey announced his work was complete—that the last of his 300 witnesses were filing before the grand jury and telling their stories.

It was stated that testimony being heard by the grand jury not only would authenticate the emphatic statements made by Dewey in a radio campaign speech Oct. 24 but also add new material.

The names of those subpenaed by Dewey were kept secret. It was reported that one witness was Jimmy Kelly, night club owner and Marinelli election captain. Others, it was said, included Marinelli's bodyguard and the sister of a prominent lawyer. A large number of women were included among the witnesses, many of whom were indignant. One woman wailed: "I've been here since 10 a. m. and haven't been called yet. I've got to go home. I have children to attend to."

Most of the women shouted, "We don't know anything. One had to be restrained from leaving the courthouse.

Declined to Talk to News Men.

Apparently the witnesses were warned sternly against revealing their testimony. Most of them sullen and morose declined to speak to reporters.

Today's activity was the sequel to a series of events growing out of Dewey's sensational radio attack on Marinelli. In that speech he charged that thirty-two Marinelli county committeemen and election officials had police records. Twenty, he said, had served prison terms.

"Their attainments," Dewey added sarcastically, "includes seventy-six arrests on a varied assortment of charges, ranging from robbery to sex crimes, with dope peddlers heading the list."

In the same speech Dewey charged that gangsters who boasted of Marinelli's protection were immune from prosecution by the Tammany controled district attorney's office.

Insists He Is Maligned.

Dewey was elected district attorney. He went to Bermuda on a vacation. While he was away a volunteer group styling itself "the committee on the county clerk" asked Gov. Lehman to act. Lehman demanded an answer from Marinelli. Marinelli answered that he was a protecting angel for the poor, a doer of good deeds who had been grossly maligned.

Subsequently the governor wrote to Dewey. He told him that he could not take action against Marinelli unless sworn charges were filed. Then the district attorney-elect acted.

GEN. ANDREWS FOGBOUND HOUR; LANDS SAFELY

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—After being fogbound for more than an hour over central New Jersey, while ambulances scurried to various airports anticipating a crash, Maj. Gen. Frank Andrews, aviation commander, flew back to Langley field, Va., this afternoon and thus missed the Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia.

All planes in New Jersey were grounded when the general set out in his "flying headquarters." The drone of his motor was first heard over the Camden airport, then at Trenton, next at Fort Dix and finally at Newark. The fog was so thick that landing at any of the fields would have been too hazardous.

After circling the fields several times the ship made off, landing safely at Langley field.

Shares in Estate

MRS. ESTHER BUSBY.

The period of lean living for Mrs. Leonard A. Busby, who has been had an income of $400 a month during the last five years while her husband's estate was in litigation, is at an end. Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday ordered that $84,500 of the assets of the estate be divided equally among Mrs. Busby, her son Jack, and her daughter, Mrs. Janet Walsh.

When Mr. Busby, president of the Chicago City Railway company, died in September, 1930, it was estimated that his wealth, after all debts were paid, was about $600,000. A continuous downward trend of the stock market wiped out this equity. Mrs. Busby then sued the executor, the First National bank, and after a long court fight the bank was ordered to pay her nearly $300,000.

The assets of the estate on Aug. 30 were $295,626. Court costs and attorneys' fees reduced this to $237,465, in which was included about $64,000 of interest earned during the litigation. It was Mrs. Busby's contention, upheld by Judge Feinberg, that this, as well as net income to the estate of $20,500 since her husband's death, should be distributed.

DOUBT MACHADO WILL BE ABLE TO APPEAR IN COURT

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Gerardo Machado, former iron man president of Cuba, who fled the island in the revolution of 1934, was under guard at Murray Hill hospital today, with little likelihood he will appear as scheduled Monday for arraignment on an extradition warant.

It was learned the erstwhile Cuban strong man, suffering from a kidney ailment, is in a grave condition and is so worn and weak he probably could not leave his bed. However, a bedside arraignment in Machado's hospital room is believed possible.

The extradition proceedings are based on charges in Cuba that Machado murdered political opponents and embezzled public funds. His arrest yesterday was a surprise move by federal authorities after three years.

2 MEN SPAR FOR PEACE TERMS IN BUS LINE STRIKE

Open Parley in Cleveland as Greyhound Sues.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A representative of Greyhound bus drivers, striking in 16 states, sat at a conference table late today with a company spokesman for the first time since the strike was called in the early hours of Thanksgiving morning.

S. R. Harvey, assistant president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, an American Federation of Labor union, with which the drivers are affiliated, and Ivan Bowen, attorney for the lines, were the participants. John F. Conner, conciliation commissioner for the United States department of labor, announced he had brought the two sides together.

Although earlier in the day the bus lines filed a $6,300,000 damage suit against the trainmen's union, charging that the strike was called to divert trafic to railroads, Conner seemed optimistic tonight as he prepared for a second meeting between Bowen and Harvey.

Conner was asked under what authority he was acting in the negotiations.

"Under a law passed by congress in 1913 calling for the appointment of commissioners of conciliation to act in strikes," he answered: "We have no powers save those of persuasion."

Conner, an aid to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins but having no connestion with the so-called National Labor Relations board, denied that the commissioners took sides in controversies—a charge that has been brought against representatives of the board.

Settled One Strike, He Says.

Conner is a lawyer and a former Municipal court judge of Huntington, W. Va. Shortly after his appointment as a commissioner five years ago he aided in settling a Greyhound strike on the east coast, he said.

The Greyhound suit against the brotherhood named twenty officers and members, charging them with intimidating employés and prospective passengers and damaging and destroying tires, windows, brakes, and other equipment.

CLAIM SERVICE NEAR NORMAL.

Greyhound bus officials and union leaders gave contradictory reports yesterday on the effectiveness of the strike in Chicago. A bus executive said service was continuing here with almost no interruption, declaring that only twenty-five drivers had struck. Richard Brennan, deputy president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, countered that 105 of 125 drivers were out. There was no picketing here yesterday and no violince.

The bus drivers yesterday turned to the brotherhood for financial backing in their strike. While twenty-five chairmen of B. R. T. locals conferred at the Warner hotel, Rey Taylor, secretary of the bus men, announced that the railroad locals will support the strike fully.

UNIONISTS REBEL; OUST THEIR CHIEF IN RACKET FIGHT

Seize Office and Demand Cleanup Election.

BULLETIN.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Fifteen men late tonight wrecked the offices of the Building Laborers' union, seized earlier by insurgent members who had ousted the head of the union. The invaders smashed a door and demolished furniture and records. The insurgent leaders were in an inside office when the raid occurred. Six men fleeing in automobiles were seized by police.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Rank and file members of the Building Laborers' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, today turned the tables on their president, John McGee; ran him out of headquarters and took charge, declaring they would remain in the downtown building until they elect a new president tomorrow.

This revolt was inspired, it was said, by the current grand jury investigation into labor racketeering which involves several business agents and is expected to terminate in the voting of indictments within ten days or two weeks. McGee for years has been a power in the building trades unions.

Both Sides Protest Racket.

Eliot Ness, director of public safety and instigator of the racket quiz, has said that his investigation was prompted by dual complaints from union men, who have suffered layoffs because of the shakedown methods of their business agents, and from business men, who have seen building in the city decline to an unprecedented level.

Reports that they have been victimized by their own leaders were thought to have incited the group of about fifty who stormed union headquarters today. They were led by Thomas McNamara, who announced that those present spoke for a majority of the 2,000 members.

The rebellious unionists were met by William J. Corrigan, McGee's lawyer, who attempted to quiet and disperse them, but to no avail.

Hold Building at Nightfall.

McGee stood to one side, silent, but with eyes flashing. When Corrigan ceased his efforts, both he and McGee left the building.

Director Ness has shepherded about forty witnesses before the grand jury in the last two weeks, most of them business men who were shaken down by business agents.

LAUNCH BUSINESS STUDY OF RELIEF LOAD TOMORROW

Personnel Experts Survey Chicago System.

BY WILL O'NEIL.

Expert investigators from Chicago business houses will start tomorrow on a survey of the methods and efficiency of handling relief in Chicago. The first fifty experts will begin inquiries in the twenty district relief offices on a 10 per cent sample of all relief cases on the rolls of the Chicago Relief administration.

The study will be directed by Gov. Horner's special relief committee, of which Walter S. Gregory, president of the State street council, is chairman. He announced the survey yesterday.

"We hope to look over 8,000 cases in six weeks," Gregory said. "When the work is completed we will have an accurate report on the administration of relief in Chicago. This survey is not a condemnation of the Chicago Relief administration. Leo M. Lyons, the CRA commissioner, has welcomed the survey as a means of finding out whether anything can be done to improve the relief work."

Executives to Help.

Gregory did not disclose the names of the concerns which are lending the investigators to the committee. He said most of the workers are executives engaged in personnel, credit, claim adjusting, and similar work.

The investigators will first ascertain the need for relief in cases they pick at random from the files in the district office. Next they will determine the degree of employability of the reliefers. In its own surveys the CRA has classed as unemployable all persons under age 18 or over age 64, and also those who are physically unfit, kept at home to care for children, or who have some obstacle between them and the possibility of work. All those between the ages of 18 and 64 who are able to work have been classed as employables.

Gregory said the investigators for the committee will reclassify the reliefers as employables, those who could work but are not likely to get a job, and unemployables.

Some to Be Replaced.

Some of those who begin the survey tomorrow cannot be spared from their regular jobs for all of the work. They will be replaced by other experts to be lent by other business houses as the need arises.

Lyons called attention to the fact that the state relief law forces him to discharge 130 of his social workers and an equal number of clerical workers next Wednesday in order to conform to the statute requiring administrative costs to be not more than 8 per cent of all relief funds.

"How can we investigate cases unless we have investigators?" Lyons said. "The relief load has been increasing during the last two months and we have been short of funds since the middle of September. The less money the more trouble we have, but the state law does not allow us to retain or hire the help we need to cope with emergencies."

The commissioner said he has maintained an average administrative cost of 7.96 per cent of all funds expended through the year ending last July, but that the cost has gone up to 10 per cent during the last two months because of the shortage of funds. The 260 employés are being discharged to bring down the average cost within the legal limit.

HUNDREDS RUSH TO PAY TAXES AS DEADLINE NEARS

Hundreds of property owners thronged the office of County Treasurer Horace Lindheimer on the first floor of the county building yesterday to pay the second instalment of of their 1936 real estate bills. The deadline for payment is Wednesday, Dec. 1, and those who have not paid by closing time at the treasurer's office on that day, or whose payments by mail are not postmarked before midnight Wednesday, will be assessed the penalty of 1 per cent on their bills.

The 1936 real estate levy is $152,653,163 and of this amount $73,492,596, or 48.1 per cent, remains uncollected, Mr. Lindheimer said. Of the personal property levy of $49,082,209, ther eis uncollected $18,745,602, or 38.1 per cent.

BABETTE TAYLOR.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The Radcliffe Idler club and the Harvard University Dramatic club are finishing rehersals for the first American performance of "The Viceroy Sarah" here on Dec. 1. Miss Babette Taylor, daughter of Bert Leston Taylor, who won fame as "B. L. T." conductor of the Line o'Type column in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will appear in the cast. Miss Taylor is a Radcliffe senior.

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE OF BIG TRUCKING FIRM

Loss Set at $100,000 in West Side Blaze.

Fire swept through the huge garage of the Edward J. Meyers Trucking company garage at 1014 Van Buren street shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, destroying the interior of the structure, and irreparably damaging forty or more motor trucks, several of which were loaded with interstate merchandise. Anthony J. Mullaney, first deputy fire marshal, estimated the loss at from $75,000 to $100,000.

Swept by a stiff north wind, the flames, shooting high, for a time threatened surrounding plants, factories, garages, and office quarters, and Second Deputy Marshal Joseph Mackey sounded a 5-11 alarm to bring in enough apparatus to prevent a spread of the fire. Snow and slippery pavements hampered fire vehicles called to the scene, and also the men working on foot. They were further hampered by the electric power wires going out of commission.

Flames Spread Rapidly.

The fire was discovered by Biggo Frost, 2554 Erie street, River Forest, the watchman. Opening the garage office door he smelled smoke, and found the north end of the garage ablaze. He vainly tried to drive out several trucks. The flames spread rapidly, and soon reached the Carpenter street side. Before long the entire interior was burning.

Fire trucks and engines blockaded Jackson boulevard and Morgan, Van Buren and Carpenter streets. The two east and west thorouhgfares were closed to trafic. Several thousand spectators, hundreds drawn from the loop by the rosy glare of the flames in the low skies, watched the fire.

The trucking company garage fronted on Van Buren street, but extended deeper along Carpenter street, and to the alley half way between Van Buren street and Jackson boulevard.

Rescue 3 from Flat Fire.

Two women and a blind man were rescued by firemen last night after they were trapped by flames and smoke in the Orleans apartment building at 4307 Oakenwald avenue. More than twenty other residents of the building escaped to the street without aid.

The fire broke out in the basement and soon filled the building with smoke. First firemen arriving found Mrs. G. J. Kaufmann, 61 years old, attempting to lead her blind husband, 66 years old, down the stairway from the fourth floor. They were helped down. Mrs. Kaufmann's mother, Mrs. Annie Hirsch, 84 years old, was carried down a ladder from the second floor.

The fire did about $5,000 damage.

TRUCKERS' STRIKE SETTLED.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Settlement of the truck drivers' strike, which has tied up freight and trafic deliveries here since Nov. 13, was announced late today by Mayor A. N. Graff.

DIMINUTIVE LILY PONS, IN LAKME, CHARMS CROWD

Weber Authoritative in Handling Tannhauser.

BY CECIL SMITH.

Lily Pons, petite coloratura soprano of the opera, stage and motion pictures, returned to Chicago to sing the title rôle of Delibes' exotic oriental opera "Lakmé" at the Civic Opera house last night. It was in this same rôle that she made her debut with the Chicago City Opera company a year ago.

In appearance the exact opposite of everything an operatic diva is supposed to be, Miss Pons gives great credibility to her impersonation of the young and exquisite daughter of a Hindu high priest. She moves about the stage with inborn grace, and makes the sudden infatuation of an English officer seem entirely plausible.

Singing Is Charming.

Her singing is charming rather than stirring or exciting. Her tone has a glittering, spangled quality that more than makes up for occasional lapses from pitch.

As the quintet of English visitors whose intrusion upon sacred Hindu soil forms the background of the plot, Andre Burdino, Wilfred Engelman, Jarna Paull, Louisa Hoe and Ruth Ford each acquitted themselves admirably. Miss Ford contributed an especially rich sketch of Mrs. Benson, the gawky duenna of the group.

Maria Matyas was excellent in the first act duet with Miss Pons. Chase Baromeo, as the high priest, was a striking figure, but sang constantly below the pitch. The ballet danced colorfully, and Blake Scott and Vera Mirova gave their solo dances an admirable aspect of authenticity.

Tannhäuser Treated Fairly.

At yesterday's matinée Wagner's "Tannhäuser" received fair and square treatment from the Chicago company for the first time in many seasons. Henry Weber conducted with eloquent authority. His Wagner readings this fall show that he has now reached genuine artistic maturity.

Kirsten Flagstad made her second Chicago appearance in the stately rôle of Elisabeth, and Lauritz Melchior sang the title part for the first time in Chicago. George Czaplicki, Eleanor La Mance, and Chase Baromeo rounded out a strong list of principals.

Mme. Flagstad sang more beautifully than in her début as Isolde last Wednesday. Every note of her share of the score she delivered with a tone as fresh as it was pure.

SET FEB. 5 AS FIRST DAY FOR CANDIDACIES IN APRIL PRIMARIES

Although candidates for nomination in the April 12, 1938, primaries may be announced or "receptive" before Feb. 5, that day will provide the first opportunity to test their sincerity. It is the initial day for aspirants to file their petitions with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, or with their respective county clerks, depending upon whether they seek state or county offices. The last day for filing will be Feb. 21.

For five days after the close of filings, candidates for state office may withdraw their names but those who have failed to do so by midnight of Feb. 26 will have their names printed on the primary ballots, providing they pass muster by the state certifying board. The certifying board has until March 8 to complete its work.

Besides nominating candidates for United States senator on April 12, the voters will also nominate the two congressmen at large, the twenty-five district congressmen, half the state senate, all the house of representatives, and most of the county offices. The election will be on Nov. 8.

SCHOOL FOR U. S. WORKERS OPENED IN CAPITAL BY CIO

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The C. I. O. has branched out into the field of education with the formation here of the Federal Workers School of the District of Columbia, offering for a nominal tuition fee courses to government employés and others on eighteen different subjects ranging from economics to modern dancing. This is the first instance of such activity in the history of government workers' unions.

The school, opened Nov. 15, already has an enrollment of 300. Offering night classes only, it is directed by Dr. Ralph Turner, formerly of the University of Pittsburgh and now on the staf of the social security board. It is sponsored by the United Federal Workers of America.

DIVORCEE GETS DEATH THREAT; BOMB FOLLOWS

A comely divorcée, mother of an infant daughter, was the apparent target of a mysterious bombing early today. She is Mrs. Patricia Davis, 21 years old, 2536 South Troy street.

She, her daughter, and her mother, Mrs. Ella Hudek, were asleep in her English basement apartment when the bomb was exploded at a nearby window. The entire window was shattered, but the force of the explosion did little other damage. No one was hurt.

Police began searching for a man who is said to have telephoned Mrs. Hudek late last night and told her, "I am going to kill your daughter tonight." Police believe the man who called may have been the bomber.

Sitdown Strike of Grave Diggers Leaves 2 Unburied

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two bodies lay unburied tonight in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, as a result of a sitdown strike. One was covered by a stone slab in an unfilled grave, the other was placed in a receiving vault by mourners after union chauffeurs refused to handle the casket. Grave diggers laid down tools in protest against discharge of 100 fellow workers last week in violation, they said, of an agreement to keep the full staf of 350 employed the year around.

42 Eagles Electrocuted; Alight on Power Lines

St. Anthony, Idaho, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The great American eagle must learn that power lines are dangerous or hereafter be seen only on coins. Forty-two eagles were electrocuted by power lines in this region last week.

Divorcee Mysteriously Shot to Death in Missouri Home

St. Clair, Mo., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Miss Opal Pickles, 25 years old, a divorcee, was slain at her home here tonight by an unidentified assailant who fired a shotgun through the front room window. She was seated on the parlor couch with Victor Monk, 26 years old, and a niece. An officer said Monk was wounded in one arm. She recently was divorced from Wilbur Hemker of St. Clair and her maiden name was restored.

6 Inch Snow, Driven by Wind, Falls in Wisconsin

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 27.—(AP)—More than six inches of snow driven by strong winds blanketed some parts of Wisconsin tonight. At La Crosse more than six inches fell before midnight. Madison reported two inches, while at Winter it was four.

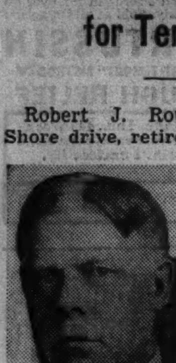
R. J. ROULSTON, 85, EX-WHOLESALE GROCER, IS DEAD

Library Board President for Ten Years.

Robert J. Roulston, 1448 Lake Shore drive, retired wholesale grocer and a former member of the Chicago library board and the board of education, died of heart disease last evening in the hallway of the building at 436 West 61st place, which he owned. He was 85 years old.



Robert J. Roulston.

Mr. Roulston had just rung the doorbell and was on his way up a flight of steps when he collapsed. A resident of the building helped him to a seat, but he died a few minutes later.

Came to Chicago as Youth.

Born at Bath, N. Y., Mr. Roulston came to Chicago as a youth. He attended the public schools and Elgin academy. In 1872 he became connected with the McNeil & Higgins company, wholesale grocers. In 1926 he was made a vice president of the successor company, Durand, McNeil & Horner. He retired from the company five years ago.

In 1905 he became a member of the library board and was largely instrumental in the establishment of the Kelly branch of the public library at 62d street and Normal boulevard. He retired from the board in 1917, after serving as its president for ten years. He was on the board of education from 1914 to 1916.

Widow Is Survivor.

Surviving Mr. Roulston are his widow, Mrs. Maude Bennett Roulston, who was visiting a neighbor in a house near the one in which her husband died; two sons, George and Albert, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Wilmarth.

T. WALTERS, IDAHO DEMOCRAT, DIES AT WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Theodore Walters, assistant secretary of the interior, died of pneumonia today at the Naval hospital following an emergency gall bladder operation. He was 61 years old.

Walters was selected by President Roosevelt in 1933. A former resident of Caldwell, Idaho, he had been prominent in Idaho Democratic politics for many years. He was elected state attorney general in 1917, was the unsuccessful candidate for governor in 1920, and also served as chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

He is survived by his widow and three children, Mrs. Robert van Uden, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Robert C. Coker, Hartsville, S. C., and John G. Walters, Boise, Idaho.

E. M. COMBS DIES; FORMER BOARD OF TRADE DIRECTOR

Earle M. Combs, a former director of the Chicago Board of Trade, died late Friday night in his home at 6846 Jeffery avenue, after an illness of several months. He would have been 61 years old today. He was born in Tunnel Hill, Ill., and lived in Chicago forty-five years. He was secretary of the J. C. Shaffer Grain company and later formed his own grain firm. He was on the governing board of the exchange in 1927 and 1928 and a director in 1929.

Surviving him are his widow and a son, Earle M. Combs Jr. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at 5203 Lake Park avenue, with burial in Mount Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Elvira Sillani, Logan Square Pioneer, Dies at 75

Mrs. Elvera Fava Sillani, a pioneer resident of Logan Square, died yesterday in her home at 2543 North Drake avenue. She was 75 years old. Mrs. Sillani, who lived in Logan Square 43 years, came to Chicago from Italy in 1873. She was married 57 years ago to George Sillani, who survives her. She also leaves seven children, Mrs. Millie Potensa, Mrs. Anita Kister of St. Louis, Mrs. Elizabeth Rocco, Mrs. Eva Veitch of Park Ridge, Mrs. Elvera Altier, Miss Lulu, and George P. Sillani. Requiem high mass will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday at Our Lady of Grace church. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

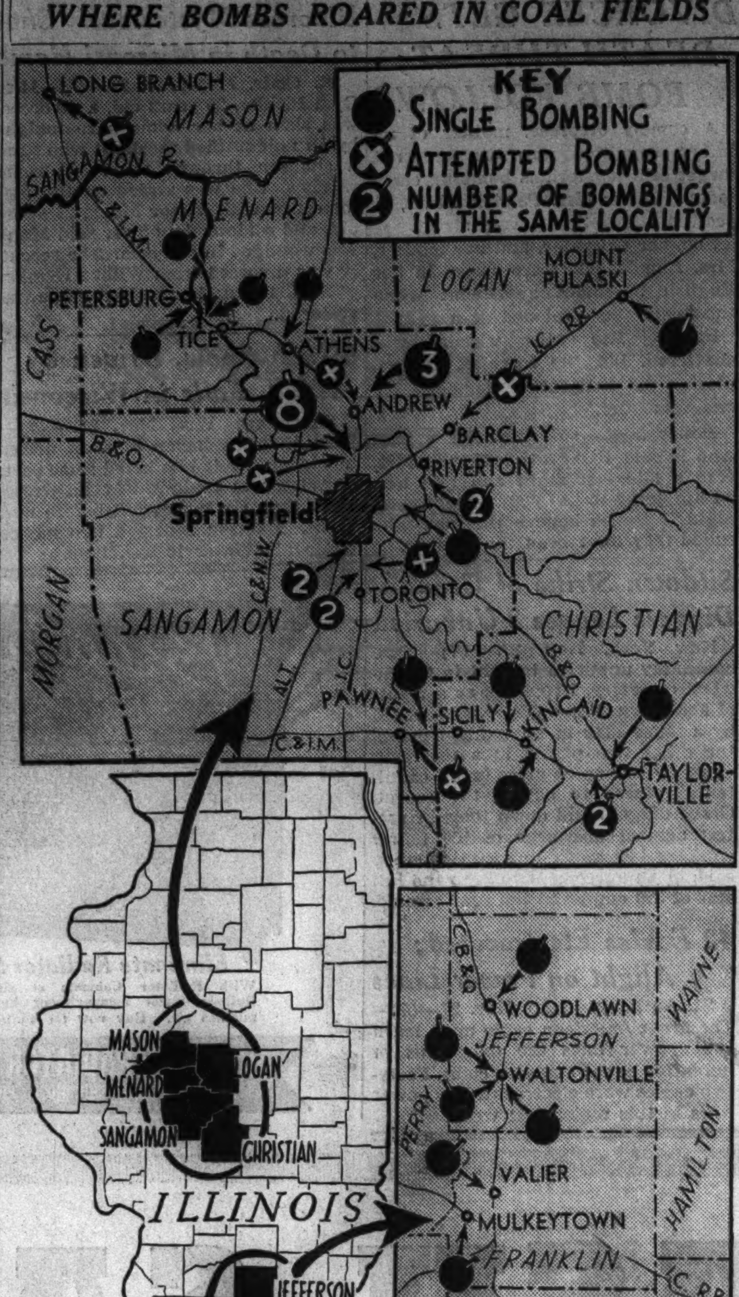
Albert Philpot, Retired Real Estate Dealer, Dies

Albert D. Philpot, 4641 Woodlawn avenue, retired south side real estate dealer, died yesterday in the Chicago hospital of burns received early yesterday when the mattress on his bed caught fire after he fell asleep smoking a cigaret. He was 81 years old and had lived in Chicago for 70 years. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Katherine P. Fuller of Los Angeles, and a sister, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow with burial in Oakwood cemetery.

Rev. Frederick Cannell, Ex-Pastor of St. Gall's, Dies

The Rev. Frederick Cannell, retired pastor of St. Gall's parish, 55th street and Kedzie avenue, died yesterday in Holy Cross hospital after an illness of a month. Father Cannell was born in Winnebago, Ill., 68 years ago and was ordained in 1898. He was assistant pastor at St. Elizabeth's church for eighteen years before assuming the pastorate at St. Gall's. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Church of the Nativity, with burial in Rockford, Ill.

WHERE BOMBS ROARED IN COAL FIELDS



At top, a map of the coal mining area around Springfield with small bombs indicating the sites of bombings and attempted bombings during series of outrages from 1932 to 1935, for which twoscore defendants are on trial in the state capital. TELL MINE UNION CHIEF'S PLEA FOR AID IN BOMBINGS

Witnesses Deny Plot to 'Frame' Defendants.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two former members of the Progressive Miners of America testified in federal court today that William Keck invited them to "Take part in some bombings" while he was president of the union. To date the government has presented evidence in forty-five bombings or attempted bombings in the coal fields of Illinois.

Clyde Manasco, formerly a state scale committeeman at Zigler, testified he wasn't interested and walked away when Keck propositioned him in 1935 to help with some bombings around Taylorville where he "was a new face and wouldn't be recognized."

Frasher Kenderick of Christopher said that shortly after he met Keck for the first time in Gillespie, the union head asked him if he would help with some bombings in the interest of the union's struggle with the Mine Workers of America.

Aim Is to Show Plot.

The government hoped through this testimony to prove that Keck, who was Progressive president from 1935 to 1937, aided in a conspiracy in which forty-one defendants are charged with bombing mines and railroads handling coal produced by members of the United Mine Workers.

"There was one of two things to do, Manasco quoted Keck as saying in a conversation at Gillespie on Feb. 18, 1935—to discontinue the strike or stop the production of coal at the mines, "and we have no intention of calling off the strike."

Both witnesses denied on cross-examination that they had been asked by Ira Gassaway, United Mine Workers official, to "frame Bill Keck and break up the Progressive organization" or had demanded $500 to testify in favor of the defendants.

Manasco declared Charles [Hawkshaw] Rudolph of Herrin, a defendant, declared at two Progressive meetings that "production must be stopped at the rival mines, and every man must do his part."

Brings Guns and Dynamite.

Rudolph later visited him at his home in Zeigler, Manasco testified, leaving guns and shells, and saying he had two cases of dynamite to blow up the Bell & Zoller No. 1 mine.

"When I told him he couldn't do that, the mine was guarded, he said, 'Then we'll have to get at the railroads around here to cut down production,'" Manasco testified.

The prosecution, nearing the close of its case, returned to train bombings between Centralia and Herrin, which it was contended interfered with interstate commerce.

Earlier in the day Herman Turner, a former minister from Eldorado, Ill., said William H. Thompson, a defendant from Eldorado, offered him $4,000 to "tear up evidence" and "fix" witnesses.

John Cotton Dies in Elgin; Father of Football Player

John Cotton, father of Forrest Cotton, former Notre Dame football player who is now athletic director of Catholic university, Washington, D. C., died in his home in Elgin yesterday. MEMORIAL SERVICES TO BE HELD THURSDAY FOR 'CAP' BRADLEY

Memorial services for Edward Lounsbury Bradley, who spent much of his life helping underprivileged boys, will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Thursday at Allendale farm, on the west shore of Cedar Lake, one mile west of Lake Villa in Lake county.

Mr. Bradley, who was known as "Cap" by his young charges, was killed Friday in Santa Barbara, Cal., his winter home, in an automobile accident. He was 76 years old. After services yesterday in California, where the body was cremated, the widow left for Chicago to be present at the memorial rites.

Mr. Bradley founded the Allendale farm in 1895 and directed it until his retirement in 1934. Youngsters were taken from Chicago's poor neighborhoods to the farm home and educated and trained under his supervision. It now includes a school from the fifth grade through the first year of high school.

A Philadelphian, Mr. Bradley came to Chicago in 1886, two years after his graduation from Princeton university.

F. L. FAIRBANK, 56, EX-JUDGE, FALLS IN HIS HOME; DIES

Former Assistant to Three State's Attorneys.

Freeman Leroy Fairbank, former judge of the Municipal court, and former assistant to three state's attorneys, was fatally injured last night in an accidental fall in his home at 9167 Pleasant avenue. He would have been 56 years old tomorrow.

Freeman L. Fairbank.

Shortly after dinner, Mr. Fairbank went upstairs to prepare to go to the theater with his family. He slipped on a small mat and struck his head on the floor. Mrs. Fairbank ran upstairs, found him unconscious and called a doctor. He died before the physician arrived.

Judge from 1926 to 1932.

Mr. Fairbank served as a judge of the Municipal court from 1926 to 1932, winning recognition for outstanding work on the bench.

As assistant state's attorney, his specialty was indictments, and during fifteen years in the prosecutor's office he always had charge of the grand jury. It was estimated that he heard more than 50,000 criminal presentations to the jury.

Mr. Fairbank first entered the state's attorney's office in 1908 under John E. W. Wayman. He served next under State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne and finally under State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. He resigned as a prosecutor to go on the bench. As a judge, he inaugurated the new night bond court.

State's Attorney Candidate.

His long experience in crime prosecution made him a candidate in 1936 for the Republican nomination for state's attorney. Twelve years ago he served as committeeman of the then new 19th ward.

Mr. Fairbank was born at De Sota, Ia. He was a graduate of the Chicago Business college and the Illinois College of Law.

He is survived by his widow, the former Edna E. Cronin, and three children, Arnold, Betty Jane, and Warren. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

RITES TOMORROW FOR YOUTH WHO DIED IN IRON LUNG

Funeral services for James Helmer, 25 years old, infantile paralysis victim who died in an iron lung in St. Luke's hospital Friday afternoon, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Visitation Roman Catholic church in Kewanee, Ill. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery, Kewanee.

The youth, former student manager of the football team at Marquette university in Milwaukee, Wis., was stricken late Tuesday in Stevens Point, Wis. He was rushed by chartered train to the hospital, but rapid spread of the infection caused his death after more than thirty-three hours in the respirator. He is survived by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. A. Helmer, 409 South Chestnut street, Kewanee, and a sister, Harriet.

P. SEIDENBECHER DIES; HARVESTER COMPANY OFFICER

Paul H. Seidenbecher, manager of the International Harvester company office at 611 Roosevelt road, died of a heart ailment in the Evanston hospital yesterday. He was 49 years old and lived at 600 Barton avenue, Evanston.

Mr. Seidenbecher had been with the harvester company more than thirty years and became head of the Chicago office in 1926.

Surviving him are his widow, Norma; three brothers, Alex, Henry C., and Otto F., and three sisters, Mrs. Alma Meyers, Mrs. Jennie Palm, and Mrs. Emma Milbrat. Funeral services will be held in the home at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with burial in Memorial Park cemetery.

SHE'S 92 IN HOSPITAL.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 27.—[Special.] Confined to a local hospital suffering from a broken hip, Mrs. Rachel Harbert observed her ninety-second birthday today.

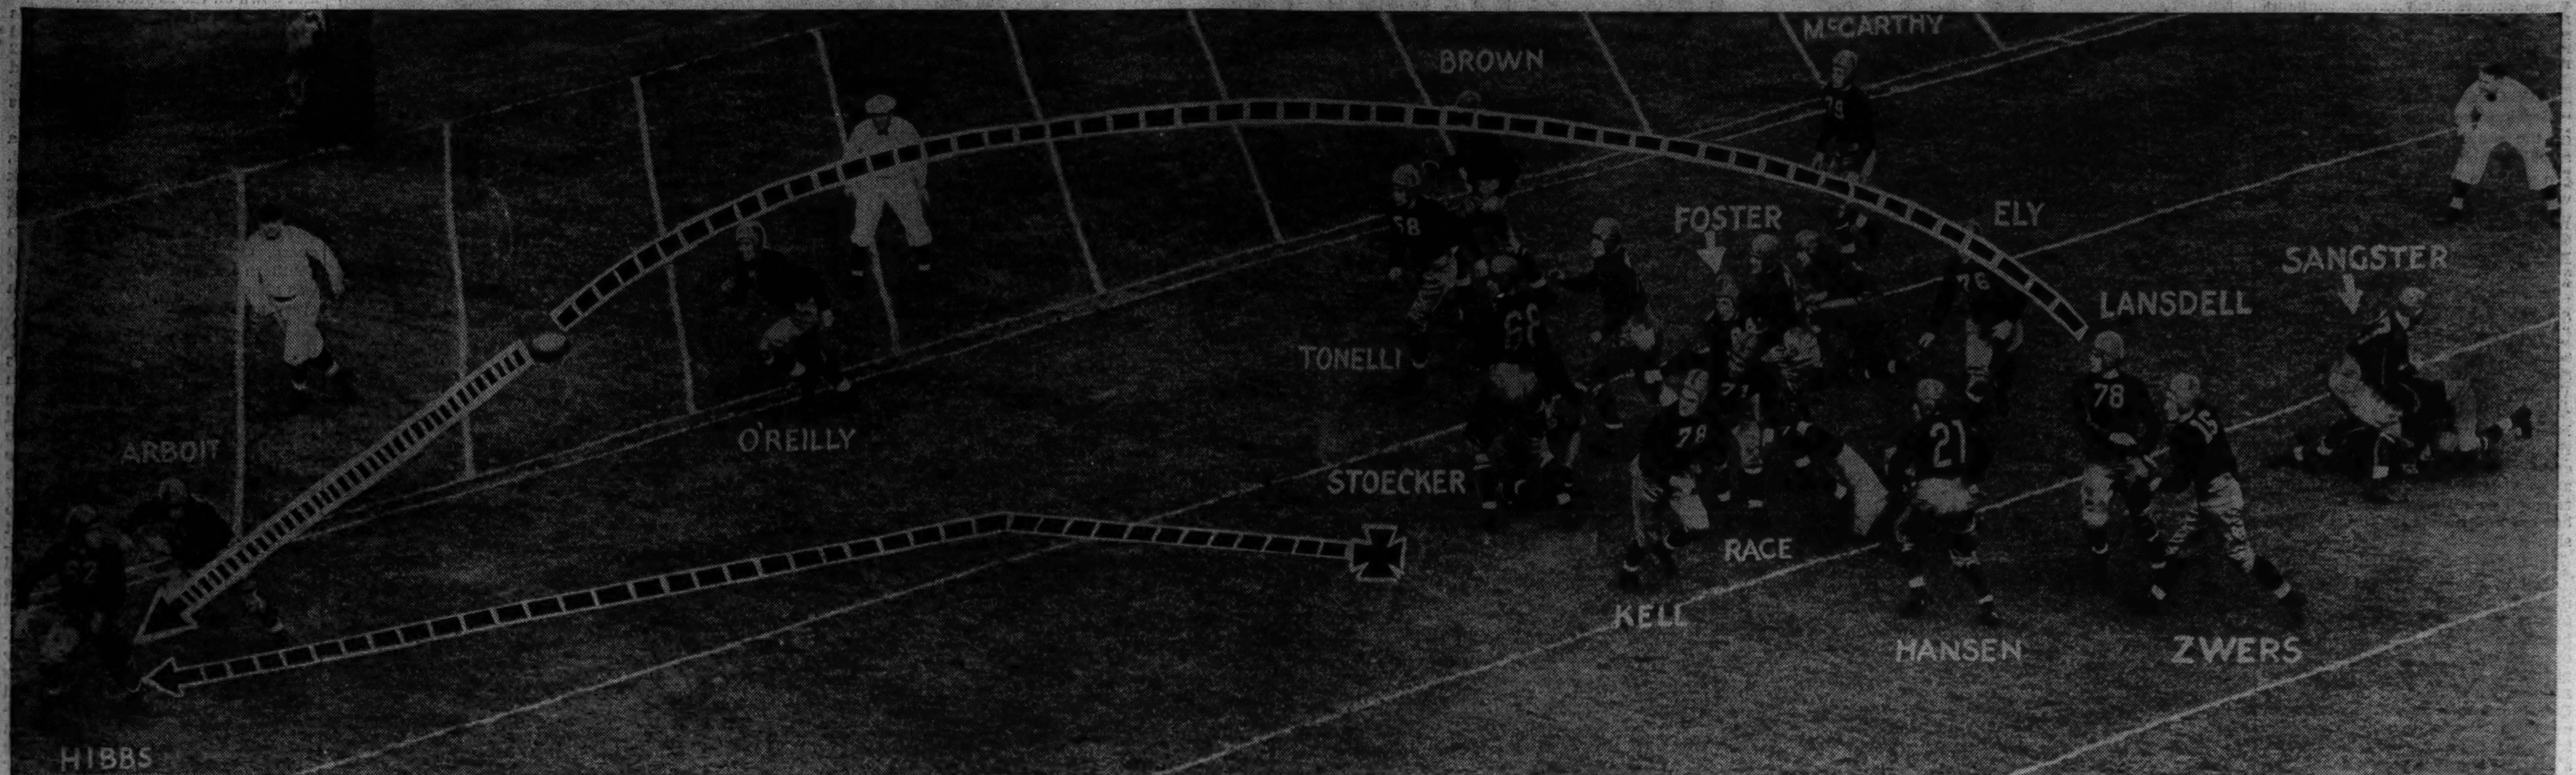
ARMY WINS, 6-0; NOTRE DAME BEATS U.S.C., 13-6

AUSTIN HIGH CONQUERS LEO, 26 TO 0, BEFORE RECORD CROWD

A TROJAN SCORING THRUST AND AN IRISH POWER PLAY



Grenville Lansdell of Southern California throws a pass to his teammate, Gene Hibbs, which is good for a touchdown. This play occurred in the second quarter of yesterday's game at Notre Dame and gave the Trojans a 6 to 0 lead. Ennio Arboit, Notre Dame half back, is making a desperate but futile effort to catch up with the receiver. Hibbs caught the ball on the one yard line and stepped across for the touchdown. The Irish came back to tie the score in the third quarter when Andy Puplis raced 58 yards for a touchdown. The try for extra point failed but Mario Tonelli made that all right in the fourth quarter by running from his own 22 yard line to the Trojan 13 yard line, and then going over for the winning touchdown from the 8 yard line after a penalty had advanced the ball five yards.

CRAIG'S FIRST PERIOD PLUNGE DEFEATS NAVY

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—An Army air squadron, under cover of a blanket of fog hanging low over Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, struck twice in succession in the first period this afternoon.

This air attack, accurately timed and perfectly executed, despite the apparently impossible handicap of a drizzling rain, bombed Navy's craft to win a 6 to 0 victory for the West Point Cadets.

It was the twenty-first victory for Army in this 38th game between the nation's academies and it was watched by a capacity throng of 102,281, the largest crowd to see a college football game this season.

Army's victory, aside from superior line play, must be credited to its starting back field of Jack Ryan, Woody Wilson, Charles [Huey] Long, and Jim Schwenk. Jim Craig scored Army's touchdown, but this senior half back from Oklahoma was substituted for Wilson with the ball on Navy's 1 yard line for the express purpose of punching it over.

Craig drove over on a mighty smash at Navy's left tackle which just carried to the goal line and while Army thereafter was apprehensive because Ryan's place kick for the point missed the posts, six points were all Army needed this afternoon.

It Hardly Seems Worth It.

The thousands, attracted by the magnet of the annual fight between Army and Navy, a milling mass which inundated downtown Philadelphia and snarled trafic for hours before game time; who sat patiently through a steady downpour to watch the muddy scramble on the slick turf, scarcely were repaid for their discomfort and effort.

That the game ended in a decision, when it quite easily might have finished in a stalemate, was received with enthusiasm by the victors and accepted stoically by the losers. Army favored to win, won, and Navy, held scoreless by an Army line, tonight could cheer only its assault in the third period, which momentarily threatened to sweep Army's defenders aside.

This vicious line drive collapsed when Harry Stella broke through on fourth down to throw the Navy ball carrier on Army's 17 yard line. After Army had stopped that inspired march, Navy never was able to get under way again. As far as victory or defeat was concerned, this game was won by Army's opening period attack.

Weather Is Chief Factor.

Because of weather conditions, the battle was largely one of defense. Just before the opening kickoff, when rain, which had started at daylight, was coming down steadily and the river flats were sending up a boiling fog, the game promised to go down in the records as one which possibly should have been postponed.

As the regiment of Midshipmen entered the stadium at 12:15, the blaring Navy band was heard at the

Hawthorne Bid for License Is Turned Down

The Illinois Racing commission yesterday refused a 1938 license to the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, operator of the Hawthorne track, oldest in Chicago. This action was taken during the annual allotment of racing dates to Illinois tracks.

A statement issued by George Foster, secretary of the commission, stated:

"Application for racing dates for the Hawthorne track was denied for failing to comply with the law in filing a complete application and for failure to comply with the rules in conformity with the law."

Refuses to Answer.

Foster would not enlarge on his statement. He refused to answer any further questions.

Neither did he explain what would happen to the thirty racing days between Sept. 5 and Oct. 8 which ordinarily would have been alloted to the Hawthorne track and which were not assigned to any track on the Chicago circuit.

Charles Bidwill, who holds a controling share of the Hawthorne stock, and Charles Krutckoff, president of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, both were amazed at the ruling, which is the most drastic handed down by the racing commission since it came into existence in 1933.

Hawthorne Official Puzzled.

"I can't understand it," Krutckoff said. "I was of the opinion our application for dates complied with every section of the racing law and before sending it to the commission compared it with the application we made for 1937 dates which we were granted." Hawthorne had asked for a 24 day meeting this year. "We would, of course, willingly accept another six days," Krutckoff continued.

One radical change in the schedule for next season was included in the list of dates announced.

Lincoln Fields was given a June meeting, opening on Memorial day, May 30, and closing on June 25 for a 24 day run. Last year the Lincoln Fields track operated in August.

Here Is Schedule.

This year's Chicago racing in August will take place at Washington Park, which drew a thirty day allotment. The complete schedule follows:

AURORA—May 2 to May 28, twenty-four days.
LINCOLN FIELDS—May 30 to June 25, twenty-four days.
ARLINGTON PARK—June 27 to July 30, thirty days.
WASHINGTON PARK—Aug. 1 to Sept. 3, thirty days.
OPEN—Sept. 5 to Oct. 8, thirty days.
SPORTSMAN'S PARK—Oct. 10 to Oct 31, nineteen days.

May Split Open Dates.

Some talk was heard in Chicago racing circles last night that in the event the Hawthorne track is not able to patch up its differences with the commission that either three 10 day meetings or two meetings of 15 days each would be conducted at other tracks on the Chicago circuit.

The commission with Chairman Leo Spitz absent was in session behind locked doors for nearly four hours before the dates were finally selected and the ruling in the Hawthorne case announced.

DE CORREVONT CROSSES GOAL THREE TIMES

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bill De Correvont, one of the most widely publicized prep stars in history, was suffering from a charley horse yesterday and was made nervous by a record crowd, announced as 120,000, at Soldiers' field. So all the blond star from Austin did was score three touchdowns and pass into the end zone for the fourth one. These deeds were the climaxes of the many sterling maneuvers that enabled Austin's Maroons to whip Leo's Lions, 26 to 0, in a great game which enriched Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund by $110,000 and gave Austin the 1937 Chicago prep school championship.

De Correvont's first touchdown was the result of a forty-seven yard run after John Starkey had opened up a hole for him at right tackle and other mates had blocked agilely to get him into the open. This was midway in the second quarter. In the same period Bill effected his second scoring success when he made a high dive over his right guard for a touchdown. In the third period De Correvont ripped through his right tackle for his third touchdown. And in the fourth quarter Bill cut loose a pass which Sonny Skor, De Correvont's co-star throughout the game, caught in the end zone on a circus maneuver. Al Bauman added the points from placement after the first two touchdowns.

He's a Busy Boy.

Needless to say, De Correvont was not idle in times when his team was not pressing for points. He made eighty-seven yards on nine running plays in the first half and added thirteen more on seven tries, allowing for a couple of losses when he was trapped on pass plays, in the second half.

In addition, De Correvont was a flash at returning punts and his own punting was strictly big league. He returned three punts a total of sixty-seven yards and one of his quick kicks went fifty-three yards in the air from the line of scrimmage.

The size of the crowd amazed even the most enthusiastic sponsors of the game. The ballyhooing of De Correvont attracted thousands of football fans and the rivalry of the public and Catholic high schools lured thousands of others. But still these lures would set up an expectancy of not more than 75,000. The tipoff, if there were 120,000 present, perhaps is to be found in the political character of ticket sales. Such events always are oversold. Many are expected to "eat" tickets allotted to them. Apparently all the gents so slugged made use of their tickets, beckoned by the pleasant weather and the aforementioned other attractive items.

Here's the Authority.

What appeared to be the most authoritative statement on the turnout, insofar as officials were concerned, came from Evan Kelly, chief of special service division of the Chicago park district, whose bureau is charged with the handling of events at Soldiers' field.

Mr. Kelly said: "On all our basis

Joe Thesing, Notre Dame full back, drives at the Trojan line for a short gain behind the interference of Andy Puplis, Jack McCarthy, and Nevin McCormick. He went through the hole opened up when Len Skoglund blocked out Ray George and Joe Ruetz blocked out Boyd Morgan. This play, which occurred in the first quarter, put the ball on Notre Dame's 20 yard line.

Name Street to Lead Browns for One Year

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 27.—[U. P.]—Charles [Gabby] Street today was named manager of the St. Louis Browns for the 1938 season.

President Donald L. Barnes announced Street had agreed to a one year contract. The appointment, he said, was due to Street's "uniform success in baseball." Barnes did not reveal financial terms, but it was reported the amount to be paid Street was between $7,500 and $10,000.

Street, notified of the appointment by telephone to Joplin, Mo., said he would try to rebuild the club. He said that as coach of the club during the latter part of the season he became convinced that new pitchers and double play combinations were necessary. He will seek to make deals at the Milwaukee and Chicago baseball meetings.

Street will replace Jim Bottomley, successor to Rogers Hornsby. Hornsby was dismissed in mid-season and Bottomley was released last week.

Second Venture in St. Louis.

The venture will be Street's second as manager of a St. Louis club. He reached a peak in his baseball career during his first stay here, from 1929 to 1932, when he was manager of the Cardinals. His team won two National league pennants and in 1931 defeated the Philadelphia Athletics for the world championship.

Following his playing career, during part of which he caught Walter Johnson when Johnson was doing his outstanding work at Washington, Street managed several minor league clubs.

They included Muskogee, Okla.; Suffolk, Va.; Augusta, Ga.; Joplin, Mo.; Columbus, S. C.; San Francisco Missions; Knoxville, Tenn., and St. Paul. He managed St. Paul part of last season.

Street, born in Hunsville, Ala., fifty-five years ago, makes his home in Joplin. He served in France with the army during the world war.

BOTTOMLEY TO SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—James Bottomley, for eleven years a star performer in the National league, was named manager of the Syracuse Chiefs of the International league today to succeed Bernard [Mike] Kelly.

The announcement was made by Jack Corbett, president of the Chiefs, from Prospect, O. Bottomley is visiting his mother at Richmond, O. Corbett's only statement was that Bottomley had accepted terms.

Blackhawks Beaten, 4 to 0, by Americans

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Displaying superior team play and scoring punch throughout the New York Americans tonight defeated the Chicago Blackhawks, 4 to 0, in a National Hockey league game before 11,000 in Madison Square Garden. It was the Hawks' third straight defeat.

Eddie Wiseman, little wingman, hammered home the first New York goal early in the first period. The Hawks then had to open up offensively and in the second period this gave the New Yorkers a chance to break away and increase their lead, Lorne Carr scoring with the assistance of Art Chapman and Dave Schriner.

Get Two More.

The Americans added two more goals in the third period, Wiseman getting his second of the game with the aid of Nels Stewart and Tommy Anderson and Schriner scoring following a sparkling individual rush which trapped the Chicagoans in the New York end of the rink.

By their victory the Americans held their second place position in the Canadian section. The Hawks, despite the loss, remained in third place in the American division.

Torchy Peden, six day bicycle rider, dropped the puck to open the game and Palangio immediately floored Robertson with a steaming shot from close quarters to start a wide open three minutes of play.

Wiseman Scores at 7:10.

The first change of lines saw the teams open up even wider, with the 12,000 Cheer Equine Kings at Horse Show

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicagoans put on their high hats and their bow ties last night and exhibited their best horses in the most formal way.

This promenade of finished riders, drivers and steeds took place at the horse show held in connection with the International Live Stock show in International amphitheater.

All the events were for horses owned by Chicagoans and others of nearby towns and cities in Illinois. This afternoon and tonight the finest steeds in America will start striving for awards.

Although the performances at last night were the last word in elegance, the crowd of 12,000 that looked on was a thoroughly democratic one, entirely unlike the fashionable group which acclaims the popular choices in the International show in New York and in the society shows held in other cities.

Florsheim Horse Wins.

The arch of a neck and the flick of a well groomed tail caught the fancy of the crowd. Every parade around the arena brought a roar of applause.

First to capture a blue ribbon was the three gaited saddle horse Snuffy Smith, a smooth moving 4 year old chestnut from Red Top farm maintained by Irving S. Florsheim near Libertyville. He caught the eye of the judges early. Vena Jean, a black mare, owned and ridden by Miss Elaine Ruth Victor of 1046 Michigan avenue, Wilmette, carried away second honors. In Person, another stylish performer from the Florsheim farm, was third.

Came another victory that everybody in the crowd applauded. It was scored by Perfection, a 6 year old bay mare from the Nan-Su farm at Highland Park. This triumph was scored in the harness horse class. Nan-Su farm is owned by Melville N. Rothschild, who is a grandson of the late Nelson Morris, one of the pioneers in the Chicago packing industry.

Carleton Coronation Second.

The country kids had a chance to cheer when the red ribbon in this event went to Carleton Coronation from the Heyl pony farm at Washington, Ill. Happy Way farm's Pride of Onway, driven by Mrs. A. C. Thompson of Elmhurst, finished third.

So it went throughout the night, the crowd lingering in the amphitheater until almost the stroke of 12 to

TONELLI BRINGS VICTORY AFTER RUN OF 70 YARDS

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27.—This was Chicago day at Notre Dame. Andy Puplis, who learned football fundamentals at Harrison Technical High school, and Mario Tonelli, who prepped at De Paul academy, accounted for all of the points Notre Dame scored to defeat Southern California, 13 to 6.

The twelfth annual game between the intersectional rivals was typical of the series. It was a lightning fast, slam bang affair with the result in doubt until the last two minutes of play.

Notre Dame achieved its victory through application of as grim a fighting spirit as you have ever seen on a football field, through almost fanatical devotion to each detail of the work in hand and through brilliant execution.

The series now stands at seven victories for Notre Dame, four for Southern California, and there has been one tie.

Trojans Score First.

The Trojans, who were vastly superior in the first half, took the lead in the second quarter when Grenville Lansdell flipped a pass to Gene Hibbs, who stepped over from the 1 yard line for a touchdown. Robert Hoffman's kick from placement on the try for point sailed to the left of the posts.

Southern California remained in command until Puplis went to work in the third quarter. It was Notre Dame's ball, first down on its own 42 yard line, when Puplis dropped back into punt formation. The ball came back on a direct pass from center and Puplis, who comes off his mark like a sprinter, set sail. He raced wide to the right behind beautiful interference.

Observing that Southern California's left end had been swept out of the play, Puplis cut back sharply and blazed through the Trojan secondary so fast there actually seemed to be sparks in his wake. He went past one defender after another like a streamliner passing up a string of box cars. There he was and there he went to ten, twenty, thirty, and forty yards with nothing but chalk lines streaming out behind him and nothing but clear, uncluttered sunshine ahead.

Over He Goes!

Sangster made a lunge at the heels of his flying adversary, but Harry Stevenson's block robbed him of whatever chance he had to make the tackle, which was no chance at all. The run was good for fifty-eight yards and a touchdown. Again Notre Dame had accomplished a perfect play.

Capt. Charles Williams, Southern California's left end, blocked Puplis' kick on the try for the extra point and the score stood, 6 to 6.

The Trojans were far from disheartened, however, at this spin of fortune's wheel. Lansdell, whose expert kicking was a feature of the battle, punted out of bounds on Notre Dame's 6 yard line early

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Barring the most surprising upset of the season, collegiate or professional, the championship of the western division in the National league will be decided at Wrigley field today when the Chicago Bears meet the Cleveland Rams in the first annual Bear homecoming game, starting at 2 o'clock.

The Bears with seven victories, one defeat and one tie, need only one victory to clinch the division pennant and qualify for the league championship game, which will be played at Wrigley field Dec. 13. Pitting the strongest team in the league, the Bears, against the weakest eleven, the Rams, leaves only one conclusion and Coach George Halas reached it so swiftly after Thursday's 13 to 0 triumph over Detroit that he already has ordered tickets for the championship game.

Bears Ready to Celebrate.

Part of the program at a banquet tonight, at which Halas will entertain former Bear stars returning for the homecoming, has been set aside for celebrating the clinching of the championship. So many details have been arranged in connection with winning the title that it would not be a tremendous shock to see Cleveland triumph. No more perfect setup for a surprise has ever been arranged.

If the contest meets dopesters' specifications, a number of the younger members of the Bears will be given an opportunity to play a major part in the proceedings. These include Ray Buivid, former Marquette passing star, who has been used sparingly since he joined the club.

Entire Cast Available.

The Bears hardly can be expected to equal their performance of Thursday in Detroit, when they played one of the finest defensive games of the year. The Lions, although beaten, 13 to 0, made a dogged fight of it all the way and the Bears left the field well played out. Fortunately no serious injuries were incurred, however, leaving the entire cast at Halas' call if Cleveland should develop unexpected opposition.

Cleveland again will rely upon John Drake, former Purdue star and half back on THE TRIBUNE's All-Star team last summer, for whatever progress it makes. Drake has played superb ball throughout the season, making an unusually impressive start for a freshman with a tail end club. He was the outstanding member of the Ram cast in their game against the Cardinals at Wrigley field and can be counted upon to give another scintillating demonstration for his neighbors from the south side.

Packers Meet Redskins.

Green Bay, eliminated from the championship race last week when the New York Giants ended its seven game winning streak, will oppose Sammy Baugh and associated Redskins at Washington today. Washington, fighting to enter its second playoff in two years, must defeat the Packers to retain a chance of passing the Giants when they meet next week.

The Packers will have an opportunity to square accounts with Baugh, who threw the pass which defeated them in the All-Star game.

O'HARA CONTENDS ACT ON CORRUPT PRACTICES VOID

Providence, R. I., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Raymond J. McMahon, counsel for the Narragansett Racing association, today challenged constitutionality of the federal corrupt practices act and asked a federal court to dismiss indictments against the association and two of its officers.

The officers indicted by a federal grand jury were Walter E. O'Hara, president and managing director of Narragansett track, and Michael J. Regan, assistant treasurer.

The indictments, charging violation of the corrupt practices act, were returned Nov. 12 in connection with alleged political contributions made during political campaigns of 1935, when a vacant congressional seat was being filled, and in 1936, when presidential electors were named.

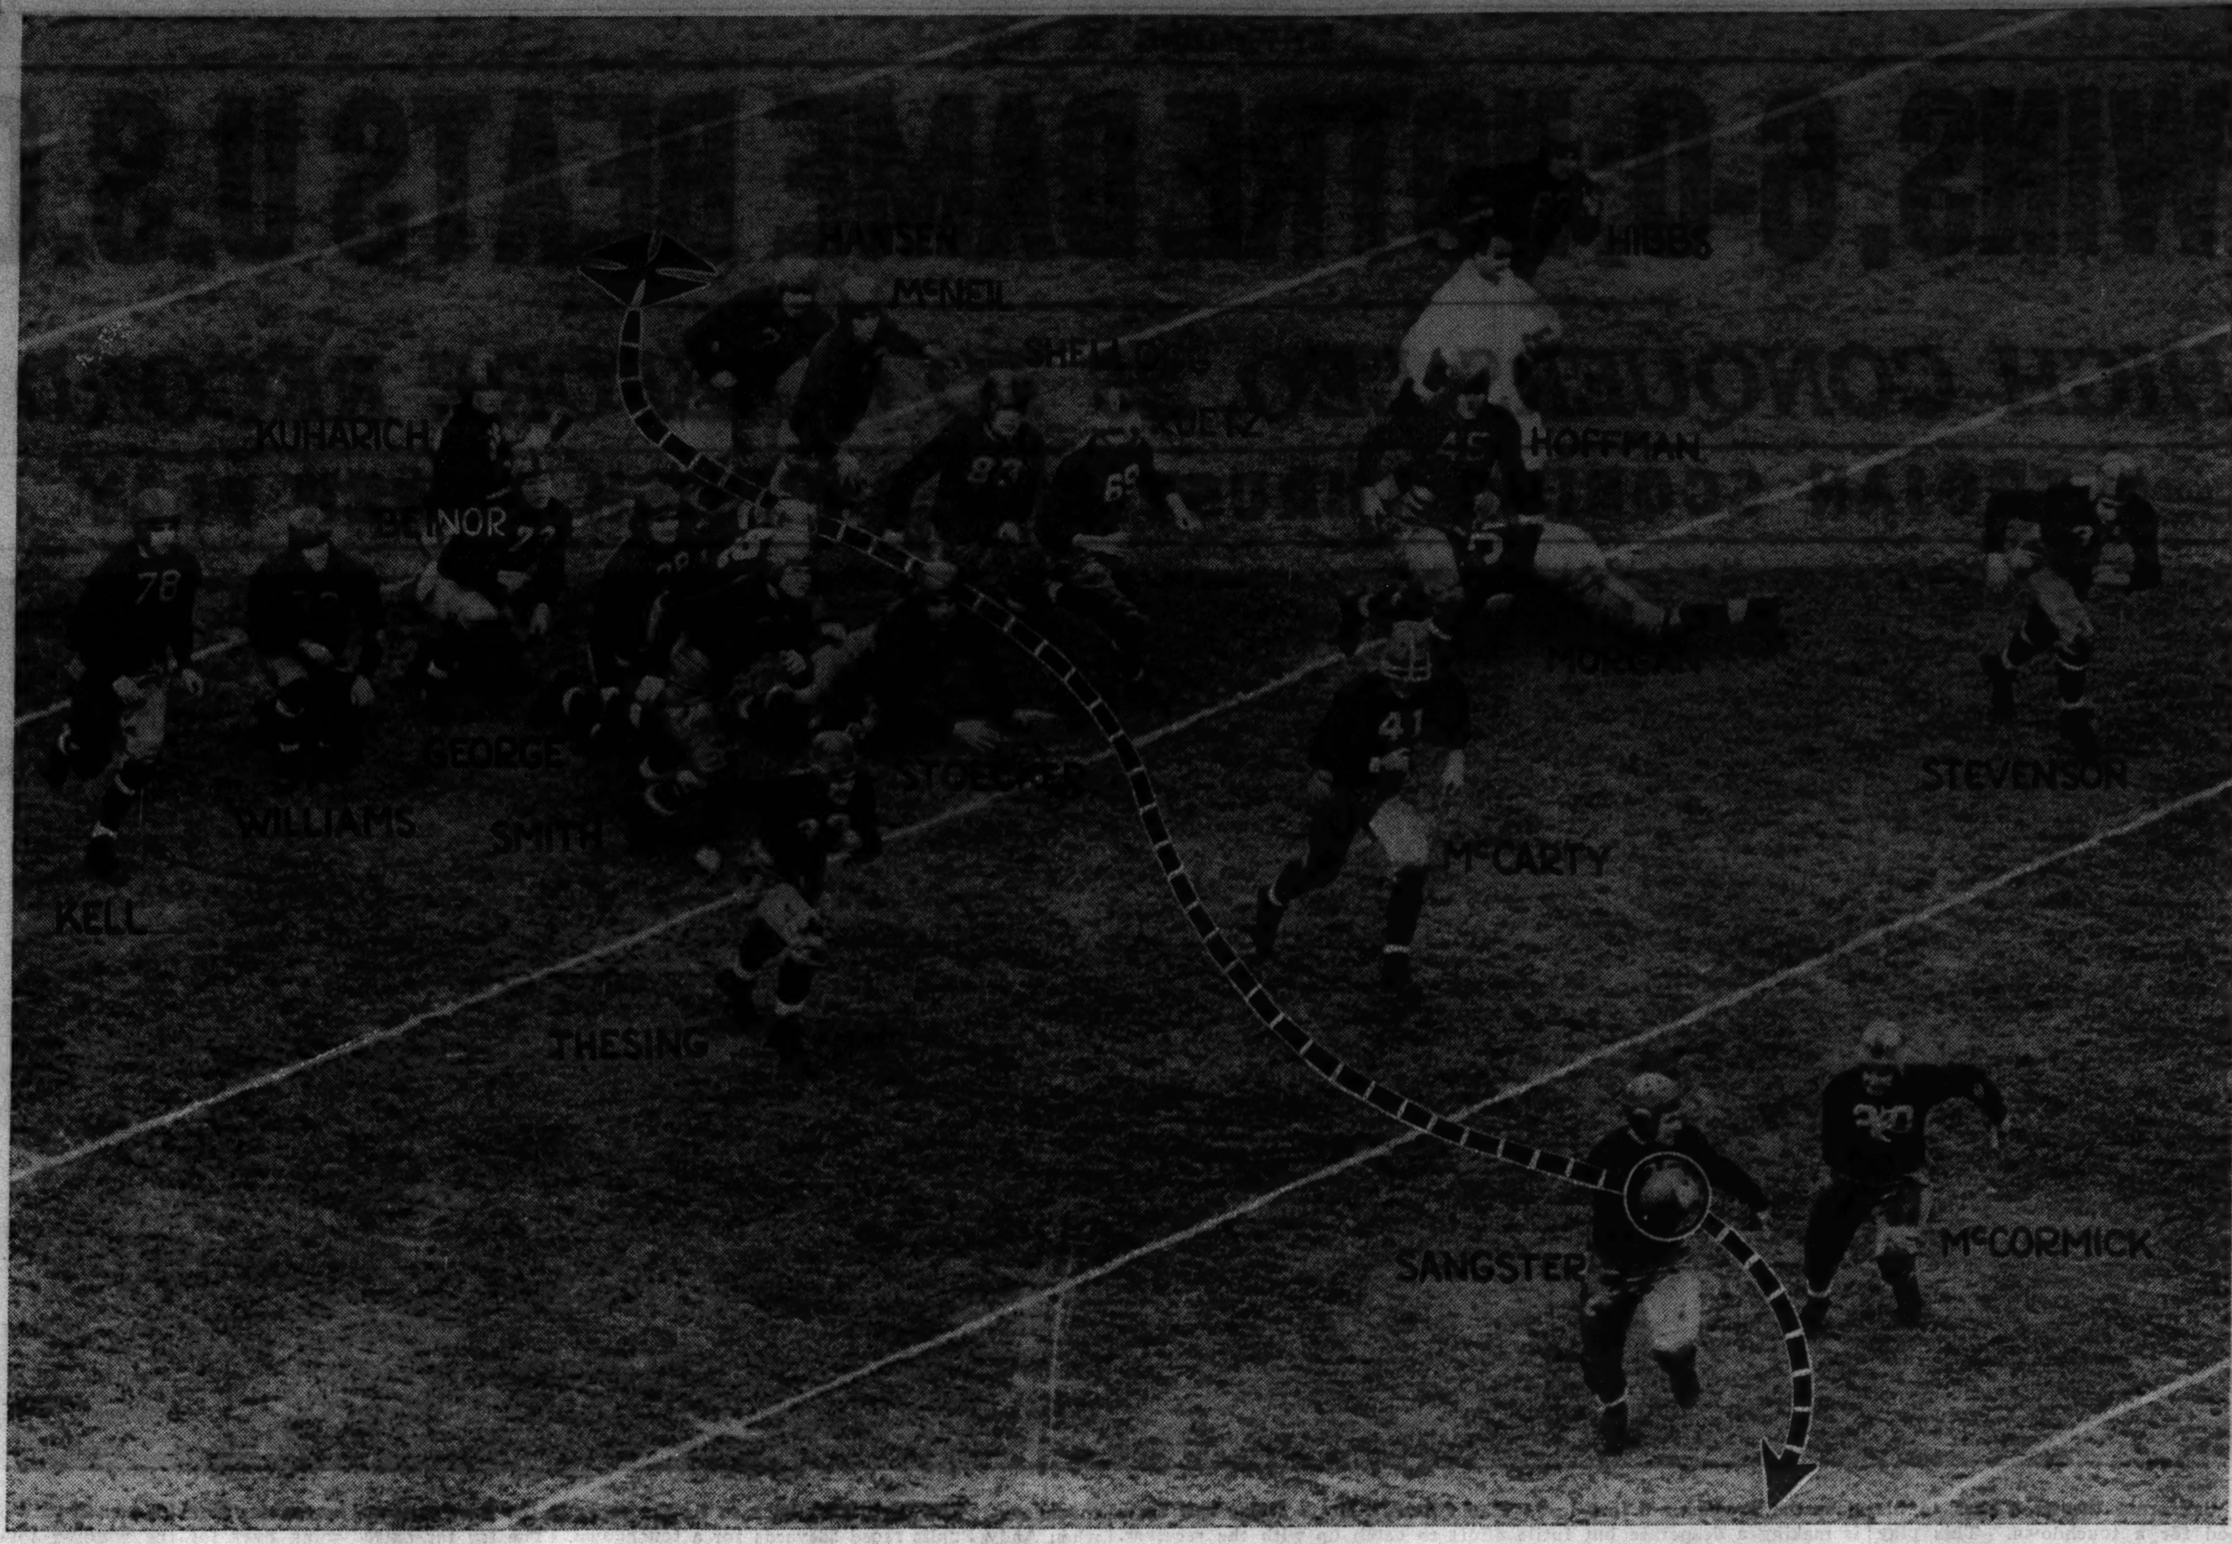
McMahon maintained that the act "assumes a power reserved to the state, violates state and corporation rights, is without lawful authority to regulate and supervise a state election, discriminates against corporations in favor of persons, and regulates the election of presidential electors, all in violation of the constitution of the United States."

He contended there was no power in congress to limit or control contributions by a corporation to a state committee.

Penn Wins Intercollegiate Table Tennis Championship

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The University of Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate table tennis championship tonight by a 3 to 2 victory over City college of New York in the finals. Wilson Teachers' college, Washington, D. C., took the consolation trophy by blanking the University of Cincinnati, 3 to 0. Pennsylvania advanced to the finals by defeating Princeton, 3 to 1, while City college of New York eliminated DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., 3 to 0.

IRISH MARK GOLDEN FOOTBALL ANNIVERSARY WITH VICTORY



Bill Sangster, Southern California full back, breaks through the Notre Dame line for 29 yards during the first quarter of yesterday's game at South Bend. The Maltese cross marks the point where Sangster took the ball. He is being pursued by Nevin McCormick, Notre Dame half back, but Andy Puplis, Irish quarter back (not shown in this picture), was the one who eventually caught up with the ball carrier and brought him down. This put the ball on the Trojan 40 yard line. After an exchange of punts, Southern California took the ball on Notre Dame's 30 yard line and advanced to a touchdown.

Stanford Held to 0 to 0 Tie by Columbia

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Columbia, doormat of the Ivy league, finished its season with a rousing hurrah by battling Stanford to a scoreless tie before 20,000 rain soaked fans at Baker field today.

Not only did Sid Luckman and his valiant comrades avert the rout that had been expected, but they actually outplayed the huskies from the coast most of the afternoon. They missed a touchdown by two yards in the closing period and twice before nudged their way inside Stanford's 20 yard line.

Stanford, on the other hand, threatened only once. In the final minutes the invaders rushed the ball sixty-eight yards, only to be halted twelve yards from the goal line. Bill Luckett rushed in and tried a placement kick from the 25 yard line, but it went wide.

Luckman Stands Out.

Luckman gave the coast team and its followers, including former President Herbert Hoover, an eyeful of football player. In his most brilliant exhibition of the season the big fellow from Brooklyn passed and ran and kicked the Stanfords right back on their heels. Only Pete Fay, the Indians' scurrying half back, gave him a slight argument for the day's honors.

Throwing strikes with a wet football, Luckman completed six out of the twelve passes he attempted for a total gain of eighty-eight yards. Three times his tosses to Radvilas, Taylor, and Siegal enabled the lighter Lions to bore deep into Stanford territory. Three times his pegs barely were knocked down in Stanford's end zone.

Lions Superior in Air.

Because of their superiority in the air the Lions compiled twelve first downs to Stanford's nine. Several thrilling dashes by the slippery Fay, one of them for thirty-two yards in the course of his team's futile fourth period drive, enabled the Indians to pile up 159 yards by rushing to Columbia's 99. Once he got loose for what looked like a ninety yard touchdown dash, but the field judge ruled that he had thrown a leg over the side line soon after he started.

Quick thinking by Fay deprived Columbia of what appeared to be a certain safety after Columbia's fourth quarter thrust had been piled up on the 2 yard line. Back under the goal posts to punt, Fay got a poor pass from center and juggled it dangerously as the Columbians swarmed in on him. At the last instant he jumped backward and got off a quick, sidewise kick out to midfield as his attackers dived into him.

Fordham Is Victor, 20-7, Over N. Y. U.

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Fordham ran over its last opponent today by scoring a 20 to 7 victory over New York university and now looks toward Pasadena and an invitation to the Rose Bowl. Sixty-five thousand saw the game.

The Rams used an assortment of "dipsy-do" and straight line smashing as they scored two touchdowns in the second period and added another in the fourth to wind up their nine game schedule undefeated and tied only by Pittsburgh.

Paced by Joe Granski, who ran sixty yards for the second touchdown, after Dom Principe pounded over to climax a fifty yard drive in the second period, Fordham took revenge for the 7 to 6 beating by which the Violets crowded them out of the bowl picture a year ago.

Rams' Line Stands Out.

The Fordham line gave one of the best performances of its season.

The Rams made only eight first downs to seven, but gained 155 yards by rushing, compared to twenty-nine and one-half for their neighborhood rivals. They were fooled by the Violet's passing attack, particularly in the second period when Ed Boell pitched four times for a forty-three yard advance and N. Y. U.'s only touchdown, but they intercepted four passes. N. Y. U. advanced 101 yards through the air, compared to eighty-six for the winners.

Fordham, after taking a kick at midfield, paraded through for the first score. The first play was a thirteen yard buck by Joe Woitkoski. The second was a pass, Granski to Capt. John Druze, good for twenty-two yards to the 13. Granski then smashed off tackle to the 2, and Principe went over.

Not five minutes later, the Violets went to work from the Fordham 43. Boell passed to Fred Fiore on the 28, to Big Ed Williams on the 15, to Fiore again on the 9, and then to Howard Dunney for the touchdown.

Guard Intercepts Pass.

Substitute Guard Jim Hayes intercepted a N. Y. U. pass on his own 37 late in the third period, and returned to the Violet 18. Then in the first minute of the final quarter a fourth down pass, Granski to Woitkoski, scored after which Druze place kicked the final point. Lineup and summary:

Nebraska Wins Its Third Straight Title in Big Six

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 27.—(AP)—For the third straight year Nebraska is the football champion of the Big Six. The Huskers defeated Kansas State today, 3 to 0, on Lowell English's place kick and made secure their title for another year. A defeat by Kansas State would have given the honors to Oklahoma while a tie would have deadlocked the Sooners and Huskers.

Only twice in the past seven years has Nebraska failed to win the conference championship. Both times a defeat by Kansas State did the trick.

Michigan State Conquers San Francisco, 14-0

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Behind two brilliant touchdown runs by John Pingel, Michigan State college rolled to a 14 to 0 football triumph today over University of San Francisco.

The long legged left half back gave 20,000 fans their biggest thrills by running seventy-five yards in the third period and thirty-four yards in the fourth. His prowess determined the contest after each team knocked at the touchdown door and failed.

In the opening period Michigan State drove seventy yards to the San Francisco 2 yard line before a fourth down pass failed. A short while later Half Back Braga of San Francisco intercepted Pingel's pass and dashed forty-nine yards to the Michigan State 10. The Dons missed a score when Left End Schwarz dropped a pass over the Michigan State goal. The lineup:

Dizzy Back in News (?)—Wants to Play Montague

Bradenton, Fla., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean wired a challenge to John Montague today seeking to draw the mystery man of golf into a match with him in the second annual Dizzy Dean tournament to be held Dec. 11 on the Bradenton Country club course.

Pitt Profits by Duke Fumbles to Win, 10 to 0

Durham, N. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Pittsburgh cashed in on two opportunities afforded by Duke fumbles this afternoon to finish an undefeated season with a 10 to 0 victory.

The Rose Bowl champions, high in the running for another bid in spite of an early season scoreless tie with Fordham, found the Blue Devil line tough, but showed an overflow crowd of 40,000 that they had the punch when needed, even in an intermittent drizzle.

Capt. Frank Souchak of the Panthers kicked a 23 yard placement field goal just before the first quarter ended. He had paved the way by recovering Honey Hackney's fumble on Duke's 20 yard line. Hackney dropped the slippery ball when hit hard by Ted Schmidt as he tried to catch a punt.

One Duke Threat.

Dick Cassiano made the touchdown about four minutes later when he swept off his right end, cut back, and raced fourteen yards to score standing up. Souchak came in and kicked the extra point.

Another fumbled punt by Hackney on his 13 yard line paved the way. Ed Spotovich recovered the ball.

Duke made only one real threat. George McAfee, sophomore back, raced forty-seven yards to Pitt's 18 yard line late in the first half. On first down Harwood Smith flipped a pass to McAfee for six yards, but another aerial failed. Smith, back trying a third pass, fumbled when hit by Souchak and Steve Petro recovered for Pitt on the 22 yard line.

Pitt made nine first downs while Duke was getting seven, but the Panthers gained 237 yards by rushing while Duke was getting only 60. Pitt tried only five passes, completing two for five yards. Duke tried the air 21 times, gaining 66 yards on five completions.

Pitt Uses Two Teams.

Duke kept Marshall Goldberg closely covered most of the afternoon. He broke loose once for twenty-five yards around his right end and again for eighteen yards, but frequently was thrown for short losses.

Bill Daddio and Petro led the Pitt line play. Cassiano was most effective in the back field.

Pitt used two full teams while Duke made only seven substitutions. The lineup:

PITTSBURGH [10].		DUKE [0].
Daddio	L. E.	Hudgins
Matisi	L. T.	Brunansky

Christian Is Still in Race; Triumphs, 3-0

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Davey O'Brien kept Texas Christian in the Southwest conference football title race today by kicking a field goal which defeated Southern Methodist university, 3 to 0.

The game was the season final for Christian, but if Southern Methodist can defeat Rice next Saturday the Horned Frogs will win the championship. Rice could gain the title with a victory over the Mustangs.

O'Brien's field goal, kicked from the 13 yard line after carrying the ball to the 5, came after two fourth period assaults and was his second attempt.

In the fourth period John Hall, Christian back, gave O'Brien his second opportunity with an interception on the S. M. U. 28 yard line. O'Brien passed to Clifford on the 11, sneaked to the 7 yard line off right guard and got to the 5 on another essay at the line. Then O'Brien made his placement kick. The lineups:

RICE, 13; BAYLOR, 7.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Sophomore Ollie Cordill moved Rice institute closer to the Southwest conference football title today with a pair of touchdowns that beat Baylor, 13 to 7.

Next Saturday at Dallas Rice meets Southern Methodist and needs a victory to win the title by a half game; a tie to finish in a deadlock with Texas Christian.

Midway in the second period Ernie Lain passed to Cordill, who carried the ball across from the 5 yard line. In the third period Cordill drove across the goal from the 1 yard line for another score.

NOTRE DAME WINS FROM U. S. C. ON TWO LONG RUNS

Puplis Dashes 58 Yards; Tonelli Goes 70.

in the last period. The Irish couldn't gain and Stevenson kicked to Lansdell, who sped back thirteen yards to Notre Dame's 32 yard line. Lansdell's pass to Galvin was good for a first down on the 22 yard line.

In this spine tingling crisis, Puplis reached into the air and intercepted Lansdell's pass on Notre Dame's 12 yard line. Notre Dame then opened a drive that culminated in the Trojans' end zone with the precious freight safely home.

Stevenson and McCormick gained a first down in two line plays. Tonelli, on a shift to the right, came back on a reverse, broke off U. S. C.'s right tackle, reversed the field and raced seventy yards before Hansen, Trojan guard, caught him from behind on Southern California's 13 yard line. It was almost another perfect play with every man doing his job expertly.

Schindler on Sidelines.

A five yard penalty on the Trojans put the ball on the 8 yard line. Again Tonelli, on a shift to the right, came back on a reverse and whirled through the Trojan line for the touchdown that settled the outcome of a thrilling game. It was the same play on which Tonelli previously made seventy yards, but this time he ran inside Southern California's right tackle instead of outside. The blocking was so effective Tonelli could have raced to Indianapolis, if there had been any necessity. Puplis added the extra point from placement.

Both teams had their heroes. Outstanding for the Trojans was Harry Smith at right guard, who gave as brilliant an exhibition of all around line play as you will see on any gridiron. On two occasions he was down the field so fast after making the kickoffs that he nailed the receiver himself. Lansdell and Sangster, fast ball carriers and good all around workmen, were the Trojan back field stars. Ambrose Schindler, whose play through the year has won him all-American recognition, was kept on the sidelines because of injuries.

Puplis Stands Out.

The crowd of 43,000 first cheered one Notre Dame boy and then another. You can name yours, but give me Puplis. His generalship was of exceptionally high order. He carried the ball seven times, which few Notre Dame quarter backs have done, for an average gain of almost thirteen yards. It was Puplis who tied the score with the sensational fifty-eight yard sprint in the third quarter, and it was Puplis who saved the game by intercepting a Trojan pass on his 12 yard line when the coast boys were putting on the pressure. What else could a guy do out there except perform a few card tricks or skip a little rope?

Notre Dame's line, sluggish in the first half, came back with a terrific bang in the last two periods. Skoglund, Beinor, Reutz, McCarty, Kuharich, Shellogg, and Sweeney again! They were the combination that stopped Minnesota and caused every opponent on the schedule no end of trouble. Aside from the touchdown drives there was only one other real scoring opportunity. That belonged to Notre Dame at the start of the fourth quarter.

Jack McCarthy made it possible by running back a Trojan punt thirty-seven yards to the U. S. C. 30 yard line. A penalty, a short pass, and a plunge gave the Irish a first down on the 18. McCarthy drove through left tackle for four yards. Harold Gottsacker, a reserve full back, darted through a hole on the opposite side to the 5 yard line, where he fumbled. The ball bounded into the end zone where Sangster recovered for a touchback.

Trojans Off for Home.

The game marked the golden anniversary of football at Notre Dame. Scores of old time players were in the stands as guests of the university.

Southern California players left for Chicago on a special train immediately after the game. They were to return to Los Angeles without a stopover, as they play U. C. L. A. in the season's windup next Saturday. This was Notre Dame's final game. The team leaves behind a record of victories over Drake, Navy, Minnesota, Army, Northwestern, and Southern California, defeats at the hands of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech and a tie game with Illinois.

AUSTIN DEFEATS LEO, 26 TO 0, FOR CITY PREP TITLE

DeCorrevont Makes Three Touchdowns.

of reckoning, pending the actual checkup of tickets, the crowd was the largest that ever saw a football game in Chicago, making allowance for the removal of the wooden bleachers that once stood at the north end of the field. The stands of Soldiers' field seat 76,000. In addition to regular space allotted for each seat, thousands of children were squeezed among the adults. The aisles were packed and their were standees six lines deep or more around the top of the entire structure.

"Shortly before the second quarter started the overflow was allowed to swarm in to lines drawn at the north end of the field. Ten thousand stood on the slope where the former wooden stands were."

All Agree It's Big.

Police officials who have helped hendle other crowds at Soldiers' field made independent estimates ranging from 110,000 to 125,000. A press representative of the mayor's committee conducted a symposium of officials and policemen and got no estimate under 115,000. Andy Frain, the usher czar, estimated the crowd at 125,000.

Before these quasi official estimates started to pour in on them, reporters accustomed to estimating crowds up to 65,000 or more had placed the figure at 90,000. These calculators, however, had not examined the density of the packing in the aisles, at the top of the stands or in the open area at the north end of the field. They proceeded from the knowledge that the listed seating capacity of the present setup is 76,000.

Whether the crowd was 90,000 or 130,000, however, the customers were all entertained, not only by Austin's brilliant performance but by the dogged fight of the Leo boys, who kept right on trying after their dreams of victory had been rudely jolted in the second quarter. The musical entertainment, conducted on a mass basis such as the crowd jusitfied, was in itself worth the price of admission.

Don't Forget Austin Line.

There was no kid stuff about the processes of the victors. And the losers, too, performed like they knew their stuff. While De Correvont delivered as advertised, despite his gimp leg, his line was superb and the handling of the team by Skor would show up half of the field generals in the Big Ten this year. The other Austin backs, though they didn't rival their star in actual yardage, blocked like demons and applauded De Correvont's every success, which is something in magnanimity and sportsmanship for a bunch of lads who have stood in the shadows while De Correvont, in nine games this fall, scored thirty-three touchdowns. His performance yesterday boosted his season's total to 204 points.

A Thriller in First Quarter.

There was no scoring in the first quarter and in the first half of the second period, though these spans afforded many thrills, not the least of which was a thirty-five yard run by Jack Daley on top of which was piled a fifteen yard penalty against Austin for roughness. Austin tightened after this break and forced Galvin to kick.

This brought out some amazingly clumsy work on the part of the field judge, Abe Glick, who was hit in the back by John Galvin's punt, the ball dropping to the 1 yard line. Fortunately this bit of inertia on the part of the official did not bloom into to much trouble, for DeCorrevont kicked from the end zone to the Austin 37 yard line, where Galvin caught the ball and ran to the 15. McLaughlin gained five yards on two plunges, but here Austin foiled two Leo plays to take the ball on its 9 yard line. All of this occurred late in the first quarter.

The second quarter opened with De Correvont making a fifty-three yard quick kick after fading back into the end zone. The tide turned when Center Donald Johnson made one of his three first half interceptions, giving Austin the ball on its 33 yard line. De Correvont soon punted again, this time out of bounds and short, but Johnson again took charge with his second interception.

First Touchdown Act.

As the second quarter neared the half way point, Galvin punted out of bounds on the Leo 47 yard line, the spot from which DeCorrevont put on his first touchdown act.

De Correvont broke through at his right tackle. He squared away, aided by splendid blocking, and then veered to his left, cutting away farther to elude two tacklers between the Leo 25 and 30 yard line. He breezed the rest of the way to the touchdown. Bauman added the point from placement.

Johnson's third pass interception got the second Austin touchdown under way. He grabbed the ball on Leo's 36 yard line, whereupon De Correvont ran his right end to Leo's 23. After a three yard loss, Center Johnson was made eligible to receive a forward pass and speared one from De Correvont, good for twelve yards. Skor made it first down on Leo's 12 and then De Correvont went through his right tackle to Leo's 3. Skor sneaked to the 1 foot line, but failed to gain on the next play. He then called De Correvont's signal and the Austin star took a high dive over his right guard for his second touchdown. Bauman again added the point.

Leo Shows Ability.

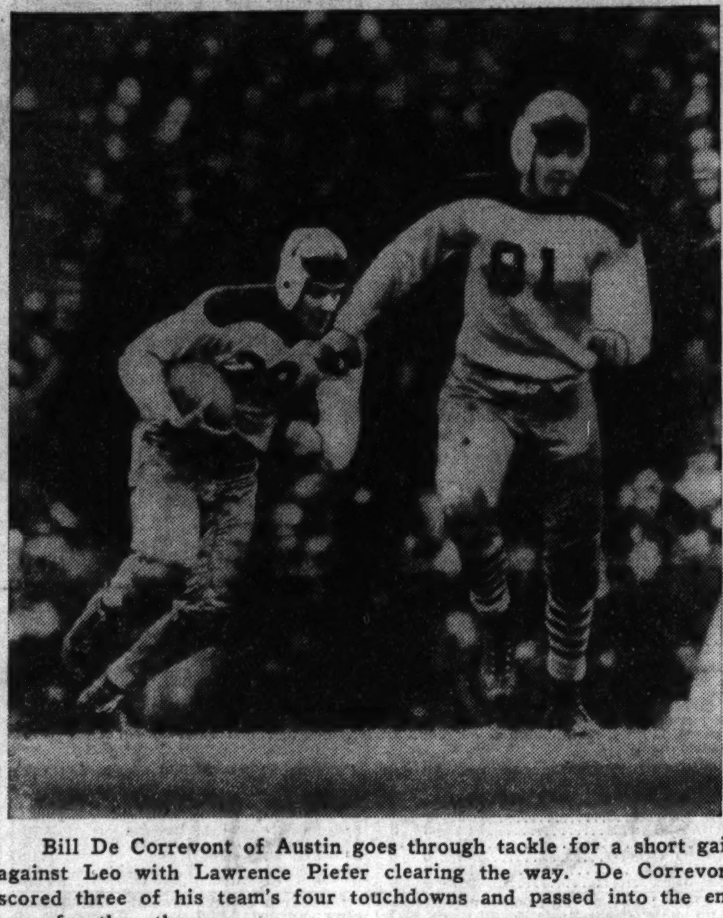
Leo came out for the second half apparently refreshed and succeeded in wading from its 37 yard line to Austin's 33. This onslaught included a neatly executed forward lateral pass, Galvin to Gibbons to Cooney. Soon afterward, however, Leo had to kick and Austin held the advantage to the extent that De Correvont got a chance to try a placekick from Leo's 30 yard line. The kick was wide into the end zone. Leo promptly kicked out to De Correvont, who received on the Leo 45 yard line and returned to the Leo 28.

De Correvont made eight yards. Then, on a spread formation, Skor fooled the entire Leo ensemble and sneaked to the 4 yard line. Piefer made a yard, and De Correvont followed by going over his right tackle for his and his team's third touchdown. Bauman failed to add the point from placement. A fumbled punt led to the fourth Austin touchdown. Late in the fourth quarter Deetjen kicked to McCoy, who fumbled, Motl recovering on the Leo 21 yard line. A pass, Parrillo to Filson; a De Correvont sprint for a first down on the 11 yard line, and a yard by Skor put the ball on Leo's 10 yard line. De Correvont dropped back and shot a pass obliquely to his right. Skor received the ball on his chest while spilling to the seat of his bloomers, but held on for the touchdown. McKenzie failed to dropkick the extra point.

PREP STARS CLASH FOR CHAMPIONSHIP AND CHARITY

Johnny Galvin, Leo half back, gets away a punt during yesterday's game with Austin at Soldiers' field. Among the Austin players are Gordon McKenzie (30) and Charley Feingarten (52). This contest, which decided the high school championship of Chicago, was witnessed by a crowd estimated at as high as 120,000. Austin won, 26 to 0. Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund shared in the proceeds of the game. Austin, champion of the Public High School league, took the lead in the second quarter and Leo, Catholic prep champion, was never able to worry the west siders thereafter.

Bill De Correvont, Austin half back, attempts a field goal in the third quarter with Sanford Skor holding the ball. The attempt failed, but De Correvont had no cause for dissatisfaction. He did plenty before the afternoon was over.



Bill De Correvont of Austin goes through tackle for a short gain against Leo with Lawrence Piefer clearing the way. De Correvont scored three of his team's four touchdowns and passed into the end zone for the other.

Here, There, Everywhere at Prep Game

Bill De Correvont's grandmother, Mrs. Louise Ericksen, 78 years old, and his mother, Mrs. Harriet De Correvont, were among the thousands who attended the game yesterday between Austin and Leo at Soldiers' field. Bill's girl friend, Miss Dorothy Lagorio, a student at Rosary college, also was in the De Correvont rooting section.

Mayor Kelly, who started the series between the Catholic and Public High School league champions in 1934, flipped the coin at the start of the game. He watched the battle with other civic officials from a box on the 50 yard line on the west side of the field.

The public school league was represented by James B. McCahey, president of the Chicago board of education; Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and Wilbur Wright, Austin principal. The Catholic league officials included the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, diocesan superintendent of schools; the Rev. P. E. O'Ryan, principal of Leo High, and Brother Hamill, Leo athletic director.

Just before the start of the second quarter several thousand spectators who had been standing in ailes, marched down on the field and formed a horseshoe. They were roped off from the playing area, and ushers and policemen kept them ten yards from the side lines.

When Austin held Johnny Galvin and his fleet Leo associates scoreless it was the third time that the Catholic league champions had failed to score in the big charity game. Lindblom defeated Leo, 6 to 0, in the 1934 game and the following year Leo suffered another defeat by the same score to the same team.

Austin students attempted to tear down the goal posts immediately after the game, but they were halted by several burly policemen. However, the boys did a fairly good job after the bluecoats had disappeared. They tore down the bunting on the posts and still were trying to knock them down as darkness fell. Their desires were frustrated again, however, when three motorcycle policemen entered the field through the south gate and gave successful chase.

There were many early birds in the huge throng. Many thousands held general admission tickets, and at noon, an hour before the ceremonies started, an estimated 25,000 were on hand. All seats were occupied, many were standing in the ailes and thousands were still pouring in as Maestro Paul Whiteman led a 1,000 piece band in the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner," which opened the program.

Austin's girls' and boys' band, led by the twin drum majors, June and Jane Hendricks, were among the ten Catholic and public high school organizations which made up the 1,000 piece band.

A. L. [Whitey] Cronin, Leo coach, was one of the gloomiest persons in the south sider's dressing room after the game. Whitey was 33 years old yesterday, and the 26 to 0 defeat was a rather unlovely birthday gift.

The happiest players in the Austin dressing room were De Correvont, Sonny Skor, and Alf Bauman. They congratulated each other on their play, and Skor and Bauman told De Correvont they hoped to help him celebrate another birthday next year. De Correvont, who was 19 years old yesterday, and Skor and Bauman ended their public high school league football careers against Leo.

U. S. TRACK MEN STAR AS OXFORD BEATS CAMBRIDGE

OXFORD, England, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Aided by two former Princeton athletes, Cresson Kearny of San Antonio, Tex., and Jack Irwin of Keokuk, Ia., Oxford today defeated Cambridge for the second straight year in a relay meet. The score was 4 first places to 3.

Kearny and Irwin, both of whom graduated from Princeton last spring, were members of the mile relay team which broke a 3-3 deadlock and set up a new meet record for the event. The dark blue quartet raced the distance in 3:19.5 to smash the old mark of 3:22.4 made in 1931.

Kearny also ran in the half mile relay, which Oxford won by twelve yards in 1:28, one-fifth of a second better than the old record set by Cambridge in 1935. Irwin ran anchor on the half mile low hurdles team, which was clocked in 1:42.8, in beating Oxford's five year old mark of 1:43.

CENTENARY WINS FROM OKLAHOMA AGGIES, 19 TO 0

Stillwater, Okla., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Centenary's powerful eleven outclassed Oklahoma A. & M. today to score a 19 to 0 victory on a snow covered field.

After being held scoreless the first period Centenary took a poor kick on the Aggie 36 and swept to a touchdown in two plays, Beasley passing to Outz, Centenary end, for the score.

Weenie Bynum, elusive Centenary half back, provided the game's biggest thrill in the third quarter as he swung wide around his own left end, faked a pass, and then shook off tacklers in a forty-two yard dash for a touchdown.

An Aggie pass from the Oklahoma 8 yard line in the final period was intercepted by John Lingo, half back, who raced to the Oklahoma 3. Whitehurst made a yard and then Stone cut over left guard for a touchdown.

COACH, PLAYER OF TULSA HOCKY TEAM ARE FINED

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 27.—(AP)—President William F. Grant of the American Hocky association said tonight he had fined Coach Fred Gordon and Player Radley of the Tulsa, Okla., Hocky club for their parts in fights this week.

Radley was fined and given a match penalty for striking an official in the Tulsa-St. Paul game at St. Paul Thursday, Grant said, but was reinstated to allow him to play in the Tulsa-Kansas City game here tonight.

Grant said Coach Gordon was fined for his part in a fight on Minneapolis ice Wednesday night between the Minneapolis and Tulsa clubs.

DEMPSEY HASN'T APPENDICITIS; IT'S JUST PTOMAINE

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, taken ill while on a wrestling refereeing trip in Canada, arrived here tonight. His ailment, thought originally to be appendicitis, was diagnosed as ptomaine poisoning.

The former heavyweight champion got off the train at Yonkers, 20 miles out, and drove into the city with his wife and two friends. Train attaches said he had walked around during the trip, apparently in no great discomfort although he kept an ice bag on his abdomen.

He went immediately to his apartment for an examination by his physician.

BOSTON COLLEGE BEATEN, 20 TO 0, BY HOLY CROSS

Boston, Mass., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Holy Cross climaxed its second unbeaten season in three years by defeating Boston college, 20 to 0, today before 35,000 spectators at Fenway park. Held scoreless during the first period, the Crusaders, who were tied this season by Temple and Carnegie, put on touchdown drives in each of the last three periods. Ronnie Cahill accounted for the first score and Bill Osmanski, the game's outstanding performer, made the last two.

Georgia and Georgia Tech Tie, 6 to 6

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Georgia and Georgia Tech, football rivals since 1893, battled to a 6 to 6 tie today before 28,000. Featuring the somewhat surprising outcome was Capt. Bill Hartman's ninety-three yard touchdown run on the opening kickoff of the third period for Georgia's score.

The Engineers drove deep into scoring territory five times, only to be turned back, then had to capitalize on a Georgia fumble for their lone score.

Oliver Hunnicutt fumbled and Georgia Tech again recovered on the 17. Tech connected with one of its few completed passes when Capt. Fletcher Sims laid the ball into the hands of Dutch Konemann, who got to the 1 yard line. Sims then plunged over for the score, but his try for the point was blocked by Center Quinton Lumpkin.

In the first period Georgia Tech marched from the Georgia 43 yard line to the 13 and there Sims' try for a field goal from the 21 missed badly. The Engineers came right back, but passes missed and Georgia took the ball at the 9.

In the fourth period, after Tech had menaced the Georgia goal twice, Vasso Cate ended a third threat with a pass interception on the Georgia 2 yard mark.

L. S. U. BEATS TULANE.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Louisiana State passed its way to a 20 to 7 victory today over Tulane before 40,000. Tosses by Young Bussey and Jimmy Cajoleas put the Tigers in front after Tulane had gained an early lead on John Andrews' fifty-nine yard touchdown run.

Andrews intercepted an aerial thrown by Pinky Rohm in the opening period and outran the Tiger secondary. Mattis kicked for the extra point.

With Bussey throwing and Jabbo Steel and Ken Kavanaugh receiving, the Tigers pushed to the Tulane 9 yard line. After an eleven yard setback, Bussey passed to Kavanaugh, who took the ball across the goal line from the hands of two Tulane backs. Cajoleas' try for placement was wide.

A long punt return in the third period gave the Tigers the ball on Tulane's 44. Bussey tossed to Kavanaugh on the Tulane 9. Steel plunged to the 5 and Milner prepared to try a place kick with Cajoleas holding. The pass from center as low and Cajoleas grabbed the ball and pitched to Larry King, end, who fell across the goal line. Milner converted.

Rohm paved the way for Louisiana State's final touchdown, returning a punt eighteen yards to Tulane's 26. Morton picked up seventeen on line smashes and Rohm scored off tackle.

AUBURN, 14; FLORIDA, 0.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Auburn ended its football schedule today with a 14 to 0 victory over Florida.

Jimmy Fenton gave the Tigers their first touchdown in the opening period on a twenty-nine yard run around left end. His dash climaxed a forty-two yard drive touched off by Spec Kelly's twenty-five yard return of a punt.

A short out of bounds punt, kicked by Walter Mayberry when the Florida captain was rushed, put the Tigers in position for their other touchdown late in the final period. A pass, Kelly to Max Harrison, gained eighteen of the needed thirty-one yards. Kelly then cut around right end on a reverse and outran the Florida secondary to the goal. Fenton place kicked both extra points.

NEBRASKA BEATS KANSAS STATE, 3-0; WINS TITLE

English Makes Place Kick in Second Quarter.

Manhattan, Kas., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Lowell English, a guard, dropped back to the Kansas State 23 yard line in the final 20 seconds of the second quarter today and on a snow glazed field place kicked Nebraska to its third straight Big Six football championship.

Before a crowd of 6,000 benumbed fans, English calmly scored the only points of a frigid afternoon.

The alert Huskers capitalized on a break for their score. Kansas State, with the ball on its 6 yard line, attempted to kill time by nudging the line. On the second plunge Bob Briggs fumbled and Gus Peters and Paul Amen recovered for the Huskers on the Kansas State 15 yard line.

Howell Calls for Place Kick.

Here Johnny Howell was sent in for Nebraska. Howell promptly eased his way around left end to the center of the field, then called the place kick play which meant the ball game.

Thurston Phelps of Nebraska did a remarkable job of passing and numbed fingers of receivers apparently robbed the Huskers of two touchdowns. In the second quarter Elmer Dohrmann dropped a long pass that was squarely in his hands as he surged over the goal. In the final quarter Jack Dodd dropped a 40 yard pass under similiar circumstances.

Turn Back Kansas State.

Only once did Nebraska fans become really alarmed. At the start of the third period Briggs charged through the Nebraska line for twenty-two yards, and Howard Cleveland followed with a fifteen yard dash to the Husker 25. Here the Nebraskans put the Kansas State offense in reverse. Lineups:

350, IN FREE, SEE HOPKINS DEFEAT ST. JOHN'S, 13 TO 0

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Johns Hopkins' "deëmphasized" football team marched through the mud to two touchdowns today to defeat St. John's college of Annapolis, 13 to 0, in the 55th renewal of their gridiron feud.

Three hundred and fifty fans, who paid no admission fee under Hopkins' new noncommercial football plan, saw the Blue Jays overpower the Johnnies and win their fourth game in six starts to end one of their most successful seasons in recent years.

Two thrusts, one in the second period after Hopkins recovered Lambros' fumble on the St. John's 30, and another in the final quarter after Milligan intercepted Lambros' pass on the St. John's 25, provided all the scoring of the game.

Milligan bucked over from the 6 yard line for the first touchdown and Spilman kicked the point. Buck plunged over the second touchdown from the 3 yard line.

C. Y. O. FINALS WILL BRING OUT SECTIONAL FEUDS

Happy Family Angle to Be Forgotten Wednesday.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Catholic Youth organization is admittedly one of the happiest families in our athletic community, but there is a growing suspicion that next Wednesday night, when the C. Y. O. holds its seventh annual boxing championships at Chicago Stadium, the sixteen young men in the open division will choose up sides to the exclusion of the family angle.

This situation has been brought about by the natural sectional differences growing out of the six years' progress of the C. Y. O. There is not a better behaved band of boxers while they are having at each other in their regular drills at the C. Y. O. center and going through their preliminary eliminations. But the final night is another problem, for that's when the lads remember that they come from Englewood, or Austin, or Rogers Park.

South Siders Lead in Titles.

The roster of former champions reveals that the south siders have predominated in bringing home titles. Out of 48 championships fought for in the first six years of the tournament they have won 22. The west side is next best with 13, followed by the north side with 9 and the suburbs with 4.

The determination of other quarters to overcome this southern dominance shows itself in the origins of next Wednesday's sixteen open battlers. The north side is obviously most serious in its intent, having sent six. The south side has qualified five this time, and the west siders four. The suburbs are represented by one boxer, but he's one of the ablest of the lot—Tony Carlucci, representing the Lewis Holy Name Technical school of Lockport, Ill., in the 126 pound class.

Cavalieri a North Sider.

The north siders will rely on Flyweight Walter Cavalieri of Holy Rosary parish, Bantamweight Sammy Zaczek of Sacred Heart, Featherweight Joe Du Pont of St. Margaret Mary, Middleweight Frank Knabel of St. Priscilla, Light Heavyweight Emory Atkins of Corpus Christi, and Clarence Brown of St. Nicholas of Evanston.

South siders' hopes for increasing their lead for the all-time honor are Bantamweight Frank Kainrath of St. Mary's of Riverdale, Lightweights Joe O'Connell of St. Nicholas of Tolentine and William Goldsmith of Corpus Christi, Welterweight Stanley Murczek of St. Barbara, and Light Heavyweight Edward Foys of St. Stephen.

The west side quartet includes Flyweight Al Noto of Presentation, Welterweight Tony Motisi of Guardian Angel, Middleweight Curtis McDaniels of Holy Family, and Heavyweight Don Esbrook of St. Bernardine.

Kainrath Captain of Team.

Frank Kainrath, the Austrian born boy who is captain of the team, is the boxer best known to the crowd who will see the finals at the Stadium. Frank not only is the present 118 pound Golden Gloves champion but also will be seeking his third consecutive C. Y. O. crown in the bantamweight division.

They Just Can't Wait to Use 'Em

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder and director of the Catholic Youth Organization, presents boxing gloves to some of the 32 finalists who will battle at the Stadium Wednesday night for championships in the seventh annual C. Y. O. boxing tournament. Proceeds of the event go to the organization's annual Christmas benefit fund. The finalists in the open division, most of whom are pictured here, include: 112 pounds, Walter Cavalieri and Al Noto; 118 pounds, Sammy Zaczek and Frank Kainrath; 125 pounds, Tony Carlucci and Joe Du Pont; 135 pounds, Joe O'Connell and William Goldsmith; 147 pounds, Tony Motisi and Stanley Murczek; 160 pounds, Curtis McDaniels and Frank Knabel; 175 pounds, Eddie Foys and Emery Atkins; heavyweights, Clarence Brown and Donald Esbrook. Novice division: 112 pounds, George O'Brien and Berlin Hadnott; 118 pounds, Sergio Manrique and Jesse Garcia; 126 pounds, Salvatore Bais and John Francisco; 135 pounds, Ed Miller and Johnny Cahill; 147 pounds, Leonard Szudy and Lou Ginetti; 160 pounds, Vincent Tkac and Mike Cannon; 175 pounds, Harry Henderson and Robert Maren; heavyweights, Emil McKinnis and Ben Nurczek. ChicagoRugby Team Battles CanadianStars

From out of the Canadian provinces have come fifteen greenshirted, short panted Irishmen numbered among the world's best rugby players on a mission of sporting revenge to retrieve from America the continent's rugby crown.

The All-Star Canadians, as they call themselves, meet the Chicago Rugby club team in an international rugby game this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock on New Trier High school field in Winnetka.

Recently, in Canada, the Chicago team defeated the University of Toronto rugby team, 10 to 0. Immediately following the game, the Canadians picked the finest players in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, challenged the Chicago team to a revenge game—and are in Chicago today to play it.

The Canadians are almost all from Ireland or of Irish descent. Several members of the Chicago team are direct from the playing fields of English universities.

Proceeds from today's game, which is sponsored by the Service Club Volunteers, will be distributed among deserving Chicago charity institutions.

The lineups follow:

ALL-STAR CANADIANS.

Full back, J. Roe; right wing, H. Crawford; center three-quarters, J. Irvine and R. Mitchell; left wing, H. Hunter; stand off three-quarter, J. Matheson; scrum half back, J. Gilbert; forwards, R. Ruddie, G. Monteith, P. Green, T. Shaw, J. Montgomery, J. Scotcher, B. Magner, and Paddy Shaw [captain].

CHICAGO RUGBY CLUB.

Full back, Patrick Dolan; right wing, Walter Kimball; center three-quarters, Victor Harding [captain], and Ted Wilder; left wing, Hamilton Reidy; stand off half back, Robert Childs; scrum half back, James B. Smith; forwards, Leslie Mather, Alec Crawford, John Irving, Dick Baldwin, Henry Gardner, Peter Fortune, Noel McGrath, and Jim McCrudden.

Referee—Dr. Theodore Walsh of the University of Chicago.

Hill Academy Conquers Mexican Eleven, 13 to 12

Mexico City, Nov. 27.—[U. P.]—Hill Military academy defeated the Mexican Polytechnic institute, 13 to 12, before 6,000 today. Full Back McNett of the American eleven was the star, scoring two touchdowns and kicking one extra point. A pair of forward passes—Camaliche to Gongora—accounted for the Mexicans' two touchdowns.

Hunters! Only 3 Days Remain to Get Ducks

BY BOB BECKER.

It's the last call for the duck and goose hunters who want to go into the marshes this season. Including today, sportsmen have just three days for their hunting. Tuesday afternoon the curtain comes down on the season. Curtain time is 4 p. m. After that hour the boys must put away their fowling pieces for another year unless they hustle south to take advantage of the later season in the southern zone of states. So the time has come for all hunters in the intermediate zone to say good-by to waterfowl hunting.

Due to weather and water conditions in Illinois the 1937 waterfowl season is quite likely to be remembered for a long time. It has been a "duck saving" season rather than a duck shooting period of 30 days. Judging from reports from all parts of the hunting country the pintails and mallards didn't have as difficult a time with shotguns as was expected.

Water Scarce in Marshes.

After the opening of the season came warm weather, which was not good for decoying birds. To the unseasonal weather was added adverse water conditions in the Illinois and Sangamon valleys. Ducks must have water in the sloughs to reach many acres of natural foods. This year there was a marked scarcity of water in the marshes. Therefore the birds had little reason to fly over the marshes where blinds and decoys are usually used. As if these conditions were not bad enough, the late November heavy freeze and snow gave the hunters another setback.

All these complications in the big duck hunting country of Illinois have made the season an unusual one and have given many hunters headaches.

Ducks Not Fat.

The thing that impressed us about the ducks in the Illinois river area during the season was the fact that most of them were not fat. One experienced guide told us that he has seen few fat mallards during the season. With not enough to eat in the lowlands the ducks had to travel many miles back into the fields to find food. We saw them working cornfields 30 miles from Havana and the river bottoms. In the old days the birds had food provided for them in the bottomlands. Now they soon exhaust natural foods and must travel a long way to get enough to eat.

YALE PLAYS TO 229,000, DESPITE TWO RAINY DAYS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—While rain cut the attendance at the Yale football games with Cornell and Princeton, a total of 229,000 spectators witnessed contests this fall as compared to 269,000 last year.

A new peak since depression days began was reached in the game with Dartmouth, when 71,000 packed the bowl. The Yale management could have sold ten thousand more tickets.

New Yorkers demonstrating slight superiority. Karakas made two sparkling saves on Stewart, but was beaten when Wiseman blazed a rising shot from 20 feet out. The goal came at 7:01 and was registered unassisted. Karakas mildly protested the goal on the grounds that his vision was blocked by Stewart.

The Chicago defense was caught cold on a three man thrust and Carr counted the Americans second goal at 12:28 of the second period. Chapman and Schriner earned assists. Karakas never had a chance on the play which saw Carr skate in unmolested and hit the near side corner of the cage with a hard shot.

Americans Break for Goals.

The Americans played cautiously in the third period, forcing the Hawks to carry the attack. This method gave the Americans numerous chances to break away and one such speedy thrust brought the New Yorkers their third goal, Wiseman flipping the puck past Karakas at 5:37 on Stewart's rebound. Stewart and Anderson drew assists.

Schriner scored the last New York goal at 8:58 following an individual dash which caught the Chicago defense up the ice. He skated right in on Karakas and easily hit the net from the goal crease.

CANADIENS, 2; RANGERS, 1

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Rod Lorrain scored a third period goal tonight to give the Montreal Canadiens a 2 to 1 victory over the New York Rangers in their first meeting of the National Hocky league season.

Seven thousand saw Montreal tie the score in the first period and then gain its second victory this year with Lorrain's goal while MacColville was serving a penalty.

Joe Cooper put the Rangers ahead after eight minutes of play, but Johnny Gagnon evened it eight minutes later and the teams played through a scoreless second session. The winning goal came midway through the final period.

Referee Mickey Ion's eye was cut by a puck a few seconds after play started. Sylvio Mantha officiated with Johnny Mitchell the rest of the game while Ion watched from a rinkside seat. Lineup:

U. C. L. A. DEFEATS MISSOURI, 13 TO 0, IN 4TH PERIOD

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Kenny Washington, star half back of the University of California at Los Angeles, led the Bruins to a 13 to 0 victory over Missouri today.

U. C. L. A.'s first touchdown came on a fifty-six yard march led by Washington in the fourth quarter.

The second was scored in the final thirty seconds of play when Washington intercepted a Tiger pass on his 10 yard line, ran eighty-eight yards and lateraled, as he was tackled on the 2 yard line, to Center Johnny Ryland, who fell across the goal.

ARTILLERY AND BLACK HORSE WIN 1ST POLO GAMES

The 124th Field Artillery polo team defeated the Detroit Gold Hats, 11 to 1½, and the Chicago Black Horse Troop triumphed over Olympia Fields, 6 to 2, in the opening round of the Metropolitan Polo league title tournament last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

The inaugural program was for the benefit of war veterans at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital and drew a crowd of 7,000.

The 124th team set a fast pace throughout and kept the Gold Hats on the defensive most of the game. A goal by Lieut. Don Rice after nine seconds of play overcame the 1 point award by handicap to Detroit, and a short time later Capt. Romeo Mura took a pass from Lieut. Rice to put the Artillery into a lead it never relinquished.

NORTHEAST WILL PLAY SOUTHEAST IN FIELD HOCKY

Northeast and Southeast first teams, the only representatives who remained undefeated yesterday at the end of third round play in the women's national field hocky tournament at Winnetka, will clash today as the four day event comes to a close.

The Southeast regulars continued to dominate play yesterday by defeating the Northeast seconds, 6 to 1, on three goals each by Virginia Marryweather and Marian Edwards, both of Philadelphia. Northeast's regulars, led by Betty Ritchie of the Vassar faculty, who scored twice, won their third straight game at the expense of the Midwest first team, 3 to 0.

A goal late in the game by Martha Brockett of Detroit, Mich., enabled the Great Lakes first team to defeat the Midwest seconds, 1 to 0. Southeast's reserves defeated the Great Lakes seconds, 4 to 0, with Mary French of Philadelphia contributing all the scoring.

MINORS TO OPEN ANNUAL MEET ON WEDNESDAY

Majors Will Move In to Juggle Players.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Baseball, which has been painfully quiet since the Yankees took the final kick at their fellow townsmen, the Giants, in the final of the world series, will be fighting for the sport page headlines a few days hence. The minors will assemble at Milwaukee Wednesday through Friday for their annual convention and just to sweeten the affair, if not take control of it, the majors will move in and endeavor to juggle a lot of the talent they possess.

It will be the first conclave of baseball folks in Milwaukee since 1911, which was in the days before the majors developed the habit of moving in on the small fellows' party. But there will be at least one similarity in the two gatherings. Milwaukee, despite the hiatus caused by the noble experiment, still turns out an excellent brew. The brewers will be falling over themselves inviting the delegates to the guest room and the delegates will fall over themselves trying to get there.

Legislation Chief Item.

There'll be big league trades, maybe a lot of them, but the chief item coming up for disposal involves legislation. It's the pact by which the major and minors operate so that one can't cheat the other, at least not on the surface. The present agreement, which covers player transactions, expires in February and a new one must be fixed up. The minors, as usual, probably will be outfoxed because proposals for this contract are couched in ambiguous legal phraseology and the minors, after voting acceptance, frequently discover later that they had agreed on something they didn't know about.

The minors already have drawn up their idea of an excellent working agreement. Among other things they want to strengthen the hobbles governing big league rights to sign college players. They want to incorporate an amendment by which a college boy couldn't be employed directly or otherwise by a big league team until his class had graduated, unless there were legitimate circumstances causing the boy to abandon his quest for learning.

Majors Probably Will Object.

This move is an effort by the minors to increase their chances to grab such worthy prospects, develop them, and, possibly, sell them eventually at a profit. The idea is worthy, but only a drop in the bucket in the minors' constantly increasing struggle to keep the majors from cradle-snatching. The minors undoubtedly will vote to accept the clause, but it can't become final until the majors cast ballots on it at their annual meetings in Chicago Dec. 6, 7, and 8. The majors probably will object.

Under the expiring pact the majors can sign college athletes without regard to their remaining at school. In return for this concession, made when the agreement was obtained in 1932, the majors consented to discontine the practice of reaching out and signing youngsters before minor leagues covering the territory in which the lad resided had had a chance at his services. It was this clause that caused the trouble in the case of Bob Feller, the Cleveland pitcher. The Cleveland club had dodged the purpose of the rule by first signing the athlete to a contract with the New Orleans club, one of its farm organizations.

DONOGHUE ENDS JOCKY CAREER—NOT AS WINNER

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 27.—(AP)—No more will the cry, "Come on, Steve," be heard on the British turf.

Steve Donoghue rode the last race of his great career today as the English flat racing season ended. The end was not exactly as Steve would have had it, however. He finished third with Lord Derby's Highlander in a lesser race after winding up seventh with Astyanax in the Manchester November handicap, which was won by Sir Emmanuel Hoyle's Solitaire, a 25 to 1 shot.

Solitaire led all the way and finished the mile and a half a half length in front of Marcus Marsh's Velvet Cushion. Third place went to Lord Glanely's Marcus Superbus, one of the favorites.

Donoghue, who at 52 years of age retires to become a trainer has ridden nearly 2,000 winners, including six in the Derby.

Wheaton Quintet Opens Season with 45-19 Victory

Wheaton college defeated the North Shore Mission quintet last night at Wheaton in its opening game, 45 to 19. Wheaton led at the half, 20 to 15. Capt. Updike of Wheaton was high scorer with 14 points.

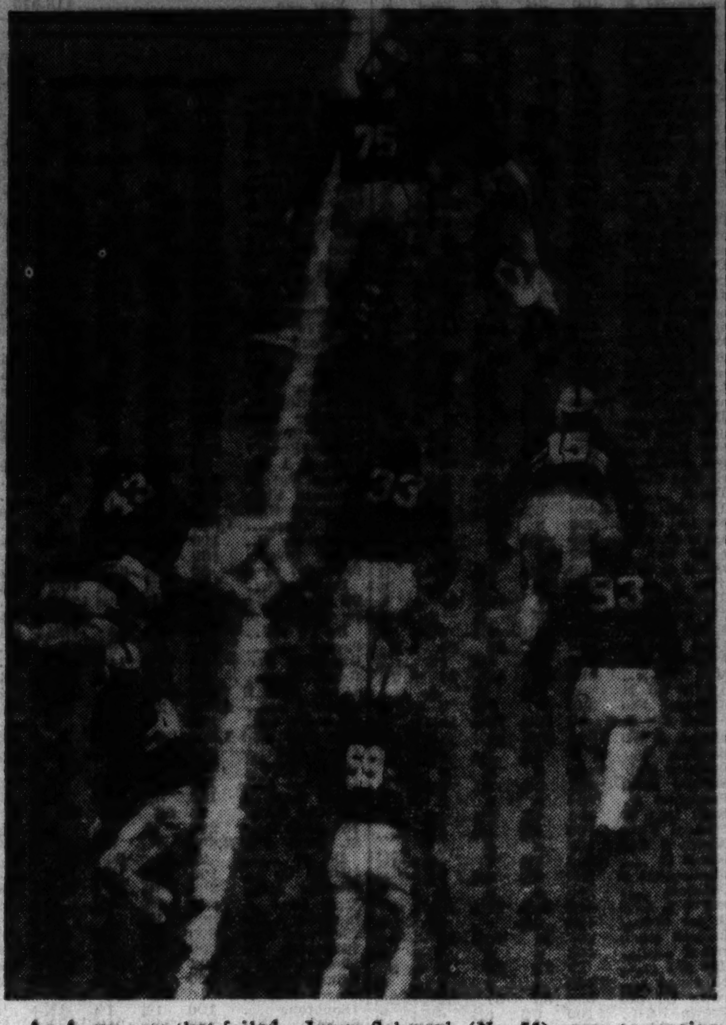
BRILLIANT GAMES CLOSE EAST'S FOOTBALL SEASON

Here's the touchdown by which the Army beat the Navy before 102,281 spectators yesterday at Philadelphia. Jimmy Craig, Army back, is crashing over for the deciding points. This play occurred in the first period. This was the 38th game between the two schools. The victory was the 21st for the Army. The game was played in a steady rain and, because of these conditions, the teams were forced to play defensive football through the greater part of the afternoon. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]



An Army pass that failed. James Schwenk (No. 75) races to receive a pass from one of his teammates, but the play is broken up by the alert Navy secondary. The Army didn't need this play anyway, for it marched away with a 6 to 0 victory.

ARMY DEFEATS NAVY, 6 TO 0, ON CRAIG'S PLUNGE

102,281 See Punting Duel on Muddy Field.

northeast entrance, long before the Navy column was visible. And from the press box on the west side, the Middies were invisible in their section across the blanketed gridiron.

Later a northeast wind thinned the fog, but ten minutes before the game ended, the huge lights at both ends of the mammoth stadium blazed through a murky twilight on the mud-caked players.

Middies Wait Too Long.

The gridiron was uncovered a half hour before the kickoff, and during Army's winning march it still afforded firm footing. The ball likewise was manageable, as Army proved, and had not become the water soaked object Navy vainly tried to throw in its final passing barrage when lack of time forced the attack to the air.

Army kicked off to Navy and Jim Isbell, Army left tackle, booted the ball to the end zone for a touchback. From then on, for ten minutes, it was a kicking duel between Army's Wilson and Navy's Lem Cooke, with Army gradually gaining, despite the Midshipmen's one first down. Wilson was kicking out of bounds with regularity, dropping the ball out on the 11 yard line, on the 14 and on Navy's 12 yard line on successive efforts.

Pretty Fair Punting.

Once more Wilson kicked out, this time on Navy's 19 yard line, and, when Long returned Cooke's punt eight yards to Navy's 42 yard line Army advanced to score.

Wilson crashed inside Navy's left tackle for four yards. Ryan lost a yard at center. On third down, despite Navy's five man line and its spread of three secondary backs and two other men behind them, Wilson passed to Schwenk in the flat zone at his left. Schwenk, behind quickly formed interference, sprinted down the east side line until he was forced out on Navy's 19 yard line.

Wilson lost a yard as he attempted to pass the Middies' left flank. Again Army passed, and this time Ryan, who took the ball from Center Frank Hartline, handed it to Wilson on an apparent reverse play, continued to his right, and down field to catch Wilson's throw. One step after receiving the ball Ryan was knocked out of bounds on Navy's 2 yard line. Wilson followed with a one yard plunge at center.

Navy took time out. Frank Case, Evanston, Ill., quarter back, was substituted for Arthur Franks in the Navy back field. Army countered with Craig at full back and John Samuel at right end, in place of Henry Sullivan. Craig hammered again at the Navy line and Army had scored.

Cadets Dominate Half.

The first half belonged to Army. In this time five of its seven first downs — in comparison with Navy's two first downs for the half—were marked up. But Army's second opportunity was helped along by a fifteen yard penalty on the Middies for unnecessary roughness. This was inflicted as Long was thrown on Navy's 43 yard line and put the ball on Navy's 28 yard strip.

Long sped off tackle for six yards and Craig lost two as the first period ended.

Ryan's quick opening thrust inside of Navy's left tackle on the first play of the second quarter sent the Cadets to Navy's 12 yard line before he was caught. Navy held here and in three line thrusts Army netted only three yards.

On fourth down, from Navy's 9 yard line, Arthur Frontczak's pass to Samuel sailed over the end's head and beyond the end line for a touchback.

Navy received Army's kick-off to start the second half, and took the ball on its own 35 yard line, when the kick was short and rolled out of bounds. The field now was badly cut up, for thousands had poured from the stands during intermission, to gather in front of the academy sections, unmolested by stadium guards or attendants.

Navy Goes to Work.

The drizzle had changed to a chill mist, which was greater handicap, if that is possible. But Navy, determined to prove itself, loosed the best sustained drive of the game. From their 35 yard line, with aid of only one pass for five yards and a five yard penalty on Army for offside, the Middies drove onward relentlessly in eleven plays to Army's 17 yard line. Emmett Wood, Navy's right half, and Cooke were the ball carriers, with Wood twice smashing Army's forwards for nine yard gains.

Here it was fourth down with one yard needed. As the ball came back to Wood for a line smash Stella, a 209 pound tackle from Kankakee, Ill., tore through to trip up the Navy back. Wood was thrown and Army took the ball.

On second down Wilson kicked out to Cooke, who evaded two tacklers and returned down the east side line thirteen yards to Army's 45 yard line. Three plays advanced to Army's 34 yard line but here the fire died and, after two ineffectual passes, following a loss of three yards at the line, Cooke kicked into Army's end zone.

Navy Passes in Vain.

The drab battle ended a few minutes later with a myriad of last minute substitutions and a flurry of vain passes by Navy. The ball scarcely could be thrown ten yards.

Army outgained Navy, 148 yards to 109, had an advantage of seven first downs to six, and by completing three of its six passes for a total gain of forty-four yards, won the game by the one method it seemed it could not be won. Navy attempted seventeen passes and completed four for a total of twenty-three yards. Two were intercepted. Each team was penalized twenty yards.

Army Players Forget Dignity to Whoop It Up

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Army's cadets, whooping wildly, trotted to their dressing room at double quick pace late this rainy afternoon to carry the good news to their disabled leader.

Standing at the door, his hand rubbing the sensitive, crushed hip muscle that forced him to spend most of the game in severe pain on a rubbing table, was Jim Isbell, the one time enlisted man who became the Cadets' captain.

"We did it. We did it, Jim," they told him as they pushed through and to Isbell, the 200 pound tackle from Union City, Tenn., the victory was adequate balm for his suffering. Isbell was carried to the clubhouse shortly after Army scored its first period touchdown.

Cadets Forget Their Dignity.

The cadets forgot the dignity and reserve associated with their military training as they pummelled one another, shouted like a band of Indians, and flung their shoulder pads up to the ceiling.

They were just a bunch of youngsters, celebrating their greatest triumph of the football season.

As pleased, perhaps, as any, was Capt. Gar Davidson, the young soldier coach. He moves on to foreign duty in a few months and this was his last chance at Navy.

"I'm tickled speechless," he laughed. "I wanted more than anything else to close my football career with three triumphs in five Navy games and the boys did it for me."

Stella Gets Highest Praise.

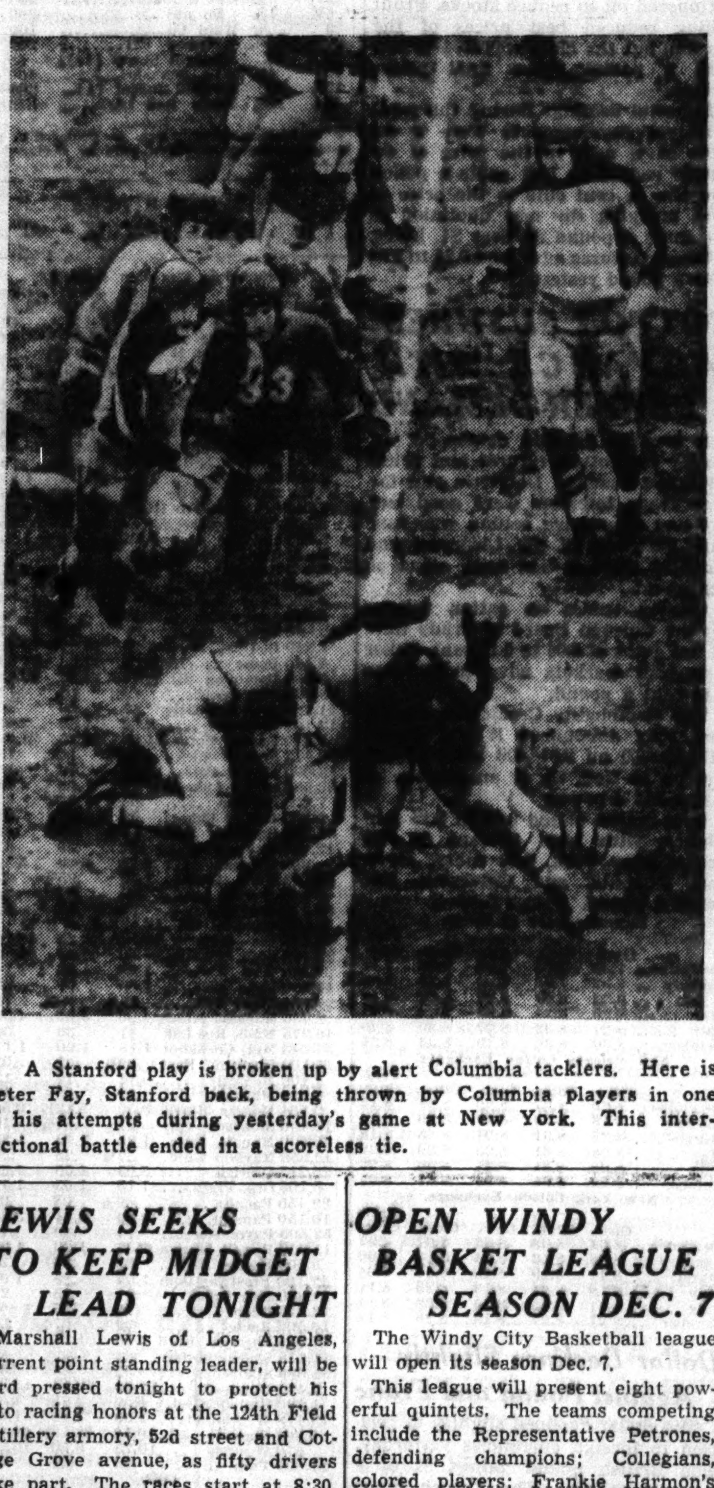
Half Back Jim Craig, Davidson said, played the greatest game of his life, but it was to Harry Stella, yearling tackle from Kankakee, Ill., that he gave highest praise.

"Harry saved the game for us," he explained, "when he drove through to spill Wood, the Navy ball carrier, early in the third period. The sailors had pushed us back and needed only inches for their fourth straight first down. They might have won if they had made those inches, but Harry saved the day.

"We felt we didn't have the power to cope with Navy and that our only chance depended on early passes before the ball became too wet. We gambled and won," Davidson said.

Across the stadium the weary, disappointed Navy players dressed slowly and quietly. They had nothing but praise for their rivals.

"This is the hardest fighting bunch of boys I've ever had, but it seems they just can't win," said Lieut. Harry Hardwick, the Navy coach, with a dry smile.



A Stanford play is broken up by alert Columbia tacklers. Here is Peter Fay, Stanford back, being thrown by Columbia players in one of his attempts during yesterday's game at New York. This intersectional battle ended in a scoreless tie.

LEWIS SEEKS TO KEEP MIDGET LEAD TONIGHT

Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, current point standing leader, will be hard pressed tonight to protect his auto racing honors at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, as fifty drivers take part. The races start at 8:30, with time trials at 7 p. m.

Johnny Ritter, the diminutive Detroit driver, is expected again to assert his championship claims tonight, while Jimmy Snyder of Chicago and Emil Andres, another Chicagoan, will drive new racers. Ritter set three new marks last week during a series of races marked with accidents and unlooked for thrills. Snyder will drive a Duesenberg tonight, while Anders will operate an Elto Special.

Other first rank drivers are Ted Duncan, midwest outdoor champion, who won the feature two weeks ago; Ray Richard, Ted Tetterton, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, Myron Fohr, Cletus O'Rourke, and Fred Tegtmeier. Harry Lewis, painfully injured last week, is still on the hospital list.

Thorne Donnelley, president of the auto racing group, has carded ten events. In addition to the time trials the class A chauffeurs will race in three 12-lap eliminations, a fifteen lap handicap race, and a thirty lap feature grind. The class B cars will contest two 15-lap reverse order races and a twenty lap windup.

TERRY DENIES MEDWICK WILL BECOME A GIANT

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants declared today there was "nothing to it" when advised of a New York newspaper report that the Giants had acquired Joe [Ducky] Medwick from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Mel Ott, Hal Schumacher, and Gus Mancuso.

OPEN WINDY BASKET LEAGUE SEASON DEC. 7

The Windy City Basketball league will open its season Dec. 7.

This league will present eight powerful quintets. The teams competing include the Representative Petrones, defending champions; Collegians, colored players; Frankie Harmon's Demons, De Paul graduates; Abe Marovitz's Chicago Hebrews, west side entry; Maciejewski's Cicero Merchants, suburban champions; Miller Nationals, Insurance champions; Schlosser Bakers, C. Y. O. entry, and the Dr. Kokots, Portage Park favorites.

Two regular men's league games will be played each Tuesday and Friday night at St. Philip gymnasium, beginning Tuesday, Dec. 7, and in conjunction, a girls' game will open the card each night the Windy City league plays. Six girls' teams will make up the circuit to play these openers, including the Turner Clothier girls, Eddie McCabes, Queen Annes, and three other quintets.

15 TEAMS START NEW YORK 6 DAY RACE TONIGHT

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Fifteen bicycle teams from ten countries start the six-day race to nowhere tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden with Vancouver's brother combination of William and Douglas Peden favored to win their third bike marathon of the season.

The Peden brothers won at Buffalo and Montreal but lost out on points at Chicago two weeks ago after four teams finished all-square on laps.

The four teams will ride intact in the Garden. They include, the winning German pair of Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel, the French combination of Emile Diot and Emile Ignat, which finished second, and the American team of Al Crossley and Jimmy Walthour, winners of the race in the Garden last December.

Barbara and Brown Head Marigold Card

Johnny Barbara, who reached the finals in last year's Chicago Golden Tournament of Champions, tomorrow will receive an opportunity to meet topnotch competition in a ten round bout with Harold Brown at Marigold Gardens. The contest, which heads this week's program, will be the South Bend welterweight's first as a main event principal.

Johnny is undefeated in seventeen fights in the professional field. He won his last six appearances. He fought a draw with Henry Schaft at Marigold June 7, but in a subsequent battle he defeated the Des Moines, Ia., slugger. Barbara's record, one of the best compiled by a Golden Gloves 147 pound product, follows:

Karl Martin, technical knockout [3]; Billy Gladstone, won [4]; Theodore Norris, technical knockout [1]; Harold Gerardin, technical knockout [2]; Simon Nebolski, won [6]; Ray Taylor, knockout [1]; Wendall Bulp, won [4]; Theodore Norris, knockout [2], twice; Schaft, drew [5]; Schaft, won [4]; Kit Carson, won [4]; Gene O'Leary, knockout [2]; Bob La Monte, won [6]; Frankie Sagilio, won [8]; Chester Rudy, won [8].

Three wrestling cards will be held this week, Pat Kelly appearing in two of them. Kelly encounters Frederick Ledeubhr on the program featured by Bobby Bruns and Zack Malkov at White City tomorrow. He also faces Ruffy Silverstein in a featured bout at the Park Casino inaugural on Tuesday. Fritz Von Schacht and Joe Rogozski will be windup participants at Rainbo Fronton Wednesday.

DECRIES RAIDS BY MAJORS ON SEMI-PRO TEAMS

Wichita, Kas., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Raymond Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball congress, said today major league representatives meeting at Chicago next week will be asked to respect semi-pro player contracts.

Raiding of rosters by competitive semi-pro and professional clubs has been a major obstacle in the expansion of semi-pro baseball, Dumont said, and coöoperation of the major leagues is being sought to remedy the condition.

Dumont said semi-pro contracts permitted scouts to sign players under contract, but required the player to finish the season with the holder of his contract.

Dumont estimated more than 200,000 players would sign semi-pro contracts next year.

AUSTIN BEARS, MAYWOOD A. C. TEAMS TO MEET

The Austin Bears will meet their old rivals, the Maywood A. C., this afternoon at the Bears' field at Harlem and North avenues. The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

The Bears will start a back field composed of former Austin High school stars, including Johnny Seeley and Gene Dennis at the halves, Lorry Carlson at full back, and Tommy Bruce at quarter back.

Maywood will center its attack around Steve Mizen, selected as an all-state full back while at Proviso High school last season. Mizen is the leading scorer for the suburbanites.

Wheaton Soccer Team Wins from Oberlin, 1-0

Oberlin, O., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The Wheaton college soccer team defeated Oberlin college, 1 to 0, today in the final game of an eastern trip. Roberts scored for Wheaton in the last quarter.

MINERALITES HIT TRUE STRIDE IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Windy City Champions on Comeback Trail.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

When they were down the champion Mineralites were the victims of gibes for occupying the cellar in the Windy City Major Bowling league, which holds forth on the Windy City alleys in Cicero.

Now that they steadily are climbing the Mineralites are entitled to a few bouquets, it seems. Their latest accomplishment was a 3,164 series that enabled them to win two out of three games from the O'Keefe Coals and knock that quintet from a tie for first place with the Budweisers.

This success gave the Mineralites a standing of 15 won and 18 lost, quite respectable considering how poorly last year's champions started the season. Bud Wright, who has been in the habit of rolling 700 series of late, again led the Mineralites with 684, fourth high at the last session of the league.

Those who exceeded Wright's total were Charles Zeman of the Town Club of Cicero, with 720, second high for the season; Emil Landman of the Budweisers, 710, and Paul Krumske of the Serrano Cigarros, 686.

The Mineralites did the Budweisers a favor by knocking off the O'Keefes, but the J. M. Kralovecs swept their series with the Burlington Zephyrs and moved into a tie for the lead with the Budweisers, who won only two out of three from the McKesson Old Crows.

The two leaders have won 21 games and lost 12, and hold a margin of six games over the Mineralites, who, judging by their consistent bowling of recent weeks, are likely to be near the top by the first of the year.

On South Side Alleys.

With the aid of a 276 game Dick Winsberg knocked off a 695 series and led the shooting in the Ray Schalk Beverly Major league. William Narten totaled 671, thanks to a 268 game. Other leading individuals: Clem Lightfoot, 664; Joe Fliger, 658; Louis Straub, 654; Paul Krumske, 651; Bud McClintock, 639; Frank Spencer, 636; Mike Turso, 635; Bill Arcand, 626, and Charles White, 624.

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl at the Western Recreation, 2353 West 63d street, tonight, with the following schedule:

Power House Candy vs. Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer.
Charles H. Weber vs. Monarch Beer.
Baby Ruth Candy vs. Oak Leaf Motors.
Prager Beer vs. Triangle Bowling Shirts.

On North Side Alleys.

Two notable efforts in the Gold Coast Major league were Ray Nolan's 706 and Jim Kalamaris' 702. Nolan, substituting on the Triangle Shirt team, helped to beat the Marx Restaurants three times. Despite the work of Kalamaris, the Keeley Bears lost three to the Budweisers, who were hot with games of 1,048, 1,029 and 1,107 that gave them a high total of 3,184. Les Fuller's 682 enabled the Fuller Press quintet to take two out of three from the Virginia club and hold first place. Other high individual scores: Paul Marian, 681; Art Temple, 674; George Miller, 665; Lou Gawron, 661; Stan Dombrowski, 641; Bill Lasky, 638; Vincent Fowler, 635; John Sterbenz, 633, and Joe Puccinelli, 632. . . . George Fahrenholz had a good time marking up strikes with the result that he collected a 267 game and a 692 series in the Chicago North Side Traveling league. John Urban had 666; Bill Mickey, 649; Martin Szorc, 635; William Polacki, 624; Ed White, 621; Ed Schuth, 614; Ed Early, 613, and Frank Wanat, 611.

North End Traveling League.

Harry Kaad's Schamberger Schlitz team, with a 3,186 series and three victories over the Keeleys, climbed to within four games of the leading Birk Brothers in the North End Traveling league. The Birks went down to defeat for the second time this season at the hands of the Kruse Stations. The Pepsi-Colas, with 3,037 took two from Fox De Luxe, the Samuelsons turned back the Michelobs twice and the Richters won the odd game from the Budweisers.

Individual honors went to Charley Wass and Harry Kaad of the Schambergers, the former getting 707 and the latter 702.

About the Women.

High series, both individual and team, fell in the Congress league when the Riddell Shoes shot 2,721 and Edith Kirg helped herself to 646. Tess Morris had high game of 238. Other high individual totals: Charlotte Ehrns, 601; Tess Morris, 584; Olga Podzimek, 579; Cecilia Grob, 566; Bess Fender, 561; Emma Munzel, 559; Agnes Pitelka, 557; and Mary Gordon, 549.

MANY LEADING COMMODITIES ADVANCE AGAIN

Wool Tops Futures Climb 3 to 3½ Cents More.

Prices of many leading commodities advanced again yesterday, but final quotations were irregular compared with those of the preceding Saturday due to recessions earlier last week.

Staples which closed the week at gains in futures trading included cotton, cocoa, cottonseed oil, rubber, hides, copper, lead, and tin. Wheat, corn, oats, rye, soybeans, lard, butter, eggs, sugar, and silk were lower. Zinc was about seady.

In cash trading, butter, cattle, hogs, cotton, rubber, and wool tops advanced but losses were recorded for corn, eggs, some grades of hides, some grades of lard, oats, steel scrap, wheat, some grades of coffee, raw sugar, tin, flour, copper, and zinc.

Wool Tops Advance Again.

The sharp recovery in wool tops continued yesterday as futures contracts were bid up 3 to 3.5 cents a pound and wool tops for immediate delivery advanced 3 cents at 85 cents a pound. Hide futures added another 0.45 to 0.49 cent a pound to gains made Friday, bringing recovery in the two days to more than 1 cent a pound.

Cocoa advanced 0.05 to 0.09 cent a pound yesterday. Sugar futures finished unchanged to a shade higher. Rio coffee futures gained 0.07 to 0.16 cent a pound and Santos futures finished unchanged to 0.11 cent higher. Cash coffee was unchanged.

Rubber futures declined 0.03 to 0.07 cent, and crude rubber for immediate delivery slipped 0.04 cent to 14.56 cents a pound.

Cottonseed Oil Rises.

Cottonseed oil gained 0.16 to 0.32 cent a pound at one time on buying encouraged by reports that the government had been purchasing crude cottonseed oil to reduce stocks. Profit taking reduced best prices of the session, but the close was 0.04 to 0.21 cent a pound above final prices Friday.

In metal dealings during the week principal developments were a decline of ¼ cent in the price of domestic copper to 10¾ cents a pound and two ¼ cent cuts in the price of zinc, bringing the new quotation to 5¼ cents a pound at East St. Louis.

Copper futures advanced 0.24 to 0.32 cent a pound yesterday.

COTTON FUTURES ADVANCE WITH BETTER DEMAND

A broader demand developed yesterday for cotton futures and prices advanced readily. Domestic and foreign trade interests were good buyers and aggressive selling was lacking. Strength in the Liverpool and Bombay markets had some effect on sentiment.

Closing trades on cotton futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net gains of 0.06 to 0.10 cent. Other American markets advanced 0.06 to 0.14 cent a pound.

The Commodity Credit corporation yesterday announced it had loaned $117,356,000 on 2,648,000 bales of cotton up to Nov. 25, or an average of 8.43 cents a pound.

Spot cotton closed 0.05 to 0.15 cent higher, with New Orleans at 8.25 cents; New York, 8.20 cents; Houston, 8 cents, and Galveston, 7.95 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Dollar Declines Slightly Against Pound and Franc

The dollar declined slightly in relation to foreign currencies yesterday. The British pound gained ⅛ of a cent at $4.99⅝. The French franc closed 0.00125 of a cent higher at 3.39625 cents.

LETTERS

Letters of 200 words or less to the Financial Editor will be published in this column from time to time.

Flock of Sheep?

Chicago, Nov. 24.—"Everything is going to hell!" Business men are voicing this opinion constantly and three months ago the same business men were crying for preference on shipments.

Where are the intelligent men who think and see with a little vision ahead and don't follow the crowd? True, business is depressed and, from this moment's report, as bad as we've ever seen it. But are we always going to be like a flock of sheep, continually overplaying our hand up and down, following the crowd?

Natural events in business have accomplished the objective of telling the administration that its policies are all "haywire" so let's get down to sound thinking and action. Carrying this condition further will bring truly bad results.

Every concern is holding back, with markets so low that very few will average purchase at these current prices or lower, so look over your needs and even be so bold as to anticipate requirements for plant operation for at least an anticipated 50 per cent business in the actual necessities now being held back.

A little, good old American "guts" is what is needed to bring improvement.

George Birkenstein.

INVESTING COMPANIES

OCTOBER INCOME OF BURLINGTON FALLS SHARPLY

10 Months' Earnings Also Below Year Ago.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad earned $1,012,606, or 53 cents a common share, in October, compared with $1,604,890, or 93 cents a share, in the same month a year ago, officials announced here yesterday. Net income for ten months ended Oct. 31 was $3,322,655, or $1.93 a share, a moderate recession from the $3,373,418, or $1.97 a share, earned in the corresponding period last year.

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas lost $220,598 in October after fixed interest charges but before adjustment bond interest. In October, last year, the road had a balance of $444,777 after fixed interest but before adjustment bond interest. Loss before adjustment interest was $481,722 for the ten months ended Oct. 31, against loss of $243,299 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Boston & Maine Has Loss.

The Boston and Maine lost $134,021 in October, compared with net income of $257,993 in the same 1936 month. Net income for ten months ended Oct. 31 was $221,439, against loss of $2,215,866 in the corresponding 1936 period.

The Dow-Jones financial news service estimated that October net income of the nation's railroads totaled only about $17,000,000, against $46,253,661 in October, 1936; $31,380,529 in October, 1935, and about $15,000,000 in September, this year. The news service said net income for the first ten months of this year probably would be about $93,600,000, against $89,208,327 in the same 1936 period, and a deficit of $34,799,764 after charges in the like 1936 period.

CHICAGO STOCK LIST REGISTERS SHARP UPTURN

Chicago stocks registered one of their sharpest advances in recent weeks yesterday. Gains ranged from fractions to more than $2 a share and trading for the two hour session expanded to 30,000 shares from 21,000 a week ago.

The Tribune average of 20 stocks closed at 11.19, up 0.65 and only a shade below best level of the session. Of the 94 issues traded, 68 advanced, only 9 declined, and 17 held unchanged.

Shares which advanced a point or more included Abbott Laboratories, Bastian Blessing, Bendix, Borg Warner, Noblitt Sparks, Cunningham Drug, and Zenith Radio. Chicago corporation common, most active issue, closed at 2½, up ⅛.

During the week 168 issues were traded, of which 61 advanced, 64 declined, and 43 held unchanged. Sales for the week totaled 185,000 shares, compared with 208,000 shares in the preceding week and 329,000 shares in the corresponding 1936 period.

EGG PRICES FIRM BUT CLOSE CENT UNDER WEEK AGO

Egg futures closed unchanged to ¼ cent a dozen higher at the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday after following an irregular course throughout the two hour session. Final prices were ¾ to 1 cent a dozen below the close a week ago.

November contracts finished unchanged at 18⅝ cents a dozen and January contracts were unchanged at 18 cents. December contracts were ¼ cent higher at 18⅜ cents. In the cash egg market, fresh eggs were unchanged and refrigerators advanced ½ cent a dozen.

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation reported purchasing 25 additional cars of eggs [about 300,000 dozens], including 11 cars [132,000 dozen] at Chicago. This brought total purchases since the egg buying program began to 5,376,000 dozen.

Butter futures closed irregular, ¼ cent a pound lower to ⅛ cent higher. Cash butter was unchanged.

BUSINESS SLUMP JARS ROOSEVELT TO SHIFT POLICY

Effect of Changes Still in Doubt.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Roosevelt administration redoubled its efforts to restore business confidence as evidence of the severe decline in activity piled up on all fronts last week. The success of those efforts remained in doubt, but administration leaders found some cheer in the sharp rebound in stock prices which occurred after the President made his promise to support immediate tax revision, a promise, it was said, that was hastened by the show of independence given by congressional leaders.

The tax problem, observers agreed, is one of the most serious handicaps under which business is operating and, in conjunction with other government policies that have helped hobble private enterprise, has played an important part in the swift decline since last September.

Effect Still in Doubt.

How effective the administration's tardy recognition of the problem would be as a business stimulant was uncertain. Some observers insisted that the recession in business has progressed so far that no quick recovery could be engineered by the administration's palliatives.

Gloomy news came from the steel industry, the automobile industry, the railroads, and from other sources. The production rate in the steel plants dropped another notch to 31 per cent of capacity and a further decline was forecast for the coming week.

Output of automobiles dropped from the preceding week and is far below the rate of production which was being maintained at this time last year. Most of the factories in Detroit are operating only three days a week, necessitating layoffs and reductions in working hours.

Rail Freight Trafic Declines.

The movement of trafic on the railroads is now below 1935 for the first time this year, according to figures reported by the Association of American Railroads for the week ended Nov. 20. Trafic has been declining from week to week and has been far below the level of the corresponding 1936 period, but it had remained above the 1935 level until the week of Nov. 20.

Retail merchants watched business developments with misgivings, but reported that the holiday shopping season was starting with promise.

In the prospect that congress may assert its independence business men saw their chief hope for a fundamental change in the government's attitude toward private enterprise. Stiffened by the demonstrated failure of many administration experiments, congress, it was believed, may provide the correctives that are needed as a basis for a new expansion in business activity.

CEA PREPARES TO WEIGH GRAIN TRADING LIMITS

The Commodity Exchange administration will attempt to determine at hearings here Tuesday and Wednesday whether limits should be placed on speculative transactions in grain futures contracts and whether trading should end in an expiring grain future ten days before final delivery date.

The question of limits on speculative transactions, regarded as of vital importance to the Chicago Board of Trade and other grain markets of the nation, will be discussed Wednesday. Grain receivers, processors, warehousemen, exporters, futures traders, and others will be called as witnesses, it was believed.

Also of importance are the hearings Tuesday on desirability of establishing a definite period between the end of trading in a contract and the delivery date so that supplies of grains may be brought in from country points to settle contracts if necessary.

AVIATION EXPORT SALES INCREASE 172% IN 9 MONTHS

Exports of aeronautical products by the United States in the first nine months of this year were valued at $27,426,352, an increase of 172 per cent over exports of $15,882,287 in the corresponding 1936 period, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce reported yesterday.

September exports were valued at per cent went to European countries, $3,159,109. Of this amount about 32 25 per cent to countries in the western hemisphere, 33 per cent to countries in the Asiatic group, and about 10 per cent to Australia and New Zealand.

FRENCH TRADE REVIVES, TAX REVENUES SHOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 27.—October statistics indicate a revival of business in France. Returns from indirect taxes, state monopolies, and government domains exceeded estimates by about 786,671,000 francs [about $26,746,814]. The total was approximately $113,000,000. This does not include direct taxes and other items.

The tendency of receipts to exceed estimates has existed since July and compensated for deficits in earlier months. Ten months' revenues from taxes have passed those of a year ago.

Price Control a Boomerang, Study Shows

Nations that have tried to control the prices of international commodities in nearly every instance have lost part of their foreign markets, frequently to new producing countries, according to a study by the National Industrial Conference board.

The United States, the survey indicated, now produces a smaller portion of the world's cotton, copper, and wheat, as a result of attempts to regulate the prices of these commodities. This country's experience has been more costly than that of other nations which have attempted similar controls, it was found, although the results in most cases have been unfavorable to the country or countries that experimented with price regulation.

Nine Commodities Studied.

The board's survey included nine commodities, and is said to be the most comprehensive study into international price control that has yet been made.

United States production of copper fell from 54 per cent of the world's total in 1923-'25 to 34 per cent in 1936, the board's study disclosed. American cotton production dropped from 53 per cent of the world total in the 1923-'25 period to 41 per cent last year. On the same comparative basis United States wheat production fell from 25 per cent to 17 per cent.

The result of the study are summarized in the following table, showing percentage of world production or total exports accounted for by the country attempting price control:

Percentage of Total World Production.

	1923-'25.	1936.
Brazil [exports], coffee	65	59*
United States [produc'n] copper	54	34
United States [produc'n] cotton	53	41
British Malaya [exports] rubber	49	53
Japan [exports] silk	65	79*
Cuba [production] sugar	21	9
British India [exports] tea	43	37
British Malaya and Bolivia [production] tin	55	51
United States [production] wheat	25	17

*1935 percentage; 1936 data not available.

The experience with price control in various countries was strikingly similar, the board found. Temporary increases in prices usually resulted, as when the United States began to buy up surplus wheat supplies under the old farm board. The higher prices which came with the initial success, however, resulted in larger production not only in the country which raised prices, but in new producing countries.

Government Aid Follows.

"Government aid was then introduced," the board said, "usually in the form of loans on the stored commodity, in order to maintain prices in the face of this increase in production. This aid, however, further stimulated production by giving seeming assurance of price stability. Continued increase in supplies and inability to liquidate them led ultimately in each instance to curtailment in production, first by voluntary action, and then by governmental bounties and compulsory methods."

One of the most significant results of the control operations, the board said, was the encouragement given to development of new producing areas, which resulted in the decline in the original countries' shares of the world production. This was most pronounced, the board added, in the case of cotton, copper, sugar, and wheat.

FIND INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT LOWEST SINCE EARLY '36

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Industrial activity fell sharply this week to the lowest level since the spring of 1936. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index slumped to 80.4 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 83.9 last week, and compared with 98.8 a year ago.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	*80.4	83.9	98.8
Automobile production	*71.7	83.2	79.5
Steel mill activity	*41.6	48.9	99.7
Cotton manufacturing activity	99.4	97.1	121.4
Electric power production	116.7	115.5	117.6
Residential building	*55.3	53.9	67.0
Total carloadings	*68.1	71.5	84.1

Security Transactions and Holdings.

Twice each month the Securities and Exchange commission issues a summary of transactions by officers, directors, and principal stockholders in securities of the companies with which they are affiliated. This report is a guide to the opinions of officials and large scale investors or speculators on the outlook for certain securities.

This summary is compiled under the provisions of the securities and exchange act of 1934. Both direct and indirect holdings such as securities held by a trust or holding company must be reported to the commission. Under the public utility holding company act of 1935, similar reports on transactions and holdings must be made by officers and directors of registered holding companies.

Provisions are made for prompt reports on transactions, the maximum time being ten days after the end of the calendar month in which the change occurred. If a person becomes an officer or large stockholder he must file a report of his holdings within ten days.

Although such provisions have been made for promptness, about a month elapses before transactions reported to the commission are released to the public.

Control Plan Called Threat to Corn Belt

If enacted substantially on the lines proposed, the administration's scheme for compulsory control of corn production promises to bring about a further expansion in acreage outside of the corn belt. At the same time an arbitrary limit on acreage would be established in the big producing states of the middle west.

Corn acreage in the south has been increasing for several years. Impetus was given to the movement when corn acreage in the middle west was curtailed under the old agricultural adjustment program and southern farmers had idle land on their hands as a result of the curtailment of cotton plantings. Corn production in the principal states of the cotton belt has continued to expand, providing increased competition for producers in the middle western corn belt. The new program, it is believed, would further increase the south's production of corn.

Crops of Past Compared.

Production of corn in recent years in six leading southern states is shown in the following table:

State—	1937 crop.	1936 crop.	Average crop, 1927-'31.
Mississippi	45,378,000	35,850,000	31,919,000
Alabama	45,834,000	36,978,000	35,799,000
Tennessee	68,592,000	66,035,000	55,880,000
Louisiana	24,360,000	15,574,000	18,030,000
Arkansas	40,640,000	27,176,000	30,424,000
Georgia	47,368,000	39,270,000	36,678,000

The administration sponsored crop control bill would provide for establishment of marketing quotas for corn on an acreage basis. The quotas would be made by proclamation if two-thirds of the farmers voting in a referendum favored the plan. Noncomplying farmers would be subject to fines and other penalties.

Penalty Tax Is Proposed.

A penalty tax of 20 cents a bushel, it is proposed, would be levied on all corn in excess of the proclaimed quotas which a farmer took out of storage. The tax would apply whether the corn was sold, fed for live stock, or given away.

The scope of the control measure would be confined to the so-called corn areas fixed by the department of agriculture. Farmers outside of the controled areas would be free to plant as much corn as they wanted. A farmer just outside the area would be free from all restrictions which would govern his neighbor who happened to be inside the boundary decided upon by department authorities.

CHICAGO BANKS' CLEARINGS LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

Chicago bank clearings as reported by the Chicago Clearing House association were $259,900,000 for the five day week ended yesterday, compared with $284,100,000 for the corresponding week last year. The daily record for the week follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 43,300,000	$ 3,400,000
Tuesday	51,900,000	5,100,000
Wednesday	54,600,000	5,300,000
Thursday	Holiday.	Holiday.
Friday	55,300,000	7,200,000
Saturday	54,800,000	5,100,000
Total for week	$259,900,000	$26,100,000
Cor. wk. last yr.	$284,100,000	$32,000,000

New York bank clearings for the five day week ended yesterday were $2,681,964,021, compared with $3,339,767,535 in the preceding week. The reserve bank report on debits will not be issued until Monday.

Electric Lines Back Plea for Rail Rate Increases

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The American Transit association, representing a group of electric railways, notified the interstate commerce commission today it supported the steam railways' request for a 15 per cent increase on commodity freight rates. The Transit association asked the commission to allow the electric railways increases in rates comparable to any granted the other carriers.

No Time Limit Is Proposed for Stock Exchange Changes

Washington, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A report that the securities commission is considering giving the New York Stock exchange until the next election of its directors six months hence to put through a reorganization program is without foundation, it was learned today—the securities commission has suggested no time limit for the reorganization.

CHICAGO COMPANIES FACE SIX KINDS OF TAXES NEXT MONTH

Chicago corporations and individuals have six engagements with the tax collector in December, according to the monthly tax calendar compiled by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The dates to remember are:

Dec. 1—Automobile and truck licenses for next year will be placed on sale by the secretary of state. The second instalment of 1936 real estate taxes become delinquent on this date and taxes subject to penalty of 1 per cent per month thereafter.

Dec. 15—Payment of the fourth instalment of federal income taxes must be made by this date to the collector of internal revenue. The retailers' occupation tax return is due on retail sales of tangible personal property sold during November. The return is sent to the state director of finance.

Dec. 31—This is the last day to pay the federal old age benefit tax for November. An information return is due on taxes paid for federal old age benefits in the preceding quarter. The return goes to the collector of internal revenue.

COAL COMPANY WILL RUN TOUR TO NEW MINE

The United Electric Coal companies have invited 1,000 persons to make a formal inspection tour Dec. 1 to the organization's new strip coal mine at Dunfermline, Ill., six miles southwest of Canton.

A large party of Chicago coal merchants and other business men will make the trip, Louis Ware, president of the company, announced.

The new mine is said to be the most modern in the area, and is believed by many to mark the beginning of a revival in coal mining in the Canton district. In recent years mining operations in the area have been slack.

The company has spent $1,500,000 in equipping the new mine, Ware said. The stripping will be done by a huge revolving electric shovel weighing 2,500,000 pounds and carrying an alloy steel dipper with a capacity of thirty cubic yards. The shovel has a dumping radius of 115 feet, and a maximum dumping height of 74 feet 6 inches.

"The machine," President Ware said, "will handle approximately 1,600 cubic yards of material in an hour's operation, or nearly 1,000,000 cubic yards a month, the equivalent of 125,000 tons of coal."

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SUBURBAN FARE SYSTEM REVISED

The Illinois Central railroad yesterday announced that a new forty-eight ride monthly ticket will be issued Dec. 1 when an experimental revised suburban fare and ticket schedule goes into effect. Holders of the tickets will be permitted to buy at a reduction a twelve ride ticket to finish out the month if they wish.

The new ticket is for commuters who work five days a week. The cost of the sixty ride ticket will remain unchanged. The present twelve ride weekly ticket will be retained, with a slight increase in price in some instances. One way and regular round trip tickets will advance 10 per cent.

BRAZIL TIGHTENS GRIP ON BANKS AND INSURANCE

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Banks of deposit and insurance companies will be authorized to operate in Brazil only if the shareholders are Brazilians, according to a report by the American consulate general at Dio de Janeiro, the department of commerce announced today.

The new constitution, which will be submitted soon to a plebiscite for approval, provides that the banks and insurance companies already established in Brazil and affected by these articles will be given a "reasonable time" in which to comply with the provisions of the articles.

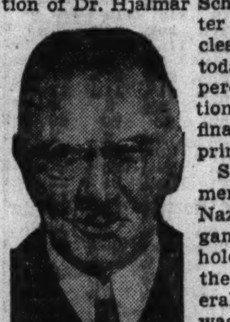
Nazis Take Full Control of Reich Finance

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The resignation of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as minister of economics cleared the way today for unhampered administration of Germany's finances on Nazi principles.



Hjalmar Schacht.

Schacht, not a member of the Nazi party organization, was a holdover from the days of liberal economy. He was reported frequently at loggerheads with Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, head of the four year plan, with which the economics ministry will be merged.

Funk Is New Minister.

Walther Funk, the new economics minister, is an admirer of Goering, to whom he will be responsible. He will take office Jan. 15, leaving his present post as secretary of state.

Funk, unlike Schacht, is an opponent of foreign loans and an advocate of fuller exploitation of domestic markets. His task will be to make possible both the third reich's huge rearmament program and Nazism's extensive building program. Schacht had contended that Germany was in a position, at least temporarily, to do one or the other—not both.

Schacht announced his resignation Oct. 26 but Hitler did not accept it until yesterday when he sent a letter expressing "deepest thankfulness for your excellent services." The economics minister had held office since July, 1934.

Continues As Bank Head.

Der Fuehrer, however, retained Schacht's counsel by continuing him as president of the Reichsbank and in the cabinet as minister without portfolio. But whether Schacht, would remain as president of the Reichsbank beyond the expiration of his term next March 18 was considered doubtful. He often had said of late that he hoped to be relieved also of his Reichsbank responsibilities.

Goering will be acting head of the economics ministry until Funk takes charge.

HOME BUILDING COSTS DECLINE, SURVEY SHOWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The Federal Home Loan bank board today reported a downward trend in residential building costs. Rising building costs have been an important factor in retarding construction, particularly in residential building.

The board said that the first signs of halt in the price rise appeared in July, and that although there was a tendency for costs to level off in August and September, a definite decline started in October.

The lower trend was attributed to decreased prices for building materials rather than to any tendency on the part of labor to accept lower pay. In October materials prices dropped .8 per cent from September, the survey showed.

Potato Crop Estimate Cut 7,000,000 Bushels

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Agriculture department economists said today the indicated production of large potatoes dropped nearly 7,000,000 bushels in October as the result of unfavorable growing conditions. The total American crop was estimated at 392,000,000 bushels, compared with 330,000,000 last year and 372,000,000 for the 1928-'32 average. The late crop was estimated at 317,000,000 bushels.

RAILWAY CRISIS DRAGS STOCKS TO PANIC LOWS

96 Lines Are Now in Receivership.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The railroad crisis, chief sore spot in the current business picture, has become so acute that prices of common stocks of leading railroads are today practically at the low levels reached during the panic preceding the bank moratorium early in March, 1933. This holds true despite the sharp rally Friday and yesterday.

Statistics on railroad stock prices and earnings disclose that the gains made during the "Roosevelt recovery" have now been wiped out by the losses sustained in the "Roosevelt depression" and that the carriers are now as flat on their backs financially as they were in 1933.

According to an official compilation by the Association of American Railroads, a total of ninety-six railroad companies are already in the hands of receivers or trustees and are being operated under the supervision of the courts because they have found it impossible to meet their obligations.

28 Per Cent of Mileage.

These roads operate 71,386 miles of line, or more than 28 per cent of the nation's total railway mileage. Never before in the history of this country has so large a percentage of its railway mileage been in the hands of the courts at any one time.

The numerous receiverships, however, do not tell the whole story. Most of the solvent roads have been slipping financially since the middle of this year, when heavy additional costs were saddled upon them.

Railroad spokesmen assert that since 1932 the average increase in the cost of the things that railroads must buy has been 40 per cent; that taxes have risen 25 per cent, and that wages have been boosted approximately 18 per cent.

Operating Expenses Rise.

The following estimated increases in the annual operating expenses of class 1 railroads in the United States have taken place since May, 1933, according to the Association of American Railroads:

Unemployment compensation tax	$ 58,453,000
Railroad retirement act tax	52,584,000
Fuel	78,170,000
Other materials and supplies	197,154,000
Restoration [in 1935] of the 10 per cent wage cut of 1932	174,961,000
Pay increases [in 1937] for nontransportation employés	95,697,000
Pay increases [in 1937] for train and engine crews	38,221,000
Total	$695,240,000
Less savings due to transfer of voluntary railroad pensions	30,451,000
Estimated net increase per year	$664,789,000

Earnings Fall Suddenly.

Because a large part of this increase of two-thirds of a billion dollars in annual operating expenses has become effective since early last summer, the effect of the higher costs suddenly became apparent shortly after the middle of this year. Earnings which had previously been ascending as a result of heavier rail trafic suddenly turned downward.

Prices of railroad stocks dropped in sympathy with declining earnings. Then, when the general business recession began to be reflected in smaller freight trafic and reduced passenger travel, the downtrend in railroad shares developed into a rout.

Comparative Prices.

The following table shows how prices of leading railroad common stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange have dropped to the panic levels of early 1933. It compares prices of 1932 and 1933 with present prices for nineteen leading railroad stocks:

	1932 low.	Close March 3, 1933.	Close Sat., Nov. 27, 1937.

Several Firms Lift Dividends for This Year

The Universal Products company, makers of universal joints for automobiles, yesterday declared a dividend of $1.25 on the common stock, making a total of $2.75 paid this year, compared with $2.50 in 1936.

The Acme Wire company declared a special dividend of $1 on its voting common stock. This makes a total of $4 paid on the issue this year, against $3.25 in 1936.

A dividend of 35 cents was ordered by the Athey Truss Wheel company. The last previous payment was 25 cents on July 1.

National Acme Pays More.

The National Acme company voted a payment of 50 cents on its common stock, making a total of $1 paid this year, compared with disbursements totaling 75 cents in 1936.

The Maytag company declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. A similar payment was made a year ago.

An extra dividend of 36 cents and the usual quarterly payment of the same amount were authorized by the National Bond and Investment company. The regular quarterly disbursement of $1.25 also was declared on the preferred shares.

The United Public Service company voted a dividend of 15 cents on its capital stock. The last previous payment was 30 cents in December, 1936.

OUTPUT OF STEEL TO DIP FURTHER, SURVEY SHOWS

A small reduction in steel ingot production this week is expected, according to a survey of the industry by Dow, Jones & Co. Operations in the Chicago district are tentatively scheduled at a fraction above 25 per cent of capacity, compared with 27.6 per cent last week, and ingot production in Pittsburgh will start tomorrow at 26 per cent, a decline of one point from last week's rate.

Other districts are expected to continue at approximately the rates in effect last week. The decline at Chicago is due almost entirely to prospects that one of the smaller mills in the district which shut down for the week-end may not resume operations tomorrow unless unexpected orders appear.

Structural steel fabricated and shipped during October continued in comparatively large volume, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction, although new orders in the month were the lowest of the year. Shipments represented 63.8 per cent of normal, while shipments for the first ten months averaged 60.5 per cent of normal. The annual average for the period 1928-1931, inclusive, is considered normal. New orders booked during October were only 20.1 per cent of normal, compared with an average of 59.1 per cent during the first ten months of 1937.

GERMANY SEEKS MEXICAN PACT TO EXCHANGE GOODS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—Germany has made informal proposals to Mexico for a general trade agreement on a barter basis. It is proposed that Mexico send Germany raw materials and receive German manufactured goods and machinery. It is understood Germany proposes to take Mexican cotton, agricultural products, and petroleum under the barter arrangement.

Germany already holds second place in trade with Brazil as a resut of a compensated mark arrangement and with El Salvador, from whom Germany buys most of her coffee. Nazi trade is creeping up in other Latin-American countries. The press department statement expresses regret that Germany is not buying much Mexican coffee.

The foreign office spokesman, in remarking today that the German proposal was not yet official, commented: "In general Mexico is opposed to barter."

Gains Range from 1 to 5 Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 27. — Business hummed on the stock market today as the list carried through its strong rally of the preceding session. In broad and active trading values were boosted 1 to more than 5 points. Closing prices were at or near the best levels of the day, as all groups took part in the upturn.

In the second hour of the short ses-
In the second hour the high speed ticker lagged behind transactions on the floor. Total volume amounted to approximately 1,141,000 shares, compared with 1,232,000 transfers last Saturday when the market experienced a sharp decline.

As measured by the Dow-Jones averages representative industrial stocks gained 5.45 points, rails rose 1.23 points, and 20 utility issues advanced 0.73 points. A total of 794 issues was dealt in, of which 684 advanced, 42 declined, and 69 finished unchanged.

Rally Gathers Momentum.

Before today's market was well under way it was apparent to observers that the recovery, which attracted attention yesterday, was gathering real momentum. Furthermore, it was said to be the kind of buying that usually inspires confidence, since it stressed the higher priced dividend payers.

While most quarters ascribed the better sentiment to encouraging reports from Washington, there was another school of thought that ascribed the rise to technical considerations. It appeared for the moment the serious recession in business was discarded as a deterring factor.

Reflecting the lessened activity in the market lately was the sale of a stock exchange seat for $70,000. The price constituted a drop of $5,000 from the previous membership sale.

High Grade Issues Sought.

A noteworthy feature of the day's trading was the liking shown for high class issues. Westinghouse and du Pont both reclaimed their position in the above 100 class, the former on a gain of 4¾ points and the latter with an advance of 5⅞. Some difficulty arose in arranging the opening of several stocks, reflecting the thinness of the market. Blocks of 1,000 and 2,000 shares were numerous. Substantial buying orders were said to have accumulated overnight.

The initial sale in U. S. Steel did not appear on the tape until thirteen minutes after the opening and consisted of a block of 5,000 shares at 54¾, up 2⅝ from the previous close. "Big Steel" then went on to close $3.25 higher. Bethlehem, National Acme, and Republic also scored substantial gains as news was received that the decline in operations in the Pittsburgh district next week would be confined to 1 per cent.

Other Groups Advance.

Motor, rail, utility, building, farm implement, mail order, rubber, copper, oil, metal, mining, electrical equipment and maintenance issues all got their share of the spoils.

Some of the more notable gains included American Telephone, up 6⅛; General Electric, up 2⅝; Chrysler, up 3⅛; J. I. Case, up 4⅝; Bethlehem, up 2⅝; Continental Can, up 3; American Can, up 3½; Allied Chemical, up 5¼ on a single sale; American Smelting, up 3⅛; Delaware and Hudson, up 2¼; Johns Manville, up 5⅛; Owens Glass, up 3½; Oliver Farm, up 4; Pullman, up 2¼, and Sears-Roebuck, up 4⅜.

Railroad stocks got some of their impetus, it was said, from the fact that the interstate commerce commission's hearing on the railroads' request for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates is scheduled to open Monday.

Business Machine Contract Ruled Trust Law Violation

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—State Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Roseman voided today a five year cross-licensing contract between Remington-Rand, Inc., and International Business Machine corporation on the ground that it constituted a monoply in violation of state and federal anti-trust laws. Through the agreement, he said, the two companies controled all of the business and patents for automatic, nonmanual tabulating and sorting machines in the United States.

BRITISH ASK U. S. AGAIN TO JOIN STEEL CARTEL

Seek Control of Export Price Structure.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A new bid to induce American steel manufacturers to join the international cartel is being made by British iron and steel interests, trade interests said today. The inclusion of America would make the operations of the cartel, which asserts it controls about 90 per cent of world steel exports, virtually all-embracing as far as the principal producing countries are concerned.

Discussions on the proposal have been going on for months, British steel circles said. The first move was made in June, 1936, when Sir Andrew Duncan, chairman of the executive committee of the British Iron and Steel federation, and the earl of Dudley, then president of the federation, went to the United States to meet leading American steel manufacturers and talk over the project. Nothing emerged from the discussions at the time, but the British apparently did not permit the plan to fade.

Backed By Other Countries.

The increasing interest of the United States steel makers in the export business in recent months in face of decreased home demand was discussed at a Warsaw meeting of the cartel. British efforts to gain American collaboration in the cartel is strongly backed by other leading members, including Germany, Belgium, France, Luxembourg, and Poland it is indicated here.

Although United States producers have been active recently in seeking markets abroad which normally are unattractive to them, there so far is no evidence of severe price cutting and the plan to pull America into the cartel, according to its advocates here, does not represent a panic decision. At the same time it is admitted that coöperation of the United States would enable the cartel to tighten control of price policy in neutral markets.

Doubt U. S. Will Join.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Steel circles here cast doubt upon the likelihood that American interests would become a member of the European steel cartel. Much pressure has been exerted on them in the past to join the cartel, but thus far it has resulted in little more than a measure of coöperation, exercised through British connections.

American steel men thus are inclined to believe that the reported negotiations are largely one sided, with the Europeans making proposals and the Americans maintaining a listening attitude. Anti-trust laws in this country prevent the American companies joining the cartel openly and in recent years no developed plan for changing this state of affairs has been presented at Washington.

SLUMP IN LIVE STOCK REDUCES CITY MEAT BILLS

Beef and Pork Prices Are Lowest Since June.

The decline in the live stock markets in recent weeks has brought a decided drop in the meat bills for the average Chicago housewife, a survey of butcher shops by the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday.

Retail beef and pork prices for the first half of November averaged the lowest since June, and butchers charged the lowest prices since August for lamb cuts. Good grades of porterhouse steaks that retailed at 58 cents per pound at the high time of the summer, sold at 47 cents the first half of November.

Sirloin steaks declined from 49 to 39 cents in this time, and round steak came down from 43 to 34 cents. Rib roast averaged 33 cents, down 5 cents. Plate beef came down 2 cents to 16 cents. The sharpest cuts were mostly in the higher priced beef.

Loin Lamb Chops Lower.

Loin lamb chops have been reduced 5 cents to 43 cents, but legs have declined only one cent, to 30 cents. Butchers charged an average of 34 cents for center pork chops, a cut of 11 cents from the high summer prices.

Sliced bacon was down only 2 cents, selling at 46 cents. Whole cured hams retailed at 29 cents, a decline of 3 cents, but this cut of pork has been selling relatively lower than other meat for some time.

Although there was a rally in some branches of the live stock trade last week, the average costs for the week for both hogs and lambs were lower than during the preceding week. Final hog sales were 5 to 10 cents above the previous week's close and 20 to 25 cents above the recent low spot, but the week's average at $7.95 established a new three year low and compared with $8.35 a week ago and $9 two weeks ago.

Lambs Higher for Week.

Lambs finished 75 cents higher for the week, but the six day average at $9 showed 30 cents decline. Bearish reports from the wool trade has had a depressing effect on the demand for live lambs. Wool is selling 5 to 12 cents per pound cheaper than in 1936, and there has been an accumulation of woolen goods as well as raw material in storage houses.

Due partly to the better quality of cattle, the six day steer average showed an advance of 25 cents, at $10. However, with the exception of heavy steers, most cattle, including cows and hefers, finished 25 cents lower than a week ago. Calves closed 50 cents lower.

Several loads of hogs, mostly culls from the show, were on the market yesterday. Bidding was brisk at mostly 5 to 10 cents higher rates, with the top at $8.35, the highest since Thursday of last week. Twelve carloads of lambs were sold at steady prices, the bulk at $9.50 to $9.75, with medium grades at $9.00 to $9.40. Three loads of yearling wethers brought $8.50.

Chicago Bank Stocks Sell Lower During Last Week

Chicago bank stocks declined further last week in light trade. First National closed 5 points lower at 180 bid, 184 asked, after low sales at 171. Continental Illinois eased 1½ at 78½ bid, 80½ asked. Harris Trust and Northern Trust each dropped 10 points, and Lake Shore Trust and Chicago Title and Trust lost 1 point. Merchandise National gained 5.

NOVEMBER AUTO PRODUCTION DIPS BELOW YEAR AGO

Wholesale Distribution Follows Output Trend.

Production of automobiles in the United States in November has fallen below the level of a year ago, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank reported yesterday. The November decline, the survey said, followed a sharp rise in output in October which put that month's activity far above the September level and that of October last year.

With manufacturers beginning to turn out new models, the October output of passenger cars reached 298,662, or 152 per cent above the September mark and 57 per cent above October a year ago. Truck production, 31,214 units, was 41 per cent less in October than in September and 9 per cent below the output in October, 1936.

Sales Follow Output Trend.

The trend in wholesale distribution of new automobiles in the seventh reserve district followed the trend of production, the bank's survey disclosed. However, retailers' sales failed to show an increase in aggregate number for October over September, although they were larger than in October, 1936.

Stocks of new cars increased 50 per cent by the end of October, as compared with September, the report said. Sales of used cars in the district declined from the September level and that of October, 1936.

The furniture industry in the district showed a continued and quickened decline, with shipments and new orders below the 1927-'36 average for the first time since early 1936.

Meat Production Larger.

Meat packing production in the entire nation rose seasonally by 11½ per cent in October as compared with September, but was 18 per cent below the output of the same period a year ago. Sales were one-half of one per cent over those for September and 13½ per cent below October, last year. Prices dipped sharply.

In the manufacturing industries of the district, employment showed an October increase of 2.8 per cent over a month ago, and the total of wages paid gained 7.3 per cent, despite widespread recessions during the month. Gains in employment in the automobile industry helped offset declines in other groups.

In the nonmanufacturing industries there was little change, employment increasing three-tenths of 1 per cent and wages declining one-tenth of 1 per cent. For all groups, manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries combined, employment gained 1.7 per cent and wages 6 per cent for October compared with September.

Bonds.

The Illinois Bankers association recently sent its members an analysis of bond portfolio policy which also should be of interest to the ordinary investor. Of particular interest is the theory as applied to the periods during which banks should buy or sell various types of bonds. The study was made by John Talbot Masten under a graduate fellowship at the University of Illinois. We pass on a few highlights for information rather than recommendation.

The study divides bonds into two main groups—"money" bonds and "credit" bonds. Money bonds are those enjoying a top rating. Their prices are influenced principally by changes in money rates. Credit bonds are those whose standing and price vary with general business conditions and the changing credit status of the issuer as well as with money rates.

Masten said the advisable policy for banks is to buy money bonds in times of high interest rates and avoid them when money rates are low, as at present. Such purchases in prosperous times will reduce earnings, he said, but the day will come when the bank will need them for the sure income they produce.

The writer warned that a credit bond should always be considered a credit bond, no matter what the statistical showing. When, as a result of improved business conditions, it advances to such a high price that it is affected principally by money rate, said Masten, bankers should look for a more favorable outlet for their funds.

Credit bonds should be bought when interest rates are low and money bonds high priced, said Masten. Then never should be held as a permanent investment.

"It is better," he said, "to ride credit bonds up during an upswing in business than to ride money bonds down. It can easily be seen that a money bond yielding 2 per cent must fall in price if interest rates rise to 4 per cent, whereas a credit bond yielding 4 per cent would be little affected.

"The problem obviously is to determine when credit bonds are in the buying area," he continued, adding that earnings prospects is the most important factor. "When credit bonds have the appearance of being in the investment class, when earnings coverage is substantial, they are somewhere in the selling area. They will maintain this statistical position only so long as business conditions remain favorable, but will not look nearly so desirable when earnings fall."

GRAINS WEAKEN DESPITE UPTURN IN SECURITIES

Most of Active Futures Decline Moderately.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$.89¾	$.90¼	$1.17⅝
Corn	.56⅝	.56½	1.00¼
Oats	.29⅞	.29¾	.45
Rye	.65⅞	.67⅝	.92¼
Soy beans	.94½	.94½	1.34¼

Grain markets made a poor response yesterday to the strength in securities, and a majority of the active deliveries closed at net losses of small fractions of a cent a bushel.

December wheat was inclined to show relative strength as compared with the May delivery as the result of fairly aggressive buying attributed to a cash house, but December corn lost ground as compared with the deferred futures. Higher rates of insurance on cargoes of grain shipped via lake from Chicago will go into effect at midnight Nov. 30, which is expected to check the eastern demand to some extent.

Speculative Interest Broadens.

Speculative interest in wheat futures showed a tendency to broaden in the early trading yesterday and prices advanced around 1 cent a bushel at the extreme. However, the buying movement quickly ran its course and later in the session selling attributed to eastern speculators caused a sharp reaction.

A very slow foreign demand was reported for American hard winter cash wheat. Trade estimates indicated about 145,000,000 bushels of various varieties of this grain are still on hand and available for sale to Europe during the next seven months of the current crop year. Sales of 400,000 bushels of Canadian grain were estimated to have been made abroad.

Weather conditions in Argentina were reported to be favorable for harvesting operations in the northern part of that country, and wheat futures in Buenos Aires closed ⅞ to 1⅛ cents a bushel lower.

Offer Argentine Wheat Abroad.

Speculative offerings of Argentine wheat for deferred shipment to Europe were said to have been made at relatively low prices.

Corn futures held within a range of about ½ cent a bushel most of the day. A slow shipping demand was reported for cash corn and no additional export sales were indicated. Country offerings for deferred delivery, however, were light, purchases being reported at only 15,000 bushels. The trade is inclined to look for relatively light receipts during the current week.

Liquidation by holders of rye futures caused that grain to develop independent weakness and prices declined as much as 2⅛ cents a bushel.

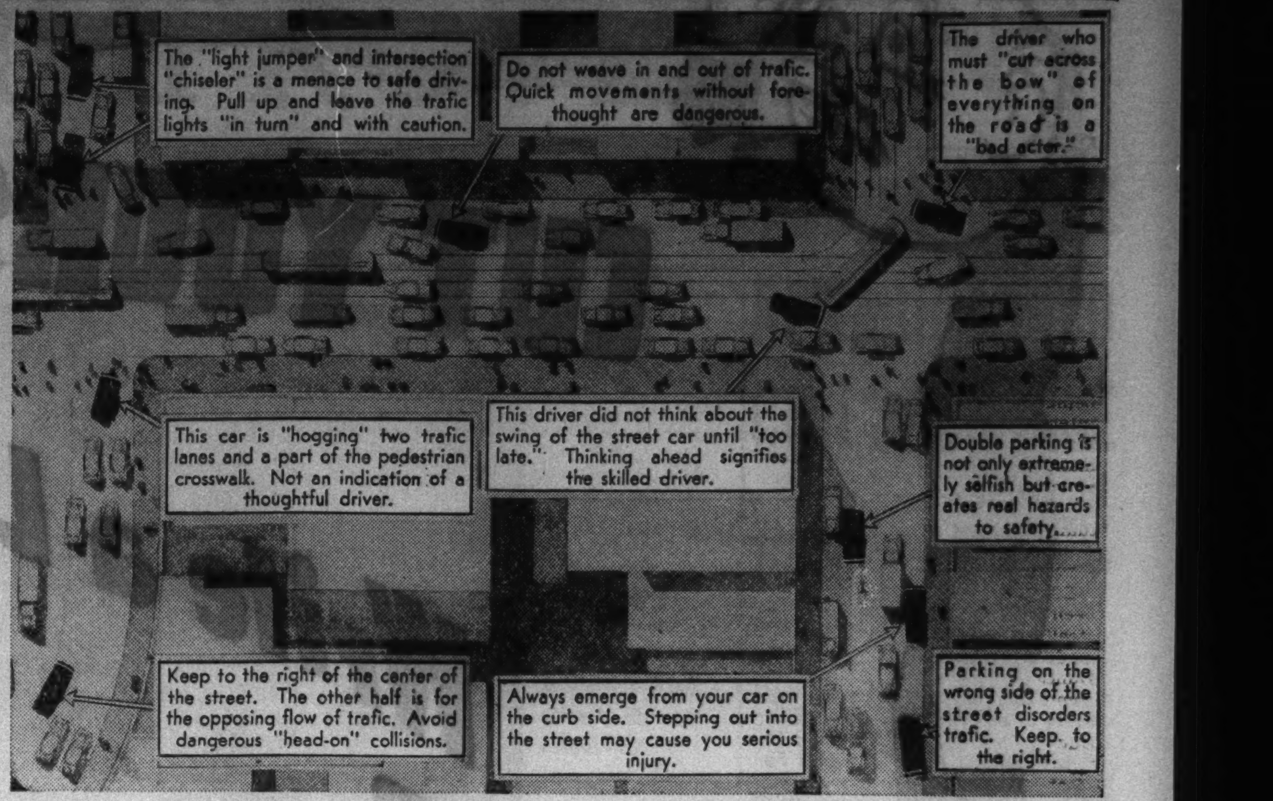
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Lessons in Driving Skill and Good Manners



This drawing illustrates the courteous and proper conduct for an automobile driver in various trafic situations. It was prepared in the interest of safety by the Aetna Casualty and Surety company of Hartford, Conn.

DECORATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS PROVE DRIVING HAZARD

BY HAL FOUST.

For the next month motorists will be greeted by holiday decorations on highways through business districts, large and small. It's a cheerful sight for every one but automobile drivers.

The red and green Christmas lights on curb lamp posts and in some places strung overhead, are of the same color as stop and go signals. In driving an unfamiliar street at night, it's difficult to find the trafic signals in a maze of seasonal ornaments.

Visibility Is Hazy.

This additional driving difficulty comes at a time when the pedestrian trafic is heavy due to Christmas shopping. In a few weeks school children will be on vacation, adding to the risks. And, at this time of year, the visibility is hazy throughout many days and night comes early.

The hazard to motorists is shared by pedestrians, although they don't seem to be as aware of the additional peril. With Christmas decorations obscuring the trafic signals, a driver is likely to go through a red light purely accidentally. In built-up areas the majority of resultant fatalities are pedestrians.

In some small towns holiday trafic difficulties are further complicated by Christmas trees being placed in the middle of a broad highway through a business district. The space for moving trafic is thus reduced and the capacity of the remaining space is curtailed by drivers tarrying to admire the trees.

Little Done to Curb Decorating.

Highway officials have done little to curb this Christmas decorating. They are timid about throwing cold water on the holiday observance.

In Springfield last week administrative officials gave a familiar excuse for inactivity. They said that it was too late to do anything about regulating these decorations this year and that enabling legislation would probably be needed before anything could be done, anyway. The one request received for an official permit to erect a Christmas tree in a highway, from Zion, Ill., had been granted.

A press release from Lansing, Mich., last week announced that Christmas trees won't sprout in the middle of trunk line streets and highways in Michigan this year. Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan highway commissioner, directed assistant maintenance engineers to bar such decorations, together with special lighting over the trunk lines.

Overhead Lights Barred.

The order does not apply to decorations on light poles, trees at the side of the road or street, and similar Christmas effects. This is the first year that overhead lights will be barred, although their use has been subject to previous restrictions.

Several communities asked the commissioner for permission to use overhead lighting and trees in the middle of trunk line streets. These requests have been denied.

"This regulation is not a safety regulation primarily," the commissioner said. "The main reason for it is to keep trafic moving in an orderly manner on trunk line streets during this rush season. Two years ago Christmas trees that were permitted in the middle of the trunk lines resulted in a great deal of trafic confusion. The same thing happened last year with overhead lights.

"It is not in the best interests of motorists or business men in the affected communities to permit such practices."

LOW PRICED RAIL LOANS LEAD BOND MARKET UPWARD

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Bond market traders showed decided preference for medium and low priced rail loans today and these recently depressed issues were bid up 1 to about 3 points in many instances.

Rails were favored, some Wall street men said, on the theory that government plans for a building revival would help carrier trafic. The buying came in the face of yesterday's report of a more than seasonal decline in freight loadings.

In other categories advances were general but mostly not large. United States government issues were narrow. Some foreign government dollar bonds, especially Japanese issues, were in demand.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

AUTOMATIC ROAD LIGHTS.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Based upon an invention of mine, a new and economical system of highway lighting is proposed. Instead of continuous illumination over the length of the highway at night, the highway is divided into one mile lighting zones, which are in darkness when no motor trafic is present.

Upon the appearance of a motor car into a lighting zone the illumination automatically will turn on for a distance of one mile ahead. As the motor car continues along the highway successive zones will light up. The zones go dark again when the vehicle has passed on. Thus the highway is illuminated only where motor cars are present, and substantial savings in electric current consumption are the result.

The lighting system utilizes sensitive instruments which are underground by the roadside. These absorb static and mechanical vibrations of passing vehicles, which causes certain electrical apparatus to function and turn on the overhead highway lighting systems in the individual one mile light zones.

The system also can be used for illuminating driving hazards such as dangerous intersections, bridges, and viaducts upon the approach of motor trafic, and it is well adapted for use in flashing on warning signs on sharp curves, hills and steep grades, and many other danger spots on the highway.

JOHN W. LOZIER.

INEQUITABLE TAX SCALE.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—We have now all become tax conscious so that just and equitable taxation is quite a current topic. Just now the automobile license tax comes to the front.

The Illinois automobile license for a 25 horse power motor car is $6.50. For a 35½ horse power motor car it is $17, or 160 per cent more. The difference in length of car and space occupied by each is small. The passenger load is about the same. The speed at which each usually travels gives the small car the lead.

On the average, the small car puts on more mileage per year than does the larger car, but, assuming that each car makes 10,000 miles, we have one car on the road for 10,000 miles at $17 and three cars for total of 30,000 miles at $19.50, or nearly the same.

Considering road congestion, parking space, and accident risks involved, the inequity of Illinois license fees are obvious to an imbecile. It should be apparent to Illinois lawmakers.

This is not to say that tax on smaller car be raised, but that relative values, common sense, and justice rule in respect to taxation.

Considering the $3 per hundred gallon gas tax, no Illinois license should be over $5.

CONSISTENT.

MARK PARKING SPACES.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—I always read with great interest your articles in THE TRIBUNE and I am especially observant of your unselfish and altruistic attitude on motoring problems. Like a wealthy philanthropist who gives donations to worthy causes, you seem to devote energy, time, and effort to benefiting the motoring public. Therefore I think you would be interested in the following suggestion.

Where curb parking is permitted, paint white lines on the pavement giving adequate space for each automobile. All motorists have had the experience of being jammed between two cars and having a metaphorical Turkish bath before extricating themselves.

We might get some of those WPA workers who make futile gestures at many corners in Chicago to do this worthwhile work of painting the parking spaces.

JAMES C. FITZGIBBON.

BEWARE OF THIEVES.

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 19.—As the season for automobile travel to the south approaches, this little warning to tourists might be timely. Do not take your good clothing or valuable luggage in your car; send them by mail or express. The added expense is well worth while, since automobiles are often robbed of their contents.

Look out for colored young men who pose as bellhops or porters at your various stopping places and get away with your luggage while you are waiting for it inside. This applies more to the larger cities on the way. In the smaller towns the tourist accommodations are first class and people very friendly, honest, and obliging.

After my experience in losing valuable baggage on my recent trip south I hope that readers will heed this warning.

STATISTICS HIDE LIQUOR'S PART IN ACCIDENT TOLL

BY HAL FOUST

Liquor is playing a much more important roll than indicated by statistics in America's automobile accident toll, according to Donald S. Berry, trafic engineer of the National Safety council. He talked last week before a monthly meeting of the Illinois Temperance council.

"The statistics," said Mr. Berry, "report that only seven per cent of the drivers and eleven per cent of the pedestrians involved in fatal motor mishaps had been drinking. Spot checks indicate that the average policeman is reluctant to report that a driver or pedestrian had been drinking unless there is proof of drunkenness.

False Confidence a Cause.

"In addition to the few drunks, there are many motorists who crash due to a false confidence in their ability to drive after a couple of cocktails or highballs or a few beers. The underlying cause of these crackups isn't reported in official records."

The engineer is secretary of a National Safety council committee studying proposals to reduce the toll of alcohol on the streets and highways. Judge Harry E. Porter, chief justice of the Evanston Municipal court, is chairman of the committee.

"Our investigation," said Mr. Berry, "indicates a need for educational propaganda. At present, the public doesn't appreciate fully the dangers of moderate drinking while driving.

Term Needs Clarifying.

"There is need for legislation to clarify the statutory definition of the term 'under the influence of liquor'. There is also need for adequate scientific tests for intoxication, such as blood or urine analysis, to take the place of general observation of a suspect's appearance, speech, and conduct. Arizona and Iowa courts, within the last 60 days have approved the admissability of evidence from such scientific tests."

RELIGION GIVEN NEW STATUS FOR N. U. STUDENTS

Director Says Work Not for Preacher.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Campus religion in American colleges and universities has presented vexatious problems for a generation to faculties, students, parents of students, administrators and trustees. Various devices for conserving religious faith have been evolved and tried. Now educators throughout the country have recently turned to Northwestern university for what is described as the latest word in a religious program designed for campuses of the Evanston type.

The Evanston program departs from all familiar patterns, according to those who have observed its working during the present year. Although differing from other campus programs, it is described as making religious faith and activity foremost factors in every aspect of the university setup.

New Planned Religion.

In viewing the entire problem of campus religion, Northwestern trustees decided to halt the tendency to let their campus religious program grow up like Topsy as on many campuses. It was decided to base any future program upon the same careful and unprejudiced investigation as that which would underlie any major secular program, such as the creation of a new department or a new graduate college.

To make this study, the trustees asked for a year's loan of Dr. Thornton W. Merriam of New York, director of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education. The council granted the university's request, and Dr. Merriam spent the academic year of 1936-'37. He was given free hand and, according to his own statement, received fullest cooperation of the entire university.

Dr. Merriam's extensive report with its drastic suggestions was accepted by the trustees provided that Dr. Merriam would accept the university's call to make the report a reality. His title now is, "the director of the university board of religion."

Suggests Five Changes.

Some of the changes in administrative organization of the university demanded by Dr. Merriam's program follow:

1. The director of religious activities, instead of being attached to the personnel department with nondescript functions, shall be responsible directly to the president of the university and hold membership in the liberal arts faculty, in the university senate [which gives him a deanship status], and memberships on the boards of supervision of student activities and personnel administration.

2. The university board of education is, in effect, the religious director's staf. It is composed of leaders with such present functions as expressed by university secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the professors of history and literature of religion and of religious education, and all denominational or sectarian campus leaders provided by churches.

3. "It is expected that the director of the board of religion would interpret the university to the churches," and be "adviser to the president on all matters pertaining to the religious life of the university."

4. "The religious viewpoint must be 'injected' into the education process at every possible point. The director will administer the program involving university convocations, vespers, faculty-student forums, and services of worship.

5. "The board of religion should develop research projects in the areas of student life, campus sociology and relations between home and religious backgrounds and experience of students."

No Post for Preacher.

Dr. Merriam's report described at length the qualifications of the director of the board of religion which the university trustees called him to fulfill. Some of the unique requirements follow:

"The position created will not give satisfactory outlet for preaching interests. A person who gets his satisfaction from public address will not find the position rewarding.

"Since singular classroom teaching is not included in the functions of the director of the board of religion, it would be a mistake to appoint a person who has aspirations along that line."

As to where such a leader might be found, Dr. Merriam's report points out the following fact:

"Among professors and administrators there is a growing group of younger faculty men and women who have paid the price of a two-fold discipline. They have a broad background of training in the field of religion and a specified training in some field of scholarship—history, sociology, English, psychology, etc. Their motive is essentially religious; they wish to accomplish a religious result through an educational process. They are committed to a life work in the field of higher education."

Against Campus Chapel.

The program does not contemplate the erection of a chapel. Dr. Merriam advised against the erection of a chapel on several grounds. Students, he said, do not attend chapel

GAGE PARK CLUB SEEKS BUSES ON CALIFORNIA AVE.

Moves for Amendment of I. C. C. Case.

Action seeking establishment of surface lines feeder bus service on South California avenue was taken recently by the Gage Park Citizens' Improvement club at its November meeting. The district to be served by the proposed system includes Gage Park, Marquette Manor, and Brighton Park.

A motion was passed appointing Jerry Pech, club attorney, to request the Illinois commerce commission for amendment of the pending case on transportation for California avenue from Kinzie to 47th streets. The hearing of this previous petition, which was filed by the attorneys of the West Town Chamber of Commerce before the opening of California avenue at 49th street, is set for Feb. 15.

Plan Future Strategy.

In the event of failure to permit amendment officials of the club will file a new petition before the commission or a committee of aldermen from the wards involved will be asked to introduce an ordinance into the city council. Precedent for this latter action was found in several cases involving northwest side transportation.

Robert W. Schulze, secretary of the club, has announced that surveys of Western and Archer avenues were conducted by the club which show this section of the city to have inadequate transportation facilities.

Organized in 1905.

The Gage Park Improvement club was organized in 1905 and incorporated the following year. Officers for the coming season are Frank Sajdak, 5525 South Washtenaw avenue, president; Henry Klinke, 5418 South Artesian avenue, vice president; Robert W. Schulze, 2700 West 55th street, recording secretary; Mr. Pech, 2743 West 55th street, attorney; Harry Hehl, 5810 South Artesian avenue, financial secretary; Mrs. J. K. Beers, 5632 South Artesian avenue, treasurer; Martin Grabowski, 5365 South Maplewood avenue, sergeant at arms, and August W. Steinert, 2550 West 55th street, chairman of the executive committee.

Charles H. Sagert is honorary president of the club.

Lithuanian Club Dance.

The Lithuanian University club of Chicago will hold its college night dance Saturday night in the Celtic room of the Medinah club of Chicago, 505 North Michigan avenue.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

ALREADY on the way toward learning the art of being a gracious hostess is Elizabeth Lee Norton, 5½ year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norton, 47 East 155th street, Harvey. Last Wednesday she entertained fifteen little girls who are her classmates at the Holm kindergarten. In addition to satisfying the usual youthful craving for ice cream and cake, Elizabeth played the piano for her guests and recited nursery rimes, for which she has a remarkable memory. It is quite probable that the winsome little hostess has started a round of social functions among the kindergarten set of Harvey.

Miss Marguerite Kelly, 7354 Yates avenue, was elected freshman representative on the Mundelein college student activities council at the freshman convocation last Tuesday. Miss Kelly is a graduate of Aquinas High school, where she was editor of the student newspaper. Other south and southwest side girls on the council are Miss Maurita Kelly, 10024 South Damen avenue, vice president; Miss Patricia O'Toole, 7137 Luella avenue, treasurer, and Miss Betty Dilger, 1436 East 68th street, and Miss Frances Sayre, 7356 Luella avenue, sophomore representatives.

Winners at the trap shoot which the Universal Sportsmen's Club of America, 7435 Cottage Grove avenue, recently held at Illiana Heights were Jack Ward, 1443 West 103d street, who snagged the men's trophy, and Mrs. Lester Schrader, 8929 South Ada street, who captured the women's cup.

From MacMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., comes the word that Miss Marie Dickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Dickman, 8000 Calumet avenue, has won a position on the junior hocky team.

A baby girl, Ann Carol, was born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ashback, 5237 Kenwood avenue, at the Lying-In hospital. Ann Carol weighed eight pounds nine ounces.

50 TO BE ADDED TO DENTAL STAF IN CITY SCHOOLS

Plan to Benefit Those Who Cannot Pay.

Better oral hygiene for underprivileged pupils in Chicago's public schools was assured last week with announcement by the board of health that the 12 regular dentists who now make dental examinations in the schools are to be supplemented in the next few days by ten others and 40 assistants. The additional help is to be made available through a new WPA project.

With the enlarged dental staf it is hoped that at least 20 per cent of the city's 435,000 public school children will have their teeth examined this year. The present staf is able to give this service to only 8 per cent of the school population.

90 Per Cent Need Care.

The importance of supplementary dental care in the schools was emphasized by H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, who obtained approval of the new project. A recent survey, he said, showed that about 90 per cent of the city's school children are in need of dental care.

Under the new project temporary clinics are to be set up in certain of the schools. The dentists and their aids will seek out dental defects and will give instruction in the brushing of teeth and other features of oral hygiene.

Will Prepare Reference Charts.

For children whose parents can afford to pay for dental care there will be a reference chart showing the attention needed. The other children needing care will be sent to free clinics, according to Mrs. Virginia Skiles, supervising project technician.

Selection of dentists to serve in these clinics is being made by Dr. Carl Greenwald of the board of health staf, who gave assurance that only the best of dentists are being picked for this important work.

Turkey Dinner to Benefit St. Bernard's Hospital

The turkey dinner and bazar sponsored annually by the benefit fund committee of St. Bernard's hospital will be held this year on Dec. 9 at the hospital's school of nursing, 6344 Harvard avenue. Ald. Doyle, 9929 Peoria avenue.

NEW CALUMET PROJECT TO ADD 110 ACRE AREA

$712,000 Marked for Burnham Work.

Needed improvements of south side parks and boulevards are to be financed by the new public works allotment for the Chicago Park district approved by the Works Progress administration, Robert J. Dunham, president of the district, announced last week.

Of the $5,500,000 to be spent throughout the city, south and southwest projects will get $2,652,000, Mr. Dunham said. More than 20 parks and boulevards in the southern territory will share in the new projects.

Ralph H. Burke, chief engineer for the district, whose staf is now drawing plans for the recently approved undertakings, estimated that they would afford six months of employment for 10,000 men. Much of the work can be started in the next few weeks, in time to provide Christmas spending money for many people, the engineer said.

Burnham Park Project.

Of the south side total, $712,000 is to be spent in Burnham park to remove the last traces of A Century of Progress Exposition and place the park in condition as a recreation spot.

This involves repair and construction of pavements and sidewalks, preparation of parts of the park for spring planting of trees, shrubs and lawns, the relaying of water and sewer mains and the extension of existing sanitary facilities. About two-thirds of the new expenditures will go for improvements in the section of the park from 12th to 39th street, the rest to be spent on the part extending south to 56th street.

Another $486,000 is to be spent on Northerly Island, which was also occupied by World's Fair buildings. Here it is planned to lay out streets and walks and to install water and sewers that are necessary for landscaping. The work planned for Northerly Island is general in character, and would be required as a preliminary to any use to which this part of the park may be put, according to the engineers.

110 Acres of New Land.

In Calumet park, on the lake front south of 95th street, $496,000 is to be spent. Most of the money will be used in converting about 110 acres of newly filled-in land into park territory.

This land until recently was a slag dump for nearby steel mills. Earth excavated from the Sag channel project was filled in on top of the slag. This is to be surfaced with fertile topsoil, and then will be planted to trees, grass, and bushes. Roadways and sidewalks are to be provided, and water and sewer mains installed.

General landscaping, beautification, and repairs in Marquette park are to cost $291,000 under the new program, Burke announced. New roads and walks are to be provided, and a service yard for the building group is to be constructed.

Jeffery to Be Widened.

A south side park paving project that is of general interest is the widening of Jeffery avenue from 67th street, where the street leaves Jackson park, south to 75th street. This stretch of pavement is an important link in the development of the Southeast highway.

The pavement now is only 30 feet wide. It is to be widened to 48 feet, Burke said, and the new nine foot strips on each side of the present slab are to be surfaced with asphaltic macadam.

Nineteen small parks on the south and southwest sides are on the schedule for miscellaneous work which will cost about $440,000, the engineer revealed. These parks are:

Armour Square, 33d street and Shields avenue.

Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue.

Cornell Square, 51st and Wood streets.

Davis Square, 45th street and Marshfield avenue.

Euclid park, 99th and Wallace streets.

Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue.

Gage park, 55th street and Western avenue.

Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue.

Kennedy park, 113th street and Western avenue.

Hardin Square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue.

Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

Mark White Square, 29th and Halsted streets.

McKinley park, 39th street and Western avenue.

Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue.

Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue.

Russell Square, 83d street and South Shore drive.

Sherman park, 53d street and Racine avenue.

Lyman Trumbull park, 103d street and Bensley avenue.

Tuley park, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue.

Mr. Dunham pointed out that not only the south side, but all parts of the city have benefited by the federally aided program of park improvement and expansion during the last few years. The new allotments, he said, will enable the park district to round out its program.

Pretty Promenaders

The juniors will be prom trotters Dec. 17 at Parker High school. On the committee in charge of the dance, which will take the form of a Hollywood premiere, is Miss Mary Lou Price, 7342 Harvard avenue.

Miss Mary Reay, 6656 Stewart avenue, vice president of the junior class, will be co-chairman of the prom which will be held in the gymnasium of the school, 68th street and Stewart avenue.

[Marshall Studio.]

Among the Parker juniors prominent in arranging the annual dance given by the class is Miss Evelyn Sugerman, 6951 South Green street.

TOM WALSH HAS REWARD AS 100 CHILDREN DINE

He Knows What It Is to Be Hungry.

Six years ago Thomas Walsh was a "forgotten man." For the 20 preceding years a job had been the tie that bound him to the routine of respectability. Then the tie broke. The edges of his rain spotted hat curled up. He had no elbows in his coat sleeves and he had an empty ache in his throat. His shoe strings were knotted together in four places.

Thomas Walsh.

Tomorrow night, the next night, and the next, 100 children will sit down to eat in the basement at 3132 Fillmore street and Thomas Walsh will watch them gulp down hot soup and reach for more rye bread. Thomas Walsh, broad shouldered, 42 years old ex-salesman, ex-forgotten man, will look down at little tow headed boys and thin black eyed girls being happy eating and he'll say over and over as he did last week, "I've got to give those kids a chance—I've got to——" That's the Walsh Civic Project.

New Pants for Old.

The basis of the project is a hot meal. Folks that live up the north shore and down the south shore and out in quiet suburbs, these folks that have heard of Thomas Walsh, have sent checks, wool pants, shoes and mittens. Boys and girls with snub noses, freckled cheeks, tousled red heads and brown skins are wearing them. That new boy over there with a tooth out in front, who grinned when he smelled the soup, still has on a pair of cotton overalls with two tears in each leg. Mr. Walsh will look for a pair of wool ones to give him before he goes home.

Six years ago Mr. Walsh was jobless, homeless and hungry. For 20 years he had been a salesman and when times were good he sold fancy mantel clocks. Then the Southern furniture factory was closed. Mr. Walsh came up from his southern territory to find any kind of a job. He got a job saving souls with a mission that later went out of business. It stayed open long enough, as Mr. Walsh puts it, "for me to see that charity can be a racket. I saw too many warm overcoats being sold instead of given away as the donor intended."

"You've Got to Eat."

And Mr. Walsh talked to boys and men on Madison street who found that stealing got easier with practice and he talked with women who sold themselves on South State street. "It's hell," they told him, "but you've got to eat."

"I don't count any more," said Mr. Walsh to himself about then, "I've had a job and money and steak dinners. I don't need any fame or fortune even if I could get it. But there's an army of kids here. There's an army of snub nosed boys who will first steal an apple, then an auto tire and then kill a man for 50 cents. There are girls coming over here who can't learn their school lessons. It's cold in their dirty flats and the lights are turned off because they owe bills for months long past."

Five years ago a barber on West Madison street heard Mr. Walsh's idea for "true charity." He gave him a desk and chair at the back of his shop. A Greek restaurant owner next door lent him a typewriter and some paper and gave him his meals. His letters went over the city. Donations came in. A German Lutheran woman found him a one room apartment with rent free. A Catholic nun, interested in his ideal, sent over 25 children to get the clothing that started coming in.

Whole House for Youth.

At the end of that year he moved to Fillmore street and opened the kitchen. Now the children use the whole house. They eat in the basement. They turned the coal bin into a shower-bath room. The bathtub is up on a pedestal. They have to use it to wash dishes.

The second floor is a library and a game room. Upstairs is a manual training shop and two more game rooms. The only workers paid out of the donated funds are homeless boys. Five of these boy workers sleep in the house. Mr. Walsh bunks with them. He eats what they eat and wears hand-me-down clothes. He draws no salary from the funds that come in. "This job is going to be 100 per cent," he said, "It's got to be—"

The telephone bell rang, cutting in on his emphatic explanation. Mr. Walsh smiled at the boyish voice that talked to him. "You got a whole bushel of pears. Good!" said Mr. Walsh and when he hung up he remarked, "That was one of the workers. At the end of the day's business the bakeries and produce houses nearby give us what they know won't be saleable next day."

DRAFT $2,652,000 PARK IMPROVEMENT

RELIGION GIVEN NEW STATUS FOR N. U. STUDENTS

Director Says Work Not for Preacher.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Campus religion in American colleges and universities has presented vexatious problems for a generation to faculties, students, parents of students, administrators and trustees. Various devices for conserving religious faith have been evolved and tried. Now educators throughout the country have recently turned to Northwestern university for what is described as the latest word in a religious program designed for campuses of the Evanston type.

The Evanston program departs from all familiar patterns, according to those who have observed its working during the present year. Although differing from other campus programs, it is described as making religious faith and activity foremost factors in every aspect of the university setup.

New Planned Religion.

In viewing the entire problem of campus religion, Northwestern trustees decided to halt the tendency to let their campus religious program grow up like Topsy as on many campuses. It was decided to base any future program upon the same careful and unprejudiced investigation as that which would underlie any major secular program, such as the creation of a new department or a new graduate college.

To make this study, the trustees asked for a year's loan of Dr. Thornton W. Merriam of New York, director of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education. The council granted the university's request, and Dr. Merriam spent the academic year of 1936-'37. He was given free hand and, according to his own statement, received fullest cooperation of the entire university.

Dr. Merriam's extensive report with its drastic suggestions was accepted by the trustees provided that Dr. Merriam would accept the university's call to make the report a reality. His title now is, "the director of the university board of religion."

Suggests Five Changes.

Some of the changes in administrative organization of the university demanded by Dr. Merriam's program follow:

1. The director of religious activities, instead of being attached to the personnel department with nondescript functions, shall be responsible directly to the president of the university and hold membership in the liberal arts faculty, in the university senate [which gives him a deanship status], and memberships on the boards of supervision of student activities and personnel administration.

2. The university board of education is, in effect, the religious director's staf. It is composed of leaders with such present functions as expressed by university secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the professors of history and literature of religion and of religious education, and all denominational or sectarian campus leaders provided by churches.

3. "It is expected that the director of the board of religion would interpret the university to the churches," and be "adviser to the president on all matters pertaining to the religious life of the university."

4. "The religious viewpoint must be 'injected' into the education process at every possible point. The director will administer the program involving university convocations, vespers, faculty-student forums, and services of worship.

5. "The board of religion should develop research projects in the areas of student life, campus sociology and relations between home and religious backgrounds and experience of students."

No Post for Preacher.

Dr. Merriam's report described at length the qualifications of the director of the board of religion which the university trustees called him to fulfill. Some of the unique requirements follow:

"The position created will not give satisfactory outlet for preaching interests. A person who gets his satisfaction from public address will not find the position rewarding.

"Since singular classroom teaching is not included in the functions of the director of the board of religion, it would be a mistake to appoint a person who has aspirations along that line."

As to where such a leader might be found, Dr. Merriam's report points out the following fact:

"Among professors and administrators there is a growing group of younger faculty men and women who have paid the price of a two-fold discipline. They have a broad background of training in the field of religion and a specified training in some field of scholarship—history, sociology, English, psychology, etc. Their motive is essentially religious; they wish to accomplish a religious result through an educational process. They are committed to a life work in the field of higher education."

Against Campus Chapel.

The program does not contemplate the erection of a chapel. Dr. Merriam advised against the erection of a chapel on several grounds. Students, he said, do not attend chapel

She'll Listen to Leon

Miss Maxie Jean Francis, 11080 South Esmond street, will "Listen to Leon" in one of the leading roles in the comedy of the same name to be produced by the Viking Sunday school class of the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal church, 110th place and Longwood drive, Thursday evening in the church. The proceeds of the play will be donated to the church building fund. [Medinah Studio.]

GAGE PARK CLUB SEEKS BUSES ON CALIFORNIA AVE.

Moves for Amendment of I. C. C. Case.

Action seeking establishment of surface lines feeder bus service on South California avenue was taken recently by the Gage Park Citizens' Improvement club at its November meeting. The district to be served by the proposed system includes Gage Park, Marquette Manor, and Brighton Park.

A motion was passed appointing Jerry Pech, club attorney, to request the Illinois commerce commission for amendment of the pending case on transportation for California avenue from Kinzie to 47th streets. The hearing of this previous petition, which was filed by the attorneys of the West Town Chamber of Commerce before the opening of California avenue at 49th street, is set for Feb. 15.

Plan Future Strategy.

In the event of failure to permit amendment officials of the club will file a new petition before the commission or a committee of aldermen from the wards involved will be asked to introduce an ordinance into the city council. Precedent for this latter action was found in several cases involving northwest side transportation.

Robert W. Schulze, secretary of the club, has announced that surveys of Western and Archer avenues were conducted by the club which show this section of the city to have inadequate transportation facilities.

Organized in 1905.

The Gage Park Improvement club was organized in 1905 and incorporated the following year. Officers for the coming season are Frank Sajdak, 5525 South Washtenaw avenue, president; Henry Klinke, 5418 South Artesian avenue, vice president; Robert W. Schulze, 2700 West 55th street, recording secretary; Mr. Pech, 2743 West 55th street, attorney; Harry Hehl, 5810 South Artesian avenue, financial secretary; Mrs. J. K. Beers, 5632 South Artesian avenue, treasurer; Martin Grabowski, 5365 South Maplewood avenue, sergeant at arms, and August W. Steinert, 2550 West 55th street, chairman of the executive committee.

Charles H. Sagert is honorary president of the club.

Lithuanian Club Dance.

The Lithuanian University club of Chicago will hold its college night dance Saturday night in the Celtic room of the Medinah club of Chicago, 505 North Michigan avenue.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

ALREADY on the way toward learning the art of being a gracious hostess is Elizabeth Lee Norton, 5½ year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norton, 47 East 155th street, Harvey. Last Wednesday she entertained fifteen little girls who are her classmates at the Holm kindergarten. In addition to satisfying the usual youthful craving for ice cream and cake, Elizabeth played the piano for her guests and recited nursery rimes, for which she has a remarkable memory. It is quite probable that the winsome little hostess has started a round of social functions among the kindergarten set of Harvey.

Miss Marguerite Kelly, 7354 Yates avenue, was elected freshman representative on the Mundelein college student activities council at the freshman convocation last Tuesday. Miss Kelly is a graduate of Aquinas High school, where she was editor of the student newspaper. Other south and southwest side girls on the council are Miss Maurita Kelly, 10024 South Damen avenue, vice president; Miss Patricia O'Toole, 7137 Luella avenue, treasurer, and Miss Betty Dilger, 1436 East 68th street, and Miss Frances Sayre, 7356 Luella avenue, sophomore representatives.

Winners at the trap shoot which the Universal Sportsmen's Club of America, 7435 Cottage Grove avenue, recently held at Illiana Heights were Jack Ward, 1443 West 103d street, who snagged the men's trophy, and Mrs. Lester Schrader, 8929 South Ada street, who captured the women's cup.

From MacMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., comes the word that Miss Marie Dickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Dickman, 8000 Calumet avenue, has won a position on the junior hocky team.

A baby girl, Ann Carol, was born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ashback, 5237 Kenwood avenue, at the Lying-In hospital. Ann Carol weighed eight pounds nine ounces.

50 TO BE ADDED TO DENTAL STAF IN CITY SCHOOLS

Plan to Benefit Those Who Cannot Pay.

Better oral hygiene for underprivileged pupils in Chicago's public schools was assured last week with announcement by the board of health that the 12 regular dentists who now make dental examinations in the schools are to be supplemented in the next few days by ten others and 40 assistants. The additional help is to be made available through a new WPA project.

With the enlarged dental staf it is hoped that at least 20 per cent of the city's 435,000 public school children will have their teeth examined this year. The present staf is able to give this service to only 8 per cent of the school population.

90 Per Cent Need Care.

The importance of supplementary dental care in the schools was emphasized by H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, who obtained approval of the new project. A recent survey, he said, showed that about 90 per cent of the city's school children are in need of dental care.

Under the new project temporary clinics are to be set up in certain of the schools. The dentists and their aids will seek out dental defects and will give instruction in the brushing of teeth and other features of oral hygiene.

Will Prepare Reference Charts.

For children whose parents can afford to pay for dental care there will be a reference chart showing the attention needed. The other children needing care will be sent to free clinics, according to Mrs. Virginia Skiles, supervising project technician.

Selection of dentists to serve in these clinics is being made by Dr. Carl Greenwald of the board of health staf, who gave assurance that only the best of dentists are being picked for this important work.

Turkey Dinner to Benefit St. Bernard's Hospital

The turkey dinner and bazar sponsored annually by the benefit fund committee of St. Bernard's hospital will be held this year on Dec. 9 at the hospital's school of nursing, 6344 Harvard avenue. Ald. William T. Murphy [17th] will be chairman, assisted by John B. Murphy, 1035 W. Garfield boulevard; J. E. Grant, 7731 Stewart avenue; C. E. Dore, 6125 Michigan avenue, and Harry M. Doyle, 9929 Peoria avenue.

NEW CALUMET PROJECT TO ADD 110 ACRE AREA

$712,000 Marked for Burnham Work.

Needed improvements of south side parks and boulevards are to be financed by the new public works allotment for the Chicago Park district approved by the Works Progress administration, Robert J. Dunham, president of the district, announced last week.

Of the $5,500,000 to be spent throughout the city, south and southwest projects will get $2,652,000, Mr. Dunham said. More than 20 parks and boulevards in the southern territory will share in the new projects.

Ralph H. Burke, chief engineer for the district, whose staf is now drawing plans for the recently approved undertakings, estimated that they would afford six months of employment for 10,000 men. Much of the work can be started in the next few weeks, in time to provide Christmas spending money for many people, the engineer said.

Burnham Park Project.

Of the south side total, $712,000 is to be spent in Burnham park to remove the last traces of A Century of Progress Exposition and place the park in condition as a recreation spot.

This involves repair and construction of pavements and sidewalks, preparation of parts of the park for spring planting of trees, shrubs and lawns, the relaying of water and sewer mains and the extension of existing sanitary facilities. About two-thirds of the new expenditures will go for improvements in the section of the park from 12th to 39th street, the rest to be spent on the part extending south to 56th street.

Another $486,000 is to be spent on Northerly Island, which was also occupied by World's Fair buildings. Here it is planned to lay out streets and walks and to install water and sewers that are necessary for landscaping. The work planned for Northerly Island is general in character, and would be required as a preliminary to any use to which this part of the park may be put, according to the engineers.

110 Acres of New Land.

In Calumet park, on the lake front south of 95th street, $496,000 is to be spent. Most of the money will be used in converting about 110 acres of newly filled-in land into park territory.

This land until recently was a slag dump for nearby steel mills. Earth excavated from the Sag channel project was filled in on top of the slag. This is to be surfaced with fertile topsoil, and then will be planted to trees, grass, and bushes. Roadways and sidewalks are to be provided, and water and sewer mains installed.

General landscaping, beautification, and repairs in Marquette park are to cost $291,000 under the new program, Burke announced. New roads and walks are to be provided, and a service yard for the building group is to be constructed.

Jeffery to Be Widened.

A south side park paving project that is of general interest is the widening of Jeffery avenue from 67th street, where the street leaves Jackson park, south to 75th street. This stretch of pavement is an important link in the development of the Southeast highway.

The pavement now is only 30 feet wide. It is to be widened to 48 feet, Burke said, and the new nine foot strips on each side of the present slab are to be surfaced with asphaltic macadam.

Nineteen small parks on the south and southwest sides are on the schedule for miscellaneous work which will cost about $440,000, the engineer revealed. These parks are:

Armour Square, 33d street and Shields avenue.

Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue.

Cornell Square, 51st and Wood streets.

Davis Square, 45th street and Marshfield avenue.

Euclid park, 99th and Wallace streets.

Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue.

Gage park, 55th street and Western avenue.

Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue.

Kennedy park, 113th street and Western avenue.

Hardin Square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue.

Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

Mark White Square, 29th and Halsted streets.

McKinley park, 39th street and Western avenue.

Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue.

Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue.

Russell Square, 83d street and South Shore drive.

Sherman park, 53d street and Racine avenue.

Lyman Trumbull park, 103d street and Bensley avenue.

Tuley park, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue.

Mr. Dunham pointed out that not only the south side, but all parts of the city have benefited by the federally aided program of park improvement and expansion during the last few years. The new allotments, he said, will enable the park district to round out its program.

The juniors will be prom trotters Dec. 17 at Parker High school. On the committee in charge of the dance, which will take the form of a Hollywood premiere, is Miss Mary Lou Price, 7342 Harvard avenue.

Miss Mary Reay, 6656 Stewart avenue, vice president of the junior class, will be co-chairman of the prom which will be held in the gymnasium of the school, 68th street and Stewart avenue. [Marshall Studio.]

RIDGE COUNCIL ASKS REGIONAL PARK SETUP

Criticizes Consolidated System of Present.

The Ridge civic council, which is made up of 28 southwest side organizations, last week criticized the present consolidated park system and proposed creation of regional park boards. The action was outlined in a letter which was given unanimous approval by the delegation and sent to Max Murdock of the citizens' committee.

Statements were made to the effect that when the people of Chicago voted in 1934 for park consolidation they were of the belief that economies would be effected in the operation of the park systems and lower tax rates would result. It further stated that the Ridge and Calumet districts had been satisfied with the management of their local parks and had voted against it. At that time the tax rate in the Ridge district was 46 cents and in the Calumet 23 cents. Today the consolidated rate is $1.05.

Point to Increased Rate.

Although the rate is increased, it is the opinion of the council that maintenance and operation of the park fieldhouses and outside facilities are not up to the standard prevailing prior to 1934. This, it believes, can be attributed to the replacement of local employés interested in community enterprise and development.

The Ridge parke fieldhouse, due to the desirability of its location at 96th street and Longwood drive, is overcrowded by groups and organizations not confined to the community, the letter claims, and local clubs have difficulty in obtaining meeting halls and auditoriums for their activities.

To remedy the situation, which the council believes is not peculiar to its community alone, it was suggested that rules and regulations covering the use of local or outlying facilities by outside groups be drawn up and that all organizations be required to use the park facilities nearest to their residents.

Ask Regional Boards.

It also was proposed that regional park boards be created by the administration under the guidance of directors who would be familiar with the problems of the respective communities.

It was stated further that while the Chicago park district has centered on major projects of city-wide nature there has been a consequent neglect of programs and facilities formulated and approved by local park district commissioners. In support of this contention it was explained that two approved projects, one for improvement of fieldhouse construction in Brainard park and the second for the erection of fieldhouses and improvement of facilities in Kennedy and Ada parks, have not been started.

Oscar Nelson Heads Committee.

W. J. McGonagil, 2215 West 111th street, is general chairman of the Ridge civic council, and the committee of parks and recreation is headed by Oscar Nelson, 9134 South Hoyne avenue. Co-chairman of the committee is Charles Baker, 2131 West 110th street.

Others on the committee are Reid M. Bennet, 9060 South Pleasant avenue; Frank B. Reynolds, 8731 South Throop street; Sylvester Friel, 8804 South Laflin street; Glen D. Adams, 9245 South Throop street; Warren J. Alcock, 9144 South Hamilton avenue; Mrs. Milton Cruse, 2260 West 110th place; Mrs. Earl Gray, 8751 South Throop street; Ross E. unless they are required to do so. He argued that in remote communities, college chapels are filled when famed preachers are scheduled to appear. He added that in large cities university chapels draw folk from the adjacent community who would otherwise be in the churches, rather than the students.

"Evanston churches are strong and represent varied points of view," the report pointed out. "The type of preacher brought to the chapel, if one existed, would not regularly be superior in eloquence, power, or appeal to preachers already provided by Evanston and Chicago churches.

"The relation of the university to local churches has always been strong and coöperative rather than competitive."

Miss Muriel Lester, founder of Kingsley hall social settlement in London, England, is visiting Chicago as the guest of Miss Lea Taylor at Chicago Commons. Miss Kingsley has long been active in international reconciliation work and is now on her way to the Orient in an endeavor to foster good will between the Chinese and the Japanese.

Tonight she will be the guest at supper in Thorne hall, sponsored by the student religious groups on the Chicago campus of the Northwestern university, and 8 o'clock she will speak in the Fourth Presbyterian church. This morning Miss Lester will be at the First Congregational church, Evanston, of which Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown is the minister, and tomorrow she will address the Union ministers' meeting of the Chicago Church federation at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

The Chicago Tuberculosis institute, 360 North Michigan avenue, is asking churches of every faith and creed to join today in the nationwide observance of "Christmas Seal Sunday."

The Midwest Interracial Conference of Church Women will open tomorrow and continue through Tuesday, at the First Congregational church, Evanston, and the North Shore hotel. Coöperating with the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation, the meeting is sponsored by the Interracial council of Evanston.

"The Next Chapter in Racial Understanding" will be the general theme for discussion and the principal speaker will be Miss Muriel Lester of England, who will open the conference with an address on the topic, "Colour Around the World." Mrs. Silvester Schiele, president of the coöperating group, and Mrs. Thomas Lineweaver, president of the interracial department, will preside.

Other speakers scheduled include Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, P. J. Hausern, president of the interracial council of Evanston; Ina Corinne Brown, author of "The Story of the American Negro"; Mrs. Alpha Morgan White, girl reserve secretary of the South Parkway of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Rachel Davis Du Bois of the Progressive Education association.

At a luncheon meeting of the Movement for World Christianity to be held Dec. 3 at the University club, the speakers will be Frederic Woodward, vice president of the University of Chicago; Henry C. Taylor, director of the Farm foundation, and the Rev. Douglas Horton, minister of the United church of Hyde Park. The topic to be discussed will be "The World Service of the Christian Church in the Present Crisis."

THOMAS WALSH HAS 100 PER CENT CIVIC PROJECT

When His 100 Children Eat He's Rewarded.

more street everyday and every evening, will get pears this week. Mrs. Lillian Anderson is the girl's supervisor. She teaches them sewing and singing. John Tomaszewski teaches the boys handicraft. They study their school lessons in the evening where the light is good and where they can use the library.

Every day children come in for shower baths and for games. They get a fair, square deal and find reward in good conduct. Little exroughnecks have a reputation for being well behaved. A hotel executive invited some of them to visit his hotel in Dayton, O., over Labor day. A dentist tried out a new painless technique on some well mannered 10 year olds who had holes in their teeth.

An air line company took them for a ride and gave them ice cream to celebate Ice Cream week. A woman of Lake Shore drive last Friday invited a group of them to go to a toy factory in Barrington to learn how to make themselves a puppet theater.

Teachers from neighboring schools come to talk to Mr. Walsh about the problems of his big family. He knows if any one of them misses school and finds out why. Mr. Walsh even has a lineup on some of his "graduates. He's gotten jobs for several of his boys.

For the future Mr. Walsh wants a big house in the suburbs where his charges can be brought by bus after school and for week-ends. In the meantime he's crowding them all into the little house, giving them hot soup, baked beans, cabbage and woolen socks. He's giving them books and games and good competition. They wash dishes, mop floors and look out for paying jobs. On cold winter nights they sleep at the house on blankets on the floor, for there's no heat in their own flats.

Mr. Walsh has an advisory board of 20 industrial, school and social leaders, and is helped by the Old Glory chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, the Free Sons of Israel and the P. E. O. Sisterhood of Oak Park.

150 Shoes from Santa.

The Jewish organization this week is organizing a nonsectarian Boy Scout troop at the house. Next week Mr. Walsh will begin measuring 150 feet for shoes. An executive of a mail order house is giving the children the shoes and candy and toys for Christmas.

Mr. Walsh has spent five years seeing his great ambition "to give to the poor as the donor intended" grow. The only reward he wants is a light in the brown eyes of the little girl who was so hungry, and the roguish grin on the face of little Danny who this minute is wistfully looking up to him.

Directs Benefit

Mrs. Harold F. Morris, 9051 South Ada street, director at large and chairman of the ways and means committee for the public welfare department of the Englewood Junior Woman's club, will have charge of a luncheon, style show, and bridge party to be given Wednesday afternoon in the Carson Pirie Scott tearoom.

WPA FINDS 10,195 CHILDREN WITH FAULTY VISION

About 11½ per cent of Chicago's elementary school children required correction of vision defects disclosed in a survey now in progress, but the parents of 16 per cent of this group have failed to act on the recommendations.

This was announced last week by H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director. The WPA study, which began several months ago, is expected to end next June. Already it has encompassed 161 of the 337 elementary schools in the Chicago public school system.

Sight tests have been given to 89,065 children, Mr. Seltzer reported.

HARVARD DEAN WILL ADDRESS UNION OF CONGREGATIONALISTS

Dr. Willard L. Sperry, dean of Harvard's divinity school, will be the principal speaker at the 55th annual meeting of the Chicago Congregational union to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 7, in the dining room of the Chicago Real Estate Board building, 32 West Randolph street.

Dr. Willard L. Sperry.

Originally organized to develop new churches, this agency of the Congregational denomination is now responsible for more than forty active churches, neighborhood houses, community foreign language churches and various social enterprises. The general director of this program is Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie.

More than a thousand men and women of the Congregational faith are expected to attend the Dec. 7 meeting. Dr. Sperry, whose topic will be "The Present and Future of American Congregationalism," will be introduced by Attorney Frederick J. Newey, president of the union. Music will be provided by a combined choir of 250 voices from the seven largest churches of the metropolitan area, under the direction of Dr. George L. Tenney of the New First Congregational church.

TECHNICAL UNIT AT ST. RITA HIGH SCHOOL STARTED

Excavation has begun for the new St. Rita High school technical building, 63d street and Oakley avenue, according to an announcement last week by the Rev. Paul C. Potter, dean of the technical school.

The two story structure will be of red brick to coincide with the architectural design of the school buildings. It will be 110 feet long and 55 feet wide. The southern half of the basement will contain a large bleacher storage room while the other portion will be occupied by a bicycle room. An airplane shop will be located on the first floor, with space for three planes, an aero engine shop and large automotive shop. The second story will house the electric shop, refrigeration and air conditioning laboratories and a broadcasting studio.

Special courses will be extended to the third and fourth year technical students in the new building including automotive and ventilation classes specializing in Diesel and air conditioning. Anton Allan Morvay is the industrial engineer and technical consultant, while E. F. Husak is general contractor for the building.

WHAT LISTENERS CAN DO TO STOP HOLLYWOOD TREK

Write to Sponsors Whose Programs Offend.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The following letter is typical of many received from readers commenting on the recent article on this page in which the perils of concentrating radio programs in Hollywood were outlined:

You express my own reactions so perfectly that I felt as if I were hearing myself. But just what can radio listeners do to stop all this Hollywood nonsense? Just turning it off or throwing it in the ash can won't help. Have you any suggestions? Please print them if you have. I'm sure I'm not the only real radio fan who is disguested.

I know we have so much real talent here that it's a shame to have to listen to junk when I remember the many good programs that used to originate here. We used to have poor radios and good programs and now we have good radios and [mostly] poor programs. Is this progress?

DOROTHY VAN DEN BERG.
Chicago.

There is something listeners can do. They can protest in writing to the sponsor of the program that offends them, giving express reasons why they dislike it. If such complaints come in in sufficient numbers few sponsors will fail to heed them. Nothing has so depressing an effect on radio showmen gone Hollywood as unfavorable criticism from listeners. For it is hard to convince a sponsor that folks who dislike his program will feel any more favorably disposed toward his products.

In addition to explaining why you dislike a particular program it might help to enumerate some of the programs and performers, particularly those not now on the air, you especially like.

It is significant that among all the letters of comment received up to press time there was not one that defended the let-Hollywood-run-radio movement. Here are excerpts from other letters:

Every word you wrote is correct and expresses our family's sentiments perfectly. How sick unto death are we of Cecil B. De Mille and his——* gang and especially Louella Parsons with her affected nasal voice. . . ."

MRS. S. K., Chicago.

*Libelous adjective deleted.

Here's another a little more tempered:

Your column has given me courage to write and express my feelings about the increasing number of Hollywood programs being pushed upon us lately. Of course, I realize there are a variety of tastes and there are many who probably enjoy those Hollywood three-ring circuses. But there are also many of us who are becoming exceedingly tired of them.

Radio Theater is a real pleasure and we would miss it if it were taken off the air. . . . Hollywood Hotel was rather interesting when first presented, but has become rather boresome. . . . We tolerate Hollywood Mardi Gras because we do enjoy Lanny Ross' singing. . . . Music Hall is developing into a monotonous personal dialogue between Bing Crosby and that impossible Bob Burns. . . . Latest bore is Good News of 1938 which has proven the last straw to a long suffering public.

Those preview scenes the Hollywood studios give us, advertising a coming picture are nothing more than tantalizing. Sometimes they do leave us with that unsatisfied feeling of "Wonder How It Ends." But usually we have had enough of it so that we would rather see a picture of which we have not heard."

E. M. C., Chicago.

Editor's Note: To our household it seems that most previews of pictures tell too much of the story if one is still expected to go to see the picture, not enough to give any satisfaction in themselves.

A listener writes his first radio letter:

Your article is as timely as the Pope's check on Rev. Coughlin. I have been suffering for months now from double feature-itis and recently this plague has been aggravated by a dose of the same thing in radio—Hollywood on the screen in lethal doses and Hollywood in your home when you're attempting to recover from the lethal doses.

Especially true is your observation as to the quality of Hollywood radio performances. Definitly they are amateurish when compared to some of the established stars of radio.

This is the first letter I have ever written concerning acting, radioing, writing, etc. However, you have started something.

J. F. S., Chicago.

IRVING BERLIN GUEST TODAY OF GEORGE JESSEL

Tin Pan Alley's first and foremost son, Irving Berlin, is to be the guest star of George Jessel's "Thirty Minutes in Hollywood" program over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today.

Amy Arnell, Dorothy McNulty, Tommy Tucker's orchestra, and the magnetic voice of 7 year old Josephine Starr round out the hilarities from Hollywood.

MAREK WEBER

Song Stylist

Gracie Barrie, popular songstress now being starred at the Chez Paree, will be the guest star of the W-G-N and Mutual network show, Melodies from the Sky, at 9:30 o'clock on Wednesday night.

MISS SWARTHOUT SOLOIST TONIGHT ON CONCERT HOUR

Gladys Swarthout, youthful and charming American radio, concert and operatic star, will be the guest soloist on the Sunday Evening hour over WBBM from 8:00 to 9:00 p. m. Originating in Detroit, the concert will be under the direction of Eugene Ormandy.

Miss Swarthout's selections are popular aria, "Una Voce Poco Fa," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville"; then Tschaikowsky's familiar song, "Warum"; Molloy's ballad, "Love's Old Sweet Song," and then, with the chorus, Malotte's "Twenty-third Psalm." Miss Swarthout also will join with the chorus and the audience in singing the hymn, "America, the Beautiful," which will conclude the concert.

The orchestral selections will include the Overture to Von Weber's "Oberon"; Debussy's tone poem, "Clair de Lune"; Paganini's "Moto Perpetuo," and the Finale from Tschaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony."

Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, noted British duo-pianists, will be the soloists when John Barbirolli directs the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in the first complete radio performance of Poulenc's Concerto for Two Pianos from 2 to 4 p. m., today, over WBBM. The program is as follows:

Oxford Symphony in G major, No. 92 .... Haydn
Concerto for Two Pianos .... Poulenc
Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson.
Symphony in D minor .... Franck

Deems Taylor, CBS consultant on music, will give the program commentaries as usual.

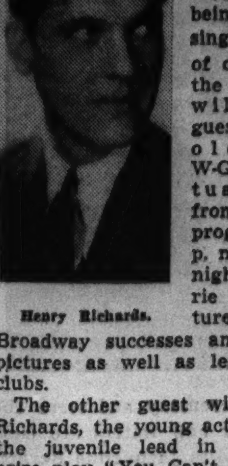
Director

Irving Reis, diretcor of the Columbia Workshop, who is to present "The First Violin" at 7 tonight from WBBM studios with a local cast.

GRACE BARRIE, HENRY RICHARDS GUESTS ON W-G-N

Song Stylist on 'Melodies from the Sky.'

Two well known figures of the entertainment world will be starred on W-G-N audience programs this week. Grace Barrie, popular song stylist now being starred as singing mistress of ceremonies at the Chez Paree, will be the guest on Harold Stokes' W-G-N and Mutual "Melodies from the Sky" program at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday night. Miss Barrie has been featured in many Broadway successes and in motion pictures as well as leading supper clubs.



Henry Richards.

The other guest will be Henry Richards, the young actor who plays the juvenile lead in the Pulitzer prize play "You Can't Take It with You," now at the Harris theater. Richards will be featured on "On a Sunday Afternoon" in a drama written specially for radio at 2 p. m. today.

Others who will be heard with Richards on the Sunday afternoon show are Clarence Lindsay and Jeri Paul, two young singers who won the latest Stokes' audition; the dance orchestra and chorus, Three Men and a Maid, a new quartet, and Edna O'Dell and Arthur Wright, with Jess Kirkpatrick as master of ceremonies. Other visible shows:

9:45 p. m.—Monday—The Pageant of Melody, with Henry Weber, the W-G-N Concert orchestra and chorus, Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Diane Clifton, young Chicago soprano, guest.

9:30 p. m.—Tuesday—The Northerners, featuring "Memories," with Gretchen Kolinar, contralto, as guest soloist.

9:30 p. m.—Thursday—The Concert Revue, with Henry Weber, the W-G-N Concert orchestra and chorus, and Kathryn Witwer and Lawrence Salerno as soloists.

9:30 p. m.—Friday—Curtain Time, with an all-star dramatic cast, directed by Blaire Walliser, presenting "The House Divided" by Margery Williams, featuring Virginia Clark.

JUSSI BJOERLING TO MAKE DEBUT WITH JERITZA

Jussi Bjoerling, leading tenor of the Royal Opera at Stockholm, Sweden, will make his American debut in the concert over WLS-NBC at 7 p. m. today. In his first appearance with the concert company he will sing with Maria Jeritza and the symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Rapee will open the program with Enesco's "Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1" and Bjoerling will sing two numbers, the "Che gelida manina" aria from Puccini's "La Bohême" and "La donna è mobile," from Verdi's "Rigoletto." The orchestra then will play the Danse Russe Trepak, by Tschaikowsky.

Mme. Jeritza will sing "Adieu, Forets," from Tschaikowsky's "Jeanne d'Arc," and the "Liebesleid" of Kreisler. The orchestra will present the andante cantabile from the Tschaikowsky Symphony No. 5, in E minor, opus 64.

Leeds with Chin

Andrea Leeds, the film star who was once kissed 467 times during a screen test, will chin with Charlie McCarthy on the 7 o'clock circus tonight from Hollywood via WMAQ-NBC.

MAGIC KEY TO ORIGINATE IN CHICAGO TODAY

Originating in Chicago, the Magic Key of RCA will present songs by Vina Bovy, Belgian coloratura soprano, and Edward Davies, NBC baritone; a specially written Vic and Sade sketch, music by orchestras under the direction of Marek Weber and Roy Shield, and another international interview, conducted by Linton Wells, famed newspaper correspondent, at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

Miss Bovy, who made her Metropolitan Opera company debut last season and who has been singing with the San Francisco Opera company this fall, will sing "Shadow Song," from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah"; Scarlatti's "Le Violette," "Juliet's Waltz Song," from "Romeo and Juliet," by Gounod, and Koechlin's "Si Tu le Veux."

Davies, Welsh born baritone of Chicago radio and concert fame, will be heard in "De Glory Road." Marek Weber, sensational Viennese dance conductor who is now filling an engagement in Chicago, will play "Gypsy, You Have Stolen My Heart," by Grothe, and Santeugini's "For You, Rio Rita."

IREENE WICKER WILL PRESENT "MEISTERSINGER"

Ireene Wicker will present her own "baby grand opera" version of Richard Wagner's famous opera "Die Meistersinger" over W-G-N and Mutual from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today.

Milton Rettenberg, pianist, will direct the accompanying string orchestra in continuous instrumental background music which he has arranged and simplified from the opera score.

On this program Miss Wicker will introduce a new singing find, Edward Roberts, a 14 year old lad from Norwich, Conn., who makes his professional debut at this time. Roberts is a star pupil of Frank La Forge and is a tenor of unusual ability. James Meighan, Charles Warburton, Eustace Wyatt, and Walter Tetley will play the other leading rôles.

WEEKS RETURNS TO ARAGON, W-G-N ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Jurgens Is to Follow Ted Weems' Band.

Freddy Martin, whose music has been a nightly feature over W-G-N and Mutual for months, will be followed at the Aragon and on the air next Friday night by Anson Weeks and his popular musical organization.

Anson Weeks.

Weeks, who made his mid-western debut at the Aragon a few years ago, returns to the ballroom following a successful tour of mid-western and southwestern states. His featured artists include Frankie Saputo, the charming and talented Margie Dee, and a newcomer, Jack Wells, whom Anson believes will prove a singing sensation.

At the Trianon, Ted Weems and his popular band enter the last two weeks of their engagement. They are to be followed by Dick Jurgens and his orchestra, the band that rose to almost overnight popularity in Chicago during its engagement at the Drake hotel.

With the opening of the Advent season "The Measure of a Man" is to be the general theme of the W-G-N Midday Service. The program is heard daily at 12:35 p. m. and the speakers for this week are:

Monday—The Rev. Father Patrick A. Kelley, Church of the Little Flower.
Tuesday—The Rev. Orvis F. Jordan, the Community Church of Park Ridge.
Wednesday—The Rev. Dewey R. Eder, First Evangelical church, Naperville.
Thursday—Rabbi George Fox, South Shore temple.
Friday—The Rev. Herbert Whiting Virgin, North Shore Baptist church.
Saturday—Dr. John L. Dickson, director.

JOHN WEICHER TO BE FEATURED BY ORCHESTRA

The fourth of the current series of popular concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be presented at Orchestra hall on Saturday and broadcast in full by W-G-N and Mutual system, starting at 8:15 p. m. Dr. Frederick Stock, veteran director, will conduct the concert, which will feature John Weicher, newly appointed concertmaster. The song for the community sing by the audience at the close of the program will be Stephen Foster's "My Old Kentucky Home."

The conicert program:

Overture, "Carnaval," opus 45 ... Glazounow
Symphony, D minor .... Franck
Suite for Orchestra, opus 19 .... Dohnanyi
"Midsummer, Wake," Swedish Rhapsody, opus 19 .... Alfven
Song, "My Old Kentucky Home" .... Foster

Lee Tracy, Joan Fontaine on Silver Theater Today

Lee Tracy, dynamic young actor, and Joan Fontaine, screen starlet, have selected "Hospitals Are for Sick People" as the vehicle for their appearance on the "Silver Theater" program over the WBBM-Columbia network at 4 p. m today. Conrad Nagel will be heard as narrator.

Big Date of the Year

Capturing the color and glamor of a West Point prom, cadets of the Calumet High school R. O. T. C. and their girls will dance Friday night at the thirteenth annual military ball in the Crystal ballroom of the Shoreland hotel. Members of the committee in charge and their "dates" for the evening are (left to right) Cadet First Lieutenant Roy Steuer, Betty Reinhold, Cadet Captain Alfred Garvin, Charlotte Cullen, Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Willis Gard, chairman, and Barbara Ann Summers. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

R. O. T. C. HEAD HERE RECEIVES DEGREE HE EARNED BACK IN 1902

Last week Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units, received his degree of bachelor of science—35 years after he was graduated from West Point.

Col. W. F. Morrison.

It came in the morning mail—a beautifully engraved certificate conferring upon him his new honor, and the colonel was shocked.

Not that there's a wild tale or any military dishonor connected with the tardy award. Hundreds of other army officers throughout the country found themselves in the same circumstance.

For congress just last July approved the bestowing of degrees by the United States Military academy, and the superintendent recently mailed out the certificates to all living graduates still in the service. Alumni no longer connected with the army will receive theirs upon application to the superintendent.

9 R. O. T. C. UNITS TO REACH AGE FOR HONORS IN JUNE

Nine of the Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units, which will complete three years of activity next June, will pass from the classification of "new" to "old" units, according to an announcement last week from R. O. T. C. headquarters. The schools affected are Amundsen, Englewood, Foreman, Harper, Kelly Steinmetz, Sullivan, Von Steuben, and Waller.

In their newly acquired status the nine will compete on an equal basis in all contests with the older units and will be eligible to receive an honor school rating after the annual federal inspection. The "new" units now are ranged merely satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

In June the Hirsch High school unit will remain as the only "new" group in the city, since it will be completing only two years of activity.

—Calumet—

Cadets of the Calumet High school R. O. T. C. will dance at the thirteenth annual Military ball Friday night in the Crystal ballroom of the Shoreland hotel.

Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Willis E. Gard is chairman of the committee in charge, and the other members are Cadet Captain Alfred D. Garvin and Cadet First Lieutenants Raymond H. Steuer and Allan E. Giesen. Miss Claire O'Reilly is the faculty adviser and Sergt. Stanley J. Tutlis, military instructor, is the sponsor.

Invitations have been sent to Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Col. William F. Morrison, head of the R. O. T. C. of the Chicago high schools; Maj. John H. Ringe, adjutant on Col. Morrison's staf, and Maj. Joseph I. Lambert, supervisor of the south side high school R. O. T. C. units.

LINDBLOM HIGH TO GIVE ANNUAL GRIDIRON DINNER

Lindblom High school will hold its annual football banquet at 6 o'clock Saturday evening in Hamilton Park fieldhouse. The Football Mothers club will serve the turkey dinner and Mrs. Robert Daley, president, will present gifts from the club. Speakers will include Edgar H. Palmer, assistant principal; E. Lansford Moore, football coach; Butler Laughlin, principal; Harry Keeler, district superintendent; Paul Stanger, sophomore coach; Jerry Burke, athletic director; Marian Zarzeck, 1937 captain, and George Ceithaml, 1938 captain.

Morgan Park

Officer appointments in the Morgan Park High school R. O. T. C. were announced last week by First Sergeant Henry E. Parrett, military instructor.

Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Robert Kerney heads the regiment. Others on the staf are Cadet Captain Richard Dibos, plans and training officer; Cadet Captain Robert Perkins, adjutant; Cadet First Lieutenant Martin Haedtler, personnel adjutant; Cadet First Lieutenant Walter Mullens, supply officer; Cadet Second Lieutenant Charles Drinkwater, publicity officer; Cadet Sergeant Major William Dieters and Cadet Sergeant Phillip Upp, supply sergeants. Cadet Captain John Spangler is executive officer, and Cadet Sergeants Howard Kamin and Kenneth Hohhof are color sergeants.

Cadet Majors Richard Schuba and Gilbert Wallace were named battalion commanders, and Cadet Second Lieutenants Charles Raeth and Harry Roebuck serve as battalion adjutants.

Cadet Captain Alexis Miller is commander of company A. He is assisted by Cadet First Lieutenant Norman Ward and Cadet Second Lieutenants Richard Briggs and George Dasher. Cadet First Lieutenant John Jackson heads company B. Cadet First Lieutenant Reid Bennett and Cadet Second Lieutenants Albert Bredlau and James Stiggleman serve with him.

Cadet First Lieutenant Wayne Dinsmore is company C's commander. He is aided by Cadet Second Lieutenant Eugene Schobinger. Cadet Captain William Nelson commands company D. Cadet Second Lieutenants David Lenox and Robert Moore assist him. Cadet Captain John Riddle and Cadet First Lieutenant Arthur Bethke head the band.

—Lindblom—

Four officers of the Lindblom High school R. O. T. C., at the request of the Parent-Teacher association, have been selected by Technical Sergeant Edward J. Depke, military instructor, to lead in the flag salute at the beginning of each meeting of the organization. The four are Cadet Major Ralph Wojohn, Cadet Captain Don Balderman, Cadet First Lieutenant Henry Mengel, and Cadet Second Lieutenant Howard Saar.

VERANDA COMES BACK AS ADJUNCT TO MODERN HOME

La Grange Modernization Places It at Side.

Learn how to save fuel and keep the house warmer. Read the booklet, "Let's Keep Warm — For Less Money," by Louise Bargelt, Tribune home builders' editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is a new type of modernization going steadily on. This is not the modernization of a more than three score and ten year old relic dramatically rescued from imminent death and as dramatically restored to life and another three score years of service. It is the remodeling of a house that is in no wise dilapidated, but which has ceased to live up to its owners' conception of a satisfactory, well designed home.

Rooms are too small and need to be enlarged; extra rooms and baths are needed; an old front entrance spoils the exterior; an inconvenient, scantily equipped kitchen adds hours to the work day of the home mistress; a heating plant lags on the job; these and a hundred and one other faults and failings that have not added to the joy of life are now being routed and remedied.

New Bedroom and Bath.

Dr. and Mrs. A. V. Anderson of La Grange decided there was no reason why they should not make a number of improvements on their home at 98 Malden avenue, so they called in a doctor of architecture, Harold Zook, 140 South Dearborn street, and outlined the major discrepancies between their house as it was and their house as they wanted it.

The size of the home suited the owners, but the time had come when they needed a new bedroom and bath for a maid and additional closet space. So this suite was built on the first floor.

A second structural change was the addition of a new porch-veranda opening from the dining room, with cement floor, wood walls, and a second floor porch above it. A very convenient spot, this second porch, for the airing of bedding and woolens as well as for midsummer night's coolness. This veranda is no mere appendage, but has been designed as a part of the whole architecturally.

Veranda Coming Back.

There was a time when the vogue for the inclosed sun porch threatened to rout the sun veranda from our domestic house picture. But we seem to be becoming veranda conscious again. Sometimes it is at the side of the house, sometimes at the back, but always, when well designed, an attractive unit tying indoors with outdoors.

Next came the living room and this received a great deal of thoughtful attention. At the left was an inclosed sun porch. This was divided from living room by a door and a fireplace wall, a treatment which neither added space nor light to the living room.

So the partition between the two rooms was torn down, the fireplace was removed to another wall and living room and sun room thrown together to make one large, beautiful room. The fireplace now is placed at back of the living room, with concealed closet beside it for logs.

Entrance Is Changed.

A new entrance was built at the front of the house, with fine detail, and new brick steps and walks and fresh coats of crisp white paint have joined hands with the interior structural renovation to bring the home to that state of beauty and serviceability which the owners desired.

There was no drastic change effected on the second floor, with the exception of the new outside porch which opens from one of the bedrooms.

Throughout the house the floors were refinished, the walls newly decorated and in the basement a new heating plant was installed.

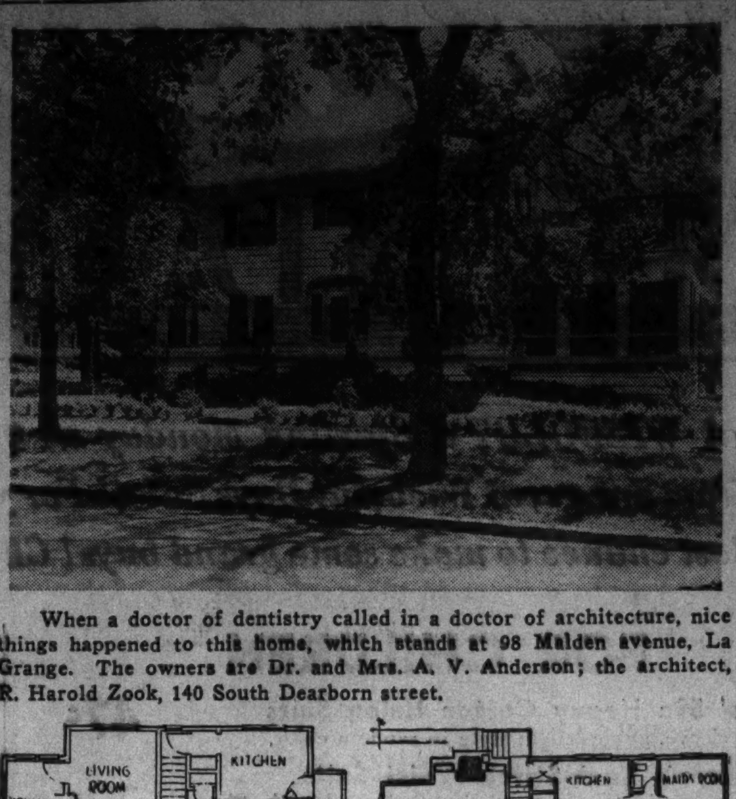
The new first floor plan has well cared for circulation, with owners' portion and service quarters well separated, but with the one readily accessible from the other.

An inspiration, this sane and deft type of modernization, which enlarges rooms and adds rooms—and beauty—to a home; a worthwhile inspiration to those who have problem houses; to those whose spirit is willing and whose budget is strong.

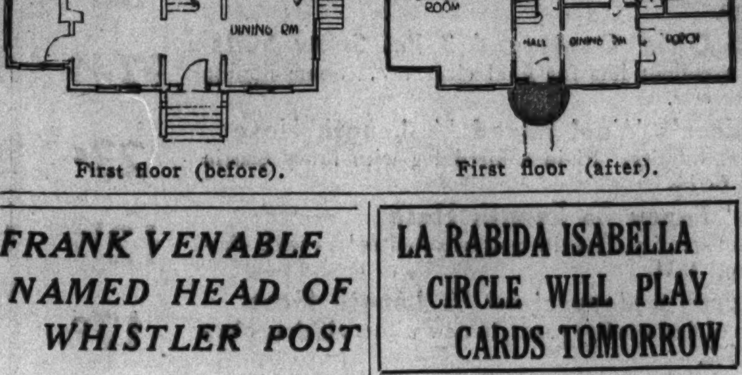
Kelly High School Alumni to Dance Friday Evening

The Kelly High School alumni association will hold its annual reception and dance Friday night in the school, 42d street and California avenue. Members of the June, 1937 graduating class will be guests. Harry Madalinski is chairman of the reception committee assisted by Joe Bagdonas, Miss Olga Grah, Walter Malinauskas and Edward Wroblewski.

Outmoded Home Rebuilt



When a doctor of dentistry called in a doctor of architecture, nice things happened to this home, which stands at 98 Malden avenue, La Grange. The owners are Dr. and Mrs. A. V. Anderson; the architect, R. Harold Zook, 140 South Dearborn street.



First floor (before). First floor (after).

FRANK VENABLE NAMED HEAD OF WHISTLER POST

Pick Carney as Senior Vice Commander.

Frank L. Venable recently was installed as commander of Capt. John Whistler post of the American Legion. Other officers installed by William Henry, commander of the Third district, are Jay C. Carney, senior vice commander; E. W. Watson, junior vice commander; Alexander Marshall, adjutant; Edward Schliep, finance officer; Edward J. White, sergeant at arms; George A. Mueller, judge advocate, and Edward Jacobson, historian.

The Third district auxiliary will hold a business and social meeting Wednesday night with the Oakland-Kenwood unit as host in the clubrooms at 3865 Cottage Grove avenue. Christmas activities and plans for the hospitalized veterans and for veterans' children in local institutions will be planned under the direction of Mrs. Laura Miller.

The auxiliary of Paul Schmidt post will hold a card party Friday night in the Legion hall, 1611 West 63d street. Proceeds will be divided between the community chest and the veterans at Orland Convalescent camp.

Speaking at the recent installation of the newly elected officers of Chicago Police post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, Capt. William J. Grace, senior vice department commander, pictured the similarity between conditions which the United States faced in 1917 and those of today. He exhorted those present to write to their senators, congressmen, and to the President demanding that the United States stay out of foreign entanglements leading to war.

A banquet in compliment to Commander in Chief Alfred J. Kennedy and Department Commander Charles E. Gilbert, United Spanish War Veterans, will be held Dec. 11 at the Morrison hotel. Veterans residing in Cook county may make their reservations with Cornelius S. Kelly, department quartermaster, 6915 Wentworth avenue.

The Cook county council, American Legion auxiliary, with Mrs. Ernest Duckett presiding, will hold its December meeting Friday at 1:30 o'clock in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle.

Bert A. Halligan of the field service division of the rehabilitation committee of the national organization of the American Legion will give the delegates information on the rehabilitation program for the coming year.

Mrs. Frank O. Wissman, rehabilitation chairman for the council, is planning a tour for members who are interested in making some Christmas purchases from the Veterans' Craft exchange, which will have headquarters for the holidays at Mandel Brothers. The tour is planned for 1 o'clock the same day of the council meeting.

Dr. Bertha Shaffer of the medical division of clinics for the Illinois Social Hygiene league, also will bring a message to the delegates. The meeting will be preceded by an executive board meeting at 10 o'clock.

LA RABIDA ISABELLA CIRCLE WILL PLAY CARDS TOMORROW

La Rabida circle, Daughters of Isabella will hold a card party tomorrow evening in the Orange temple, 68th and Green streets. Mrs. James Cummings, 5832 Carpenter street, is regent of the circle. Mrs. Martin McNamara, 7341 May street, is chairman of the party and her committee includes Mrs. Fred Bastien, Mrs. Thomas Crothers, Mrs. David McCullah, Mrs. Joseph Cronin, Mrs. Vern House, Miss Lulu Kelly, Mrs. A. H. Frank, Mrs. Garfield Peterson, and Miss Mary Metzler. A business meeting of the circle will be held Monday evening, Dec. 6.

CITY JUGGLES BOTTLENECK OUT OF 33D STREET

A bottleneck in 33d street at Claremont avenue has just been eliminated by a bit of juggling on the part of the city council.

Thirty-third street used to stop at Hoyt avenue. It was decided to extend it through to Western avenue, a distance of about two blocks. Owners of the right of way agreed to dedicate a 66-foot strip for the purpose.

The dedication ordinance was passed in 1930. Many months later, after the street extension had been laid out, it was found that because of faulty language in the ordinance, the new portion of 33d street was too narrow. At Western avenue the street was only 65.33 feet wide, and it tapered to 64.05 feet at Claremont avenue.

Mayor Kelly solved the difficulty, though. He got Charles O. and Anna Range Trimble to give the city a quitclaim deed for enough land to give 33d street its full 66-foot width all the way to Western avenue.

P.-T. HOMEMAKERS TO EXHIBIT YULE GIFTS TUESDAY

Council Members to Show Handiwork Products.

There will be no last minute Christmas shopping this year for members of the 32 parent-teacher associations in the Central West council of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. Finely sewn and neatly beribboned, their Christmas gifts will be ready for display Tuesday afternoon at the council homemaking exhibit and meeting in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

Mrs. Harvey L. Haushalter.

In addition to the exhibit, the program will include a homemaking dramatization written and directed by Mrs. H. L. Haushalter, Central West council homemaking chairman, and a talk on "Consumer Education" by Mrs. H. H. Siddall, state homemaking chairman.

Following the meeting, awards will be given to the association having the best display. Judges will be Mrs. Siddall, Mrs. Clark L. Reed, fourth vice president of the state, and Mrs. C. B. Smith, director of district 25.

Miss Vivette Gorman will give a baking demonstration before the Clara Barton P.-T. A. tomorrow afternoon in the assembly hall of the school, 77th street and Wolcott avenue.

Board members will meet Thursday afternoon in the teachers' lunchroom and Mrs. J. L. Lace will speak on "Sex Education for Parents" in the evening at the home of Mrs. D. O. Nichols, 7758 South Seeley avenue, parent education chairman.

A class in parliamentary procedure will be conducted Friday and Dec. 10 and 17 by Mrs. C. B. Smith, district director, at the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Paulina streets.

The Burroughs P.-T. A. will hold a card party Friday afternoon and evening in Lunaberg's hall, 2647 West 35th street, under the chairmanship of Mrs. James Rose and Mrs. Frank Koeppler. A bake sale will be conducted during the afternoon.

"Modern Books for Children of All Ages" will be the topic for discussion at a meeting of the parent education group of the Clissold P.-T. A. at 1:15 o'clock Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Stewart McNair, 11303 South Bell avenue.

Mrs. Gordon G. McNamara is chairman of a card party to be given by the Earle P.-T. A. Wednesday afternoon in Wieboldt's store, 63d and Green streets. The executive board of the association will meet at 9:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The mothers' chorus of the 85th and Wood streets P.-T. A. will meet at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Jesse Armstrong, 8435 South Marshfield avenue. Mrs. Martin Bleeker, 8641 South Paulina street, will be hostess to board members Wednesday evening in her home.

Harper High school P.-T. A. will conduct a card party tomorrow evening in the home of its ways and means chairman, Mrs. William Kempf, 6357 South Hermitage avenue.

Mrs. Carl Lundquist, president of the Holmes P.-T. A., will take part on the program of the Central West council homemaking meeting Tuesday afternoon in Gage park field house, 55th street and Western avenue.

The Hubbard P.-T. A. homemaking display at the Central West council exhibit Tuesday afternoon in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue, will be in charge of Mrs. Osborne Bergman, homemaking chairman.

Board members of the Kershaw P.-T. A. will assemble at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Marshall, 633 West 63d place, student aid chairman, Wednesday afternoon for a short business meeting and card game.

Cards will be played by the association Friday afternoon and evening in the home of Mrs. J. N. Rosen, 6915 South Sangamon street, school education chairman.

Mrs. Joseph Kase, president of the Sawyer avenue P.-T. A., will call a board meeting to order at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the teachers' lunch room of the school, 5248 South Sawyer avenue. The group's contribution to the Central West council homemaking exhibit Tuesday afternoon in Gage park fieldhouse will be in charge of Mrs. George Jedlicka, homemaking chairman.

An open meeting of the Sutherland P.-T. A. parent education group will be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the school library, 100th and Leavitt streets. Mrs. Alethea M. Coffman will be the main speaker.

Rehersals for the Wentworth P.-T. A.'s mothers' chorus are held at 1 o'clock each Tuesday afternoon in the school assembly, 6950 South Sangamon street. The first appearance of the chorus for the season will be Dec. 9 at fathers' night, conducted by the general association. Mrs. Erwin Anderson, membership chairman, has announced that a gain of more than 100 per cent in the enrollment has been made over last year.

Morgan Pk. Congregational Church to Have Yule Bazar

A Christmas bazar will be held Wednesday afternoon and evening by the Morgan Park Congregational church, 112th street and Hoyne avenue. Dinner will be served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock. Members of the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts and the Women's society will be in charge of booths. The Business Woman's group will present a short play after the dinner.

HEAD OF AMHERST'S BOARD TO SPEAK AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, headmaster for many years of Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. Dr. Stearns was recently elected president of the board of trustees of Amherst college, and many of the alumni of that institution will attend the service. Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in this main service, and the speakers will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes.

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns.

Taking into consideration that a considerable portion of the audience tonight will consist of the 4-H club boys and girls in Chicago for their annual convention, the subject of Dr. Stearns' address will be "Facing Realities," and included in the choir's program of Thanksgiving music will be Chadwick's popular anthem, "Thou Who Sendest Sun and Rain."

At the 7 o'clock service the Hamilton county, Iowa, 4-H club band and more than 1,000 club members will join in a program of vocal and instrumental numbers. The visitors will be welcomed by Henry P. Chandler on behalf of the Sunday Evening club, and R. M. Harrison, formerly of Iowa, now residing in Chicago.

THERE'S NO LIVING IN THIS HOUSE SINCE BIM FOUND THAT BABY ON THE DOOR-STEP LAST SUNDAY—
BENJAMIN GUMP— WILL YOU SEND THAT CHILD TO THE FOUNDLING HOME OR NOT ?
OOH— MAMA—DON'T BE HARSH— REMEMBER IT'S ONLY A LITTLE BABY
NO—A THOUSAND TIMES—NO—!
IS THAT YOUR FINAL WORD ?
IT IS, MADAM
THERE'S NOT ROOM UNDER THIS ROOF FOR THAT CHILD AND US—
OOH, MAMA— PLEASE
WHAT ?
YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE—EITHER THAT BABY GOES OR WE DO
B-BUT MAMA— SURELY YOU'RE JESTING
WELL— WHAT'S YOUR DECISION ?
YOU CAN'T SPEAK FOR MY WIFE— LET ME HEAR THAT FROM MILLIE'S LIPS!
MY DAUGHTER WILL DO AS I DIRECT—
VERY WELL, MRS. DE STROSS—IN THAT CASE MY DECISION IS— THE CHILD STAYS !!
—COME, DAUGHTER
THE WORLD WILL JUDGE THE CRUEL BEAST WHO HAS THROWN US INTO THE STREET
BUT MAMA— I DON'T WANT TO LEAVE
—HERE—PUT—YOUR HAT ON— LET'S GO — SHH— IT'S ALL RIGHT, DEAR— HE WON'T LET US GO— I'M TEACHING HIM A LESSON — MILLIE — MAMA — WAIT — OH — FOR GOODNESS SAKE — WAAH!

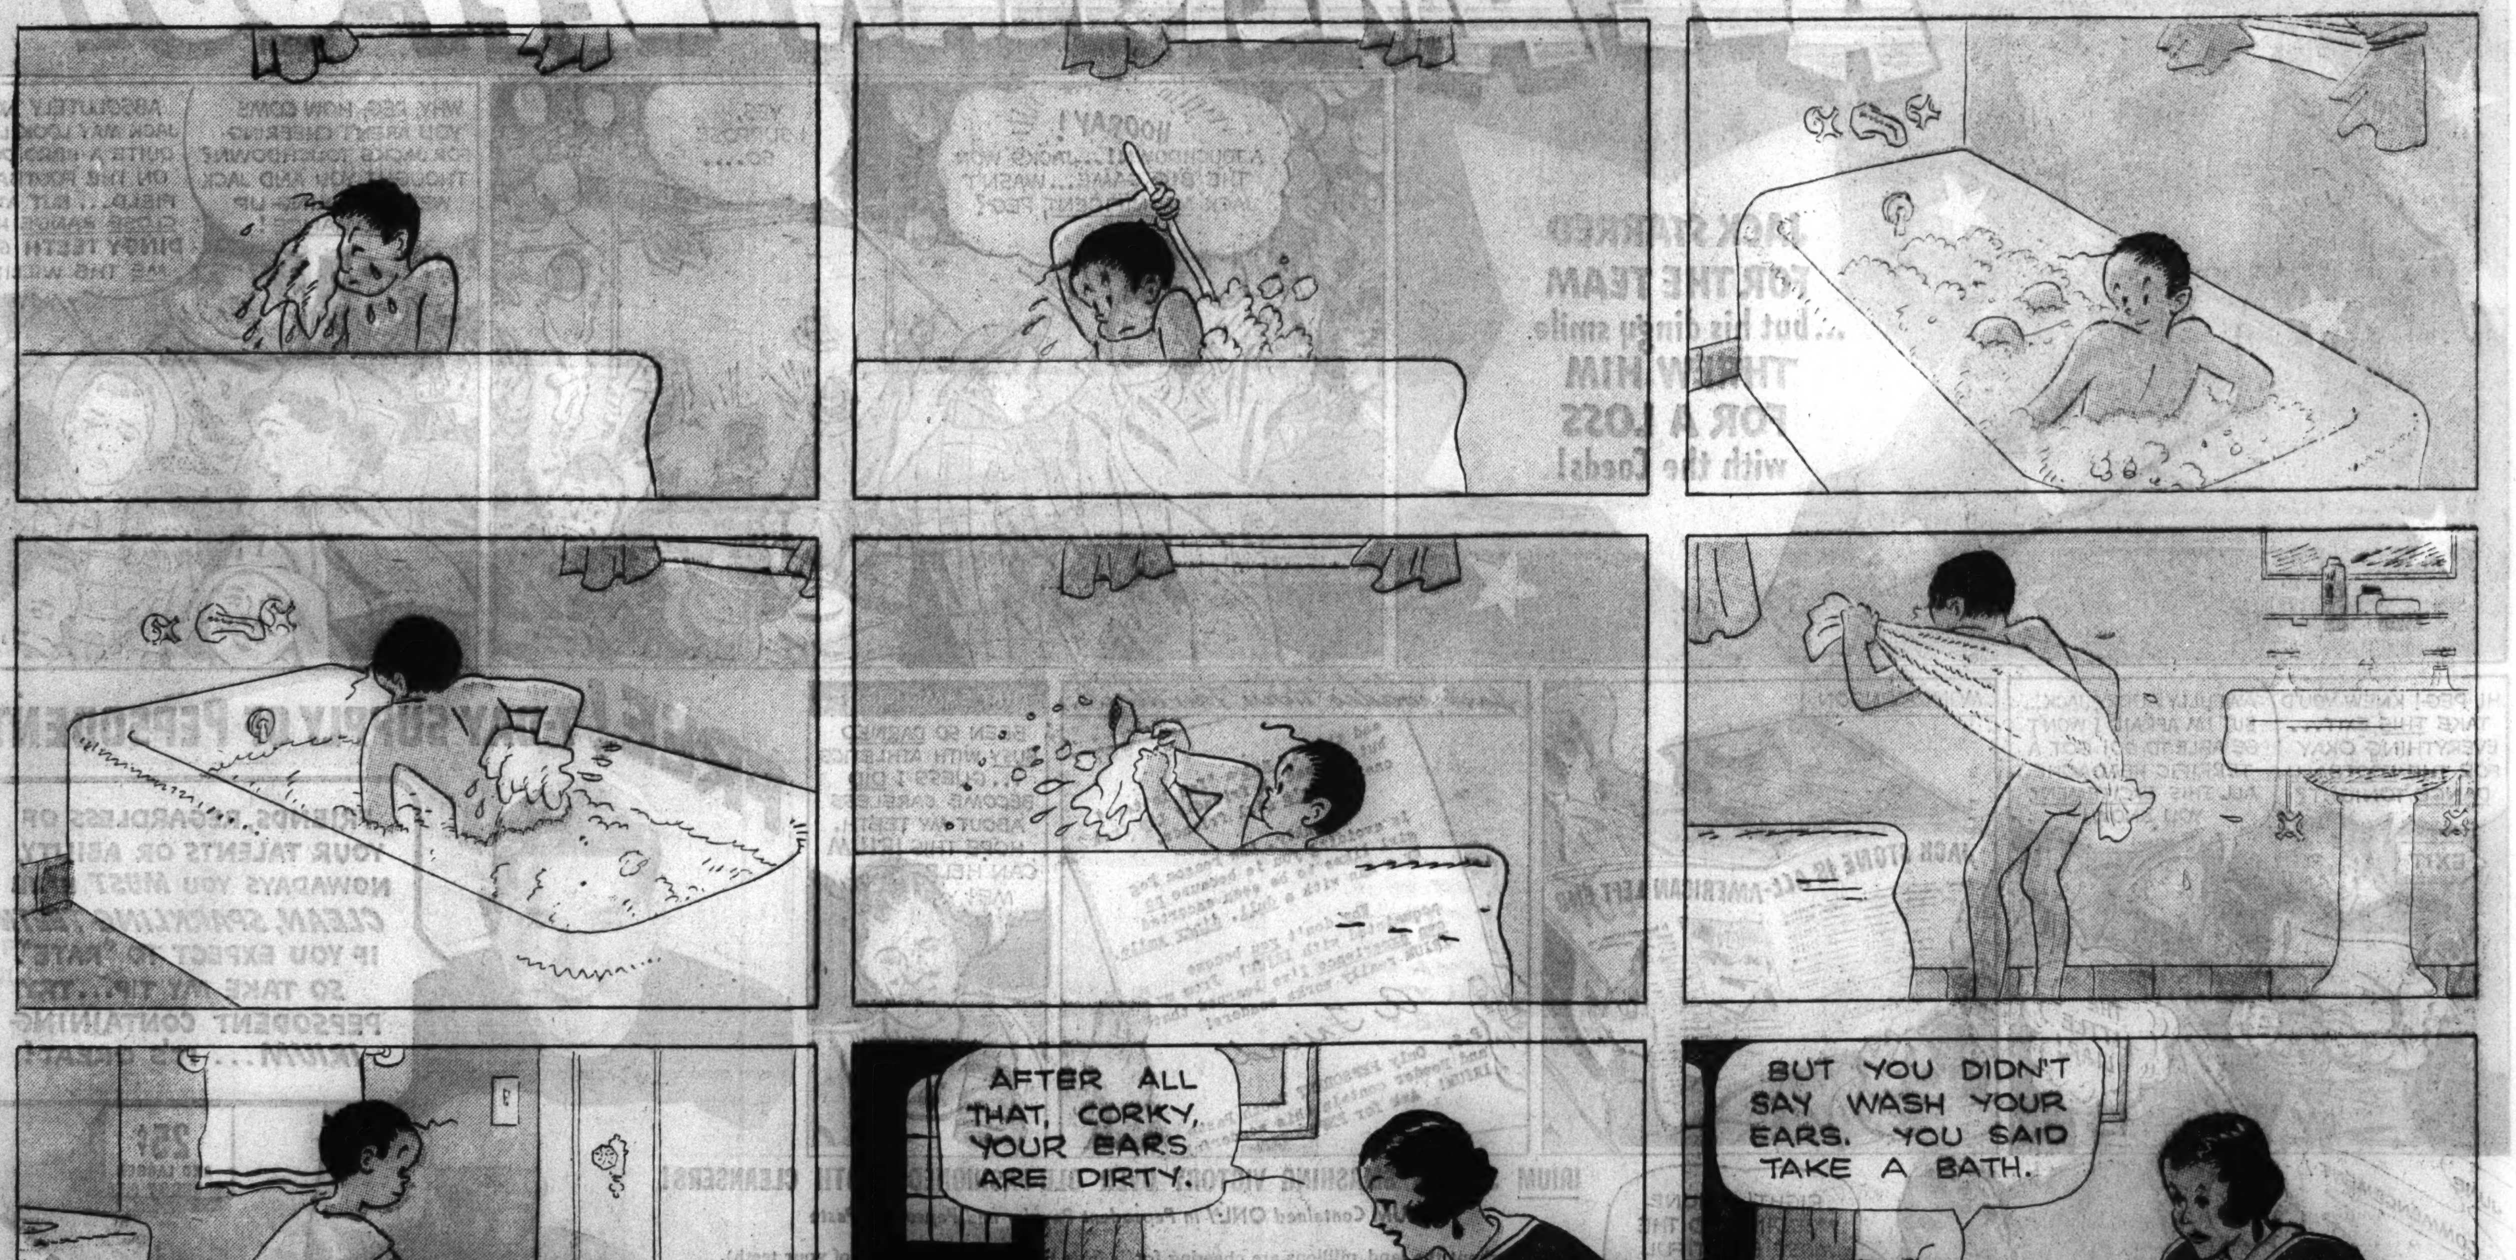
GASOLINE ALLEY
By King
BOY, AM I IN A SPOT!
I CAN'T TAKE 'EM ON! I PROMISED TO PICK UP NINA AFTER THE GAME.
SKEEZIX! HOW ABOUT A RIDE?
AN' IT WOULD BE WORSE TO PICK UP ONE THAN THREE!
HEY, TIGHTWAD! LOOSEN UP AND GIVE US A LIFT.
SURE THERE'S ROOM FOR FIVE!
HAVE A HEART, BIG BOY!
WE'LL TAKE NINA ON, TOO
BUT I'M LOOKIN' FOR NINA!
SHE'S PROBABLY RIDING WITH SOMEBODY ELSE.
HOOK YOURSELF ON SOMEWHERE, NINA!
COME ON, MUSCLE IN.
LOTS OF ROOM UP FRONT, NINA!
ALWAYS ROOM FOR ONE MORE
DON'T BOTHER, THANKS, I'LL WALK.
DON'T YOU THINK I CAN SEE WITH MY OWN EYES?
BUT, I TELL YOU, NINA, THEY JUST SWARMED AN' LIT ON ME.

CORKY



AFTER ALL THAT, CORKY, YOUR EARS ARE DIRTY.
BUT YOU DIDN'T SAY WASH YOUR EARS. YOU SAID TAKE A BATH.

COLOSSAL, MAMIE. SIMPLY COLOSSAL, MY DEAR.
GEE! DIDN'T IT HURTCHA ANY, MAMIE?
NO-TH' DENTIST GIVE ME A THING HE CALLED A LOCAL ANAESTHETIC BEFORE HE YANKED THE TOOTH OUT AND IT DIDN'T HURT A BIT, KAYO.
GEE WHIZ!
BOY, OH BOY! ONE A THEM LOCAL ANAESTHETICS WOULDA SURE COME IN HANDY WHEN MY FRIEND DICKIE GREAR GIMME THAT SOCK ON THE SNOOT YESTERDAY.
KAYO IS A CRY BABY! KAYO IS A CRYBABY! YEAH-YEAH-YEAH!
BAM!
WELL, HOW SHOULD I KNOW TH' WINDER WAS SHUT?
I AIN'T GONNA RUN YOU NO FOOT RACE, BUT WHEN YOU GET HUNGRY AND COME HOME I'LL WHALE TH' DAYLIGHTS OUTTA YOU FOR THAT.
YOU GO WAIT IN THE OTHER ROOM, SONNY-I WILL LOOK AT YOUR TOOTH IN A FEW MINUTES.
HEY, DOC, GIMME ONE A THEM LOCAL ANAESTHETICS, QUICK.

OH, BOY-IS THIS CAR A DANDY AND TO THINK MOM GOT IT FOR ONLY A DOLLAR-
WELL, TIM DID YOU WIPE OFF MY CAR?
YOUR CAR! SAY, WHO BOUGHT THAT RAFFLE TICKET?
GEORGE-I THINK I'D LIKE TO DRIVE-
AW, NIX-COOKIE-IT TAKES AN EXPERIENCED DRIVER TO BREAK IN A NEW CAR-
JUST LISTEN TO THAT MOTOR PURR-
LOOK WHERE YOU'RE GOING-YOU'RE OFF THE ROAD-
OH, I'M JUST TESTING HER OUT TO SEE HOW SHE TAKES THE BUMPS-
HONK! HONK!!
THE NERVE OF THAT GUY TRYING TO PASS ME UP WITH THAT OLD JUNK-HERE'S WHERE I HAVE SOME FUN-
TAKE YOUR FOOT OFF THE BRAKE! YOU'RE STANDIN' STILL! HAW! HAW!
WOW! SIXTY-FIVE! BEFORE YOU COULD WINK AN EYE-LASH-
GEORGE! STOP THIS CAR! DO YOU HEAR ME!
NOW, SMARTY-YOU CAN SIT IN THE BACK-I'M DRIVING THIS CAR FROM NOW ON!
BUT LISTEN, COOKIE-
NOW THIS IS MORE LIKE IT-YOU'RE NOT GOING TO RUIN MY NEW CAR-AND BESIDES, TWENTY MILES AN HOUR IS PLENTY FAST ENOUGH-
HONK HONK
HEY! TAKE YOUR CAR OUT OF REVERSE! YOU'RE GOIN' BACKWARDS! HEE! HEE!

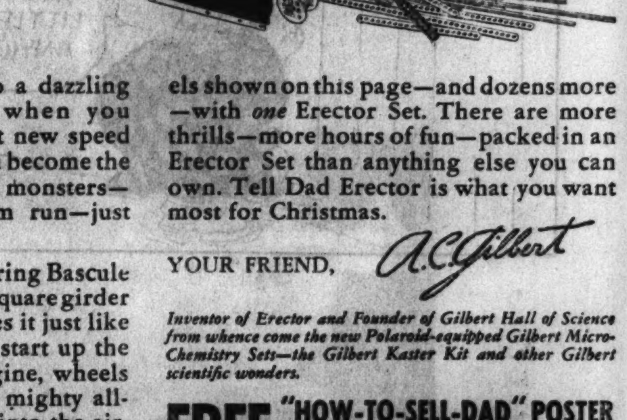
THE GILBERT HALL OF SCIENCE PRESENTS

The great New Speed ERECTOR

MORE THAN 100 MECHANICAL MARVELS
500 HOURS OF THRILLING FUN
OVER 15 LBS. OF ENGINEERING PARTS
ALL PACKED IN ONE ERECTOR SET



It's a humdinger, boys, this new No. 8½ Erector Set. The greatest development of the famous Gilbert Hall of Science. Contains over 15 lbs. of parts. Red, yellow and blue girders and structural plates. Glistening boiler shells. Big red wheels. A powerful 110 volt electric engine that reverses. Gears, pinions and other parts for building more than 100 giant, realistic engineering marvels. Its price is $12.95, and there are other Erector Sets from $1.00 to $27.50.

BOYS! You step into a dazzling new world when you own the great new speed Erector. A world in which you become the master of mighty mechanical monsters—creating them—making them run—just as your hands command.

Take a good look at that towering Bascule bridge. The patented Erector square girder with interlocking edges makes it just like real engineering. When you start up the powerful Erector electric engine, wheels whirr, gears crunch and the mighty all-steel structure is raised high into the air.

Or look at that walking beam engine. Doesn't it look keen? And wouldn't you like to build and run that busy-looking magnetic crane? You can make it raise or lower—swing to the right or left. Its electro-magnet is so strong, it grabs up steel girders before it touches them.

You can build all of the engineering models shown on this page—and dozens more—with one Erector Set. There are more thrills—more hours of fun—packed in an Erector Set than anything else you can own. Tell Dad Erector is what you want most for Christmas.

YOUR FRIEND, A. C. Gilbert

Inventor of Erector and Founder of Gilbert Hall of Science from whence come the new Polaroid-equipped Gilbert Micro-Chemistry Sets—the Gilbert Kaster Kit and other Gilbert scientific wonders.

FREE "HOW-TO-SELL-DAD" POSTER AND "GIMME" CARD

Don't waste a minute in sending for my colossal "How-to-Sell-Dad" Poster. 7 square feet of spectacular scientific pictures. Life size illustrations in full colors of the new Speed Erector, and the exciting models it makes. Ten tips on how to get Dad to give you an Erector. Also, I will send you a "Gimme" card that will bring a smile to Dad's face and help you get all the Christmas presents you want most.

FREE! MAIL THIS COUPON OR 1¢ POST CARD

TRADE SCHOOLS—MEN.

—YOU MEN— WHO WANT TO GET SOMEWHERE

In the new and rapidly growing field of

AIR CONDITIONING

CONSIDER THIS!

To our knowledge the Training offered by the Refrigeration & Air Conditioning Institute, of Chicago, is THE ONLY ONE IN THE ENTIRE AIR CONDITIONING FIELD THAT IS ACTUALLY DIRECTED AND SUPERVISED BY ENGINEERS AND EXECUTIVES WORKING RIGHT IN THE INDUSTRY.

Also—more than 70 of the leading manufacturers in this industry are "officially" endorsing and recommending R-A-C-I Training because they know that under such supervision, any man taking it is going to be trained exactly as they want him trained.

Again!—Isn't it reasonable to suppose that after "officially" endorsing this Training that these same 70 manufacturers—and their thousands of distributors and dealers, everywhere—will give our graduates the preference when they have jobs to fill, everything else being equal, of course?

And trained men are needed—don't overlook that—hundreds of them, in fact. But first they must be trained—and trained right. That's our job. And that's the reason for this ad—we are looking for men who are really interested in a future.

Because of our pledge to these manufacturers to be extra careful we are accepting for training only men of good character, fair education, and with some mechanical ability.

If interested, and can qualify, write or call

AIR CONDITIONING AND REFRIGERATION

YEAR 'ROUND INDUSTRY NEEDS TRAINED MEN AT ONCE.

Get started NOW in the new but already booming Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Industry. Get started NOW while there are far more jobs than trained men to fill them . . . while the field is wide open for quick jumps to important posts . . . while there is plenty of room at the top.
HOW to get started? It takes training such as you get in Thermo Institute courses. Home-and-shop or resident study in fully equipped Chicago school gives you theory and principles . . . plus actual practice on the very equipment that you'll build, sell, install, operate, or service after you graduate. The "early birds" are getting this training NOW. Do you have the vision and plain "get-up" to be among the first in this rising industry? Prove it . . . send for free 16 page book, "The Air You Breathe."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Blue Goose Mystery

Nov. 27, 1937.

THE blue goose that dropped down to Half Moon pond before cold weather arrived and had all the boys wondering what species of bird it was, won't join the Canada geese for a quiet restful winter on the farm. When the flockmaster visited the pond a few days ago to look over the Muscovy ducks he found the wild goose was dead. Now the mystery surrounding the appearance and career of this goose is more baffling than ever.

One of the boys on the farm said the other day that this blue goose obviously wasn't well, although it could fly. When he examined the bird [after it died] he noticed how thin it was. We also observed the emaciated condition of the goose when we saw it the other day.

Haven for Waterfowl.

Although most of the geese and mallards have left northern Illinois the big pond on the farm continues to be a haven for a small flock of waterfowl. This is not surprising considering the fact that they get food at this pond and don't have to worry about anybody shooting at them. When we looked at the mallards on the pond the other day there were about twenty-eight of them sitting on the ice, with the wild geese stalking around them as if they were a self-appointed police force.

Although we saw only twenty-eight of the ducks, one of the men on the farm says that around evening the flock is apt to number 75 to 100. Most of the birds leave in the morning to feed in the fields. They return to the pond around sundown to spend the night there and pick up another little snack of free food. Grain is distributed around the pond every day, so the mallards always are able to get a meal.

The Muscovy ducks now are in their winter home at the farm. They didn't want to leave Half Moon pond even when it froze solid several days ago. But the flockmaster decided that it was about time for all the ducks to join the rest of the poultry. To get these birds back to the barnyard was no easy job. When it was decided to move them from the pond the birds were given no food for a day or two. Usually when they want something to eat the Muscovys will fly to the barnyard.

The idea was to have the birds come home under their own power by making them hungry and forcing them to come to the poultry yard. The ducks fooled everybody by sitting tight. It was useless to try to drive them home because they can fly like wild birds. Finally one of the men decoyed them into a pen with corn, put them in boxes, and hauled them back to the barnyard, where they will spend the rest of the winter.

Turkeys Change Beds.

The turkeys that managed to get by the annual hazard of Thanksgiving day are not taking any chances of having their sleep disturbed or falling from their roosts. They have changed their roosting spot in the barnyard, a move that has given everybody a new appreciation of the turkey's ability to do a little "master minding."

In former winters the turkeys used to roost in a box elder tree. Now many of them go into an elm tree nearby, while some of the flock perch in an apple tree. We couldn't figure out why the birds made this change. The flockmaster solved the question the other day when he told us that the box elder tree is old, and some of the limbs have been breaking when overloaded with big turkeys. After a few tumbles to the ground the turkeys have picked new and safer trees for the night's sleep.

MR. C. OWED $1,100 UNDER A CONtract on his house, 4 years' taxes, some repair bills and a past due mortgage. Mr. C. wanted us to make him a loan to pay on these items and to buy a new furnace besides. You see Mr. C. got his job back.

The FHA O. K.'d a loan but required additional repairs of the 21 year old stucco house. However, the loan was not enough to pay everybody so we got the mortgage holder and the title holder to cut $1,100 from the amounts due, paid them off, paid the repair bills, and paid the taxes after getting the penalties cut.

The house now is really good as new and our clients have a heavy burden off their minds because our mortgage will be paid off completely by comfortable monthly payments over a period of 15 years.

We like to serve you, too. 5% FHA loans up to 80% of value on homes—brick, stucco and frame—apartments, stores, small factories and good gas stations. We handle our own funds, 5 plans. We finance purchasers and builders. Quick, honorable dealings. MILWAUKEE-WESTERN MORTGAGE CO. 1954 N. Western-av., Brunswick 6200.

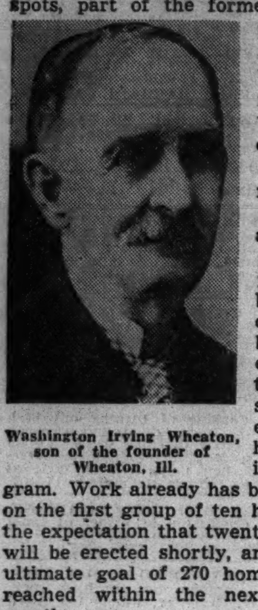
Syndicate Buys 55 Acre Tract in Wheaton for Home Building Program

WORK STARTED ON FIRST GROUP OF RESIDENCES

Land Bought from Estate of Early Settler.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One of Du Page county's historic spots, part of the former Wheaton property of Jesse C. Wheaton, founder of Wheaton, comprising approximately fifty-five acres, was purchased yesterday by a syndicate headed by two Chicago architects, as the site of an extensive home building program. Work already has been started on the first group of ten houses with the expectation that twenty-five more will be erected shortly, and that the ultimate goal of 270 homes will be reached within the next eighteen months.



Washington Irving Wheaton, son of the founder of Wheaton, Ill.

The property, purchased from the Gary-Wheaton bank, as trustee for the Washington Wheaton estate and containing 270 lots, is bounded on the north by Roosevelt road, on the east by the Green Valley Country club grounds, on the south by the Wheaton city limits, and on the west by the Warrenville road. Each of the 270 lots bought has fifty feet frontage, with varying depths, from 150 to 190 feet.

Will Be Ready in March.

According to Rissman & Hirschfeld, Chicago architects, each of the proposed houses will be of different design. One of the initial ten will have five rooms and the other nine will have six rooms. All will have solid brick walls. The first group will be ready for occupancy about March 1, it was said.

"Arrangements have been completed with the Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago for Federal Housing administration loans for financing the entire project," said Maurice B. Rissman, president of the Washington Wheaton Development company, representative of the syndicate owner.

"We expect to have our entire home building program completed in about one and a half years—that is, erect a house on every one of the 270 lots we own. Progress, however, will depend entirely on how the initial group appeals to the public."

Will Use FHA Loans.

The price range will be from $7,275 to $8,875, with down payments of 20 per cent under the FHA plan, or, in other words, an 80 per cent mortgage. This would mean monthly payments as low as $38.86 on principal and interest and including taxes over a period of 19½ years, the length of the FHA loans.

The price of each house includes the cost of all improvements. There will be no special assessments, it was said. Gas, electricity, water, and sewers already are in. Pavement is to be installed as fast as home construction calls for it by the Washington Wheaton Development company at no cost to the property owner, it was said.

All of Different Design.

The houses will be of different design, all with attached garage and many with fireplaces. All will have provision for a recreation room in the basement if the owner wants one later. They will be heated with warm air, with the kind of fuel used discretionary with the buyer.

The new Washington Wheaton subdivision has been laid out with winding roads by Harold F. Steinbrecher, of Wheaton, and all homes will be set back forty feet. They will be staggered in some instances so each house will have a view down the street. Later it is planned to try out the method, popular in the east, of having living-room windows overlook the rear lawns and kitchens face the streets. As there are no alleys, each square block will have a large, park-like area in the center.

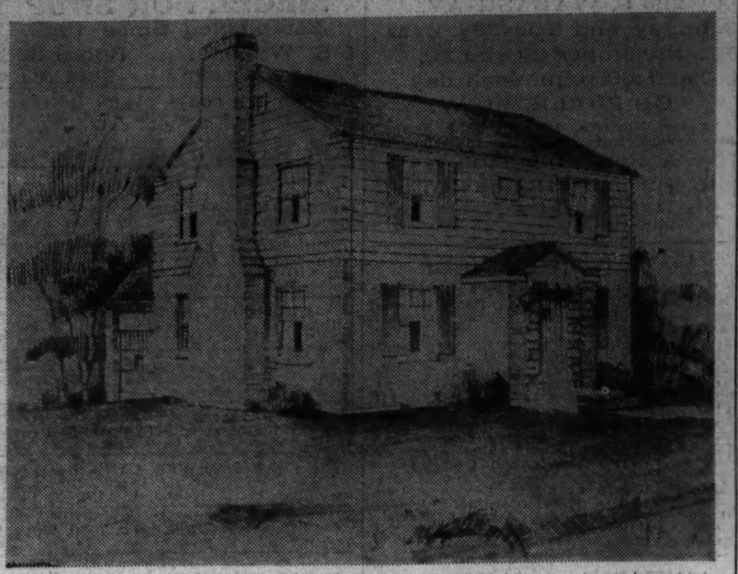
Town Named for Settler.

The name of Wheaton was given to the Du Page county seat by the Galena and Chicago Union railroad, now the Chicago and North Western railroad, in 1856 in consideration of the granting by Jesse C. Wheaton of the right of way over his property. Wheaton in 1837 acquired a government tract bordering on the south of what is now Roosevelt road. Here was built the first log cabin which served as a homestead, and here was born his son, Washington Irving Wheaton, who later inherited the property and who died in 1935 at the age of 85.

This land, just acquired by the home building syndicate, is across Roosevelt road from the Wheaton High school and park, with which it is connected by a pedestrian subway. On Park avenue, one block south of Roosevelt road in the new development, is the modern Whittier grade school.

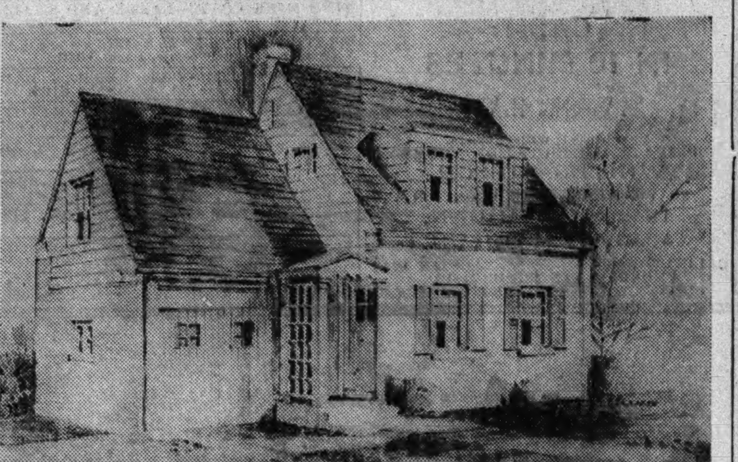
The development concern has its office at the southeast corner of Roosevelt and Warrenville roads, on the property. It also has a downtown office at 201 North Wells street.

Colonial Home for New Subdivision



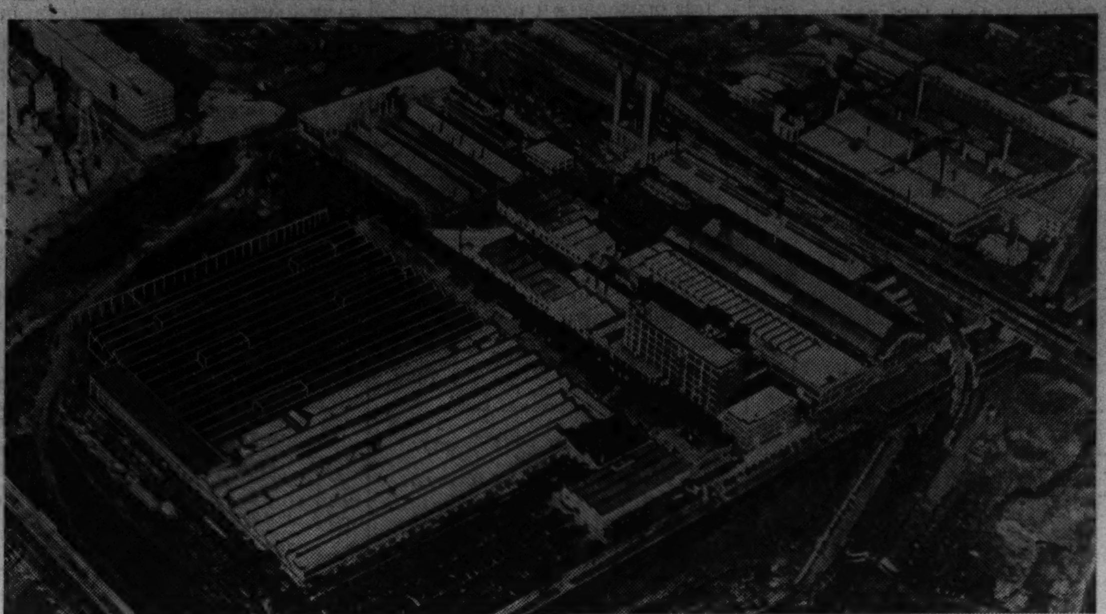
This house is one of the ten residences comprising the initial group now under construction in the new Washington Wheaton subdivision at Wheaton, south of Roosevelt road and directly across from the Wheaton High school. It has a 12 by 20 living room with fireplace, a 11 by 11 dining room, kitchen, and attached garage. Upstairs there are three bedrooms and bath. The exterior walls are of solid brick on the first floor and wooden siding above. Rissman & Hirschfeld are architects.

Cape Cod Suburban Home



This Cape Cod cottage type is now being built in the fifty-five acre Washington Wheaton subdivision, opposite the Wheaton High school, from plans by Rissman & Hirschfeld. It has a 13 by 19 living room, with dining alcove and kitchen on the first floor. Upstairs are three bedrooms and one bath. There is an attached garage. The site is on Wheaton avenue just north of Arbor avenue.

Air View of $1,000,000 Addition to Harvester Tractor Works



The new million dollar addition to the International Harvester company's tractor works at 3600 West 31st boulevard is indicated by the black block with white lines at left center. This project, which will make the plant one of the world's largest tractor manufacturing establishments, is scheduled for completion by May 1, 1938. The new unit will be used entirely for the production of crawler type tractors as distinguished from the wheel type. It will have 240,000 square feet of floor space, bringing the total for the plant to about 1,400,000 square feet. Thirty-first boulevard is shown in the foreground.

First Units in Eighteen Bungalows on Northwest Side

These two homes at the northeast corner of Roscoe and Rutherford, designed by Dewey & Pavlovich, are the first of eighteen bungalows to be built in the block bounded by Roscoe, Rutherford, Cornelia, and Normandy, according to the Milwaukee-Western Mortgage company, Inc. The company made Federal Housing administration mortgages on the first two and will finance the other sixteen homes. The builder is the Normal Construction company.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Nov. 19 to 25, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 13, with a combined cost of $225,000. For the corresponding week last year there were 28 contracts totaling $2,632,334. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $51,861,021, compared with $44,887,698 for the same period last year.

DISBURSE CASH TO BUILDING STOCKHOLDERS

Officers of three building corporations and one liquidation trust yesterday announced cash distributions. Seventy-five cents a share was paid on Nov. 26 to stockholders of the Tower Building corporation at 63d street and Harper avenue.

On Nov. 22 a distribution of $1 per share was made to stockholders in the Congress Building corporation, owner of the Congress theater and apartments at Milwaukee avenue and Rockwell street.

The 7000 South Shore Drive liquidation trust will make a cash payment of $1.25 per trust unit on Dec. 1. The 3335 Diversey Building corporation paid $1.50 a share to stockholders on Oct. 1. All these properties are operated or directed by F. L. Winston & Co., Inc.

FIFTEEN FLAT BUILDING SOLD FOR $32,500

The fifteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Evans avenue and East 62d street, 72 by 125 feet, was sold yesterday by the Northern Trust company to Joseph H. Joukema for a reported $32,500. Of this, $17,500 was cash and the balance a $15,000 mortgage. Fred A. Shoup and Homer C. Bowlby of McKey & Poague, were brokers. The building was built two decades ago by Gus Ganderson, associated with Harper Brothers, then one of the largest builders on the south side.

BUYS NORTH SIDE RESIDENCE.

Israel Slavin, president of the Auto Forwarding company, bought from Mrs. Isidor Weil the residence at 832 West Hutchison street [formerly Kenesaw terrace] for an undisclosed consideration. Felix Visk of Baird & Warner represented the buyer, and Victor A. Mingers of Hogan & Farwell the seller.

MORTGAGE FIRM MAKES LOANS ON 58 RESIDENCES

The foundations are in and the masonry work started on two residences at 1630 and 1715 North 77th avenue in Elmwood Park. Federal Housing administration loans of $7,200 each were made on the two homes by the Milwaukee-Western Mortgage Company, Inc.

According to S. D. Jonas of that company, these two houses are the first of forty residences to be erected in that immediate vicinity during the winter and spring by William L. Wallen & Sons. All will be financed by FHA loans made by the Milwaukee-Western Mortgage company.

Jonas also reports having made FHA loans on two houses at the northeast corner of Rutherford avenue and Roscoe street, which are the initial units in a building program of the Normal Construction company calling for eighteen bungalows in the block bounded by Rutherford, Roscoe, Normandy, and Cornelia. Dewey & Pavlovich are architects.

Will Wreck South Wabash Building for Parking Lot

Congress Auto Parks, Inc., has leased the 40 by 165 foot space at 616-18 South Wabash avenue, from Frederick J. Tourtellotte of Longmeadows, Mass. When the present three story building is wrecked the premises will be used for open air parking. E. N. Weart & Co. represented the lessor and John F. Jones, of Jones & Kerfoot, the lessee.

Corporation Buys 33 Flat Building for $65,000

The Belle Plaine Building corporation bought the thirty-three apartment building at 839-51 Belle Plaine avenue, from Hattie E. Thwaite of Milwaukee for a reported $65,000. Frankenstein & Co. and Thomas D. Bell, Inc., were brokers. Sabath, Perlman, Goodman & Rein were attorneys for the seller and Pennish & Rashbaum for the buyer.

CHICAGO ARCHITECTS INVITED TO ENTER LE BRUN COMPETITION

Chicago architects and architectural draughtsmen are invited to take part in a nation-wide competition for the 1938 Le Brun traveling scholarship, the New York chapter of the American Institute of Architects announced yesterday.

The scholarship provides $1,400 in cash as an award to "a deserving and meritorious architect or architectural draughtsman resident anywhere in the United States to aid him in paying the expenses of a European trip lasting not less than six months."

Nominations must be made by members of the institute before Jan. 15, 1938, according to Liver Reagan, New York, chairman of the scholarship committee. The competition problem will be issued about Jan. 17, calling for drawings to be delivered about March 15.

Candidates must be between 23 and 30 years old, to have practiced architecture for at least three years, and never to have received any other traveling scholarship. The winner of the competition will be chosen by a jury of three architects.

Nominate Banker to Head Lambda Alpha Fraternity

Edward D. Benninghoven of the real estate department of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company was nominated president of the Ely chapter of Lambda Alpha fraternity at a meeting held on Nov. 22 in the Winnetka offices of Robert B. Whitaker & Co. Others nominated were Fred H. Wolff, vice president; William S. Becker, treasurer, and Winston Porter, secretary. Lambda Alpha, an honorary land economics fraternity, was founded several years ago at Northwestern university to foster the study of land and its use in various colleges.

NEW YORK FIRM LEASES SPACE ON FILM ROW

Grand National Films, Inc., of New York, distributor of motion pictures, yesterday leased the entire third floor of the Film Exchange building, 831 South Wabash avenue, for a term of years at an undisclosed rental.

The 6,000 square feet leased will be remodeled by the lessee for its midwest executive offices and distributing departments. Frank C. Wells of L. J. Sheridan & Co. was broker for all parties.

Cook Estate to Modernize South Wabash Building

A modernization program will be started this week on the three story building at 1315-25 South Wabash avenue, owned by the Cook estate, of which Chester and Raymond Cook are trustees. Plans by Frederick Schmidt call for a new front and new interior to cost a reported $40,000. A. L. Jackson & Co. have the general contract. A. M. Brown, agent for the estate, said that the National Theater Supply company has leased most of the first floor and the Allied Theaters of Illinois the second floor. The structure will be renamed the Exhibitor's building.

Home Building Sag Cuts Total of Construction

Decreased home building throughout the nation brought the total value of building permits during October below that of the preceding month and also that of October, 1936. According to reports received by Secretary of Labor Perkins from 1,496 cities, the total value of new construction last month was 4 per cent less than in September and 5 per cent below that of October, 1936.

It was pointed out that despite an increase of 22 per cent in the value of new nonresidential buildings the slump in home building pulled down the total.

Residential Building Declines.

The value of new residential construction was 16 per cent less than in September. The value of additions, alterations, and repairs to existing structures also showed a decrease of 20 per cent.

"Compared with October, 1936, the value of residential buildings for which permits were issued showed a decline of 27 per cent," Secretary Perkins said. "The value of additions and repairs showed a decrease of 16 per cent over the same month last year. In contrast, there was an increase of 40 per cent in the value of new nonresidential buildings."

During the first ten months of 1937 the aggregate value of all classes of building construction was 12 per cent higher than the same period of last year.

Chicago in Fifth Place.

Chicago continued in fifth place in American cities in building construction during the first ten months of this year. New York lead with $219,722,000. Los Angeles was second, with $57,305,000; Detroit, third, $47,716,000; Washington, fourth, $39,909,000, and Chicago next with $32,821,000.

Following Chicago come Philadelphia, with $32,402,000; Boston, with $18,647,000, and San Francisco, $18,320,000.

At the Realty Boards

President Fred M. Lorish has presented the Chicago Real Estate board with an oil painting of an Illini Indian by James E. McBurney, a Chicago artist connected with the Lorado Taft studio. The gift was announced at the annual Thanksgiving dinner tendered by the board to former presidents on Tuesday.

President Lorish will speak at the southwest divisional meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards Wednesday.

The annual banquet of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 15, at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. The new officers and directors will be inducted into office after the dinner. There will be a floor show and dancing at 9 p. m. Plans are being made for 350 guests. The banquet committee, of which V. J. McDonnell is general chairman and Roland Peterson and Florence Cook are co-chairmen, includes Lewis T. Dodds, treasurer; Alder R. Tighe, program chairman; Dorothy E. Wink, chairman on arrangements, and William A. Sadler, publicity.

The second session of the educational course conducted by the North Side Real Estate board will be held tomorrow evening at the New Lawrence hotel, following a turkey dinner. This meeting will be in charge of T. E. Boswell, chairman of the insurance committee, who has two speakers: Eugene F. Engelhard, whose subject will be "How Real Estate Offices Can Develop Profitable Insurance Business," and W. S. Ellis of the Royal Insurance company, who will tell "How to Meet the Competition of Mutuals."

North Hamilton Avenue Flats Are Sold for Cash

Morris Jaffe sold the six flat building at 6154-56 North Hamilton avenue to Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Tuohy for an undisclosed cash consideration, according to John J. Kern, who represented both parties.

BUILDING LACK BLAMED ON FEAR OF WASHINGTON

Administration Assailed by Title Officer.

Lack of confidence in the present administration at Washington is one of the answers to the question "What is wrong with the building industry?" and the most important one, in the opinion of Paul P. Pullen, of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Paul P. Pullen. [Koehne Photo.]

One of several speakers invited by the Illinois Society of Architects to discuss the present lethargic condition of construction in general, Pullen asserted that although there are several other reasons for the lack of building, fear of what may happen at Washington leads all in its influence on this industry and on business in general.

Reports Lack of Confidence.

"Included in this general lack of confidence in the present administration," he said, "is lack of confidence in the government's fiscal policy, the lack of confidence that it ever intends to balance its budget, and lack of confidence in the administration's plan of managed economy.

"If the administration had been able to retain the confidence of the people which it enjoyed in 1933 we would now be well on our way toward complete recovery instead of in the midst of a recession."

Pullen asserted that one ailment of the building industry is a widespread preference for buying automobiles before purchasing homes.

"This is a comparatively new social aspect which has had definite repercussions throughout the construction field," he said. "A generation or more ago the man who did not own at least an interest in a home, however small, even in the larger cities, was considered little better than a nomad.

"Home Once Prime Goal."

"The prime goal of every bride and groom, next, possibly to rearing a family, was the down payment on a small house, and the older couple who did not provide a home of their own for a growing family was considered a failure."

Today, Pullen said, a couple buys a car first and thinks of a home later on, or continues a renter with more interest in motoring than home building.

Other reasons he gave for the lack of building were the unemployment and relief situation, high cost of construction, high and uncertain taxation, and what he called a lack of organization in the building industry.

Called Guinea Pig of Depression.

Other speakers at the architects' meeting, held at the Architects' club, were Russell G. Creviston, president of the Producers' Council, Inc.; Oscar W. Rosenthal, president of the Builders' Association of Chicago; Otto Randolph, president of the Associated Builders of Chicago, and W. L. Cohrs, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Creviston asserted that the building industry was the guinea pig of the depression—that every remedy suggested to boost business was tried out first on construction.

Elmer Jensen, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, presided at the gathering.

Latest of Tweeds, Woolens Offer Casual Smartness

By Rhea Seeger.

GOOD looking tweeds and woolens, clothes that are designed with a flair for casual smartness, are becoming easier to find every season. Smart shoppers spend every cent they can manage on such finds, for invariably the buys are so cut, fashioned, and designed that they are dateless; suits, coats, dresses, and combines that may be worn for seasons without a hint of when they were newer. They make ideal travel clothes, sleek outfits for country wear, and some of them become the tried and true combines for office or daytime wear in town.

Suits that are cast for the classics . . . simple straight skirts, almost as simple jackets, with high collarlines, fitted bodylines, and a youthful snap that make them tops among the younger set with limited budgets. Gay, lively colors, amusing buttons, plenty of pockets, and short jackets add up to the answer of universal smartness for all. These suits lead a versatile existence. They trot to town without benefit of coats on warmish fall days. They snuggle closely under topcoats of either fur or heavy wool for football games. They look tremendously smart as an office uniform. They divide and go out with other skirts or other jackets in the same wardrobe, and are worn spring, fall, and winter.

• • •

Similar dresses, that is, dresses that are of the uniform type, snappily fitted, smooth performers for everyday existence, aren't the bored looking shirtwaist affairs of former years. This year's prize crop boasts clever details, fine stitching, intricate plaits, buttons, superfitting yokes, smart sleeves, and a fitted streamline. Two piece dresses are new, new because they're especially cut and fitted to look like one piece models. Long sleeves and high necklines keep them businesslike without losing a bit of femininity, and that's something!

Even the materials and colors have gone feminine. Incredibly soft flannels, equally soft tweeds and wool mixtures, fine wool jerseys as thin as chiffon, natural kasha cloth featuring that flattering honey beige tone, are some of the many possibilities. The colors are legion. A new cornflower blue is especially attractive when combined with belt, buttons, and trim of natural pigskin or the same with silver buttons. Jackrose is another brilliant red to watch. It comes in dresses, in suits and linings of coats, as well as sweaters and skirts.

Dark steel gray jersey dresses are trimmed with glistening gray zippers that double for closing devices at both sleeves or at the hipline. Some have striped materials shirred across the chest in yellow, green, and red for contrast. Lots of warm, soft browns in jersey and novelty wools are ideal contrast for either fur coat or fur trimmed winter coat in either black or brown.

Suede, short sleeved jackets in exceptionally interesting colors are other important finds to wear with winter tweeds. Stunning butter yellow chamois jackets go on forever because they are as soft as velvet, cozily warm and effective as color contrast, especially with navy blue, black, and brown. The chamois jackets come with long sleeves, long hip lengths, and a narrow belt that ties.

• • •

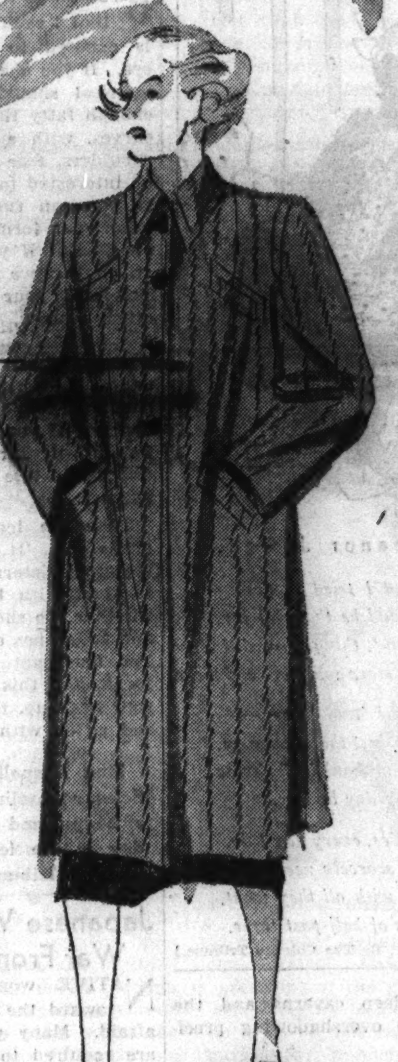
Imported neck scarves in vivid colors are abundant in the accessory showings, to wear with casual wools and tweeds. These tie ascot fashion at the collars, or loosely in pointed ends at the back, or may be tucked in either chest pocket or on the hip as the correct and telling bit of contrast color. Printed figures, paisley patterns, and other more amusing motifs are spattered all-over design against flaming riots of shades such as citron yellow, king's blue, amber, flame magenta, and acid green.

Topcoats, the swanky models presented by Schiaparelli, smooth, smart, and inimitably casual, are made of fine Harris tweeds. These are the coats that virtually last forever. They stay in formation or in press even after the hardest of globe trotting trips. With a special tweed brush they may be kept in excellent condition at home.

Scotch plaids or tartans are better than ever. Their rather jubilant color contrasts are delightfully young and fresh, and the darker mixtures play as important a part in the fashion parade as do the more exuberant combines. Entire suits are made of authentic tartans. Separate skirts, plaited smartly, go with dun colored blouses or jackets, and so on. Choose your favorite tartan and pay your money and have one of the smartest outfits in your wardrobe.

We've sketched four wool outfits for immediate wear, the kind of clothes that you need for office, for midwinter traveling, or for general purpose wardrobes. All of them are indicative of the larger collection of equally fine fashioned, swanky finds in dresses, casual suits, and ensembles.

IMPECCABLY TAILORED CREATIONS FOR YOUR JAUNTS OUTDOORS



● Upper left . . . the best all-purpose dress of the collections, a striped jersey. The stripes are used equator fashion, the dress itself cut in contrast for the shirt front and pockets. The monogram embroidered on the pockets can be had in forty-eight hours. The dress comes in brown with a beige stripe, in oxford with a pale gray stripe, and in a two-tone green contrast. ● Upper right . . . one of the cleverest of twosomes featuring a soft flannel blouse with eye opening fine detail. Notice the stitched neckline and pocket tabs, the long well fitted sleeves of the smart shirt. This outfit comes with a forest green, navy, or black flannel shirt contrasted with plaid skirts. ● Lower left . . . unquestionably the smartest Scotch tartan suit in town. The long coat is fitted and cut reefer fashion, lined with dark green and interlined, making a super travel outfit. The tartan is deep blue crossed with scarlet, yellow, and green plaids. Under the coat, a snappy skirt with clever plaited insets. ● Lower right . . . And the best topcoat we can recommend for the money. It's made of fine Harris tweed in a mixed or striped pattern. It fits with a swanky casualness hard to equal anywhere. It is warm, tailored impeccably, designed by Schiaparelli, and goes over suits or dresses with equal distinction. The moderate price mark will take your breath away.

His Own Library Helps Youngster in Development

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.]

AS I start to write today's article, after my usual fragrant and very early and very strong morning coffee, I happen not to be in my own room, due to guests who are, fortunately for my work, still sound asleep.

Thinking, I gaze out of the window at the November sky, then into the room again, and as my eye falls upon certain things in this room, so full of its owner's presence, I change my plans for this Sunday's talk with you.

The certain things my eye has fallen upon are—books. Some are in bright covers, some in dull, some of the bindings are pretty solid, some show the signs of wear and tear from much turning of pages, some are gay, some are funny, some are serious, and some scientific.

It isn't a large library in point of size, but what a panorama of childhood it is. For how many happy hours was a curly head bent over the big, thin books on the lower shelf, the picture books whose story the bright eyes could capture without the few printed words being read more than once or twice.

And the very small books piled up alongside, the ones that tell the cozy adventures of rabbits and little bears and kittens and puppies. Eyes have grown big, laughter has gurgled, and winding up sighs of satisfaction have many times been followed by, "Now read it all over again, mommie," as the contents of these small volumes have grown dearer and more familiar.

A trifle fatter and larger are the books of verse and the little boy and girl adventure stories on the next shelf, as are the very first nature books.

• • •

After this the titles grow a little mixed, and from where I sit I catch names like "Treasure Island," "Winnie the Pooh," "Skip-Come-a-Lou," "Rick and Ruddy on the Trail," "The Voyage of the Martin Connor," "Steel Rails," "Sherlock Holmes," "Life in a Mediæval Barony," and "Two Little Savages." In the opposite bookcase real tomes appear grouped definitly together; and they are about birds and frogs and turtles and snakes, and, in fact, every living thing in nature.

All these have only been alighting spots for my eyes among many volumes and, though their actual cubic content, as you might say, is really small, their content of delight is really not measurable.

As I look at them I can't help thinking that if those books had not been the permanent possession of the young occupant of this room, many of them would not have been read at all; or if borrowed and read once they would not have been the same source of delight and benefit.

And so this makes me want to urge you to start a personal library for your son or daughter this year, regardless of age. There's a feeling that comes with owning a book.

Loving friends and relatives and you have money spirited out of your pocket at Christmas time. Do see that some of it goes into one of the best paying gift investments there is, books for the children. And when grandma or Uncle John or aunts by either blood ties or those of affection ask you, "What shall I give Joan and Bill this year?" have books in mind.

• • •

Your small son's age, the particular likes and dislikes of your little daughter or your big one, will determine the choice; a fine picture book for the baby, one of the many delightful books (new or old) available for the sixes and sevens, fairy tales for the not-so-young (have a care about this), a girl's book that bears rereading and loving, a fine atlas or history for the young student, or a book that follows his or her special interest for the boat enthusiast, the stamp collector, the snapshooter, the train lover, the airplane model builder, or the naturalist.

If books were joy, pleasure, diversion, or even just quiet occupation for a child they would serve a purpose. But they are more than that. I have seen children of educated families who had no real acquaintance with books and others who had, and the profit and enrichment to them are visible for those alert to such things.

Interest in his own books develops in a child powers of concentration, a sense of beauty; they stir the imagination, widen the horizon, develop intelligence, increase knowledge, and provide for a fine use of leisure.

Since most of us have limited funds for book buying, my own feeling is that money is better not spent for books that are pretty much exhausted by one or two readings. Such books can be borrowed from the library or from young friends. It is the books that will be pored over again and again that prove to be the most satisfactory selection.

There will be book buying suggestions in subsequent articles.

BOOK FAIR TO BENEFIT CLINICS SERVING 100,000 A YEAR

By Betty Browning.

IT IS through the intervention of a "G. P." that a collection of rare documents relating to Lincoln's assassination will be among the items auctioned at the book fair next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday on the downtown campus of Northwestern university, Lake Shore drive and Chicago avenue.

The fair is sponsored by the Women's Faculty club of Northwestern university medical school to benefit the school's free clinics, which care for more than 100,000 patients every year.

This is the club's second book fair, and is an unusual benefit, since the book fairs of Europe and the east all are commercial ventures under professional auspices. The club's first fair was held in 1929.

• • •

THE auction at which the Lincoln data and scores of other interesting documents and books will be sold is to be held Saturday afternoon in Lincoln hall of Levi Mayer hall, 357 East Chicago avenue. The grateful patient—"G. P." is the popular term for him in medical parlance—who helped the committee in charge to obtain the Lincoln collection is one of the several cared for in the clinic who have lent a hand in assembling items for the auction.

The last commission signed by President Lincoln the day before his assassination; Secretary of War Stanton's original order establishing a military commission for the trial of the conspirators; Judge Holt's own copy of his charge to the jury in the trial; the first official document signed by President Johnson on the day of Lincoln's death; and an autographed photograph of John Wilkes Booth are included in this collection of more than 100 pieces.

Curiosity of the auction will be a fifteenth century manuscript bound in human skin, with elaborately illuminated capitals and foliated decorative designs in gilt and color. The catalog whimsically comments: "This is the only example of human skin binding that has been offered for sale for many years past. Owing to the severe restrictions of the medical schools and the prejudices of medical men, it is extremely difficult to obtain any portion of dead humanity. There are only a few known examples of this type of binding."

• • •

MRS. JACOB R. BUCHBINDER, who has had charge of assembling the material for the auction, returned from Europe several weeks ago with three interesting items, one intended for the library of he medical school. Francis Brett Young, himself a physician, inscribed for the school a volume containing his essay on "The Doctor in Literature," which Mrs. Buchbinder hopes some one will purchase for the library. This essay refers to the literary achievements of such physicians as Keats, Shelley, Rabelais, Smollett, Oliver Goldsmith, and Clemenceau.

• • •

PHILIP GUEDALLA'S impressions of Chicago, copied from a volume of his essays in his own handwriting, form another of the items which Mrs. Buchbinder obtained for the auction. Louis Golding contributed two pages copied from his novel, "Magnolia Street."

Autographs of the presidents from George Washington to Herbert Hoover, valued at $1,500, form another collection to be included in the auction. One of the rare presentation copies of Mark Twain, his "Tragedy of Pudd'nhead Wilson" and "The Comedy of Those Extraordinary Twins," dated Bermuda, Dec. 13, 1909; a set of first editions of Dickens' Christmas books, including his beloved "Christmas Carol," valued at $500; and the original autograph manuscript of Henry B. Fuller's "The Cliff Dwellers," outstanding Chicago novel of the early 1900's, also valued at $500, are among other items to be auctioned.

In addition to the material presented at the auction, many other rare books, prints, fine bindings, first editions, and original manuscripts of famous authors will be on exhibit in Levi Mayer hall during the three days of the fair. A sale of books, new and used volumes, together with magazines, lithographs, water colors, Christmas cards and gifts will be held in Thorne hall.

Among the events planned in connection with the fair is an authors' tea to be held Friday in Levi Mayer hall. Hendrik Van Loon, Grace Crile, Christopher Morley, J. B. Priestley, Louis Zara, Richard Halliburton, Dorothy Aldis, Susan Glaspell, Margaret Ayer Barnes, Janet Ayer Fairbank, Kenneth Horan, and Arthur Meeker Jr., are among the authors who will be present to autograph their books.

Scheduled for Thursday is Mrs. Arthur Byfield's lecture on "Adventuring Down the Menu" at 2:15 o'clock, and a lecture on "New Angles ir Crime Detection" by Leonarde Keeler, head of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university, at 8:15 o'clock, both in Thorne hall.

• • •

SATURDAY will be children's day at the fair, with a puppet show at 10:30 o'clock, a luncheon at noon, and a magicians' show in the afternoon, while parents attend the book auction. Saturday evening a book ball will be held at the Hotel Knickerbocker. Costumes depicting favorite literary characters will be in order, and prizes will be awarded.

General chairman of the book fair is Mrs. Michael L. Mason. Mrs. Arthur Byfield heads the committee for the book ball. A tea room is to be managed by Mrs. H. M. Richter, and Mrs. Philip H. Kreuscher, Mrs. Gilbert Marquardt, Mrs. John A. Wolfer, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. T. T. Stone, Mrs. Harvey Allen, Mrs. James Bloomfield, and Mrs. Gerard Krost are among others heading committees on arrangements.

Since the Northwestern university clinic was established in 1869 in two basement rooms of the old Mercy hospital, such famous physicians as the first Nathan S. Davis, founder of the American Medical association; Edmund T. Andrews and Ralph N. Isham, pioneer surgeons of Chicago; and John H. Hollister through it have contributed their services without charge to the city's poor.

• • •

DURING the Chicago fire of 1871 the clinic, then known as the South Side Dispensary, bore the brunt of the medical relief work of the disaster. Financial support was lacking, and in order to raise funds Dr. Davis gave lectures for which fifty cents in admission was charged.

Today the clinic is operated without endowment, dependent on contributions from the general fund of the university, and from other sources. The staf numbers more than 200 physicians and surgeons, none of whom is paid. The clinic is lodged in the Montgomery Ward Memorial building on the downtown campus.

How Beautiful Are You in an Evening Gown?

How often should you shampoo your hair? Antoinette Donnelly gives the answer and tells you how to do it in her booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

HERE'S the test of the season for you girls.

And don't think that it isn't important if your social doings set you a formal dress pace. It's your test and no one's else.

Here's your challenge apropos said test:

Almost any woman can look well in sports and ordinary daytime things, but it takes a formal evening dress to show up the true measure of silhouette beauty!

• • •

SO, from the party dress angle, you take your test. Indeed, it should be called the formal dress test. The idea is to don your evening gown, one cut low and preferably with narrow shoulder straps or no straps, as they sometimes are shown this season. Do this on a night when you aren't going anywhere, or an afternoon if you are not a business woman. Then give yourself a merciless going over from a severest critic point of view.

First decide whether, in your present state of being, it might not be better that you adopt the high necked, long sleeved frock shown among the season's smartest. You can have it cut as low in the back as you like for the formal touch. Or adopt the keep-on jacket type of thing. This year's jackets are dreams of beauty. There is just any number of women who haven't what it takes for a low décolletage back and front. It is ridiculous, therefore, not to make compromise with fashion [since fashion this year is almost touchingly coöperative]. Besides we are a grown-up age now and do not have to conform to patterns that promise not our best performance.

But don't let yourself off with that for longer than you can help. Resolve that presently you are going to be one of the preferred evening companions with the ace card of being able to wear the exquisitely feminine evening costume in all its décolletage glory. It's lovely to be able to wear such a type of frock. But you have seen, as haven't we all, women with such gross shoulder circles, backs, and upper arms so bulging with adipose weight that there have been none too sotto voce exclamations of: "Why doesn't she cover up?" Or, it might be the opposite state of silhouette destructiveness, the skin and bone exhibition with its hollow shoulders, flat chest, and those loose, bony barn doors on broken hinges which pass for shoulder blades.

• • •

YOU know what a woman can do about her figure once she makes up her mind to do something about it. Women have been judging theirs, however, from the street or day dress point of view. Now it is the evening gown test for you if you are an evening gown wearer.

Is that whole shoulder girdle [consisting of your collar bone and your shoulder blades, and arm sockets] thick, overstuffed with adipose? The upper arm will come in for this querying, too.

Do your shoulders sag and pull forward on the spine, earning you that ugliest of fat deposits, a "half barrel" bulge across the back?

Are the side ribs overloaded with fat?

Or, if you are the scrawny kind, do you cave in so that the arm sockets become deep caverns and the shoulders like overshadowing precipices?

Is the back of the shoulders a vertical half barrel exhibition?

Is the skin back and front satin smooth, anyway free of smudge and griminess from not reaching high enough with the bath brush?

• • •

BUT you go on. Concentrate on all that "evening gown" area that is exposed to a social gathering's eye. If you chalk up well, with symmetrical shoulder girdle, with just enough fatty tissue to furnish lovely curves, with a fine carriage of the shoulders, free and easy, you won't be interested in corrective measures, so you can run along and buy or wear your formal with sweet assurance. But if you have faults don't go on being a meanie toward yourself and your escort who, seeing other women, must suffer regrets that his girl isn't one of the pictorial lights of the party. Take it from a dance authority that a woman's shoulders dictate her quality as a dancer. If you carry your shoulders forward, if your back is stiff, you are difficult to tote around as a dancing partner.

Take the load off that shoulder girdle area. It comes off fairly easily if you are determined. You will have to start with better posture habits whether the shoulder faults are skin and bone ones or overweighted ones. You must get your back up, so to speak, for this reform work. And your head up, too. Begin from here and go on with corrective exercises.

In Our Abundance

By Eleanor Jewett.

I sat down and I tried to think
Of what I should be thankful for,
And, as I thought, things crowded close
And more and more and more and more.

Far easier I think 'twould be
To count them just the other way,
For very few "unthankful" things
Seem to happen day by day.

Give thanks! Yes, every day I do.
Thanksgiving scarcely needs to be
For little girls with all they want,
For little girls of half-past three.

Queen's Taste Is Influencing London Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

IN London the queen's taste is doing things to Grovesnor, Burton and Bond streets, the centers of English fashions. Where about a year ago the great London dressmakers took their tip from Paris and catered to the sophisticated taste of the famous café set, today they're going easy on the brazen innovations they used to fall for in a big and handsome way. It wasn't a year ago these folks were apologizing, by intimation, for the clothes they made for royal consumption. They let you know that they'd do a job as sleek, chic and modern as Paris if they had their way.

Today they brag, in the elegant English way of course, about how English their queen's taste is, and how well they can interpret it. They go that one one better, and let us plain American colonials know that New York is also having a glimpse of these English styles and liking them too.

• • •

I CAN see Queen Elizabeth's influence around the town as well. While there is a small band of diehards, creating a stir in London's night clubs, who go in for being more Parisian than the French are, a big number of English women in Mayfair society have gone conservative.

They are wearing their skirts rather long, even in the morning, though across the channel skirts are brisk and brief, as Paris likes them. Those skinline, steamlined styles that the French capital headlines are tempered into easy and comfortable lines which reveal no lady's secrets of the flesh. High toques are rare. The queen's taste in millinery is brimmed hats with modest crowns.

English colors, too, are becoming the queen's colors and shocking pinks, purples and greens are occasional, while the soft heather browns, ladylike pinks, parchment, and flattering blues are what are worn most. Black, Paris beloved, is now a reigning color here in London but more because the queen wears black than because it's a French passion.

• • •

WHERE Queen Elizabeth has done the most effective job of influencing clothes is in her determination to have what she likes to wear and not what some dressmakers think she ought to have. There is actually a renaissance of individual taste among increasing numbers of women who follow her lead and this is putting some of the biggest dressmakers in a tight spot. The queen often combines models and the combining idea is getting a hold over here. I suspect that lots of the women are doing it just to show they can, even when a model as is would suit them.

This winter, Queen Elizabeth has a gorgeous new evening cloak of white ermine, full length and trimmed with a great deal of silver fox. It is cut along the easy lines she insists on for her coats. This combination is a favorite in the most lofty circles. She likes white evening dresses, and though she wears beaded frocks, she doesn't particularly like sequins. This is out and out defiance of Paris, which, as I have frequently mentioned all fall in these columns, is sequin mad and has been since August.

• • •

THE queen's taste can be summed up with ease. It's the taste of a real lady who doesn't care a hoot about fashions, and who likes to look charming without being ostentatious. Personally, I'm all for this, for queens. I'm for it in a moderate way for all women who have taste, and the sense to know that completely flouting current fashions makes you ridiculous, just as following them down to the last button does.

An example of Queen Elizabeth's taste is her new mink coat, which she had made three-quarters length when long fur coats are the latest war whoop, because that length suits her. Her well known love of fox fur trimming stems from the same branch. She is always wearing an ensemble of pale parchment color, with soft creamy fox collar and cuffs, and the loose easy lines of the coat and dress suit her, likewise the multiple pearls and the small brimmed hat trimmed with soft velvet flowers.

THE simplicity of this afternoon frock takes beautifully to glamorous fabrics and also to various types of figures and to many ages. Both miss and matron, whether slim or plump, may wear this model successfully.

The original of this dress is created in metal-shot crêp . It's dressy enough for any tea, luncheon, matinée, or lecture meeting. The bodice is softly shirred and tops a slim waistline which, in turn, tops a skirt that is suavely fitted through the hips and gracefully full below the knees. The two scallops at the waist are repeated in the styling of the neckline, which may be high and draped or descend to a becoming and fashionable V. The sleeves are puffed just enough at the shoulders, and may be in any of three lengths: full, short, or bracelet.

Don't forget that your most exciting jewelry will look well against the background of this frock. The simpler the dress the more distinguished the bracelets and pins.

Velvet, satin, dull crêpe and metal fabrics, as well as sheer woolens, all make up well in this pattern. Black is, of course, the preferred color, but there are others which are seasonally smart and flattering to various complexion types.

This is an easy dress to sew. There is nothing about it that need frighten you, because a few seams and a bit of shirring are all there is to the model, and an illustrated chart accompanies the pattern to quiet what few dressmaking fears you may have.

Style No. 3224 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

IT'S FUN making your own things. You can make the clothes that express your personality. Get a copy of Clotilde's big new Fall and Winter Fashion Book for 1937-'38. It contains descriptions of 116 brand new, easy to make styles for the coming season. On sale at the Tribune Advertising and Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents, or 20 cents for the book and one Clotilde pattern, if ordered at the same time.

Government Aids in Planning of School Lunches

SCHOOL lunches aren't what they used to be—they're better. They're more appetizing, better balanced as to food values. The hot lunch prepared on the school premises is supplanting the cold, carried lunch. And as the hot lunch project spreads to one school after another the children show a rising curve in grades and general health.

To aid leaders of school lunch projects where funds are limited and equipment must be simple, the United States department of agriculture has prepared menus and recipes. Weekly menus suggested by the home economists follow this general pattern:

First, for the hearty hot dish: Once a week eggs in some form, creamed, scrambled or combined with cheese, rice, or vegetables. On the other days a meat or fish and vegetable chowder or stew; or dried beans or peas in appetizing form or a substantial milk soup.

Twice each week tomatoes come into the menu for their good flavor and color and their high vitamin value.

Milk always is present, as milk to drink and doubling some days as one of the chief ingredients in soup, sauce, or hot beverage.

Fruit likewise appears daily as the dessert, now and then plus a cookie. The emphasis, however, is on fruit, whatever is fresh and seasonal.

Girls in Turkish Schools Are Given Military Course

MILITARY lessons recently were included in the courses for girls at higher schools in Turkey. Pupils who fail in the tests must take the training again. Istanbul announces that military training gradually will be extended to all Turkish girls and women, those between 21 and 40 being compelled to undergo training in special camps.

One of the best things in which to pack china and glassware is newspaper. Wrap each piece of china very loosely in at least two thicknesses of paper, using a whole page for each average sized plate. Wrapping loosely enables the paper to form a resilient cushion that absorbs shocks.

Consider Gown in the Tinting of Finger Nails

THERE are no set fashion rules for finger nail polish shades. Despite last winter's trend toward lighter polishes, addicts of the deep and dark stuck to their color guns.

Naturally the color of a costume has to be considered. You wouldn't wear a blue mauve polish with a copper gold lame evening gown, nor a rust enamel with blue brocade, when vice versa is so obviously more harmonious.

But far more important than the costume is to match your own skin tones with your nail polish. It's easy enough to tell whether your skin inclines toward the rosy with blue undertones, or toward the ivory and yellow. The polish may be light or dark as you like; the faintest variation in shade makes all the difference between the blue and yellow-reds.

Light or dark nail polish isn't even governable by the blonde or brunet rule.

College Training Women as Referees in Sports

WOMEN are being trained for positions as referees in a new course offered at Hunter college, New York City. The students will learn how to handle women's sports and children's games.

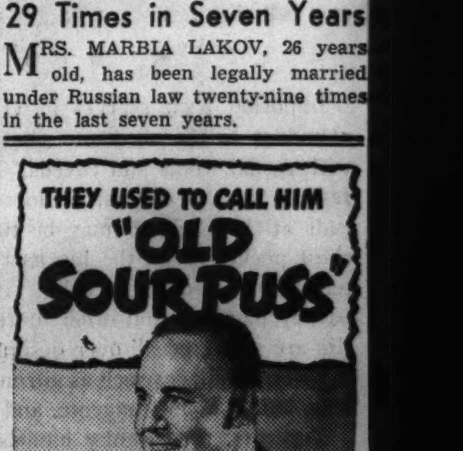
Sold at drug stores and beauty counters everywhere.



LOOK at that healthy, happy grin! You'd never guess that just a little while ago he, too, was one of those dull, logy, irritable, unhappy victims of constipation. Then he turned to FEEN-A-MINT, the delicious chewing gum laxative—and what a difference it made! And no wonder—for FEEN-A-MINT not only removes waste, but guards against upsetting digestion too—in these 3 important ways:

1. NO STOMACH UPSET—With FEEN-A-MINT you don't swallow a heavy, bulky dose; there's nothing to burden digestion.

2. CHEWING AIDS DIGESTION — The chewing stimulates the flow of the same natural alkaline fluids that help food digest.

3. ACTS WHERE IT SHOULD—FEEN-A-MINT's tasteless laxative ingredient does not affect stomach action. It passes to the intestine and works where it should.

You'll enjoy taking FEEN-A-MINT — and there's no griping, nausea, or weakening after-effect. Wonderful for the whole family—ideal for children. Get a package of FEEN-A-MINT today at your druggist's.

NO OTHER TYPE OF LAXATIVE CAN DO EXACTLY WHAT FEEN-A-MINT DOES

Reader Asks About Etiquet of Soup Spoon

Is it proper for the bridegroom to kiss the bride at the altar? If you are about to be married, you will find a wealth of helpful suggestions in the booklet, "Planning the Church Wedding," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

DO you know what to do with your soup spoon when you are momentarily "at ease"? One of our readers puts this question to us. She writes: "If soup is served at luncheon or dinner, is the soup spoon placed in the soup bowl or on the plate underneath it when it is not in use? Is the answer the same whether soup is served in a shallow plate or in a cup?"

Whether soup is served in a plate or a cup that plate or cup is supported on a flat plate of a suitable size. If the soup is served in a plate the spoon is rested in the plate itself. But if it is served in a cup, such as a bouillon cup or cream soup bowl, the spoon is rested on the little plate underneath the cup. As you probably know, it is permissible to sip bouillon directly from the cup if you like, just as you would drink coffee or tea.

ANOTHER friend of this column asks this question. "When writing a note or letter to one's maid or domestic servant of any kind does a woman sign her name as she would on all social correspondence, or does she sign her formal title?"

When writing letters to one's servants a woman signs her social title, such as Mrs. John Smith. We have gone into the rules of titles and signatures innumerable times, and have explained that except in a few rare instances a woman's signature is a combination of her first name, maiden name, and husband's last name, and her social title [her husband's name preceded by "Mrs."] is used on mail addressed to her and on formal correspondence. The question above illustrates one of the exceptions to this rule. Other instances in which a woman signs her social title [also exceptions to the rule] are when she registers at a hotel or sends a business telegram.

AND still another poser from E. R. Y. "A married woman active in amateur theatricals wishes to know how her name should appear on programs or in newspapers."

In programs she uses her given name, her maiden name, and her husband's name, thus: Margaret Howland Young. On occasion, when a woman has made a valuable reputation for herself professionally before she married she prefers to continue to use her maiden name for professional purposes, such as Margaret Howland. Socially, however, she is Mrs. John Young.

Crocheted Blouse for Girl Is Dainty in Fine Yarns

By Ellen Bruce.

THERE are few styles for grown-ups which are becoming to little girls, but there are several models for the youthful miss of 14 which may be appropriately worn by her elders. The crocheted blouse illustrated today is one of those models which were designed primarily for the 14 year old, but may look just as attractive on her older sister. The clever banding at the waist, done in the good old fashioned slipper stitch, is repeated in the collar and on the bottom of the short sleeves. The pattern in the body of the blouse consists of double and treble crochets, and the yarn is fine, the kind which works up eight stitches to three-quarters of an inch on a number four crochet hook. Crêpe, saxony, or knitting and crochet cotton are especially suitable for this blouse. Not more than five balls of 200 yards each will be required for the 14 year old size. Vivid colors or white are desirable for winter wear. Pastels are for southern resort or cruise wear.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the blouse for a fourteen year old girl, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Clubs to Have a Conference on Citizenship

PROBLEMS confronting the prospective citizen will be discussed at an all day conference on "Citizenship and Naturalization" Thursday at the Hotel La Salle. The state of Illinois committee on naturalization, the Immigrants' Protective league, the American Legion, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the National Council of Jewish Women, and the Sons of the American Revolution jointly are sponsoring the meeting, at which authorities on the subject from various parts of the country will speak.

Preliminary to the conference the National Council of Jewish Women Wednesday will hold a similar meeting, to which sections all over the middle west will send representatives. Miss Cecelia Razovsky of New York, associate director of the National Council of Jewish Women, will speak on both days.

• • •

JAMES LAWRENCE HOUGHTELING, recently appointed commissioner of the immigration and naturalization service of the United States department of labor, is coming from Washington, D. C., to speak at a luncheon session Thursday noon under the auspices of the Immigrants' Protective league. Mrs. Kenneth Rich, director of the league, also will speak at this session, at which Adlai E. Stevenson will preside.

Thursday afternoon representatives of various civic, labor, and educational bodies will take part in a symposium, "What My Organization Should Do in Aid Toward Naturalization and Citizenship." Dean William F. Clarke of the college of law at De Paul university will preside.

Thursday morning's session will be devoted to talks by Miss Harriette Ryan, director of the International institute of St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook county bureau of public welfare; Fred G. Schlotfeldt, district director of the United States immigration and naturalization service, and Glenford Lawrence, director of adult education of the Chicago Commons. Charles P. Schwartz, chairman of the state of Illinois committee on citizenship and naturalization, will preside.

• • •

THE institute of the National Council of Jewish Women will be held from 10 until 4:30 o'clock Wednesday at council headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue, with luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, and a dinner session at the Chicago Woman's club.

Miss Razovsky, who will be the principal speaker, is both executive director of the national coördinating committee for aid to refugees and emigrants coming from Germany and executive secretary of the German Jewish Children's Aid, Inc. Her knowledge of immigration problems led James G. MacDonald, former high commissioner of the league of nations commission for German refugees, to ask for her services in connection with refugee work in this country.

The Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women maintains a department of service for the foreign born, with offices in the quarters of the Immigrants' Protective league at Hull house. Part of the proceeds of the forthcoming benefit performances of the Ballet Russe to be sponsored by the council Dec. 20, 21, and 22 at the Auditorium theater will be turned over to this department, through which more than 2,100 cases were helped in the first nine months of this year.

FAMILY relationships will be the theme of a series of public lectures to be given by Dr. Paul Popenoe this week under the auspices of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education. Dr. Popenoe, as director of the Institute of Family Relations of Los Angeles, Cal., has won wide recognition as an authority on marriage and the family.

"Parents and Counselors—the Art of Guidance in the Family," will be discussed in Dr. Popenoe's opening talk at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the clubroom of the Art institute. "Ten Years' Experience with the Institute of Family Relations" will be the subject of his talk at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at Hull house.

Of particular interest to young people will be Dr. Popenoe's discussion of "Looking Forward to Marriage" at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue. There will be no charge for this meeting.

"What Guidance Do Family Members Need?" will be Dr. Popenoe's subject at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Art institute. A final lecture at a luncheon meeting at 12:15 o'clock Thursday at the Chicago Woman's club will be devoted to a discussion of "What a Family Consultation Center Can Mean to a Community." Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall is executive director of the association which is sponsoring the series.

Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of Norfolk, Va., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, is arriving in Chicago today for a visit of several days. The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will give a tea for her at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Bradley hall, 944 Lawrence avenue, and tomorrow will give a luncheon for her at Kungsholm, 631 Rush street. James Bradley Griffin will give a program, "Poetry in Music," at tea this afternoon.

Mrs. Louis E. Yager, state president, will be hostess at the luncheon tomorrow, together with Mrs. Rose Du Moulin, club presidents, and board members. A program has been arranged by Mrs. Frank Whitmore, district chairman.

• • •

AN all day civic institute will be sponsored by the American citizenship, civil service, law observance, and legislation departments of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs on Friday at the Hotel Sherman. Ernest A. Reese of Riverside, Conn.; R. E. Blackwood, attorney for the Chicago Civil Service association, and Capt. William A. Rogers, crime authority, will be among the speakers.

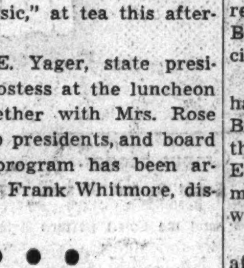
A club institute of the Indian welfare, American home, and public health and hygiene departments of the First district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, also will be held Friday at the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, dean of district chairmen, will preside.

• • •

THE Chicago Milk Fund association's work in supplying preschool children, infants, and mothers with milk will be furthered through proceeds of the "Three Ring Circus of the World," now showing at the Coliseum. The Andoka Philanthropic club in going in a body tomorrow, and the Hawthorne club will attend Friday's performance. The circus will remain through next Sunday. Mrs. Burnett D. Warner heads the association.

A display and sale of veterans' handiwork opens Friday at Mandel Brothers' store under the auspices of the American Legion auxiliary. Mrs. Edmund Dowd, rehabilitation chairman of the department of Illinois, will be in charge.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory will speak at a dinner meeting of the newly organized Professional and Business Women's guild at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the parish house of St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 North Dearborn parkway. Mrs. Gregory, who spends every summer in Geneva, Switzerland, will talk on "Religion and International Affairs." Mrs. Evelyn Foland is president of the guild.



Mrs. Robert B. Gregory.

Mrs. Gregory is among the women who will be hostesses at luncheon Thursday at Mandel Brothers' store when Prof. Paul Rusch of Tokio, Japan, will speak on "Present Trends Among the Youth of Japan." Prof. Rusch has spent ten years in the orient and is a member of the faculty of St. Paul's university in Tokio. Mrs. Albert Cotsworth, president of the Episcopal Woman's auxiliary of Chicago, will preside at the luncheon. Mrs. Gregory will introduce Prof. Rusch.

• • •

AN all day conference on foreign affairs, the first of a series of forums under the auspices of the Cook County League of Women Voters, will be held Saturday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

The morning session will be devoted to "American Foreign Policy as It Concerns the War in Spain," with Heyward Keniston, professor of the Spanish language at the University of Chicago; Virginia C. Malbin, recently in Spain as a member of the national social workers' commission to that country, and Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, as speakers.

Following luncheon a round table will be conducted on "American Foreign Policy as It Concerns the Far East." Harley F. MacNair, professor of far eastern history and institutions at the University of Chicago; Louise Leonard Wright, chairman of government and foreign policy for the National League of Women Voters, and Theodore C. Hume, pastor of the New England Congregational church, will participate. Mrs. Paul Douglas, chairman of the department of government and foreign policy, will preside.

Germany Forbids Drill and Boxing for Women

DRILL and boxing now are forbidden by women's organizations in Germany. Despite their achievements during the Olympic games, women are said to be "physically, mentally, and spiritually much more tender than men."

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

If you want to be a glamor girl, which seems to be the current height of feminine loveliness, you'd better lavish tender care on your eyes. Keep them bright and sparkling and rested. Use an eye bath as regularly as you cleanse your face.

WE don't believe for a minute that nobody loves a fat man. But we do believe, with all our hearts, that nobody loves a weary woman, a woman who looks droopy, who feels droopy, and who talks about being tired. Men will run from her as they will from the plague. And, tragically enough, her tribe is increasing. The "tired business man" phrase was good for gags for years and years. Now we have the "tired business woman," who is obvious about her fatigue, and there's nothing to joke about in THAT situation.

You may scrub floors, beat a typewriter, or be a modern wonder like a feminine blacksmith, but you should never, if you want to be beloved in this world, say you're tired or act as though you are. Men are just funny that way. They expect you to be bright, gay, and peppy and with that "life-is-such-a-lark" light in your eyes.

IT takes some budgeting, as every woman knows. Organize your life so you don't get exhausted. If there's a slipup in your organizing and you are tired, put a sturdy but invisible lock on your lips so that declarations of your weariness never pass them! Do the things for your face that erase tiredness. Learn the tricks of the quick facial pickup.

Above all things take care of your eyes. Tired eyes mean a tired face. Don't ever, ever strain them. Get your sufficiency of sleep and a little more. And keep them, literally, shining clean! Get the eye bathing habit. Bathe your eyes as religiously as you brush your teeth. And when you are weary or when you've been up late at night, look to your eye bath to erase the bloodshot, clouded filminess. Your eyes need attention to keep them youthful just as your skin needs oiling, your teeth need brushing, and your hair needs dressing.

Not that the eye bath takes the place of professional attention. If you're having trouble, the good oculist is the man to see. The eye bath is merely a beauty aid. Don't look to it for therapeutic virtues.

• • •

ONE of the best of eye baths is an herbal lotion that soothes, cleanses, and relieves eye fatigue. It's antiseptic, but pleasantly fragrant, really a joy to use as well as something of a whizz-bang in making dull, weary eyes glamorous and sparkling.

Using this one regularly won't slow you up in your morning dash to the completely dressed state. The cap of the bottle is an eye cup! A neat little, nonbreakable cup of white composition that's easy to keep clean. It should be among your possessions if you want to make your eyes an asset.

[For information about this eye bath, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write her care of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

I HOPE you appreciate the way I use myself as a guinea pig! What I mean is this: I create what I think is a smart frock and then wear it to class or some social affair, just to test its possibilities. I go through all the mental agony of scrutiny before I pass a style along to you. Well, the frock illustrated today was a howling success. The co-eds, after looking me over coldly and skeptically for a while, finally voiced their affection for this model in no uncertain terms. The men were more subtle about it, but one could tell they were crazy about the frock, too.

What captivated the campus public is, I think, the straight slim line, unbroken by a belt. This dress is a figure flatterer; and even if you're a tiny mite you'll appear statuesque in this number. The back is styled on princess lines, its panels continued over in flaps on the shoulders. These flaps take the place of neckline trimming, and they're plenty decorative. The sleeves, which may be either long or short, are puffed slightly at the shoulders.

PATTERN No. T-8545.

Name ....

Number and Street....................

City ....

State ....

Size ....

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving size of pattern you want. Please make certain that your name and address are written correctly and clearly. Inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred], wrap it carefully, and mail your order to the address given above.

There are at least three ways you can style the front closing. In my dress, which is of bottle green tweedy woolen, I've concealed the buttons underneath a fly closing. You may, if you wish, select decorative buttons and have them in full view, or you may buy a colorful slide fastener. There's nothing to stop you from having a belt, either, if you really want one. In my opinion, it's like gilding the lily.

Any type of woolen, whether smooth or "furry," will make up well, and in absolutely any color. If you particularly wish a heavy silk dress, this pattern is adapted beautifully to such fabrics, too.

Style No. T-8545 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

Poppy Lends Color and Beauty to Quilt Design

CALIFORNIA POPPY.

By Nancy Cabot.

POPPY designs, whether they are in boxes, baskets, wreaths, garlands or just the flower in full bloom, are a part of every quilt maker's collection. Here is one of the old time favorites which allows a display of the vivid beauty of the original bloom to be transplanted to a coverlet. Orange, red, and a soft green may be combined to produce one of quilitdom's most effective coverlets. Usually these sixteen inch blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with plain white ones, but a coverlet may contain only applique blocks set together with two inch bands of white between. Regardless of individual taste, any quilt of the "California Poppy" pattern is a success.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Royalty Visits with American "Relatives"

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON—The king and queen of England spent a recent week-end, unexpectedly, with their "American relatives."

For the Astors — Nancy, the second viscount, son William, M. P.; brother, John, M. P., the Spender-Clays, etc., always will be counted as American.

Although Nancy Astor and her generation were personal friends of the former king and queen, the younger generation of Astors is even closer to the throne.

• • •

WHEN the Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, the younger brother of the present queen, married Pauline Spender-Clay, the granddaughter of the first Viscount Astor and the present viscount's niece, it brought the American element right up to the precincts of the royal family.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bowes-Lyon live in the house of the earl and countess of Strathmore near Welwym Garden City, St. Paul's, Waldenbury. They invited a small house party to meet their majesties, which included Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bowes-Lyon, the queen's older brother and sister-in-law, and Maj. John Jacob Astor, M. P., uncle of Pauline, and Lady Violet Astor, his wife, daughter of the earl of Minto.

Mrs. David Bowes-Lyon and her sister, Mrs. Philip Nichols, recently inherited some valuable possessions from their father, Col. Spender-Clay, and shortly some of them will be put under the hammer. The sale includes some fine pearl earrings and an old French pendant watch, a gold "Easter egg," and a Russian cigaret case made by the famous Fabergé.

Just to show how the "music goes 'round and 'round," Lady Violet Astor's sister, Lady Eileen, is married to Lord Francis George Montague-Douglas-Scott, who is an uncle of the duchess of Gloucester!

• • •

ROYAL and near-royal personages go in for the arts more freely than heretofore. Lady Elphinstone, who was Lady Mary Frances Bowes-Lyon, older sister of the queen, recently published a book on gardening for children. It is the result of her own experiences as a gardener, and any one who has visited her gardens at Carberry Tower, Musselburgh, Midlothian, will testify to her authority. Not only has she written the book but she has illustrated it herself and made it a most attractive addition to a children's library.

At the same time Violet, duchess of Rutland, is holding an exhibition of her sculpture and drawings—not her first, by any means. She is the mother of Lady Diana Duff Cooper, who found her artistic expression playing the part of the Madonna in "The Miracle."

• • •

ANOTHER art show which will take place shortly is that of Cathleen Mann, as she prefers to be called, but her full name is the marchioness of Queensbury. She paints her pictures while sitting on the floor, and they all are finished in very short time. Cathleen Mann is said to paint and repaint her pictures in her mind. Then, when she has the idea there, it takes little time to get it on canvas.

Were it possible to take a census of the intellectual and artistic efforts—creative efforts—being made by titled folk in England it probably would be found that they form as large a group as the so-called "intellectuals" of Bloomsbury.

Co-ed Freshman Today Is Taller Than Predecessor

THE American college girl of today's freshman class is physically taller and more slender than her sister of earlier years, and she is younger. Temperamentally she seems more serious, more objective in her outlook on life. Socially, she is as fun-loving as ever.

A survey of the entering class at Russell Sage college, Troy, N. Y., shows an average age of 17 years 2 months. The freshman is 5 feet 5¼ inches tall and weighs slightly more than 123 pounds. These figures compare with the composite averages for the entering class of the three years preceding, of 18 years 8 months; 126 pounds, 5 feet 4 inches.

The tallest girl in the entering class is 5 feet 10 inches and the shortest, 4 feet 9½ inches. The average height of 5 feet 5¼ inches tops by more than two inches the average height of college women of a generation ago.

The new generation of college girls, too, is an athletic one. Only two members of the entering class at Sage confessed to no interest or aptitude in sports. For the rest, the choices ran from swimming, tennis, basketball and badminton to horseback riding, golf, skiing, etc. All confessed to a liking for dancing.

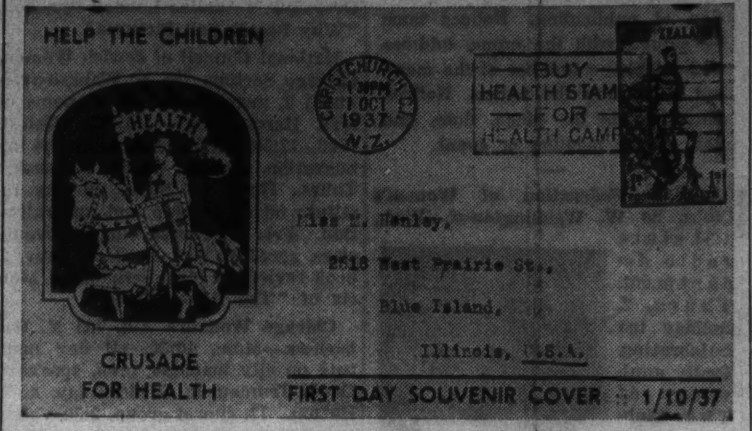
With few exceptions this year's freshmen are planning careers, with emphasis on teaching the arts and sciences, home economics, or business education. Two are planning future study in medicine; one intends to become a brain specialist. Journalism and nursing are also favored. In business, activities in merchandising are popular, chiefly as department store buyers or designers. Careers on the stage, as singers or dramatic artists, have their devotees. There are some who hope to become artists. All want economic independence.

The fact that college students, both men and women, are progressively entering college at ages below those of previous years seems a well established fact, according to Miss Tressa Meyer, director of freshmen. The figures at Russell Sage are borne out by surveys at Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Wellesley.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coin advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover, lent by Miss M. Hanley of Blue Island, Ill., shows the first day use of the 1937 New Zealand semi-postal issue which combines postage and anti-tuberculosis stamps in one. This cover bears the official cachet and an appropriate slogan cancelation.

THE "Black Jacks," as the 2-cent stamps of 1863 have been dubbed by collectors, are one of the most interesting of United States issues. On March 3, 1863, congress approved an act abolishing carrier fees and establishing free city delivery in 49 cities, and fixed the rate of postage on drop letters in those cities at two cents per half ounce.

The new stamp required by this rate was hastily designed and placed on sale on July 6, 1863. It has been criticized more, perhaps, than any other United States stamp, due to the large size of the portrait of Andrew Jackson, which covers almost the entire stamp.

Some writers have claimed that it is hideous and a disgrace to the postal service, but the same was said of the 1-dollar Omaha which now stands at the head of the list of beautiful United States stamps. Perhaps there was an antipathy to black stamps during the 19th century, which has vanished with the change in modern taste. Those who specialize in "Black Jacks," never call them ugly, but consider them as very near the zenith of stamp art, especially those copies printed in a full, intense black, and bearing red, orange and green cancelations.

Although this is a moderately priced stamp it is not easy to obtain a fine copy, for the centering was not good on the average and the color is often a muddy gray. The stamps were printed in sheets of 200 from seven plates, and were delivered to postmasters in panes of 100 with a straight edge at either the right or the left side.

It has been stated that a little more than 256 million stamps were printed and delivered to the postal authorities before the grilling process was adopted, and that about 57 million stamps were issued afterward with grills of various sizes.

That this stamp is not easier to find probably is due to its local use in carrying mail matter which on the whole would not be so carefully preserved as letters coming from distant places. This value, of course, was used to make up a multiple rate, as three 2-cent stamps in lieu of two 3-centers, and in a very few cases was bisected to make two 1-cent stamps. These latter are quite scarce and have no philatelic value unless they are upon the original cover with the cancelation tying the stamp to the cover across the cut edge. Even then they must be examined by an expert as there is a great temptation when a cover costing a few dollars may be doctored and sold for five hundred.

Another scarce variety exists which shows the stamp printed on both sides. There are many shifted transfers throughout the issue varying from prominently marked examples to others of interest only to a specialist.

Grilled stamps all are of the varieties with points down, that is the grill was impressed from the face of the stamp, and come in four sizes of grill measuring from 9 by 13 mm to 12 by 14 mm. Altogether this stamp offers an interesting study for the collector who wishes to specialize in a moderate way.

Stamp collecting is definitly on the up and up today. A few years ago it was not uncommon for men who collected to make their purchases in the name of an infant son, even though the stamps bought were wholly inappropriate for a beginner's collection. This tendency for an adult to conceal his hobby may be a thing of the past if the following incident is not unusual:

On Saturday evening, at the close of the Hobby show, a woman boarded a Cottage Grove avenue car on South Wabash avenue and, having found a seat, proceeded to get out her stamp tongs, magnifying glass, and her stamp purchases of the evening.

Oblivious to passengers and to the noise and movement of the car, this devotee arranged the stamps on her black purse and with the glass proceeded to examine each minutely with regard to its centering and perforations. Apparently satisfied with the result she put the stamps and accessories back in her purse, no more self-conscious than had she been examining only her transfer. Yet many of the stronger sex are still afraid to read a stamp paper on the car.

Club Notes.

The Huntington [Ind.] Philatelic society will hold its meetings hereafter on the first and third Mondays of each month, at 8 p. m., in Room 4, Y. M. C. A., Huntington, Ind.

The Chicago Cover club has changed its meeting dates and will meet hereafter on the first and third Wednesdays, at 8 p. m., at the Garfield Park Administration building, 100 North Central Park avenue.

The newly organized Hyde Park Y Stamp club will meet every Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m., at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. Boys between the ages of nine and sixteen are eligible for membership and are invited to attend a meeting.

Stamp Notes.

Nathan Cosnow, of Chicago, would like to acquaint other collectors with a letter which he received from the Soviet Philatelic union, to which he had sent covers for new stamp issues. It reads: "Gentleman, We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 18th ult., enclosing six self-addressed covers. By the same post we return you according to your request the four covers. The other two we shall forward you as soon as the new series will be issued. Please do not send us money and covers in the future, as we do not execute similar commissions. We sell only stamps by wholesale dealers and do not accept orders for less than $100."

Cachets and Covers.

An unavoidable change in plans will require that the Goodyear airship Reliance be stored for the time being at Akron, O., and the St. Petersburg [Fla.] chamber of commerce will be unable to cachet covers for the annual winter trip. Covers sent to St. Petersburg for this event will be held for the next event, or returned to the owner upon receipt of return postage. The next event will be on Jan. 1, 1938, to mark the 24th anniversary of the world's first commercial airline which was started and operated by Tony Jannus from St. Petersburg to Tampa, Fla. Covers must bear airmail postage, and be unstuffed and unsealed. A cachet will be applied and an historical filler inserted. Send covers to York Briddell, Chairman Aviation Dept., Chamber of Commerce, St. Petersburg, Fla., before Dec. 26, 1937.

David Bushnell chapter, No. 18, U. S. C. S., will sponsor a Christmas cachet from three ships. Send covers, ready to go, stamped and addressed, with 1c forward charge for each cover to Albert G. Dudley, P. O. Box 136, West Haven, Conn.

Village 500 Years Old Being Built Near Piccadilly

LONDON—A village is being built 18 miles from Piccadilly Circus which, when completed, will be 500 years old. And like its prototype it is being built by one man.

Capt. A. M. Davis, a lover of antiques and ancient crafts, bought a cottage about 500 years old. He made it a dream cottage and no sooner was it finished than he discovered a speculator was trying to get control of the meadows surrounding his cottage to make a bungalow town there between him and London's green belt. Well, he got the land and is building the town to go with his cottage.

The bricks, stone, and tiles have been collected from disused barns and ancient buildings which have been torn down in Surrey, Sussex, and Kent. The new houses will be built by village labor which learned its craft from its fathers and from its grandfathers. It will be 500 years old and completely rural, twelve acres and fourteen houses with a green, a pub, and an ex-naval officer for host.

Capt. Davis is spending a quarter of a million dollars on the project, but it will be only five minutes from four suburban train lines and tenants are assured.

Knitted Scarfs and Caps Do Honors as Christmas Gifts

By Jean Macdonald.

ONLY a few short weeks left and the holidays will be behind us, but what must be accomplished in the next twenty-seven days in preparation for this festive season is something else again. For the men, the gift of a scarf always is acceptible and especially if it is of the hand knitted variety in the softest yarn imaginable. The original of the wool scarf illustrated today is done in the finest of yellow yarns, with the double knitting stitch which makes it warm and comfortable, light in weight and not "scratchy." The scarf and skull cap for girls and women illustrated is done in a soft green wool. The scarf is knitted in the herringbone stitch. The cap is knitted on four needles, with the pompom on the cap matching the fringe on the scarf. Composition needles are best for knitting these items with this extremely soft yarn. The girl's knitted set is grand for skiing, ice skating, or just everyday wear, and it may be made of matching or contrasting materials in colors to match or contrast to the ensemble.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the two scarves and cap illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Good Paint Job Demands Use of Best Materials

IF you are planning to do some painting in and around your house by way of getting things spick and span for holiday time, here are a few tips which will help to insure a satisfactory job:

Study the directions on the can and follow them!

Buy a good grade paint. For small pieces of work the cost between good paint and inferior grades is slight and the difference in lasting qualities is enormous!

Be sure you buy a paint for the purpose it is intended. Don't try a floor paint for your furniture, or wall paint for the cellar game room!

Don't try painting over waxed or glossy surfaces. Remove the gloss or the paint will not adhere!

There's a trick to applying varnish. Flow it on. Don't try to stroke it back and forth or you will spoil the smooth finish you are after.

Look out for wet surfaces. "Dry to touch" isn't dry enough. The wood surface or the paint coating must be dry straight through.

Don't let the cans of paint stand where the temperature drops below 40 degrees. Freezing will ruin the paint!

To Get the Best Cough Medicine, Mix It at Home

Saves Good Money, No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix — a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant — children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving you double-quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

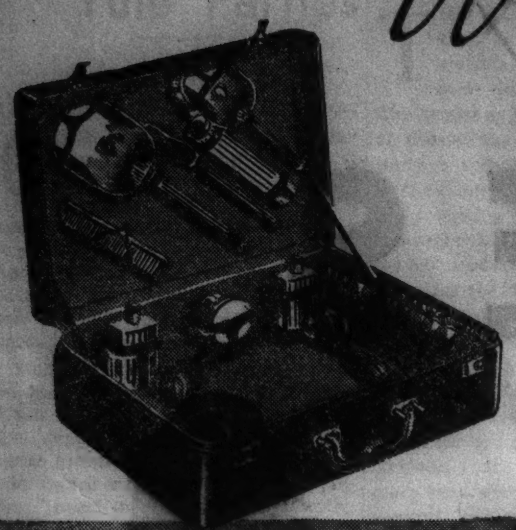
$10 to $32



We are offering to early Christmas Shoppers a 20% sale on a comprehensive selection of fitted cases. While you were basking in the sun, we were busy thinking of you and of Christmas. We bought these cases many, many months ago before the rise in materials and labor, and we are passing the savings on to you. All the cases are in top-grain cowhide in baby walrus, shark, or Morocco graining; all wood construction; pockets with spring wire that won't sag; eight to fifteen fittings. Made to Carson's rigid specifications. And don't forget, a fitted case is like many gifts in one—and we'll venture to say if you choose any one of these, you'll get a "thank you" for each and every one of the fittings.

Teas, Buffet Suppers Ideal Yule Parties

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CHRISTMAS is a lovelier holiday than Thanksgiving because it stays with us longer. Thanksgiving is a day, Christmas is a season. School children, teachers, college students, and visiting relatives have Yuletide vacations long enough to allow for plenty of fun and chatter. Party invitations help Christmas cards to clog the mail chutes.

Many of these party invitations will be bids to teas and buffet suppers. These two types of social gatherings are simple ways to entertain for house guests, or for groups of friends and relatives. The traditional holiday "open house," with simple tea party refreshments, is as fine a way of spreading Christmas cheer as any other.

Decorations should be kept simple. Elaborate settings may be appropriate for parties on other holidays, but the spirit of Christmas is a humble one. Lighted candles, sprigs of holly, a lace tablecloth, shining glassware and silver, flowers in a low bowl, interpret Christmas more truly than do splashes of red and green crêpe paper and ruddy Santa Clauses. The latter should be reserved for the children, to whom Christmas means Santa Claus more than anything else.

These menus for holiday teas and buffets make their appearance early enough to allow ample time for planning the occasion.

CHRISTMAS SEASON TEAS.

I.

Fruit Cake Sandwiches
Hot Spiced Cranberry Juice
Salted Almonds Coated with Tinted Fondant

Sandwiches are thin slices of fruit cake put together with brandy flavored hard sauce.

II.

Coconut Butter Sandwiches
Assorted Holiday Cookies
Orange Pekoe Tea with Tinted Lemon Flavored Sugar Cubes
Salted Cashews

Sandwiches are tiny, rolled, butter-spread dainties, spread on the outside with creamed butter and cheese and then rolled in tinted coconut.

III.

Christmas Tree Sandwiches
Star Sandwiches
Nut Stuffed Prunes Coated with Fondant
Spiced Tea Punch

Christmas tree sandwiches are tree shapes cut from white bread, spread with butter or cream cheese, and thickly coated with chopped parsley. Bits of pimiento may represent Christmas tree baubles. Melted sweet chocolate may be poured over the trunks of the trees. Star sandwiches are cut from whole wheat bread and spread with an apricot-nut topping.

CHRISTMAS SEASON BUFFET SUPPERS.

I.

Ham à la King in Patty Shells
Tossed Crisp Vegetables in Salad Bowl
Tray of Assorted Party Sandwiches [Not open faced] Relish Tray
Petit Fours
Coffee
Assorted Whole Fruits
Peanut Brittle

II.

Jellied Turkey Salad in Star Shaped Molds
Radishes Ripe Olives
Hot Buttercup Rolls
Cranberry-Orange Jelly
Tiny Mincemeat Tarts with Wine Sauce
Coffee
Mixed Nuts

III.

Chicken à la Newburg
Celery Curls Green Olives
Frozen Fruit Salad
Triangular Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Home Made Christmas Candies
Coffee

Other Christmas time menus, especially menus for the Christmas day dinner, may be found in my department's book, "Holidays and Holiday Meals," which is obtainable for 23 cents in stamps by mail. The book contains not only menus, recipes, and historical data concerning Christmas but the same helpful information about other holidays as well.

New Year's day, Valentine's day, the two patriotic holidays in February, and St. Patrick's day in March are other occasions for which special menus and recipes have been planned. Address mail requests for this book to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Contract According to Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

Examinations in Contract Bridge

THE national bridge examination, now in full swing in my weekday column, has revealed some highly interesting facts. This is just as I had hoped. Although, of course, the examination is essentially a self-rating device, inasmuch as the readers have only to wait until the following day to compare their answers with mine, thousands of readers have chosen to mail their answers to me for grading. Hence I have been able to compile significant statistics on the bridge habits of all sections of the country. To the best of my knowledge this is the first bridge census that has ever been taken, and while it is still too early to form sweeping conclusions, I am now able to appraise more accurately than ever before the general caliber of bridge in the United States.

The answers already sent in have proved most gratifying not only from a quantitative viewpoint but as revealing a profound knowledge of bridge on the part of most correspondents. The mistakes that have been made are perhaps even more important, since in several questions of the test these mistakes followed a certain uniformity. This told me, of course, that bridge has progressed toward such a degree of standardization that even when a large body of players goes wrong in a given situation of bidding or play the error is apt to be one of convention rather than lack of individual knowledge.

Let us consider question No. 6, which to date has been the cause of most of my redskins biting the dust. This question was:

"Both sides vulnerable. You are North. Your partner (South) dealt and bid one club. Next hand passed. You hold:

♠ 7 5 3 2 ♥ 6 4 3 ♦ K J 8 6 5 ♣ 7

What call do you make?"

The answer, printed the following day, was:

"The correct response is one diamond. True, you have a poor hand, but you are able to show your suit at the one level and thus possibly pave the way to a one spade or one heart rebid by South, either of which suits you greatly prefer to clubs. To respond with one no trump, thus showing artificially that you have a weak hand, is to suppress information that can be cheaply conveyed and to make it expensive for partner to rebid."

If I had needed proof that contestants in this national examination were playing fairly and writing their answers before peeping at the next day's newspaper, this question would have supplied that proof. I am sorry to say that only about 20 per cent of my readers agreed with my answer. Of the remainder about three players in four were apparently quite shocked at the thought that they should make any response with such "garbage." The fourth player tried to straddle the proposition; he did not want to pass, but neither could he see a suit bid on a hand containing only a shade over one-half honor trick. Hence this handful of players responded with one no trump, obviously attempting to show artificially that they held a poor hand.

The point of bridge logic in this question and answer is important enough to warant close analysis and discussion. If it were merely a question of responding with a good hand, holding the bidding open with a no trump, or passing with a near bust, I wouldn't have a leg to stand on in advocating a diamond response on the above hand. Unfortunately for many players, who apparently want to play their bridge by rote and rule, the matter is not nearly that simple. It is possible, of course, in a general sense, to pigeonhole the billions of possible bridge hands into about five categories —huge, good, fair, poor, and lousy. If one wants to be just a fairly good player, such characterizations will, I suppose, suffice. But for the player who has any aspirations toward the upper ranks, generalizations must always bow to individual hand analysis.

Considerations that would impel an expert or master player to respond with one diamond rather than pass or bid a no trump are these:

First and foremost, it is possible to bid one diamond over one club. Thus there is no raising of the bidding level. Second, one club, if passed all around, is not apt to be a safe contract. There is no assurance that the opener has longer than a four-card club suit, and in fact, since many hands are opened with one club as a "prepared bid," there is even danger that the opening bid was based on a three-card suit. The partnership is vulnerable, and the mere fact that the dealer is left at the one level is no warant that he will not be beaten to the tune of two or three hundred points. The obvious rebuttal to this argument is that when the responder bids a diamond the bidding is sure to go higher. This is not necessarily dangerous. The opening bidder may respond to the diamond bid with one spade, one heart, or one no trump. If he raises the diamonds there has been a clear and unmistakable gain from showing that suit. Even if the worst happens, from North's point of view, and South rebids his clubs, a serious danger point has been cleared up, namely, the possibility of a short club suit. Better to play two clubs with an assurance that the opener had at least five, than one with the chance that he held only three.

The players who are agast at the thought of bidding one diamond with only one-half-plus honor trick overlook the fact that honor tricks are by no means the only criterion of bidding. If North's hand had been

♠ 7 5 ♥ 6 4 3 ♦ K J 8 6 5 ♣ 7 3 2

it would have contained precisely the same honor strength. With this latter distribution, however, it would not be illogical to pass to an opening club bid, although even then one diamond would be preferred by most experts. I realize that partnership understanding deprives thousands of players from the diamond response that I advocate in the original hand. But so much the worse for partnership understanding!

If players are tying themselves with the antiquated fetters of using a "suit over suit bid" at the same bidding level to guarantee 1-plus or 1½ honor tricks it is not my fault. I have pointed out on countless occasions that the response of a suit instead of a no trump at the one level (as one heart in response to one diamond or one diamond in response to one club) should not be used artificially to indicate any agreed number of top tricks. While such an arbitrary and artificial system of bidding does have certain advantages, it has so many disadvantages that it has long since been discarded by every master player. At one time it was quite fashionable when holding such a hand as to respond to partner's opening club or heart bid with "One no trump!" "Why, I only had one-half honor trick!" The grotesqueness of such a bid is apparent to us now, and should have been then. But for several years players were so hidebound by convention that they kept on bidding no trump on distributions that could not by any stretch of the imagination be played at that denomination. As a matter of fact, the hand that caused the headaches occurred in a recent tournament. This was the entire deal:

♠ K J 10 8 7 6 5 ♥ 2 ♦ 8 6 4 ♣ 3 2

NORTH
♠ 7 5 3 2
♥ 6 4 2
♦ K J 8 6 5
♣ 7

WEST
♠ K Q J 4
♥ J 9
♦ A 3
♣ Q 10 9 8 5

EAST
♠ A 10 6
♥ Q 10 7 5 3
♦ 10 2
♣ J 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 9 8
♥ A K 8
♦ Q 9 7 4
♣ A K 6 4

With South dealer and both sides vulnerable, at all tables South started with the normal approach bid of one club. West passed. At six of the eight tables involved North responded with one diamond, and, after a pass by East, South jumped to three diamonds. That, of course, was left undisturbed by North, and, regardless of the opening lead or subsequent defense, only the ace of diamonds and two spade tricks had to be lost, North's third heart resting comfortably on the club king. At the other two tables, where North-South tied for bottom on the board, one club was left as the final contract. Obviously declarer could make no more than his two top clubs, the ace-king of hearts, and one diamond, for a two-trick penalty.

I do not claim that an isolated hand can prove anything, but I do know that the two Norths who passed to one club will never use that same philosophy again!

These Two Blouses Are Among Smartest in Paris

No. 5216—The Paris pattern for these blouses is available in sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—I was window shopping in the Rue the other day and paused to admire these two blouses displayed by one of the smartest shops on the avenue. Needless to say, the price tags were enough to make one cringe and run away, but since my job is fashion snooping I decided not to go and, instead, gave the two models close scrutiny. I discovered, on inspection, that the main points of chic in these blouses were simplicity of line and richness of fabric. I set my memory to work to record the lines of the models, and here they are. I hope you like them as well as I do!

The blouse illustrated at the top is a little "don't dress" affair of rich gold lamé, just the thing to wear with your sumptuous black velvet dinner suit and small turban. It's the fabric, really, that contributes the air of glamor. You can make the blouse in no time at all, because there's virtually nothing to it but style, certainly no dressmaking!

The other blouse is a tailored one, the original of which, displayed so temptingly in the Paris shop, was of rust colored antelope. Now don't tell me you can't afford real antelope! I want you to do what I did. I went to one of my favorite and inexpensive shops and bought some rust colored suede cloth, and the result was a smart tailored blouse, buttoned down the front, to wear with my sea blue sports ensemble.

You may have other fabrics which suit your style preferences better. If so, follow your heart. Any woolen or crêpe will make up well in this simple model with its shirtwaist collar and brief puffed sleeves. As for the dressier blouse, how about white or eggshell satin instead of the metal cloth?

Miracle Play Held Best of Four New Ones

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We had a week filled with drama. Rather important drama as it appeared in the announcements. A new play by the Theater Guild which had been credited with a Chicago success, that being "Madame Bovary" with Constance Cummings. A new play by a professor of English and a writer of consequence, that being Stanley Young's "Robin Landing." A new play by a Hollywood scenarist of promise, that being "Too Many Heroes" by Dore Schary. [The Dore being short for Isadore, they tell me]. A new comedy which a Toronto lawyer named Brian Doherty whittled out of an engaging novel by Bruce Marshall, a humorous Scot. That being "Father Malachy's Miracle," staged by the western Mæcenas, Delos Chappell, who always does things handsomely whether they turn out to be good or not so good.

And which of these promises would you suspect, off hand, of being the most likely to come through to a popular success? No, it wasn't "Bovary," despite the Theater Guild prestige. As it turned out it was the simple little hokum story of "Father Malachy's Miracle" that pleased the most.

Proving, or at least indicating, that the theater is about where it always has been in respect to the drama. Its patrons, however smug, still like interesting story plays.

"Father Malachy's Miracle" will be recalled by the book's readers of the lightly fantastic adventure of a mild monk who came out of a monastery to continue his church work at St. Margaret's in Edinburgh.

• • •

A simple soul with a simple faith, when he happened to meet a liberal Anglican on the train and fell into an argument with him as to the possibility of Bible miracles being revived in the twentieth century, it was quite natural for him to uphold his faith by insisting that miracles are simply a matter of God's will. They are still quite as possible as they ever were. Which led to a sort of dare on the Anglican's part. If Father Malachy was so sure of God's powers let him move the Garden of Eden dance hall opposite his church to some remote spot. It had for years been a shrieking in the ears and a stench in the nostrils of decent folk.

Very well, agrees Father Malachy, when the subject is revived, at 9 o'clock that evening, he will pray for a miracle and God will answer. And so it happens. At 9 o'clock, when revelry is at its height in the Garden of Eden, God picks the place up and sets it down on Bass rock, which is an island twenty miles away. The moving, naturally, taking place off stage.

But the after effects of the miracle are not so good. In place of stimulating the faith of all the world, or at least bringing several thousand hardened Scots back to their devotions, the new order is very upsetting.

The newspapers made a sensation of it. The bishop of the diocese thinks it altogether too spectacular and a terrible nuisance. The constabulary demand a sight of the father's permit, seeing that he has broken the peace. The owners of the Garden of Eden threaten suit to recover ten thousand pounds' damages. A cardinal comes all the way from Rome to protest, in the name of the holy see, that miracles cannot be recognized until several hundred years have elapsed.

• • •

To top it all a flashy American promoter arrives to capitalize the miracle. It was a good trick and he can sell it. It would be a good trick, decides Father Malachy, if he could take the American's money and make the Garden of Eden into a shrine. So he takes the money.

But even that plan cannot be consummated. So, on Christmas eve, when the reveling is again at its raucous height, the little father is forced to kneel down in the barroom of the Garden of Eden and ask God to put it back where he found it. Which God is evidently very glad to do.

Al Shean plays the good Father Malachy. Yes, he is the same Mr. Shean who used to sing with the late Mr. Gallagher those endless verses ending "Positively, Mr. Shean?" "Absolutely, Mr. Gallagher!" But he is a good actor, as he proved once before when he played a gentle music master in "Music in the Air." He is even a better actor as Malachy, sweet and gentle, wholesome and heart warming in his not too studied simplicities.

The cast is large and wisely chosen, with St. Clair Bayfield, Ralph Cullinan, Benedict Macquarrie, Margaret Curtis, and Donald Beddoe included. "Father Malachy's Miracle" promises now to be the first popular success Mr. Chappell has had, and his friends are naturally doing a bit of cheering.

• • •

Constance Cummings, who is a handsome and resourceful actress, gives her all to "Madame Bovary." The Theater Guild has backed it with one of Lee Simonson's most satisfying settings and cast it with its accustomed fine sense of selection in the matter of actors. Benn Levy has adapted it from a Gaston Baty original. But it still lacks the spark of satisfying drama.

The fault, I suspect, lies in the negative quality of the Bovary appeal. However fine a study Flaubert made of the gradual disintegration of the heroine's character, she emerges in the quickened pace of the drama as a radiant but shallow country girl dreaming romantic dreams on her wedding night, and meeting her first prophetic disillusionment when the stodgy bridegroom, heavy with wine, goes to sleep with his head in her lap.

Thereafter her decline in audience appeal keeps pace with her persistent but somewhat ignoble search for love through a forced affair with Boulanger, which goes wrong, and a sordid affair with Dupuis, which comes to its tragic end in her suicide.

"Madame Bovary," in production, is representative of that kind of play that is superbly done without being worth the doing. Miss Cumminngs, again ill advised, I think, as she was a year ago in the case of "The Young Madame Conti," is permitted only to exhibit her resourcefulness, her lightly obvious but carefully studied technique and her striking beauty without the aid of a created sympathy to help her.

There is a great admiration for her performance, blanketed by a feeling of coolness toward the character she creates. The combination seldom helps to advance an actress in popularity as definitely as she had hoped it would. Audiences in general have great difficulty disassociating an actress from the part she plays. The Cummings determination to prove her quality as an actress of superior equipment is so pronounced I hope eventually she will find the part that will help her.

• • •

Another instance of a play that was splendidly staged without having an appeal justifying the labor spent on it is Dore Schary's "Too Many Heroes."

This is the story of a lynching in a small American factory town. Two men, while drunk, have kidnaped, abused and murdered the daughter of the mill superintendent and tossed her body into a swamp. The millmen, aroused, propose the lynching and carry it through.

The more significant character story revolves about a workman named Jeb Williams. Jeb is normally a gentle person. He believes in law and order. He recoils from the brutality of the lynching and holds out against joining. But when the sneers of his friends and the taunts of his wife force him in, it is he who delivers the blow that kills one of the prisoners.

Thereafter Jeb, stricken by remorse, worried sick by his rebelling conscience, tries to give himself up to a sherif who, on a tip from the governor, is trying to forget the whole affair. Failing in this, he tries to do what he can to help the widow of one of the lynched men and again his motives are misconstrued. In the end the town turns against him, his wife leaves him, he is fired from his job and killed when he tries to stand out against a mob come in search of the woman he is protecting.

There is a remarkably fine realism in the staging and playing of "Too Many Heroes," but it still leaves an audience cold. The playwright's object seems to be to pile horror on horror's head.

James Bell, Shirley Booth, Elspeth Eric, Joseph Sweeney, Clyde Franklin and several other good actors help as much as they can.

"Robin Landing" is the type of poetic romance that has a hard time on Broadway. Fine in texture, impressive in word, subdued and dignified in the playing of even its most melodramatic scenes, it is nothing with which to battle the usual competition. Here again the general effect is depressing where its literary author, Stanley Young, probably thought it would be uplifting and inspirational.

In the late eighteenth century Grant Eaton has gone into the Kentucky wilderness and established a trading post. Where he came from he has left a handsome wife with whom he had had a misunderstanding and a cruel brother with whom he had quarreled bitterly. Eighteen years later the brother and the wife, married now to each other, thinking Grant was dead, arrive at the trading post.

Eaton, himself married to an Indian woman and the father of her halfbreed son, would be avenged upon his wife and brother. His hate is still strong, but the woman's continuing love for him and his loyalty toward his Indian connections get in the way. In the end the brother stabs Grant and blinds him. His Indian son is killed, his Indian wife leaves him.

The wicked brother also being stabbed to death by an avenging agent in the Eaton camp, the wife is left to stay with Grant.

"Robin Landing" is well played by a cast headed by Ian Keith, Nan Sunderland [Mrs. Walter Huston], Louis Calhern, Whitford Kane, and a variety of minor actors of proved talent.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

A CLERGYMAN in a south side district writes in behalf of a friend who is a musician and an instructor of violin. Badly hit during the depression, he sold his valuable instrument to help his brother, who was greatly in need. Through recitals and by teaching he soon would be self-supporting if he could obtain another violin. He has tried in many ways to help himself, even by house painting, but physical disabilities prevented his continuing. Has any reader a violin which could be given to him?

We hope some man reader who has a seldom worn suit or overcoat hanging idle in the closet will be able to supply Mr. C., on the south side.

His wife writes:

"Dear Miss Brown: My husband has been a very sick man for the past three years, and we have been forced to accept relief for the last year and a half. He now attends a clinic for treatment, but I am so worried about him, as he is terribly thin, and I doubt if he could survive if he took cold. Six feet two inches tall, he weighs 120 pounds, which is 60 pounds under normal weight.

"The treatments have helped him, and I don't want them discontinued, but I hate to have him go out during this cold weather, as he has no overcoat and his clothing is threadbare. We have four children, girls, 16 and 12, and boys, 14 and 8."

Any reader can judge for himself, from the above facts, just how much this man needs warm clothing. Relief agencies are unable to supply it.

Another sickly man in need of clothing writes:

"A constant reader of THE TRIBUNE, I have noticed the many good deeds you have done for needy persons. I am stricken with arthritis and am on relief. Unable to walk, I have been out of the house only four or five times in the last four years.

"A friend has loaned me a wheel chair, but as I have been unable to replace my clothing in a long time, I have nothing fit to wear outdoors. If some reader has a castoff suit, size 40, and a coat and sweater, I would appreciate them. F. B."

Mr. B. is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 140 pounds. He also needs a small heating stove.

A lonely, elderly woman asks for help:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am on a pension which doesn't provide for more than bare necessities. I have a one room kitchenette and, since I am 82 years old, don't get out during the winter months. Alone most of the time, I would love to have a small radio which would be great company for me during the lonesome hours. Mrs. E. S."

This address is on the north side of the city.

Mrs. B. writes from the extreme northwest side of the city. She asks for a buggy for her three month old daughter. Her husband is working, but frequent illnesses often cut his weekly salary to a minimum.

Lance's Love for Madge Bursts Through Barriers When He Finds Her Injured—but Seemingly It Leads Nowhere

He picked her up in his arms and went on.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Lance Sidway, about to leave Hollywood with his horse, Umpqua, to look for a cowboy's job, rescues a blonde co-ed from threatened arrest. Next afternoon Lance waits to meet the girl, whom he knows only as Madge, but changes his mind when he overhears her talking to Honey Bee Uhl, a gangster, who is pressing an old flirtation on the girl. Lance rides Umpqua to Douglas, Ariz., where, short of funds, he stops to look for work. At a service station on the highway Lance is hailed by a man in a car whom he recognizes as Uhl. Hoping to get a line on the gangster, Lance agrees to drive an empty covered truck to Tucson for Uhl. He suspects Uhl is using trucks to transport stolen cattle. His job finished, Lance continues on to New Mexico, where he meets Ren Starr, who owns a garage and who gives Lance a letter to Gene Stewart, owner of Majesty's Rancho. Depression and cattle thieves have brought Gene Stewart to the verge of ruin. Nels, an old-time Texan who runs a store on the ranch, suggests that Gene throw in with Danny Mains, who has also suffered cattle losses. Danny has a Mexican wife and a pretty daughter, Bonita. It is a complete surprise to Lance when he gets a job from Gene Stewart and Gene's daughter, Madge, returns, expelled from college, and turns out to be the girl who moved Lance so deeply at first sight. Madge insults Lance by accusing him of following her to the ranch and then trying to buy Umpqua from him. Ren Starr arrives at the ranch with news of a truck raid on Gene's cattle that night. In a battle with the rustlers Lance kills a man to save Madge's father. Madge invites several of her college friends to spend the summer at the ranch.

MADGE released Lance's arm and without another word she left him standing there. Lance stepped into the black shadow of the wall, his thoughts whirling. Madge Stewart had the insidious power to make men believe in her sincerity. Her look was enough to lift any poor masculine fool to the seventh heaven—to be convinced that he was the one man!

Lance's thoughts were disrupted by approaching voices. Two people were coming down the patio path. Then Madge's silver laughter, a little mocking, froze Lance to the spot. They came clear to the inside wall.

"Majesty, you drive me mad," came in Rollie Steven's subdued voice. "You know you have no use for that cowboy. You told me so. Yet for days now you've been rotten to me on his account! O, I get it! Sidway hasn't fallen for you—and that's piqued your vanity. Besides you want his horse. Why don't you give the fellow a break? He's a real man. He's not a sap. But pretty soon he'll fall for you, even if he knows you're not on the level with him."

"Rollie, I might be in earnest," she scoffed.

"Bologny! Why, Majesty Stewart, only a month ago you said you—you might marry me."

"That was a month ago, darling. An age!"

"Majesty, you can't marry a cowboy," he expostulated, incredulously.

"Rollie, I hadn't thought of that. But—why couldn't I?"

"You're a lady of quality, a talented girl. Why, he's not of your class. Admitting Sidway is a fine chap—I like him, Majesty—you couldn't marry him. O, to talk of it is preposterous."

"All right, skip it. . . . Rollie! Don't kiss me right here in the moonlight."

"I'll bet he did," he returned, hoarsely.

"Who?"

"Your cowboy!"

"He never even thought of it."

"My word! Majesty, can you expect me to believe that?"

"No, I don't."

A slight scuffle followed, a protest from the girl, then the sound of kisses.

"Rollie, you needn't tear my clothes off. Pick up my coat. And remember, my back is too sore for hugging."

Then soft footfalls and subdued voices faded away. Lance plunged down the trail like a blind man. He had his answer.

● ● ●

EVERY morning Lance awakened under the shadow of impending calamity. What was going to happen next? Or what would Madge Stewart be up to doing? It did not make the slightest difference to Lance, only he seemed to be the one doomed to encounter her in moments of stress.

According to Starr, the long-looked-for camping trip in the mountains was approaching; and that, for two lone cowboys, was a job too big. Starr told Lance that he was trying to persuade Madge to take the vaqueros and a cook.

There were endless jobs. Lance was laboring on a corncrib. Ren had taken the boys fishing. And just about the time Lance forgot his woe there came a wild clamor of screams from the big barn.

"Sounds scary. Now what the hell?" he muttered, darkly, and strode for the barn. The first screams might have been mirth, but those following sent Lance into a run. He dashed up the runway.

The girls were in a pandemonium of fright, shrieking, pale as death and wild eyed. It could not be an ordinary circumstance. Missing Madge from the group Lance yelled: "Shut up! Where's Madge? What's the matter?"

"O! O! She'll be killed!"

"Save her, cowboy—for God's sake!"

"If she falls . . . it . . . it'll be terrible!"

"Where is she? What is it?" yelled Lance.

"Girls, if you tell him—I'll hate you," cried Madge, piercingly from somewhere. "Lance Sidway, you get out—of here! Don't you dare look!"

At that juncture Beulah Allen ran to Lance. "She was swinging on the rope—from one loft to the other. Sitting on the noose! Something gave way—and up she went against the roof. . . . There!"

Then Lance saw Madge up under the roof, hard against the wheel. The noose evidently slipped from her hips, up to her armpits, and had pulled her sweater up that far. But Lance saw only those terrible eyes and the scarlet face.

"Go away!" she shrieked.

"Madge, you're in great danger," flashed Lance. . . . "Grab that wheel!"

"I'd rather die—than—have you . . ."

"You damn fool," fumed Lance, angrily. "I wouldn't give a whoop to see you entirely naked. Now listen to me. . . . Hang on! Help me, girls, quick! Make a pile of hay right under her—so if she falls . . ."

Frantically he began to drag huge armloads of hay from the loft, flinging them to the girls. They worked with a will. Then Lance dashed to the windlass. It was an old fashioned hayfork contrivance, and the heavy reel, owing no doubt to a swinging rock wired on it for a balance, had slipped to jerk her aloft.

"All right," shouted Lance, as soon as he had loosened the rope and taken a strong grip. "Let go the wheel up there. . . . Down you come. . . . Hang on to the rope now."

"You're squeezing me—to death," cried Madge.

Madge reached the floor and the rope went slack. A chorus of tender and commiserating exclamations came from the girls who had surrounded Madge. Bu Allen met Lance with a twinkle in her eyes.

"She's not hurt much. I'll say she got squeezed once hard enough."

Lance made no effort to approach the circle around Madge, who evidently lay prostrate on the hay. He had been forced to expend breath as much through emotion as effort. Bu put a sympathetic hand on his arm. Lance received the impression that the girl, despite her sophistication, was some one to like.

"Girls—is—she hurt?" panted Lance.

"Not that we can tell," replied Allie, who knelt on the hay. Maralee had Madge's head in her lap. Her abbreviated costume had been decently arranged.

"Where's that dragon killer?" asked Madge, her voice weak but spirit apparently undaunted.

Bu Allen dragged Lance over to the pile of hay where Madge lay, white as a sheet.

"You would!" she exclaimed with inscrutable eyes on Lance.

"Would—would what?"

"Be the one to catch me in that predicament. I used to do that stunt when I was little. It never occurred to me to look at the windlass. I'm an idiot. . . . Sidway, please promise you'll not tell Nels or Dad, or even Ren."

"It never happened, Miss Stewart," rejoined Lance, soberly.

"Help me to the car," she replied, and with Allie and Maralee's assistance arose painfully to her feet. "The knot on that damned noose stuck into my back."

The girls helped Madge in, and then piled in themselves, with Allie at the wheel. Madge leaned over the door and took hold of the dusty edge of Lance's vest with unsteady fingers.

"Did I thank you?"

"No. But that is not necessary," returned Lance, hurriedly.

"Lance Sidway, don't you save me any more," said Madge, imperiously. "Not from hayforks, fences, horses, cars—from college youths or gangsters—nor from myself. If you do, I'll not be responsible."

"Are those orders?"

"Yes, they're orders."

"Thanks. I'll not be present next time. And I won't attend your funeral!"

As the car rolled away Lance heard some girl say: "He's one swell fellow!"

LANCE felt inclined to the conviction that it was his careful avoidance of the girls the next few days which kept him out of hot water. Still he had to hear about their mishaps and stunts from Ren, who had been relegated to the job, and who raved rapturously through supper, and then long afterward, to Lance's disgust. It did not help Lance's mood to realize that he listened keenly.

On the third night, however, Ren, for some reason, appeared very glum and silent. Nels ventured a few sly queries. And when Lance added: "Has our poodle had his tail pulled?" Ren stalked out and stamped to his room.

"Wal, he ain't often like thet," said Nels, ponderingly. "Reckon one of us ought to make a move, anyhow."

"I'll go, Nels," returned Lance, and lighting a cigaret he went out. Approaching Ren's door and seeing that the light was out, Lance knocked and said:

"Sorry, old man. I was only kidding."

"Shore, I know thet. It's okay," replied Ren, gruffly.

"Little off your feed, Ren?"

"I reckon. . . . An' I was made out a turrible sucker today!"

"By whom?"

"Wal, who'd you think?"

"Bonita?"

"Thet little hussy! Say, she's lost her haid over them boys. I cain't do a damn thing about it."

"Don't try. They're only in fun, Ren."

"Like hell they air!" ejaculated the cowboy, bitterly.

"Ren, I laid off Bonita for your sake. Maybe I shouldn't have. She liked me. And I'm your pal, you know."

"You're damn right you shouldn't. Them boys hev been chasin' Bonita an' her friends pretty hard lately, an' unbeknown to Majesty."

"That's not so good, Ren."

"Good! It's pretty bad, if you ask me."

"Well, I'll walk down and give the kid a spiel, Ren. . . . But I forgot. Who made the sucker out of you?"

"Never mind now, pard. I don't want to hear you whoop."

Lance strolled off the long porch across the square and down the road toward the high wall of poplar trees that marked the village. The night was close and warm. Merry voices up by the lake attested to the presence of night bathers. The strumming of a guitar and the lilt of a Spanish love song suited the summer night. At the corner Lance turned left to go down the long avenue of poplars. Lance passed the deserted adobe houses, then the lighted store, and beyond that the noisy cantina. Here there was no one out under the vine covered trellis. Peeping in he saw a number of Mexicans, but no girls or white men.

Lance crossed the street, and in the deep shadow of the other lane of poplars he went slowly on toward Danny Mains' house. When he got to the corner he halted in the shadow. The gate was beyond a little ways. Lance thought he would hang around a little before he went in. There were both lights and music in the Mains' cottage. Presently three bareheaded girls appeared, shawls around their shoulders. The foremost was Bonita. They hesitated, whispering excitedly, and were evidently expecting some one. When Lance called Bonita, she gave a start and then approached slowly, while the other girls hung back. He met her at the gate.

"Hello, kiddo. Where you going?"

"O, Señor Lance! I was afraid it might be my brother, Manuel. . . . I've—we have a date."

"You look it. Sweet as a wild rose! . . . Bonita, have you gone back on Ren and me?"

"No, indeed. But I never see you—and him so seldom. He's jealous. Tries to boss me. I won't stand it, Lance."

"Don't blame you. Has he asked you to marry him yet?"

"He has not," she retorted. "But he did say I was so—so bad he wasn't sure he wanted me to."

"Well, that's a tough one. . . . Bonita, have you been stepping out a little lately?"

"Not so very much. Tonight's the first time I've consented to go to town. Francisca and Maria have both been. I'm scared. If daddy finds it out he'll whip me."

"Stay home. Come with me to see Ren. He's blue. Let the others go."

"Lance, if you wanted me for yourself I'd break any date. These young college men are too swift for Bonita Mains."

"Listen, honey. Now don't be a little chump. It's all right to go if you refuse to drink. You'll enjoy the movies and dancing."

"They all drink like fish."

"Right." And Lance laughed at the frank girl. He drew her close to him and kissed her. "Bonita, get a load of this. I like you heaps myself. It's a cinch—more than these college guests of Miss Stewart's. But Ren loves you, dearly. I know it. And I'd hate to see you two fail to make a go of it. Now be a good kid. Promise me. I'll make a date with you for tomorrow night, like this, so we can talk."

"I promise, Lance," she replied, happily, her hands on his arm. "I'll not drink tonight. If you can't patch it up between Ren and me, it'll not be my fault."

"Swell! You're okay, Bonita, and Ren is a crabby old sourdough. We'll fix it. . . . Hello!—a car?"

"They're coming. Perhaps it'd be just as well if you weren't seen."

Lance gave her dark head a pat and hurried back into the shadows of the trees. But the car did not come close to the house and Lance could not ascertain to whom it belonged. The girls ran out and were taken in with merry greetings. As the car went on, Lance thought he saw a figure hanging on behind. Presently, being certain of this, he took to the road and strolled down the hill. He knew that if some one had stolen a ride he would not stick on for long, not on desert roads at the speed these fellows liked.

This car, however, did not appear to open up until it reached the level valley floor. Lance kept on, presently reaching the level, where the dry wash and the sand made rough going for a space.

At length he gave up and was about to turn back when he almost bumped into some one sitting on the low bank of the road. A little peal of silvery laughter magnified his start.

"Lance Sidway! I was just gambling with myself how soon you'd arrive," said Madge Stewart.

"Well, I'm damned!"

"So am I. Fatally damned to have you get me out of every scrape."

"That's a tough break. You're not alone?"

"Yes, I am. Allie was in the plot with me. She was to hang on to the other side. Either she did not get on or she was jolted off. You didn't see her along the road?"

"No. She couldn't have come. I saw only one person hanging on the back of that car."

"You saw me? When?"

"When the car stopped outside Mains' house. I was with Bonita. The other girls waited in the yard."

"O! I see. Johnny on the spot! Did you get who the boys were?"

"No. That didn't interest me particularly. Bonita told me these boys were too swift for her. What Bonita does is probably none of my affair, but I am interested because of Ren. So I urged her not to drink and she said she wouldn't. Bonita is easily influenced if you go about it right. I've been Ren's friend, with her, if you know what I mean."

"I didn't until now," returned Madge, bluntly. "We girls thought the boys were going to the cantina with the girls. I think it lousy of them, especially of Barg Hillcote. Just engaged to Maralee! She would break her engagement with Barg for this. I would. And she's been so happy. . . . I hope to goodness Allie didn't get on and fall off. . . . Surely she'll come soon."

"What's wrong with you?" suddenly, and he leaned close to Madge, peering at her.

"Guess I got hurt," she replied, with great inscrutable eyes meeting his.

"Where?"

"My foot. This one. Thought at first I'd sprained my ankle. But I'm not sure."

"Let me see." Lance stepped up on the bank and knelt. She had taken off her shoe and stocking. Her white foot and leg gleamed in the starlight.

"Don't touch it!" she cried. But he went right on until she screamed out.

"All right, all right, touchy! . . . Let me see you move it. . . . Flex it!"

"O, I can do that. It doesn't hurt."

"Your ankle is okay. You've sprained your instep—or something. But if you keep off it and use hot water frequently, you'll be all right tomorrow or next day."

"I'll have to walk back home."

"No you won't. You can't. Let me get your car."

"But I don't want any one to know about this, and they will if I come in the car. I'll have to sneak in by the west wing to my room. I'll have to walk."

"Nonsense. I can easily carry you."

She laughed outrageously.

"But I can. I'm strong," protested Lance, earnest, amazed, solicitous. "I can throw a hundred pound sack of grain all over the place."

"Strong? I know you're a perfect Hercules, Mr. Sidway," she said, tauntingly. "But I won't have you packing me around."

Very carefully she stepped, and moved up the slope. Every time her injured foot touched the ground it must have pained greatly, Lance knew. He put a hand under her arm and half lifted her along. They came into a trail, and that appeared to be easier for Madge. When they arrived at the pines, however, she was tottering. But this girl was the kind that could not quit.

"Why won't you let me carry you?" he asked, suddenly. "You did once."

"That's why."

"If you're not the queerest girl, I'll eat my hat!" declared Lance.

When she started on, Lance knew she would not make it much farther. And he bided his time, hot and perplexed. Finally, she swore and sobbed almost in the same breath. Without a word more he picked her up in his arms and went on. Shifting his hold, so she would carry more comfortably for her, he said: "There. Isn't that better? I hardly feel your weight."

"Better, indeed. But I fear—riskier," she returned in a queer voice.

Lance had to look at her. Before that, all had seemed well. He was relieved to save her pain. Her face lay high up on his right arm, almost on his breast, turned toward him somewhat, and its lovely proximity grew suddenly exciting. She was looking at him with eyes whose expression he could not fathom.

"Riskier! What do you mean?" he demanded.

"You see, I am utterly helpless. You might get a caveman notion. . . . Really that wouldn't be so bad. But you probably just kissed Bonita——"

"I did. For Ren's sake—mostly."

"Ye gods and little fishes! . . . And no doubt it was Bu Allen last night. She came in with her lipstick all smeared up. Radiant. Bold as the very devil. And she didn't deny it when we kidded her about you."

"Miss Stewart, I did not see her last night," protested Lance.

"Rest here, young Lochinvar! Or you'll fall."

● ● ●

HALF way up to the house, in one of the little bench parks under the pines, he sat down on a bowlder to regain his equilibrium, but he did not let go of Madge. He could feel the throb of her against his throbbing. And all at once he happened to think of what she had told Rollie that last night. Under the galvanizing stress of the idea that leaped out of it, he arose like a giant and a fiend. He wrapped his long arms closer about her and drew her wholly against his breast. Madge seemed totally calm. Then Lance kissed her, not with any particular feeling, but merely as a preliminary.

"I thought it was about time," muttered Madge.

Then, staggering on under the pines, he kissed her cheeks, her eyes, her hair, her neck—and when at last she protested, Lance stopped her mouth with his, in an endless passionate kiss which magnified all the kisses he had ever bestowed in his life.

"Damn you!" she panted, as he moved a moment to breathe. And she began to pound him—to tear at his hair. "You insult me——"

"Insult you! Good God—it—couldn't—be—done," he mocked her, breathlessly. "I heard you say—you rather liked it. . . ."

"You what——"

"Mine ought to be—as good as any of those guys—and cleaner, by heaven! and fresher—from lack of promiscuous practice." And bending over, squeezing her face up immovably, he began to kiss her lips like a madman. His kisses choked off her scream. After one frantic and tense struggle she collapsed in his arms. And he kissed her for every step, on under the pines, out upon the drive, almost to the front archway. Not until he rounded the west wing and reached her window did he realize that her face, her lips, her body had changed. Her eyes were closed tightly, heavy eyelids dreamy, long curled lashes on her cheeks; her lips bowed, open, sweet with a strange fire; her breast pressed on his. Not until Lance lifted her into the open window did he realize that she had an arm round his neck. He lowered her carefully to the floor.

She stirred, and sat up, and laboriously climbed upon the bed. Lance, watching her, expected, yerned for a scourging, bitter word enough even for him. But she just looked at him. In the starlight he saw her face as he would carry it in his heart of hearts forever.

"Majesty," he began, in a husky whisper. But he could not finish. He plunged off in the darkness.

Madge sat upon her bed gazing tensely out of her window into the gloom where Lance Sidway had vanished. A fringe of her senses seemed to register the drowsy murmur of water, the rustle of leaves, the chirp of crickets, as well as loud voices and gay laughter of some of her guests in the living room. But for all that, her acute senses coalesced on her burning cheeks and neck, her breast, and especially her lips on fire with Sidway's terrible kisses.

Over and above these sensations thundered the truth, clearing in her mind. She had been kissed within an inch of her life. She had ranged the gamut of incredible feeling—from pique, surprise, shock, fury, to a sudden overwhelming tumult of love, of her wilful changing moods, her wounded vanity, her temper and upflaring hate, and her softening doubt, her endless misgivings and suspicion, that had kept her up and down for days, only to have this shameful assault leave her undone, madly in love at last, stricken forever.

● ● ●

CLINKING high heels sounded on the stone corridor.

"Majesty!" called Allie in great eagerness. "Did I hear you?"

"Majesty!" called Allie, in great eagerness. "Did I hear you?"

"I shouldn't wonder. I was cussing. Come in. I've a story to unfold. What happened to you?"

"Me! I was thrown in the dust," whispered Allie. "Blinded, I couldn't see a thing. The car was gone and you with it. I felt my way back to my room and washed the dust from my eyes. After that I walked under the pines—down the road—watching for you."

"Funny you didn't see that cowboy carrying me or hear him kissing me. Must have sounded like a decisive battle of the world!"

"Majesty, are you crazy? Such talk! What happened?"

"I fell off the car way down the road. Hurt my foot. I took off my shoe and stocking. Then I sat up on the bank waiting. I knew who'd come. I'd have bet my soul. And he did come. Sidway, the darned inquisitive rooster. We talked, and as always in a few moments we were at each other's throats. All before he knew I was hurt. When he found that out he was human for a little bit. I wouldn't let him go for a car or for help, and I started walking up the hill. Hurt? O Lord, did it? Pretty soon he grabbed me up in his arms. I gave him some dirty digs because I knew he'd kiss me. No fellow yet ever got that far with me without kissing me. And I was scared of having Sidway do that. Allie, I—I—liked him too much. . . . Well, pretty soon he did. I never was so mad in my life just at first. . . . I thought he was going to eat me alive. . . . Allie, he lighted some kind of a conflagration in me. If I hadn't been too weak I'd have . . . O! But I couldn't move. It was only after he tumbled me in my window here that I realized I'd been in a trance of bliss . . . that at last there . . . I'd been kissing him for every kiss he'd given me. It all comes to me gradually. Later I'll remember some of the things he said, and tell you. . . . Allie, darling, I've told you many stories in the dead of night—after love dates, blind dates, hells. But what do you say to this one?"

"Majesty, you love him!" whispered Allie, in awe.

"Well! So you get that? That's wonderful perspicacity, darling! Never mind about me—about the dual rotten nature that has turned on me. . . . But what did Lance Sidway mean? Tell me that."

"Madge, it's beyond the bounds of human possibility that he doesn't love you."

"Why?"

"I saw the look in his eyes. You know he has beautiful eyes, when they're soft."

"You're as sentimental as Maralee, and as gullible. That cowboy hates my very insides."

"I can't believe that."

"But, sweet, listen. For God's sake use some brains. Isn't it conceivable that I should finally fall foul of a real man who sees through me—who has my number—whom I can't fool or intrigue or fascinate or captivate—who has fine ideals, and who consequently despises me?"

"Yes, it's conceivable. That'd be a horrible misfortune. . . . But if Sidway wasn't mad about you he couldn't act as he does."

"O, Allie! I'm so horribly afraid he'll turn out big and fine and noble—despite all—that tonight."

"Darling, have you ever been your sweet true self to Sidway?" asked Allie.

"Yes, once. The first time. That campus day."

"Then go back to that. Even if he hates you unmercifully, he'll come around. After we are gone—and we shouldn't drag this grand vacation out selfishly. . . ."

"Gone! I couldn't stay. Yet I must. This is home. I owe it to Dad and Mom. But—alone on the range with that eagle-eyed cowboy! Mom says he is like Dad used to be! Dad is hipped on him. And Nels. . . . O, what is the use?"

"Darling, compose yourself and get to sleep," begged Allie, tenderly.

"I'm dead tired. But sleep! What'll I do when I wake up?"

"You mean about him?"

"Of course."

"Why be just the same as if nothing had happened."

"You callous woman! . . . Allie—I think—I guess . . ." faltered Madge, finally weakening to tears. . . . "I'm licked. . . . I'm afraid—he'll go—away!"

● ● ●

GOLDEN sunlight streaming in at Madge's window seemed inconsistent with the gray, gloomy void she wanted to believe was her lot. Allie had gone out in her dressing gown to fetch some coffee and toast. Madge's foot felt stiff, but it was not going to incapacitate her in the least. What she wanted most right at that moment was to be down at the corrals. Would Lance be such a coward as that—to run off for fear she would betray him? She was consumed with a desire to see Sidway this morning. To see if the monster resembled in any degree her conception! He should be haggard, drawn, after a sleepless night, burdened by guilt, unable to look any one in the eye.

Allie returned, escorted by a bevy of bright-eyed girls, all of whom had been in the kitchen.

"Lazy girl! It's ten o'clock," said Maralee, whose sweet face appeared so gay and happy that Madge wondered at the credulity of human nature. They all came in, their colorful print dresses bright around Madge's bed.

"Where is Bu?" asked Madge.

"That outsider has shown us up," said Dixie. "She's dishonored the fair name of our sorority."

"O, for the love of Mike—what now?"

"Bu is riding Umpqua right this minute. You know we all tried to coax Sidway to let us ride him. Same as Majesty tried to buy him. Nothing doin'! And now she's down there having a swell time on that grand horse. The cowboy is teaching Bu to jump over logs and ditches, and what have you? Was I jealous? All the same I had to hand it to Bu. She looked great. How'd she ever put that over with Sidway?"

"I've a hunch and I'm going to try it," said Selma Thorne, subtly.

"Say, don't imagine I let any grass grow under my feet," declared Dixie. "I went up to the cowboy, raved about his horse and complimented Bu. Then I said, with all I've got, old dears, 'Lance, I'd almost sell my soul to ride Umpqua!' He said: 'Why didn't you tell me? I can't read your mind. Umpqua loves girls. I'd be only too happy to put you up on him. Hang around till Beulah is through.' I wasn't dressed for riding, as you see, so I asked if I might go down early tomorrow. Then he looked troubled. I hadn't noticed that. Why, he looked just wretched. And he said: 'Yes, by all means, if I'm here. But I expect Miss Stewart to fire me this morning!' . . . Majesty, darling, what has he done now? But no matter, don't fire Sidway."

And then the other girls burst into a chorus of appeals and conjectures and wise cracks that fairly infuriated Madge. She flung pillows at them. "Beat it, you pack of imps! Get out! No! I'm—not—going—to fire—Lance Sidway! Go climb on his neck and then on his precious Umpqua for all I care. That'd be the way to get there. But I'd die first."

Going to Have a Party? Here Are Some Ideas

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

TODAY, somewhere, a woman will pin a flower on her best evening gown. Somewhere else a man will put extra leaves in the dining room table, and somewhere else a child will blow out the candles on a birthday cake. Maybe the statistics aren't accurate, but the picture certainly is, because somebody is giving or thinking of giving a party.

It is Selma Robinson's thought. She is a young author with a reputation in her circle as an unusual hostess. The party message Miss Robinson has to deliver is full of suggestions for you women planning a party.

• • •

"WE have again become a party loving people, which is one of the healthiest signs of the moment. When women revert to the idea of making the home the center of entertainment features, all's right with out domestic world. It's an old theme, this one of making a home what the home should be—a place of consequence in the affairs of people into whose lives should be written more than the homely duties of household upkeep. It should be the center of interest from the standpoint of enjoyment of leisure hours. It should furnish entertainment in which the family members are more closely knitted in an effort to dispense wholesome and happy hospitality."

"But parties are too much trouble," you may say. "They're too expensive. They are too much bother."

Selma Robinson offers some suggestions that are worth recording and acting upon.

Says this clever young hostess:

"If you have been entertained all summer and haven't paid back a summer social debt; if you have moved to a new house; if your club is solvent for the first time in eight years; if you simply have some new clothes and want to celebrate, the indications are that you have a party coming on and ought to do something about it quickly.

"Giving a party doesn't mean going out and investing in a lot of expensive favors and decorations. It just means having fun as simply as possible. But, of course, what makes fun is open to a lot of debate. Usually, I think, the best parties are those which offer the sharpest contrast to your everyday way of living. A barnyard with cackling geese and grunting pigs doesn't sound like very much of a party to a farmer, but it panicked a gathering at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. Last winter, down in Palm Beach, the hit party of the season was a corned beef and cabbage supper in the back room of what might be referred to as a 'joint.'

• • •

"ANYWAY a party, if it is to be fun, should be different. And in order to be different it should have an idea, no matter how simple or simple-minded it may seem. Like this. Suppose you have a wedding anniversary coming on. Why not try asking your friends to come in the costume they wore to their own weddings?

"My favorite is a cooking party. You invite about four couples to come to your home and they do their own cooking.

"These are the ingredients: Select four well matched, jolly couples of assorted shapes, sizes, and ages. The day before the party telephone each and say: 'What is it you would like to make and what are the ingredients I must have for you?' You may find that each wants to make some prima donna dish such as baked Alaska, or molded chicken, or something like that, but don't be alarmed. Gently pull them down to earth and guide the menu carefully. It shouldn't be too heavy, or too plain, or too elaborate, or too anything.

"EVERYBODY, man or woman, and especially man, has a prized recipe that he guards with his life. He is convinced that, given the time and the place, he could be a second Escoffier. And you'd be amazed at the skill of many an amateur cook! Everybody can do at least one dish superlatively well and will relish the opportunity to show it.

"All the ingredients for the cooking party are supplied by the hostess and that is why you telephone ahead to your guests and find out exactly what they'll need. When the cooks arrive, from 5 o'clock on, everything will be waiting for them in the kitchen, including a rubber apron from the five and ten cent store for each guest. Those who don't cook wait on table. Even that becomes fun.

"Just watch the excitement rise, like water coming to a boil. By 7 o'clock guests will be sniffing each other's dishes ecstatically, nursing each other's burns and cuts and calling each other by their first names. Their cheeks may be flushed. Their hair may be damp, but not their spirits. By a quarter past seven, when your appetite can't hold out another minute, the first cook, almost bursting with modesty, announces that his specialty is ready for the table! It's a wonderful moment!"

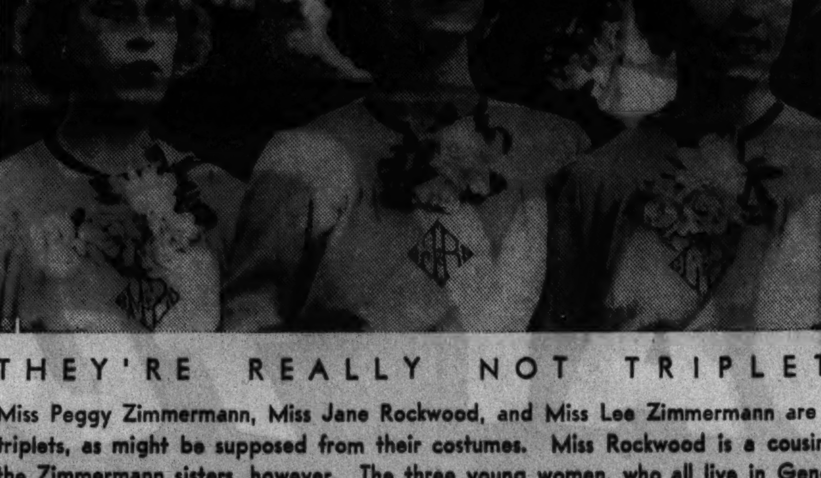
Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.



THEY'RE REALLY NOT TRIPLETS

Miss Peggy Zimmermann, Miss Jane Rockwood, and Miss Lee Zimmermann are not triplets, as might be supposed from their costumes. Miss Rockwood is a cousin of the Zimmermann sisters, however. The three young women, who all live in Geneva, and their mothers, Mrs. Charles P. Rockwood and Mrs. Herbert Zimmermann, gave a debutante luncheon party early in the season at the Dunham Woods Riding club.

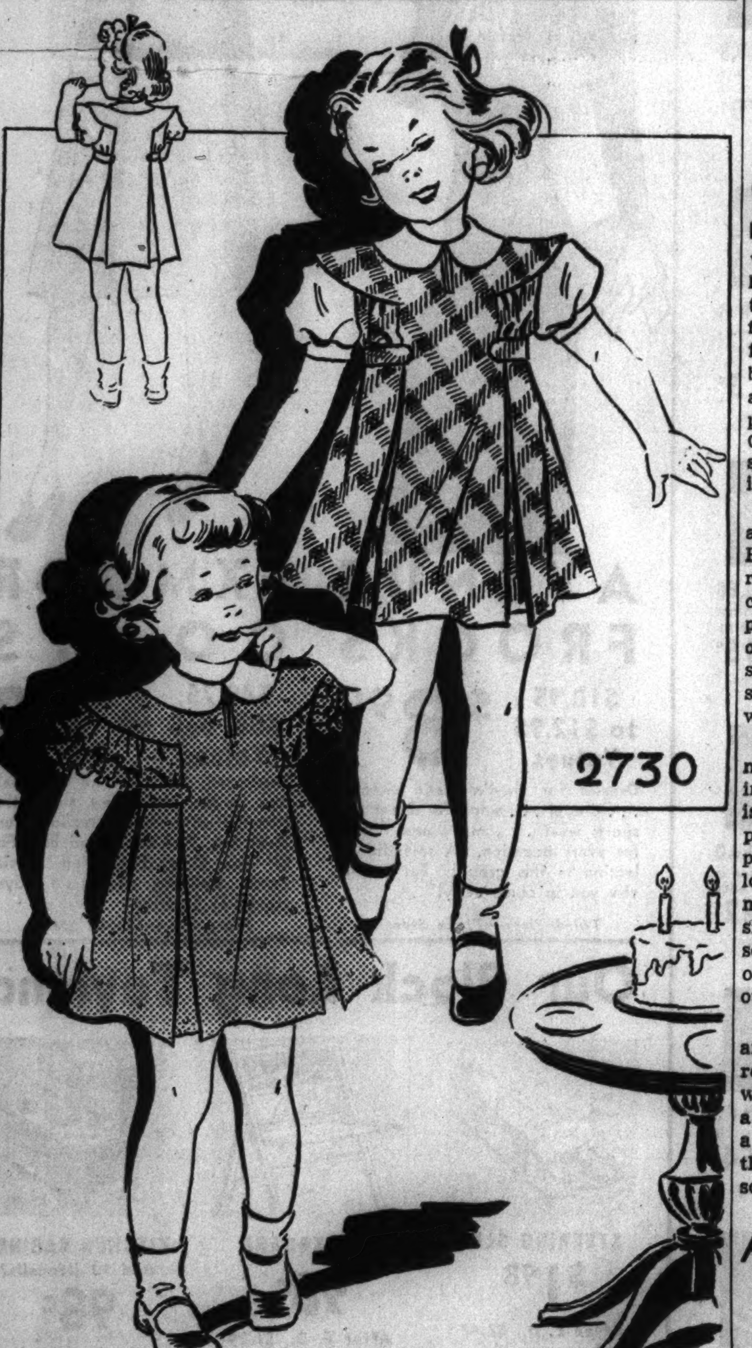
Clotilde Children's Fashions



PARTY dress and sturdy school frock, this pattern is both. It all depends on the fabric you choose and the treatment you give the sleeves. The dress has a brief French bodice and capelet sleeves. The dress is paneled and has four plaits, two in front and two in back. A belt that is unusual is used only at the sides.

This really is a jumper dress, because the garment we have just described is an overskirt that tops a blouse with shirtwaist collar and puffed sleeves. For school wear this blouse might be of cotton broadcloth and the jumper of plaid woolen.

If there's a birthday party on the calendar soon, mother might make this dress of plaid gingham and the blouse of white lawn. For an added "dressy" touch, ruffles may be added to the capelet shoulders.

You don't have to select plaids. We merely suggest them because they are so smart right now. Plain shades in girlish colors will make up equally well. You might select a medium blue and make the little blouse of blush pink or peach. There is no end to the color harmonies you can create.

Style No. 2730 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material for the dress, with 1 yard of 39 inch fabric for the blouse with puffed sleeves.

One of Foremost Parasitologists Is Woman Doctor

SHE started with a course in domestic science offered to young ladies who wanted to know how to be efficient housekeepers when they had a husband and a house to keep. That was in 1918 at the University of Chicago. But she found something that interested her far more than housekeeping or even husband—the fight against disease—and today is one of the foremost parasitologists of the world, Dr. Eloise Cram, director of the only clinic for study of pinworm disease in Washington.

She was chosen a year and a half ago by the National Institute of Health after fifteen years of brilliant research with the deparment of agriculture. Already she has made important discoveries in the treatment of pinworm victims which she will soon report. Her findings will be studied by physicians all over the world, since research is incomplete.

The pinworm does not live in animals. Human sufferers must be used in developing treatments. The clinic is held weekly at a Washington hospital for voluntary patients. These patients, suffering from nervousness, loss of weight and dangerous inflammation of the digestive tract, are in skilful hands, for dark haired, handsome Dr. Cram has more knowledge of their obscure disease than any other physician.

Asked why she chose a microscope and the drudgery of a specialist, she replied: "Why did I choose a life work in science? Because disease is a tireless fighter, and there is always a fresh attack to be found under the microscope or in the test tube by scientists. And I like the fight."

Ample Storage Space Needed in "Rumpus" Room

BE sure to have plenty of storage or closet space in your "rumpus" or "whoopee" room. If built-in closets are not available use portable ones for holding games and cards. To save dusting, cover the furniture or game tables when they are not in use.

Woman's Hobby Is Doll Collecting; She Has 200

THE hobby of Mrs. Tommy Thompson of Spencer, Ia., is collecting dolls and now she has 200 of all sizes, nationalities, and ages. The collection includes modern dolls, replicas of the Dionne quintuplets and Shirley Temple, and dolls of yesteryear, with one dating back to 1787. Oldest of the lot is "Lizzie," still in perfect condition despite her 150 years. Included in the collection are dolls from Switzerland, China, Germany, Russia, Scotland, Holland, Japan, Italy, and Mexico.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 29.

Providing the ground is not frozen it is wise to plant a number of the minor bulbs, such as the dainty grape hyacinth, the curious checkered calico flower, glory of the snow, and others of a similar nature. These may be planted in colonies in the foreground of the perennial border, or shrubs. When established in large, irregular numbers they form one of the most pleasing garden effects. Do not neglect to mulch the strawberry bed after the ground is frozen and remember that the material should not cover the crowns unless very slightly. Clean wheat or oat straw may be used.

Tuesday, Nov. 30.

The fall spading of gardens is an excellent practice, especially if copious amounts of organic manures are turned under. Spade the ground and allow it to lie in a rough or unsmoothed condition until spring when it will be mellowed and permit planting earlier than ground not so treated. Destroy all corn stalks or stubble and hollow stalked weeds to reduce hibernating places of the corn borer. Burn the stalks or bury them deeply. On a windy day set a match to iris leaves and they will burn rapidly, killing the borers. The iris bed should be protected with a light covering of straw.

Wednesday, Dec. 1.

Finish planting hardy bulbs, such as tulips and hyacinths. A new lawn may be mulched with a slight covering of light, strawy manure to help protect the young grass during winter. A heavy mulching probably will do more harm than good, but a thin covering is beneficial. Try cutting twigs of the current year's growth, burying in the ground to keep them plump and in good condition for grafting next spring. Grafting apple trees is interesting and easy to do when once the technique is learned. Many books and bulletins will explain exactly how the various methods are worked out.

Thursday, Dec. 2.

Begonias may be propagated now. Rex begonias offer a fine opportunity for experimenting with leaf cuttings. The watermelon begonia and the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet are easily increased by leaf cuttings. It is a good plan to cover the pot of cuttings with glass to aid in the retention of moisture. The common umbrella plant is a well known house plant, but not grown as frequently as it deserves. The curious leaves, spreading out like a miniature umbrella, may be increased by making cuttings of the tips, or grown from seed. Cyclamen, cineraria, and primrose should be kept in a cool window for best results. Watch all plants for insect attacks and use the proper spray. Remember that leaf-eating insects are killed with stomach poisons and sucking insects with contact sprays.

Friday, Dec. 3.

Try and have a choice number of flowering pot plants ready for the holidays. Watering pot plants is so essential for success that all home gardeners should exercise every effort to water at the right time. Cut flowers do best when placed in cool water without the use of chemicals. Asperin and other so-called helps injure the flowers.

Saturday, Dec. 4.

The terrarium makes a fine Christmas present as it may be easily maintained in an apartment; it is easy to keep in condition and one may work out many interesting gardens by carefully selecting the plant materials. Small ferns, tropical plants of all kinds, and small things from the woods, like the partridgeberry, are excellent. Visit local florist establishments to observe some of the best plants for house use. Several ferns will do well in the home. Maidenhair ferns are among the most attractive of all but they need a humid condition for best results.

Relish Made of Cranberries and Orange Is Novel

FOR a seasonable relish put three cups of cranberries through a food chopper. Follow these with one orange which has been cut in half and freed of seeds. [The rind and pulp are used, however.] Add one and a half cups of sugar and let the combination chill for several hours. Half a cup of crushed pineapple may be added.

Buy Shrewdly If Furniture Is to Endure

By Edith Weigle.

A GOOD friend wears well. So does a good piece of furniture. Sometimes it takes us years to gain the ability to discriminate, to judge people. But we can learn to tell a good piece of furniture from a poor one in short order if we will master a few pointers.

And since most of us have to live a long time with our more costly home furnishings it pays to purchase items that combine beauty with excellence of construction.

If we buy a new couch for the living room, for example, that couch should give us service for years, for it represents a considerable investment. In choosing it we should avoid certain ear-marks that betray the poorly made, shoddy piece of furniture and we should recognize signs that mean honest craftsmanship and quality.

• • •

FIRST of all, observe the finish on that new table you are considering. Is it thin enough to show the grain of the wood, or is it a thick, glossy varnish that can cover an inferior wood? Has it been put on evenly and carefully, or has some of it accumulated in a "run" and piled up in corners?

If there is carving is it rough and crude or smooth and clear cut? If the top of the table or the front of drawers are veneered are the pieces of veneer well matched so that they make a pattern? They should be.

Good veneer today is found on some of the best furniture. So do not avoid it, but inquire about its thickness and see that it is well matched.

Look at the back of a chest of drawers as well as the front. If the back piece has rough, splintery edges and is put on with nails it's a sure sign of poor construction. If screws are used and the back is as neat as the front the chest has been made with care.

Do the drawers stick? A grand old man in the furniture business who knew construction from A to Z once said to me: "If you can pull open a drawer with one finger the bureau is well made."

• • •

WHEN buying an upholstered piece of furniture, such as a lounge chair or a couch, you are entitled to know the following answers, and if the salesman can't or won't tell you, go somewhere where you will be given information:

1. Is the frame made of selected hardwood—ash, maple, oak, or birch?

2. Are the joints double doweled and glued instead of nailed?

3. Are the springs the best quality of oiled, tempered steel?

4. Are the springs fastened together with strong Italian twine, tied eight ways to prevent slipping, and firmly knotted by hand?

5. Is the filling of the couch or chair of curled horse hair and hog hair and is it topped with a minimum quantity of soft cotton felt padding? Is the entire upholstery covered in muslin before the outside covering is applied?

6. If the cushions are of down is the proportion about 70 per cent goose down to 30 per cent of goose feathers? And are these new materials?

7. Is the upholstery fabric expertly cut and are the patterns well matched and tailored?

8. Are the fabrics on the outside and inside of the back and arms tacked firmly to the frames—then hand sewn together—to prevent ripping and fraying?

If you are given affirmative answers to these eight questions you may rest assured you are buying a piece of furniture that is excellently made and that will last for years.

Yes, you'll pay more for it, but it will be economy in the long run. Quality is always the best economy over a period of time.

Does your dinette appear smaller than it really is? How to select furniture, wall coverings, rugs and cabinets in order to give greater utility and a more pleasing appearance is told in the booklet, "Making the Most of the Dinette," by Edith Weigle, Tribune furniture stylist. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

Apokeepsing Too Hard; Changed to Poughkeepsie

POUGHKEEPSIE, which is celebrating its 250th anniversary, derives its name from Apokeepsing, an Indian word meaning "safe harbor," or "waterfall." One of the first instruments filed in the state records gives a description of a tract of land near the waterfall Pooghkepsingh at the mouth of the Val Kill. Possibly, because of difficulty of pronunciation, the earlier English settlers found it easier to call the settlement Poughkeepsie.

Barber and Howe, in their "Historical Collections of New York State," give the above derivation of the name, but set its organization in 1788. The first house erected on the site of the present city was built, according to Barber and Howe, in 1702 by Myndert Van Kleek.

Their book, compiled in 1841, records that the property was acquired from some of Van Kleek's descendants by Matthew Vassar, who later founded Vassar college.

"There Goes the Groom" is the name of Ann Sothern's newest photoplay. Burgess Meredith is the other featured player.

We present here a new Carole Lombard photograph which just winged its way to us from the coast. Miss Lombard is appearing with Fred MacMurray in "True Confession" at the moment. Rumor has it that when the Frenchman, Fernand Gravet, returns to Hollywood he will draw her as his leading lady.

Word of a new Grace Moore film is always hailed with delight by music lovers. And here's the word! Miss Moore, assisted by Melvyn Douglas, will be with us soon in "I'll Take Romance."

It's been quite a while since either Merle Oberon or Laurence Olivier have favored us with a screen appearance. But Merle, pictured here, and Laurence will soon be with us in a brand new movie! Title—"The Divorce of Lady X."

Holidays Will Bring 'Victoria Regina' to Chicago Stage

'Tovarich' with Leontovich to Open Dec. 20

By Charles Collins.

INQUIRIES regarding the schedule of plays for the Chicago stage during the Christmas holidays are coming to this editorial desk with a frequency which suggests that the customers of the legitimate theater are a forward looking social group—much more so than the impresarios. Until a few days ago the prospects for yuletide were clouded, but at this week-end it is possible to make a new prognostications.

Ibsen's "A Doll's House," which opens at the Grand Opera house tomorrow night with a four star cast—Ruth Gordon, Dennis King, Paul Lukas, and Sam Jaffe—will remain only two or three weeks. Its producer, Jed Harris, is planning to place it on Broadway's lap as a Christmas gift on or about Dec. 27. The management of the Grand has not yet made up its mind about its holiday booking. This spot on the theatrical map, therefore, may be marked as "uncertain" at the moment.

"Wine of Choice," a new Theater Guild production, with Miriam Hopkins and Leslie Banks in the central rôles, will come to the Erlanger theater on Dec. 13 to remain only until Dec. 25. It will be followed on Dec. 27 by "Victoria Regina," with Helen Hayes as star. This will be an engagement limited to eight weeks.

Leontovich Returns as Star of "Tovarich."

"Tovarich," the comedy of long runs in many European capitals and one of last season's topnotchers in New York, will follow "Brother Rat" in the Selwyn theater on Dec. 20 to remain several weeks or longer. Eugénie Leontovich, whose stellar career began in Chicago and who figured in the London run of "Tovarich," will appear as the heroine. The other "Tovarich" company, carrying the New York interpretation, with Marta Abba as the principal actress, will end its tour in Boston on Dec. 4. Miss Leontovich's cast will also wind up its affairs after the Chicago run. The reason for these closings of tours that apparently could continue with profit is the imminence of the motion picture version of the play. This film will be released in New York on Dec. 30.

"You Can't Take It with You," kingpin of the Chicago stage for the past forty-two weeks, will probably stay planted in the Harris theater through the holidays. At any rate, no information about other bookings is available. Some of the customers who have seen this play from three to six times are beginning to bleat for a change of diet, but the run goes on and on at an even pace. Perhaps its title should be changed to "You Can't Get It Out of Here."

The WPA revival of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," which opened in the Great Northern a few nights ago, will probably continue through the holiday period. Eugene O'Neill's "The Straw," also a WPA affair, displays no inclination to terminate its stay at the Blackstone.

A prospect for early in January is "Stage Door," with Joan Bennett, the film actress, as star.

"A Doll's House" Revives Ibsen Memories.

Ibsen's "A Doll's House," which comes with Ruth Gordon as the immortal Nora Helmer and in a new text by Thornton Wilder, is one of the shining milestones of the modern drama. It has been acted all over the world, and many of the greatest actresses of the past fifty years have carried the torch of feminism in the rôle of the young wife who slammed the door on her superficially happy home to seek freedom from domestic suffocation.

To middle aged American playgoers Nora Helmer recalls most vividly the faint mewings of Alla Nazimova pleasantly flavored with a Russian accent. The staccato utterance of Mrs. Fiske, making a somewhat difficult play more perplexing and mysterious by its inarticulate tricks, also lingers in the mind.

One of the earliest of American Noras was Mrs. Richard Mansfield, known on the stage as Beatrice Cameron. It is generally believed, however, that the first interpretation on the American stage was Agnes Sorma's in German at the Irving Place theater, New York, where the play was given as "Nora." She also toured among some of the cities in the middle west with large German speaking communities.

Mme. Sorma later became the leading actress of Berlin in dramas by the great moderns of her period—Ibsen, Hauptmann, Sudermann, et al. The upheaval of the great war brought her back to this country in retirement. She lived in Chicago, where her son had married into a prominent family, for several years and died a few years ago in Arizona. She occasionally attended Chicago first nights but few people knew that the winsome old lady with a face like Eleanora Duse's had been one of the most famous actresses of Europe.

Other eminent Noras in the annals of the American stage were Helena Modjeska, Gabrielle Réjane [in French], Duse [in Italian], and Ethel Barrymore. Dozens of secondary actresses also took a fling at the part. Only four of the older interpreters survive—Mrs. Mansfield, Miss Barrymore, Mme. Nazimova, and Bertha Fiebach. The latter, a pioneer of the Ibsen period, was a guest star with German speaking stock companies in the middle west, especially in Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and St. Louis. She married the editor of a German newspaper, who became the mayor of Cincinnati, and still lives there, an aged widow.

The present production represents Ruth Gordon's first venture in a play by Ibsen. She has not acted in Chicago since 1927, but has scored many successes in New York.

"Mme. Bovary" for Stagecraft Students.

The Theater Guild will give a special "curtainless" performance of "Mme. Bovary" in New York on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 7, for the instruction of students of stagecraft. The curtain will not be lowered at all and the technique of making the numerous scene changes will be completely visible. Benn W. Levy, adapter and director of the play, gave his consent to this performance only on condition that a certain member of the backstage crew called "Red" be compelled to comb his hair and put on a shirt for the occasion.

"Yellow Jack," Sidney Howard's drama of medical history, based on chapters in Paul De Kruif's book, "Microbe Hunters," was staged by the Mummers, an able group of amateurs with a semi-professional slant, in the Goodman theater last night. The performance will be repeated tonight. Reginald Carrington, who has had an active career on the professional stage, has one of the important rôles.

• • •

"Tobacco Road" will reach its 1,700th performance in New York next Saturday night. Three members of the original cast—Ruth Hunter, Edwin Walter, and Ashley Cooper—remain with the play. Two of them have never missed a performance.

An unpublished manuscript of memoirs by the late Charles Dillingham, veteran theatrical producer, was recently sold at auction, in the liquidation of his bankrupt estate, for $350. The purchaser was a lawyer acting for an unknown bidder.

STARS IN DRAMA BY IBSEN

Ruth Gordon appears in Ibsen's "A Doll's House," at the Grand Opera house, in a role that has been acted by many famous stars. She has not visited Chicago since 1927.

Variety Bills

CHICK YORK, Rose King and Roy Cropper, recently prominent in the Broadway revue, "The Show Is On," during its brief Chicago engagement, are appearing on the vaudeville program at the State-Lake theater this week. Other acts on the bill are: Mells, Kirk and Howard, comedians; Roy Rogers, comedian; Jeanne Walker, dancer; Verne Buck, and the State-Lake ballet.

The Chicago theater's program of stage entertainment for the current week consists of a revue called "At the Cabaret Russe," which contains fifty singers, dancers and comedians. Among the principals are Piroska, Russian dancer; George Prentice, recently in the operetta, "Virginia," in New York, and Jay and Lou Seiler, comedians; Jerry Shelton, accordionist; the Evans ballet and the Chicago theater singers.

French Cast to Give Play at Goodman

THE International theater of Chicago will begin its 1937-'38 season of French plays next Friday evening in the Goodman Studio theater, with "L'Amour Veille" ["Love Watches"], a comedy by Robert de Flers and Armand de Caillavet. Georges Cauuet is director of the theater, which was founded in 1927. This play has been acted on the American stage with Billie Burke as star, and was extremely popular. It had a nationwide tour in 1908 and 1909 under the management of Charles Frohman.

"L'Amour Veille," generally regarded as the most brilliant of many plays written by the two wittiest of modern French playwrights, describes the entwined love troubles of two young Parisian couples. A marquise and a village abbé help to resolve the entanglement.

The members of the cast are Elmina Blais, Suzanne Noble, Zélie Claverie, Jeanne Stiennon, Adèle Quiva, Jules Duc, Pierre Courtois, René Melin, and Jean St. Anne. The rôle of the abbé will be played by Louis Rousseau, formerly of the Opera Comique in Paris.

A season or two ago the International theater combined with the Chicago symphony orchestra to give the first and only American musical production of Alphonse Daudet's "L'Arlésienne." The group, under M. Cauuet's direction, also produced "L'Annonce Faite à Marie," which was attended by Paul Claudel, its author, who was French ambassador to America at the time.

Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. Laird Bell are the only two American-born women ever to appear in the theater's native French casts.

The play will be given under the patronage of René Weiller, consul general of France. Two other productions will be staged later in the season.

Lincoln's Assassin.

Cheryl Crawford intends to stage a biographical play dealing with John Wilkes Booth. "Mr. Booth" is its name; it starts with its subject's first appearance on the stage and ends as he is about to be captured after his assassination of Lincoln. The author is Robert Thomsen, an actor.

Barrymore's Return.

Sidney Howard's "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," staged by the Theater Guild, has brought Ethel Barrymore back to Broadway after a three year absence. Also in the cast are Dudley Digges, Frank Conroy, Russell Hardie, Eliot Cabot, George Nash, Barbara Robbins, and Kathleen Comegys.

Lita Chaplin to Star at Yacht Club

● Lita Grey Chaplin, former wife of Charlie Chaplin, has been engaged for the new Yacht Club show, to open next Friday. She appeared at the Chez Paree about three years ago. Others will be Honey and Weldon, a dance team recently at New York's Paradise restaurant; Jackie Green, and the six Pol-Mar dancing girls. The current show includes Toby Wing from Hollywood, Jackie Green, Gladys Crane, Tommy Martin, a ballet, and Hugo De Paul's band, which will remain for the new show.

● The new "Fall Fantasy Revue" at the Royal Frolics has as stars Sid Tomack and the Reis Brothers, comedians, and Ann Lester, blues singer. Others are the Karre Le Barron adagio dance trio; Abbott and Marsha, dance team; Rita Rey, soubrétte, and Jackie Hilliard, tenor. Each performance has richly costumed numbers by the ballet of 28 girls. Mark Fisher's, Al Turk's, and Tiny Parhams' dance bands.

● The California Varsity Eight, versatile young singers, leads the floor show at the Congress Casino of the Congress hotel. Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra is featured. The Crusaders and their Lady Vine furnish the intermission music. Bob Eberle, baritone, and June Richmond, colored swing singer, appear with Dorsey.

● The record-breaking engagement of Wayne King's orchestra in the Empire room of the Palmer house will end on Dec. 12. Charles Gaylord's musicians will play for dancing the next night, and then, on Dec. 14, Shep Field's orchestra will arrive for a stay. Miss Merriel Abbott, manager of entertainment for the Empire room, will then present a new floor show called "Holiday Revue." It will contain Milton Douglas, a baritone, remembered from Lombardo's engagement two years ago; Gabby, a ventriloquist; the Abbott dancers, the Three Nonchalants, and Johnny Bryant, a whistler.

● The fine baritone singing of Eusebio Concialdi, who was formerly prominent in the Chicago Opera company, may be heard three times a night in L'Aiglon café. His repertory consists of famous opera arias and popular ballads. The Pan-American Trio [Tamara Doriva, Rudy Vasco, and Nena Franco] entertains at the tables. George Bey's orchestra plays concert and dance music.

● The Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel offers dance music by Orrin Tucker's band, singing by the White Guards, male octet, Bonnie Baker, and the Bailey Sisters; harp playing by Valerie Vitale, and dances by Harriet Smith's ballet. Amateurs from Northwestern university will give part of the floor show next Friday night.

● Bobby Gillette and Shirley Richards, satirical dancers, are now in the "Big Apple" revue at the College Inn. Frankie Masters, band leader, presides over the program.

● Paul Whiteman's orchestra and entertainers begin their second week in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. His special performers are Marion Manners, prima donna; Jeanne Ellis, child soprano, and the "Three Bad Habits," comedians.

● The Chez Paree will celebrate the fifth anniversary of its present régim tomorrow. Benny Fields is the star of the show, which also has Gracie Barrie and Georges and Jalna as principals. Maurie Stein's orchestra has succeeded Henry Busse's.

● Marek Weber's symphonic dance orchestra of sixteen musicians continues in the new Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel, and also plays afternoon concerts in the adjoining Boulevard terrace. The Three Lorraine Sisters are featured singers.

● Appearing at the Ivanhoe are Hal Munro's dance band and the Four Night Hawks, singing instrumentalists.

● The entertainment at the Villa Moderne, on the Skokie Valley highway, includes Paul Meeker's band and Ida Belle Graham, singer.

● The floor show at Colosimo's contains Jay Jason, comedian and mimic; Dorothy Morgan, the dancer billed as Mlle. Zee-Zee; Don, Donna and Don, comic dancers; Don Enrico, tenor; Billie Herbert, blues singer; the Costellos, singers; Lois Maree, an acrobatic dancer; a ballet of twelve girls, and Henri Gendron's orchestra.

● The Club Alabam show offers Harriet Norris, singing mistress of ceremonies; Marrita Ryan, young dancer; Skippy and Marie, dancing girls; Effie Burton, singer, and the Paramount singing trio. Dancing to three bands.

● Anson Weeks' orchestra will return to the Aragon ballroom next Saturday, succeeding Freddy Martin. Ted Weems' dance band remains at the Trianon. Next Sunday will mark the fifteenth anniversary of this place of entertainment.

● Kay Kyser's dance band remains at the Blackhawk café, with a novelty number called "The Rag Man" in the place of honor in its repertory. The floor show contains Loyanne and Renard, dancers, and Jo Andrews, singer.

● Dudley Crafts Watson will give a travel talk on Salzburg next Thursday afternoon in the Old Heidelberg inn. The Concordia Damenchor of 30 female voices under the direction of Ludwig Lohmiller will be guest performers at today's afternoon concert, with Armand Buisseret's string ensemble.

● The Hi-Hat Club will present a new show tonight. It's headliner will be Miss Pert Kelton, a young film actress. Her recent appearances have been with Marion Davies and Bing Crosby. Others are Hazel Harmen, singer; the Cansinos, Spanish dancers; the Hi-Hat Ingenues, a ballet; and Willie Shore, comedian, dancer, and master of ceremonies. Sid Lang's band plays for dancing.

Stage Scrapbook

AN interesting collection of theatrical photographs is in the possession of Aldrich Bowker, who acts the rôle of grandpa in "You Can't Take It With You." It is a scrapbook of pictures of the most famous stage and operatic stars of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. The collection was made by Leopold Lane, who was general stage manager for Viola Allen, noted actress. Lane presented the book to Ainsworth Arnold, who in turn, gave it to Mr. Bowker.

Among the stars whose pictures are to be found in the book in their most famous stage rôles are Sarah Bernhardt, Eleanora Duse, Viola Allen, Lily Langtry, Arnold Daly, Edwin Booth, Maude Adams, Walter Hampden, William Farnum, Ellen Terry, E. H. Sothern, and Julia Marlowe, Forbes-Robertson, Margaret Illington, Mary F. Scott-Siddons, Lillian Russell, and William Gillette. Operatic stars represented are Enrico Caruso, Mme. Nordica, Sembrich, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mary Garden, and Mme. Janouschek.

Chicago Favorite.

Eugénie Leontovich, star of "Tovarich," has acted here in "Grand Hotel," "Twentieth Century," "And So To Bed," "Candle Light," and "Romance."

Four Stars of Drama, Films in Ibsen Play

THE four stars in the revival of Ibsen's "A Doll's House," at the Grand Opera house, have had interesting and varied careers. Here are their stories:

Ruth Gordon made her first hit in Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" and "Clarence." Jed Harris selected her for the title rôle of "Serena Blandish," and the Theater Guild chose her to play in "Hotel Universe." She has appeared in "The Violet," "The Wiser They Are," "A Church Mouse," "Here Today," "Three Cornered Moon," and "They Shall Not Die." She is the only American actress who has played a leading rôle at the Old Vic theater in London.

Dennis King's brilliant career embraces almost the entire field of stage entertainment. He came to America in 1920 to play in "Romeo and Juliet," "As You Like It," and "Antony and Cleopatra." Then producers discovered his baritone voice and he swept to fame and fortune in the romantic rôles of François Villon in "The Vagabond King" and D'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers." His preference for the dramatic stage was shown by his return to such plays as "Peter Ibbetson," "Richard of Bordeaux," "Petticoat Fever," and "Parnell."

Paul Lukas made his American stage debut only a few days ago in the rôle of Dr. Rank in "A Doll's House." He is best identified through his screen work in "Dodsworth," "Little Women," and in motion pictures in association with Katharine Hepburn.

Sam Jaffe was drawn from the screen [his last appearance in that medium was as the Grand Llama in "Lost Horizon"] to resume the place in drama created by his successes in such plays as "The Jazz Singer" and "Grand Hotel." His most recent stage appearance was in New York in "The Eternal Road" all last season.

His stage career began with the Washington Square Players in New York. His outstanding motion pictures have been "The Scarlet Empress," "We Live Again," and "Lost Horizon."

At French Lick Springs.

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Among the Chicagoans here over the last week-end were H. H. Brown, Morris Vehon, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Furguson, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Arch, and Max Epstein.

Disapproval Widely Thought to Prove Discernment

Barry Takes Up Analysis of Scoffers

By Edward Barry.

GLOWING with enthusiasm at what seemed an excellent presentation of a symphony or of an act of opera, you saunter into the lobby during the intermission only to hear from the lips of an acquaintance the positive statement that the performance was dreadful, execrable.

Every regular concert or operagoer has been through such an experience innumerable times. Since it is apt to be puzzling as well as disconcerting, this column will attempt today to examine the causes underlying the savage judgments of lobby appraisers.

In a situation such as that sketched in paragraph one there are two possible ways of accounting for the unfavorable pronouncement of your acquaintance. [a] He is exploiting the widely current belief that disapproval of anything implies great discernment while enthusiasm stamps a person as naïve, and is taking advantage, at the same time, of the fact that positive statements about anything as intangible as art carry with them little danger of exposure and embarrassment. [b] The performance was really bad, and your high opinion of it must be ascribed to lack of experience or of sensitiveness.

Belief Is Found to Be Widespread.

A great many people discover early in life the wide distribution of this belief in the superior qualities of critical persons. There is no doubt but that a clever use of such knowledge raises their prestige considerably.

This applies, of course, to a much wider field than music. Some particular hat is terrible, marmalade can be enjoyed only by barbarians, Paris is dreadful—statements like these convey the impression that the speaker has had first hand experience with better looking hats, daintier spreads, and more beautiful cities. Or they imply—and this is equally valuable from the standpoint of prestige—that his tastes are of an innate fineness which refuses to be satisfied with the things which delight the multitude.

Any one alert enough to exploit consciously a popular belief of this kind usually learns quite early in the game to confine himself to the realm of the subjective. Objective facts are dangerous things to deal with.

It is one thing to say that you do not like marmalade, quite another to attack the belief that the sun is farther away than the moon. The former statement is safe because no one can prove that marmalade tastes good and the minority which does not like it has as good a right to its opinion as the majority which does. The danger of the latter resides in the fact that the universally respected science of astronomy is ready at the drop of a hat to prove that the sun is, indeed, much farther off than the moon. Its greater distance is an objective fact, not dependent on preference, opinion, or the loudly expressed convictions of the woman next door.

"Good Taste" Is a Flexible Phrase.

"Good taste" is the most flexible phrase in the English language. It can be defined only as taste which agrees with your own. If the result of this is chaos in the relatively solid field of hats, spreads and cities, how shall one describe the condition in the nebulous realm of literature and art?

Pater's style is attractive to some people, repulsive to others. The same situation exists with regard to the buildings of Frank Lloyd Wright [and of the Greeks, for that matter], the sculpture of Jacob Epstein [and of Phidias], the paintings of Grant Wood [and of Raphael]. It exists in spectacular form in anything that concerns music—especially the performance of music!

For here we enter a highly intangible world of nuance, phrasing, and delicate adjustments. Since it is impossible to prove conclusively that a certain effect is good, a man is quite safe in saying that it is bad.

Not perfectly safe, though, for in the performance of music, seemingly the most subjective of fields, we run unexpectedly into something which looks surprisingly like an objective fact. That something is the composer's conception, and if the music's creator is present to say that the effect is in exact accordance with his ideas, then the intermission critic should back down. Or there may exist a fairly continuous performance tradition to link the work of a deceased creative artist to the present.

Puts the Critic on Shaky Ground.

However, the sponsor of an unfavorable judgment is not, even in cases like these, as badly off as if he had attacked the proposition that iron is heavier than an equal volume of cork. He may claim, and be quite within his rights, that the composer in a moment of blindness mistook his real purpose and that the conductor or performer should have repaired the damage by making certain revisions. This, it is true, takes tremendous courage, and any except the most intrepid individual will retreat as gracefully as possible rather than defend such shaky ground.

This mention of tradition bridges neatly over to the second possible explanation of your acquaintance's unfavorable comment. It may be that you have glowed without adequate cause and that the performance was indeed frightful. No matter how effective a rendition may be, it classifies as bad if the conductor or performer has deliberately rejected the composer's conception or the canons of musical taste for the sake of sheer effect.

Only the inexperienced [those who have heard few performances of the work] or the insensitive [those to whom counterfeit artistic coin looks genuine] will applaud such a presentation.

But please do not spoil everything by demanding this morning a full list of the canons of musical taste and an explanation of the methods whereby the sheep and the goats [the sensitive and the insensitive] can be separated and identified.

GREEK OPERA SOPRANO

Elen Dosia, who comes from Greece via the Paris Opera Comique, repeats her highly successful Tosca at the Civic Opera house next Wednesday. Her Mario will be no less a person than Galliano Masini.

Notes of Music and Musicians

This week the Chicago Symphony orchestra enters upon what Orchestra hall is pleased to denominate a "lush period filled with soloists and guest conductors." John Weicher, the orchestra's concert master, is soloist at this week's Thursday evening and Friday afternoon concerts. As his vehicle he has chosen Max Bruch's Fantasie for violin and orchestra, which should fit nicely Webster's definition of "lush"—"full of juice and succulence."

Other celebrities on the orchestra's calendar are Josef Hofmann, pianist, in a golden jubilee appearance, Dec. 9 and 10; Erika Morini, violinist, Dec. 14, 16, and 17; Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, Dec. 28, and Rudolf Serkin, pianist, Dec. 30 and 31. Otto Klemperer, conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, will serve as guest conductor during Christmas week.

Frederick Stock will conduct the Thursday-Friday concerts:

Rhumba, from Symphony No. 2 .... Harl McDonald
Passacaglia, Interlude and Fugue .... Leo Sowerby
Symphony No. 4, A Minor .... Sibelius
Fantasie for Violin and Orchestra, Opus 46 .... Bruch
[John Weicher.]
Alborada del Gracioso .... Ravel

The Saturday night popular concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, also conducted by Dr. Stock in Orchestra hall, promises the following program:

Overture, "Carnaval" .... Dvorak
Symphony, D Minor .... Franck
Suite for Orchestra, Opus 19 .... Dohnanyi
Swedish Rhapsody, "Midsummer Wake" .... Alfven
Song, "My Old Kentucky Home" .... Foster

The Saidenberg Symphonietta, under the able direction of Daniel Saidenberg, will present a program of more than usual interest at the Goodman theater Wednesday evening. The Symphonietta, a string ensemble of twenty players, will be augmented by two horns for two chamber works of Mozart. The concert is the second of a series of four. Harold Bauer will be piano soloist on Jan. 4, and Eleanor Block will give some new dances on Feb. 7. Wednesday's program follows:

Daniel Saidenberg.

Suite, "The Old Bachelor" .... Purcell
[First time in Chicago.]
Concerto for Four Violins, B Minor .... Vivaldi
Divertimento No. 17, D Major .... Mozart
A Musical Joke [Ein Musikalischer Spass] .... Mozart
Lento, from String Quartet .... Debussy
St. Paul's Suite .... Holst

Guy Maier, assistant to the national director of the federal music project, and his wife, Lois Maier, will appear as duo-pianists in Mozart's E-flat concerto with the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater today. Mr. Maier will also play Liszt's E-flat concerto. Albert Goldberg will conduct the following program:

Suite from the Music of the Royal Fireworks .... Handel
[Arranged by Sir Hamilton Harty.]
Concerto in E Flat, for two pianos, Köchel, No. 365 .... Mozart
[Guy and Lois Maier.]
Concerto No. 1, E Flat .... Liszt
[Guy Maier.]
"Forest Murmurs," from "Siegfried" .... Wagner
Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" .... Wagner

Helen Jepson, blonde prima donna of the Chicago City and Metropolitan Opera companies, will open Mrs. Gilbert Smith's series of three "Eleven o'Clock Matinées" in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house Monday morning. Although Miss Jepson has sung here many times in opera, this will be her first Chicago recital. Her program lists three arias, from Gluck's "Paris and Helen," Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," and Verdi's "La Traviata." Her choice of songs is catholic, including examples of Cavalli, Cornelius, Blech, Hahn, Chabrier, Canal, Bax, and American composers.

Fritz Kreisler, one of the chief modern masters of the violin, returns to Chicago for an Orchestra hall recital this afteroon. His program, full of popular items, is as follows:

La Folia .... Corelli-Kreisler
Prelude and Gavotte, E major .... Bach
Fugue, A major .... Tartini-Kreisler
Concerto, E minor .... Mendelssohn
Melodie .... Gluck
Sicilienne et Rigaudon .... Kreisler
Lotus Land .... Scott
Malaguena .... Albeniz-Kreisler
Jota .... De Falla

Dorothea Lawrence, soprano, a Daughter of the American Revolution and a Daughter of 1812, makes her Chicago debut at the Studebaker theater this afternoon. She is especially interested in singing in the English language, although the fact that about half her program is in German, French, and Spanish demonstrates no lack of linguistic command. She will sing arias by Arne, Wagner, Gounod, and Cadman, and songs by Purcell, Quilter, Wilson, Schubert, Cadman, Troyer, Watts, Woodman, De Fuentes, Huarte, and Penella. Edgar Nelson is the accompanist.

John Jacob Niles, who sings American folk music to the accompaniment of a dulcimer he himself made, will present the result of fifteen years' research and familiarity with musical Americans at a recital in the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago Thursday evening.

The Metropolitan church choir, under the direction of J. Wesley Jones, will present Geneva C. Williams, soprano, as soloist for their monthly music festival tonight at 7:30.

Today's concert by the Barrere-Britt concertation in the Kenilworth Assembly hall is the first of a series of four programs given by the revived North Shore Chamber Music association, an institution with fifteen years' sponsorship of chamber music to its credit before it was forced to disband temporarily last year.

The 1937-'38 season of the Joseffer String quartet, opening with tonight's program in the Fine Arts building, will consist of six concerts. The first program includes works by Beethoven and Haydn, a set of four Bohemian dances by Moritz Kassmayer, and six old Italian dances for string quartet from a manuscript in the British museum dated about 1575.

The Beethoven trio, composed of M. Jennette Loudon, pianist; S. Victor Tufigno, violinist, and Alois Trnka, cellist, will give today's musical vesper service at the University of Chicago.

Lucy C. Nielsen, 13 year old violinist who makes her Kimball hall debut Monday evening, is an honor student at Starrett School for Girls.

Muriel K. Pontius, soprano, and her father, Walter Pontius, radio tenor, will give a joint recital at the Beaux Arts salon today.

The Ballet Russe, which opens its holiday run at the Auditorium theater Dec. 20, has won much acclaim in New York for two new ballets, "Francesca da Rimini" and "Le Coq d'Or." Both will be given here.

Gigli in Movie.

Beniamino Gigli, former leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera association, is the star of a new moving picture, "Ave Maria," produced by a film company of combined Italian and German interests. In the course of the picture he sings excerpts from the third act of Verdi's "La Traviata."

1937 Opera Season Is the Best in Years

By Cecil Smith.

AS the Chicago City Opera company passes the halfway mark in its 1937 season, the box office has begun to reap the rewards of greatly improved methods of casting and production, and the word is spreading about the city that this is the best operatic season we have had since the collapse of the Insull hierarchy.

Along with every other frequent attendant at the Civic Opera house in the last few years, I viewed the preseason announcements of the opera company with pronounced skepticism. Most of the events of the last four weeks have shown me how wrong it is to judge the future by the past.

We hear a great deal about the Metropolitan Opera association, a thousand miles distant in New York City. Its productions are commonly held to represent the highest standard of operatic production in the United States. Let us make a few comparisons between the Chicago City Opera company and the Metropolitan.

With complete confidence I am prepared to substantiate the assertion that at least 15 of the 23 performances given here this fall, up to and including last Monday night, have been as well cast, as well sung and as well acted as the Metropolitan's productions of the same operas. If you did not like the singing here, you would not like it at the Metropolitan.

Many of our leading singers—Flagstad, Rethberg, Cigna, Pons, Martinelli, Melchior, Tibbett, to name only a few—are members of the Metropolitan. Some others—Rosa Raisa, André Burdino, Elen Dosia, Galliano Masini, Nino Ruisi—are good enough to belong to that august institution. Our singers of secondary rôles strike an artistic average fully equal to that of the Metropolitan.

Stage settings, lighting and mise-en-scène at the Civic Opera house may not fulfill your fondest hopes, but the Metropolitan does little better, unless it has completely reformed in the last year. You may despise the garish decorative scheme of our opera house as much as I do, but at least the theater is blessed with infinitely better visibility and far more comfortable seats than the Metropolitan Opera house.

Metropolitan Leads in Orchestra, Chorus.

The Metropolitan does, however, have the edge on us at two important points—the chorus and the orchestra. Our chorus is in desperate need of young blood. Its tone is frequently dead and its demeanor upon the stage is seldom spontaneous. The orchestra suffers from a lack of separate orchestral rehearsal and also includes in its membership some men who do not seem to have mastered fully the technique of playing their instruments.

Paul Longone, the general manager of our opera company, this season has adopted an aggressive policy of bringing new singers to Chicago for their American operatic debuts. Already four of these—Elen Dosia, André Burdino, Galliano Masini and George Czaplicki—have proved their worth in a variety of rôles. Two promising tenors, Juissi Bjoerling and Eyvind Laholm, are still to be heard from.

If Mr. Longone continues to comb Europe and America for promising additions to the company we may be able once again to develop a real resident company at least partly independent from the Metropolitan's roster. The separate identity of the old Chicago Civic Opera company was one of the chief reasons for its artistic success, for the principal artists gave a loyalty to the cause of opera in Chicago which they now reserve for the Metropolitan.

Nominations for Best Productions.

As the best productions of the first half of the season I nominate "The Love of Three Kings," "Tosca," "The Man Without a Country," "The Barber of Seville," and "Lucia di Lammermoor" [if you will eliminate the memory of Erna Sack from the last two]. In all of these the separate individual performances were merged into a happy ensemble and the artistic level was uncommonly high throughout.

As the worst productions I nominate "Madame Butterfly," both "Carmens," and "Il Trovatore."

The following people have contributed the best singing I have heard: Charles Hackett and John Charles Thomas in "The Barber of Seville"; Mr. Thomas in "La Traviata"; Galliano Masini in "Tosca" and "Lucia di Lammermoor"; Helen Jepson and Virgilio Lazzari in "The Love of Three Kings"; George Czaplicki in "Aida"; and Ezio Pinza in "Norma."

The following people have contributed some of the season's bad singing: Erna Sack in both her appearances; Gina Signa and Coe Glade in "Norma"; Elisabeth Rethberg in "Il Trovatore"; Hilda Burke in the Nile scene of "Aïda"; Jean Fardulli in "Carmen," and Grete Stueckgold in "Lohengrin."

Good Week of Opera Looms.

An extremely good week of opera looms before us. "Otello" will be added to the season's schedule Monday night, with Edith Mason, Giovanni Martinelli and Lawrence Tibbett repeating their successful performances of last year. On Friday Kirsten Flagstad will give us her first "Die Walküre," and Lily Pons will appear in "Lucia" Saturday afternoon, in the company of Mr. Masini. The week's bills follow:

Monday at 8—Verdi's "Otello"; Edith Mason, Ada Paggi; Giovanni Martinelli, Lawrence Tibbett, Giuseppe Cavadore, Lodovico Oliviero, Nino Ruisi, Sandro Giglio; Roberto Moranzoni, conductor.

Wednesday at 8—Puccini's "Tosca"; Elen Dosia, Elizabeth Brown, Galliano Masini, George Czaplicki, Ruisi, Vittorio Trevisan, Cavadore, Wilfred Engelman, Ben Landsman; Moranzoni, conductor.

Thursday at 8 [presented at popular prices by the board of education]—Gounod's "Faust"; Vivian Della Chiesa, Maria Matyas, May Barron, Joseph Bentonelli, Carlo Morelli, Chase Baromeo; corps de ballet; Jacques Samossoud, conductor.

Friday at 8—Wagner's "Die Walküre"—Kirsten Flagstad, Helen Traubel, Gertrud Wettergren, Lauritz Melchior, Ludwig Hoffman [debut], Emanuel List; Henry Weber, conductor.

Saturday at 2—Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor"; Lily Pons, Louisa Hoe; Masini, Morelli, Ruisi, Cavadore, Oliviero; Moranzoni, conductor.

Saturday at 8—Halévy's "La Juive"; Rosa Raisa, Della Chiesa, Martinelli, William Martin, Ezio Pinza, Giglio; Leo Kopp, conductor.

Karl Krueger.

Karl Krueger is now in his fifth year as conductor of the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra. Samuel Thaviu, violinist, and Frank Sykora, cellist, have been imported from Chicago as new members of the orchestra. Mr. Thaviu is the concertmaster.

Miss Hayes as Portia.

Helen Hayes plans to act Portia in "The Merchant of Venice" in Chicago at a special performance during her engagement in "Victoria Regina." She will arrive here on Dec. 27 for eight weeks at the Erlanger theater.

Spanish War Play.

Norman Bel Geddes will soon produce "Siege," Irwin Shaw's play about the Spanish civil war.

"THE AWFUL TRUTH"

When you observe the sort of clothes Irene Dunne wears in "The Awful Truth" (Chicago) you'll understand the whyfore of this jubilant smile. She has one white fox evening coat—I But wait—you'll see!

Loyola Puts Problems in Questionnaire

By the Rev. John Evans.

UNDER the guidance of the Rev. James J. Mertz, juniors of Loyola university are using the questionnaire method to gain a general knowledge of religion and to solve problems of faith, morals, liturgy, and social topics. The object of the method is to review any and all subjects studied during preceding years. No special assignments are given other than references to standard works which give a detailed answer or analysis of the questions submitted.

"Frequently questions of religion come up in conversation," said Father Mertz in discussing the benefits to be derived from this course, "and difficulty arises because of the inability to give a clear answer. The student of religion should be able to give an account of his religion, and in this day of modern unrest and quest the Catholic graduate should be able to be a source of information to those who ask."

IN recognition of the increasing importance of women on the University of Pennsylvania campus, alumnæ of the institution hope to raise one million dollars of the university's current $12,500,000 campaign. This was recently revealed in a pamphlet, "Women and the University of Pennsylvania's Bicentennial Campaign," as the publication, distributed by the centennial committee, began to be circulated.

The university's 200th anniversary will occur in 1940 and in this pamphlet are a brief history and chronological table of the part women have played in the progress of the institution.

THE annual Modern Language festival of Drury college, Springfield, Mo., will take place on Dec. 3. This festival was started last year by Lambert S. Orton, head of the modern language department and director of the Drury French choir.

It is not a competition but choirs from ten high schools in the southwest state will come prepared to sing one French and one English number of their own choosing. On Friday afternoon a model choir will be built from voices selected from the visiting groups and the Drury French choir will be used to demonstrate choral technique in a foreign language. In the evening Mr. Drury will direct the college choir in Handel's "Messiah," which will be sung in French for the third consecutive year.

GEORGE ENFIELD FRAZER, accountant in the firm of Frazer & Torbet, 141 West Jackson boulevard, has been elected to the board of trustees of Kenyon college, Gambier, O. Mr. Frazer is a graduate of the state universities of Iowa and Wisconsin and for some time was a lecturer at the University of Chicago.

The state of Ohio called him as consulting adviser when its government was reorganized in 1921. During the world war Mr. Frazer served as a member of the commission on financial administration for the United States shipping board emergency fleet corporation.

O'Neill Actors

THE leading players in Eugene O'Neill's "The Straw," WPA production at the Blackstone, are Beverly Younger and Don Koehler, both fairly well known on the Chicago stage. Koehler's last stage engagement here was in "Big Hearted Herbert," with J. C. Nugent, in 1933 at the Cort theater. He had previously been through a long engagement with the now extinct Bainbridge Players of Minneapolis. Other engagements included "Dangerous Corner," and "Mrs. Moonlight," in 1931, with Sir Guy Standing and Miss Edith Barrett as the principals.

Miss Younger has acted in Claire Kummer's comedy, "Her Master's Voice," and with Charlotte Greenwood last season in "Leaning On Letty."

Errol Flynn Is Romantic in 'Robin Hood'

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Take it from one who has seen, girls, Errol Flynn is really grand. He's tall and handsome, he has nice, even white teeth, a clear skin, deepset, interesting blue eyes, and the smoothest, most agreeable speaking voice that ever came out of Dublin. Talk? He can talk about anything and make it interesting.

So far, we can only imagine what he'd be like to dance with, but if he handles himself with the same easy grace on a dance floor that he does when he moves about casually, dancing with him would really be something. Probably our greatest thrill since we danced with Jack Dempsey at the old Montmartre some ten years ago.

All this fluttering and dithering is our own personal reaction to meeting Flynn over on the "Robin Hood" set at the Busch Gardens in Pasadena, where the big tournament scenes, including the archery contest, were being made one sunny day this week.

Flynn, done up to look like a rough country fellow [his disguise for his rôle in the story], was lying easily on a grassy bank, watching the swans in the nearby pool. Maybe he was looking at some beautiful extra girls.

Bill Keighley, the director, started to holler at the 600 extras and actors who were standing about representing the tournament presided over by Prince John and the lovely Maid Marian [played by Claude Rains and Olivia De Havilland [who were sitting on their thrones in the pavilion decked with armorial bearings and pennons.

Horsemen Garbed in Chain Mail.

Horsemen in chain mail bearing lances stood at attention. Footsoldiers, some wearing the cross of the crusaders, a crowd of the common people, all in the period of Richard the Lion-Hearted, stood awaiting the archery tournament for the bag of gold. Guy of Gisbourne, played by Basil Rathbone, was in charge of the events, gorgeously clothed in light blue mantle, velvet cloak in scarlet and buff.

Robin Hood, played by Errol Flynn, stepped forward to shoot the winning shot. Though there were archery specialists there, Flynn did pretty well for himself, getting his shot near the bull's-eye.

The shot, with Gene Pallette clowning about as Friar Tuck, had to be retaken several times. The crowd had to get a bit more enthusiasm at the winning shot sped by the people's champion. Keighley seized the megaphone and started hollering—"On the last shot, that of Robin Hood, jump up and down, yell, throw up your hats, jump up and kiss somebody—there are a few honeys down there I'm going to kiss myself if some one else doesn't." The urging had the desired result; the applause was hilarious and the shot finished.

To one side, in the crowd, we noticed two old friends. Jacqueline Saunders, who was a star in her own films fifteen years ago, was lifted up so she could see better, by none other than another old friend, also an extra, Leo White. Remember Leo? He used to play the French count in those old comedies that antedate Charles Chaplin.

Both he and Jacqueline now are members of the Warner Brothers' stock players, who receive regular salaries of $50 a week for playing bits or just plain extra work; a sentimental, yet a good business, move on the part of that company, which thus in a practical way gives recognition to players no longer stars who need to make a living.

Leo climbed up the little knoll on which we were standing to watch the action. We asked him about the baby. "Baby? You know the last one was twins, twin boys, didn't you?" he told us proudly. Leo has a little girl of 3, and now these 6 month old twins. He's not a young man, but he has a zest for life, and enjoys the children as much as any young father might.

"True Confession" Preview Draws Crowd.

A preview of Jack Barrymore's new picture, "True Confession" [it really stars Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray; but until they have to carry John on and off the set in a wheelchair it'll always be John Barrymore's picture to us, if he's in one scene], drew out a big Hollywood crowd.

The picture is a fast moving comedy, well cast and a perfect setting for John, who plays a cracked criminologist and schemer with a comedy lilt to his haunches [watch him go through the doors and you'll know what I mean].

We'd just sat down and having on one of these crazy hats now fashionable, and may our descendants forgive us if they ever see pictures of us in them years hence, we turned around to ask if our headgear impeded the view. There was Barrymore himself, with Elaine!

He looked fine and chortled merrily at all the stuff in the film. He laughed at himself heartily. He always does, under any circumstances. Barrymore's performance in the film is a gem. Go see it. You'll love it, and you'll be pleased to know that one of our great actors is back at work.

The average earning of movie standins is $60 a week. The minimum daily wage to movie stunt men is now $35 a day. Some stunts draw $150 a day, but few stunts now required are as hazardous as most of them used to be. An item in "International Picture Almanac," put out by The Motion Picture Herald, notes that the country's emergence from depression was reflected by an increase of 9,500 permanent film industry employés during 1936, and a $7,800,000 increase in Hollywood studio pay rolls. Ten million dollars more than the previous year were expended in producing films in this country.

Cary Grant Shows Much Improvement.

The writer's personal nomination for a young actor, who has improved so conspicuously as to seem outstanding, is Cary Grant.

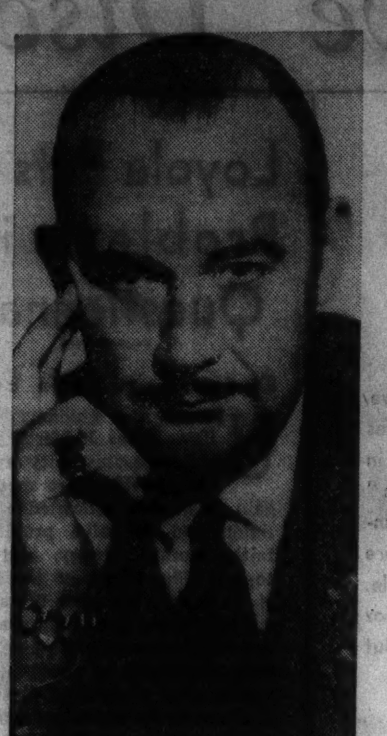
Randolph Scott and his wife, of the Delaware du Pont family, had their swimming pool drained in order to paint it a deep, enamel blue.

Fanchon, the woman producer at Paramount, considers Ben Blue about the funniest performer she has ever seen, which is a good deal to be said by a woman who has produced as many stage plays as Fanchon produced in her fifteen years as "head man" with the Fanchon and Marco stage shows.

Only after a conversation with Dorothy Davenport Reid, Hollywood's other feminine movie producer, did we know that the grass skirts which the Hawaiian girls wear, and the stores sell in Honolulu, are really woven in Samoa. 'Sa fact.

Mrs. Reid returned a couple of months ago from a film expedition to Samoa, and found that weaving skirts to impress tourists was one of the distant island's steady occupations. The Samoans don't wear them much themselves; neither do the Hawaiians; such attire is pretty scratchy and the girls generally put them on only with tourist interest in mind.

Boots Mallory, who got off the screen by her own wish about three years ago and has been happy to be Mrs. Bill Cagney in private life, is now returning permanently to movies after her success as the feminine lead opposite Eric Linden in "Here's Flash Casey" at Grand National studio. Linden plays a newspaper cameraman; John Blystone, director, and Nino Martini, star of "Music for Madame" at Radio-RKO, thought so well of the baritone voice of Frederick Mahon, 25, one of the chorus men in that film, that they arranged to get the young man an audition with the New York Metropolitan Opera.



OLD MASTER OF DANCE MUSIC

Paul Whiteman has brought his dance orchestra and entertainers into the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. He still carries the title of "jaz king," in spite of the vogue of "swing."

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

KIND: Murder melodrama with comedy touches.

ACTING: Very good. Nice to see Fay Wray and Richard Arlen again!

DIRECTION: Fair.

DIALOG: Nothing to brag about.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SOUND, STAGING: Okey.

STORY: Sort of silly as a whole. The spoiled, motherless daughter of a wealthy and important father who has a mania for doing what she wants to do regardless of other people, becomes involved in the murder of a playboy artist, for whom she has posed. . . . To her rescue reluctantly, aye, furiously at first, comes a young advertising man. . . . She presents him—for reasons the picture will show you—as her fiancé. . . . And so, through police stations, studios, ritzy homes and public highways to the finale, where, aboard an outgoing liner, the identity of the murderer is revealed and romance ceases being sour puss and becomes smiling.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Some. You're going to be good if you guess who does the killing.

See you tomorrow.

Juilliard School Announces Terms of Competition

THE Juilliard School of Music announces its annual competition for the publication of orchestral compositions by American composers. Through these competitions the Juilliard School selects each year one or more orchestral works and pays for their publication. The composer receives all royalties and fees accruing from the sale or performance of his work. The terms of the competition are:

1. Compositions must be by native or naturalized American citizens.

2. Only such orchestral compositions as are suitable for performance by a major symphony orchestra will be considered, and only compositions of which the composer owns or can control the copyright should be submitted. Manuscripts in pencil will not be read.

3. Compositions which have been previously performed should be accompanied by a brief statement as to places and dates of performance so far as known.

4. Compositions should be sent to Oscar Wagner, Dean, Juilliard School of Music, 130 Claremont avenue, New York, before Feb. 1, 1938. Manuscripts sent by mail should be insured and the composer's name and address should be securely attached. Manuscripts not selected for publication will be returned to the sender before June 15.

5. The use of a nom de plume is not necessary unless the composer prefers it. In such a case the pen name should be placed in a sealed envelope with the composer's real name on the outside. This should be sent to Mr. Wagner.

6. Should a composition of outstanding merit be found through the competition, it will be published in 1938.

Alice Gade Is to Be Wedded to Diplomat

By Cousin Eve.

THE lightnings of romance have struck the Chateau of Mesuil-St. Denis this week and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade of Norway's diplomatic corps are announcing the approaching marriage of Alice, their lovely only daughter, with the Norwegian minister to Iceland. This is the Hon. Christian Holmbo, former secretary of the Norwegian legation at Washington and latterly en poste in Paris. Mr. Holmbo is tall, slight, marvelously handsome and distinguished, and a friend of long standing of the Gades. He is, according to his Chicago friends, a delightful bachelor of forty plus.

Alice Gade, who wintered in Chicago not long ago, is a sparkling brunette, with velvety voice and charming ways, who will make a gracious, brilliant wife for an envoy. She speaks Norwegian fluently, also French and Spanish, which latter language she learned in Rio. After the wedding Herman and Mrs. Gade will go to Monte Carlo for the winter.

THANKSGIVING has come and gone and our short season of dancing is coming apace. For some reason it is a breathless year, and our friends and neighbors pant as they fly from this to that. We already are having more than our quota of good plays, some of them two years late. But after all, a good play is good news.

The opera is unusually splendid, really brilliant, and this week we hear the celebrated Norwegian Mme. Flagstad, and the new, highly vaunted Masini, whose young, beautiful voice recalls Caruso.

The great romance of last week was the marriage at Rio de Janeiro, of Gertrude, only daughter of Mrs. Daniel McCarthy of Chicago, and Jefferson Caffery, American ambassador to Brazil.

The wedding took place Nov. 20 in the magnificent go.1 and red chapel of the Cardinal at Rio, and immediately after the ceremony and breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Caffery called Chicago by telephone and told Mrs. McCarthy the details of the stirring event. The bride went down to South America by boat with mountainous luggage and accompanied by a secretary companion. Owing to illness neither her mother nor brother could go with her and as Mr. Caffery had just had a long leave of absence, he was chained to his post at Rio.

The bridal trousseau, they say, is one of the loveliest imaginable. Gertrude McCarthy has exquisite taste—indeed it is part of her charm that she is always so perfectly turned out, a picture of daintiness and conservative allure.

• • •

THE picture we have to imagine is the beautiful chapel banked with exotic Brazilian flowers, crowded with the diplomatic corps at Rio, members of the American embassy stat and high officials. The lovely bride arrives; she is a vision in pale silver blue silk, diaphanous blue hat, slippers, gloves. She is lovely with camelia white skin, a thread of silver in dark hair, regular features, and blue gray eyes. The Cardinal officiates by winking candle light and the Papal Nuncio pronounces the blessing, with a special benediction from his holiness in Rome.

After the ceremony, a reception and small wedding breakfast took place, and then the Cafferys proceeded by motor to a magnificent country estate the other side of Petropolis, belonging to a Brazilian magnate, and supremely beautiful. Overlooking the sea, it has glorious gardens and is chiefly remarkable for its orchids growing everywhere. This has been loaned to the American ambassador and his bride for the honeymoon. The American embassy itself has wonderful gardens and the new building when done will be the finest owned by America in any capital.

It is summer now in Rio and the bride's costumes had to be summer ones fashioned from furry winter styles and velvets; quite a work of the imagination it proved to be.

This romance began last January in Washington, when Miss McCarthy went there and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis presented the ambassador, who had just left his Cuban post. Later Mr. Caffery spent ten weeks of his leave at the University club in Chicago, pursuing a courtship which culminated so brilliantly in Rio.

An unexpected honor came to Mr. Caffery's bride at the Alliance Française last week. Rene Weiller, French consul general, rose after the extra good program and announced, with gracious smiles, that the French minister of education had awarded the medal "Palmes Academiques" to Mrs. Allen Howse and Miss Gertrude McCarthy.

• • •

THE program that day, arranged as always by Mrs. Ralph James, was highly intriguing. Edwin Gordon, a stocky little boy of six, gave a piano recital. In dark blue Eton, sleek black hair, and with perfect poise he attacked the piano with all the aplomb of Paderewski. Edwin gave not only good, sonorous music in excellent time, but took his bows to enormous hand clapping with professional dignity, also applauding ecstatically the dancing of Mlle. Warshavska which followed. This handsome, graceful ballerina has appeared with the Ballet Russe, and her performance was a group of pavanes and gavottes as danced by Louis XIV. when young.

There also was a showing of modernistic dancing quite unusual, which brought a gift of gardenias from Robert Hall McCormick, with a box of bonbons, big as he was, for Master Gordon.

• • •

MRS. WALTER KIRK, Mrs. Orville Taylor and Mrs. Alden Swift were hostesses at a most elaborate tea, where Mrs. Charles S. Dewey officiated, with Mrs. Taylor. Appearing fo. the first time since her year of absence in France was Mrs. John Storrs, who with her husband, the eminent sculptor, spent last winter in Orleans. Mrs. Storrs is not only Française but literary and will lecture in many large American cities this season.

Mrs. Dewey seemed to be much in demand as a tea pourer that day, for we found her later at the Friday club table at the Art institute reception, and she was also slated for the coffee urn with the Antiquarians.

I have not been to one of these classic survivals of another day and age for yeahs and yeahs. Formerly much less interested in art and more in personalities, crowds rushed these Art institute receptions to feast their eyes upon Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. W. W. Kimball, Mrs. George Pullman, and Mrs. Augustus Eddy. And more recently Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, and many others who sat in glorious regalia of furs, velvet and gorgeous jewels.

I, myself, can remember Mrs. Marshall Field's watch pinned to her frock; it was a mass of huge, sparkling diamonds, a rare, desirable object. Nowadays, Chicago leaders wear demure black dresses and hats and keep their jewels in the safe, their sables and chinchillas in the cedar closet.

They tell me also that in the olden times these receptions fed the guests opulently with salads, coffee, ices, cakes, and goodies that ladies don't eat any more on account of their figgers. Today, a mere cup of tea with a dry wafer is the pabulum for these Art institute parties where various women's clubs of Chicago provide the hostesses and also the tea.

Outside of the current picture show of modern art, which was ever a secondary interest, the table decor is the next vital thing. This year Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, doing the Arts and Friday club table, in turquoise blue moire with somber red flowers and candles, had as close rival Mrs. James Ward Thorne's Antiquarian and Fortnightly table, with pale blue satin cover and huge floral center piece of white stocks and what nots in pink and yellow.

SOMETHING to look forward to, the International theater in the Goodman Studio theater, with Georges Cannet as director. Three French plays will be given in the season beginning Friday, Dec. 3, into March. I have been to these plays before and they were charming.

The Arts club musical Sunday night passed off with a good deal of zip. In honor of Zlatko Balokovic, it was preceded by many cocktail parties of which the two largest were those of Mrs. Charles Swift and Mrs. Goodspeed, the presidents. The latter's guests were various Jugo-Slav consuls, musicians, composers, and visitors now in town, and the Kellogg Fairbanks, Adlai Stevensons, Bob Piries, an opera singer or two, the newlywed Wilmerdings, and the Paul Wellings, Charles Hamills, etc.

In a room lighted by white candles and made lovelier by huge white potted plants, Mr. Balokovic gave a program of Jugo-Slav music on the violin, with interpolation of anecdote, very interesting. Varying the number, were piano morceaux by another Balkan visitor. John Carpenter gave me a gentle rally later over my say-so that his concerto would be played. For his charming wife, Ellen, had, I fear, led me awry. Anyway, I had heard the concerto at Friday's Symphony concert, with the usual reaction I have to his works—pride, that he lives among us.

Many sat in the audience whom I know well. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loesch, old friends of Joyce Borden Balokovic, the John Zanes, Clark Lawrences, William Hales, Mrs. Welsh Dickinson, Mrs. Robert Waller, Mrs. B. F. Taylor, the Harold Pynchons, Mrs. William Yager, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dixon, and the John S. Millers.

Arthur Henn told me a miraculous story of what happened to him coming home from Europe recently on an Italian ship. It seems he had acquired on the Riviera a beret which pleased him greatly but which some of his fellow passengers found freakish and laughed about. One day, while standing by the rail with a delightful miss, a sudden gust of wind snatched the beret from his head and carried it far from the ship, where it finally settled peacefully on the surface of the sea.

While he was bemoaning the loss of his cherished cap the wind began to blow anew, and the girl remarked, "Perhaps you'll get it back again." No sooner said than done. Another gust carried the lively beret from the crest of a wave back to the ship, where it caught on a metal bar that steadies the gangway. A ship's painter reached for the runaway hat and soon the eminent Chicago architect was bonneted as usual.

• • •

FROM the Arts club I went that evening with a couple of Chicago beaux to call upon Archduke Franz Joseph, staying on Lake Shore drive with his bride, the tall, slim, violet-eyed young archduchess. It was an informal, pleasant party, where the hostess skilfully moved her guests about, so that each should have speech with the Austrians.

The archducal bride wore a modish traveling dress, brown, in one piece, with wide, elaborate girdle. Other women, for the better part, wore little long sleeved jackets over dark frocks. Dr. Emil Baer, German consul general; Judge Gersten, Austrian consul; Gen. and Mrs. MacChesney, Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Jason Whitney, Mrs. Hayden Harris, the Paul Longones, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, the Orville J. Taylors, and George Slocombe, a British lecturer, were of the company.

The archduke is a great-nephew of the late Emperor Franz Josef, being a grandson of the Austrian monarch's younger brother, Archduke Franz Salvator. Blue eyed, black haired, and charmingly friendly in manner, he told me he had spent most of his life in Spain and only lately returned to Vienna.

• • •

ANOTHER very gay late supper party was Grace Moore's soirée after "Manon" at the Blackstone. There the diva had taken one of the smaller salons off the foyer of the art gallery, and had piled upon all the gold consoles not only a mass of orchids and lesser flowers but also the signed, framed photographs of a dozen very, very handsome men, including old world potentates, idols of the opera and the screen, and even well known Washington faces.

"To make it look homelike," remarked the singing beauty, who really is so simple and unspoiled by success that one forgave her this outstanding array of princely and official adorers.

After a staggering ovation during and after "Manon" Miss Moore tore over to the Blackstone from the opera with a raging appetite, she said, and a divaesque frock. Of stiff white lamé, high neck, long sleeved, in medieval straight lines; with it she wore the most gorgeous jewels seen in many a day. The huge clips, choice rings, beautifully chosen bracelets were of magnificent cut stones, white, brilliant, and really regal.

Guests at this party were mostly of the opera, singers from the cast of "Manon," Mr. and Mrs. Jason Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Longone, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Caldwell, Burdoni and Mme. Dosia, Irene Castle, Mrs. Ralph James, and the exceedingly handsome Spanish husband of Grace Moore, Señor Pereira.

This interesting ménage has a villa at Cannes, from which Garden of Eden they have only lately come.

New Reservoir Doom of Two English Towns

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

The doom of two old villages has begun. Ashopton and Derwent, in Derbyshire, with their churc.. and chiming bells, their chapels and inns, many farms and cottages and shops, are being abandoned to make way for the Lady Bower reservoir.

Houses are being built for the people compulsorily ejected from their homes at Bamford, but to the cottagers Bamford is not home. Many of them are the third and fourth generation to have worked the land in small holdings, and to them this progress comes hard.

• • •

IN order to build the reservoir the main road between Manchester and Sheffield will be raised sixty feet above its present level for a five mile stretch. The Derwent river will be diverted and for 1,000 feet it will be sent through an underground tunnel. Over the ghost village will rise a viaduct ninety feet high and 900 feet long, and encircling it will be a dam with foundations containing 100,000 tons of concrete.

Sheffield, Derby, Nottingham, and Leicester will have their water from this reservoir.

Four acres of land, a cottage, a glass house and piggery, all for $175, are being provided with the aid of the Carnegie foundation for certain unemployed men and their families.

New homes and new villages are springing up in the countryside near London, and new hope shows in the eyes of those men who now have something for which to work.

• • •

EACH holding represents $5,000 of capital, the major portion of which has been put into building and land, for which a fixed rent is charged. The balance is working capital which the tenant is expected to repay over a period of ten years, without interest.

For industry, ability, and progressively increasing returns, the tenant will get a rebate of half the amount, a gift of $410 over five years. Thus, a satisfactory tenant will have to pay only his rent and $40 a year.

In each community there is a central farm with an instructor who advises the men. They are not born farmers and need a lot of help. Tractors and plowing machinery can be hired from the instructor.

The men are selected from the depressed areas or industries and are given intensive training for several months. If they decide to settle they are given further training and finally placed on the land. During this time they receive the usual unemployment pay and a special allowance because of not living at home. Six hundred families now are on holdings. In all there have been 3,187 persons moved.

Acquaintances of Charles Dickens Are Diminishing

LONDON

The persons who knew Charles Dickens are growing fewer, and bit by bit, as their memories are questioned about the great novelist, we are given stories which are joys to those collecting Dickensia.

A Miss Masson died recently, and the only glamor thrown on her life was the fact that, as a young girl, she had heard Dickens read passages from "Oliver Twist." At the time she had written to her mother how incongruous it was to have a man with a rough beard mimic the part of Nancy trying to ward off Bill Sykes.

Mrs. Eliza Bird, who recently celebrated her 97th birthday, has a remarkably clear mind for her age and she can remember when she went to a hall in the city to hear Charles Dickens give readings from his works. After the readings, she says, he would sell his pictures, autographed, and she has one now in her album! Mrs. Bird also heard Jenny Lind sing "The Daughter of the Regiment" and was sent to school in the country at Holland Park in Kensington! On Sundays they went for walks in St. James's park, "where the cows were and where we could buy a fresh cup of milk."

A link with the past was broken recently when Miss Jean Burns Brown, the great-granddaughter of Robert Burns, the national bard of Scotland, died. The little house overlooking the high street of Dumfries was the rendezvous of the many admirers of Robert Burns from all over the world. There she sang his songs "as they ought to be sung" with the accent and expressiveness they should have.

Major Events Scheduled by Jewish Clubs

FOR the B. M. Z. Woman's club and the Deborah Woman's club, the next few days will bring the most interesting events of the season. Today the Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged, which the former organization helps to support, will dedicate a new wing, and on Monday, Dec. 6, the club will celebrate its silver anniversary. Tuesday and Wednesday the annual fête for the benefit of the Deborah Boys' club, on West Division street, will be held at the Congress hotel.

Mrs. Joseph Lewis, president of the B. M. Z. Woman's club, will be among the speakers at the dedication exercises at 2:30 o'clock at the home. Maurice Burr, president of the home; Dr. Maurice Lewison; Samuel Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities, which contribute largely to the home's maintenance, and Israel Loewenberg, a director of the home and architect of the new wing, also will speak.

Mrs. Joseph Lewis.
[New Camera Art Photo.]

Since three women's groups were combined twenty-five years ago to form the B. M. Z. Woman's club, that organization has raised funds for the home, has contributed clothing, linens, and other supplies, and has rendered a variety of personal services to the 167 elderly men and women who live there. Concerts, lectures, and other diversions are arranged, and various comforts are provided.

The new wing, a hospital addition, is dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. Mayer H. Lebensohn, who for thirty years served the home as physician. With the assistance of its junior auxiliary the club has equipped the wing, and has provided a recreation room, also refurnishing the entire home.

A luncheon at the Drake hotel will celebrate the club's silver anniversary on Dec. 6. Mrs. Jacob G. Grossberg, Mrs. Harry Grossfeld, and Mrs. James Davis, former presidents, will be special guests. Mrs. Lewis, the present president, has held her post for eighteen years. There will be a musical following the luncheon.

• • •

NEXT Sunday evening the Henry Davis 400, an auxiliary of young married people, will give a dinner dance at the Hotel Sherman to raise funds for the Daughters of Zion Day and Night nursery, California avenue and Hirsch boulevard. A. A. Zeidman, president, is being assisted with arrangements by Mr. and Mrs. Benn B. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kohen, co-chairmen of the party.

Another event of the coming week-end will be a bazar of the Chicago division of the National Home for Jewish Children, Sunday and Monday, Dec. 5 and 6, at the Great Northern hotel. The division helps to maintain a home in Denver, Colo., for children of destitute tuberculous parents. Mrs. Maurice S. Levy is president of the division, and Mrs. I. Shoen, executive director of the bazar.

• • •

THE 1,600 underprivileged boys who belong to the Deborah Boys' club will be enabled to enjoy the recreational and educational facilities of the club through the fête Tuesday and Wednesday at the Congress hotel.

From 10 o'clock in the morning until midnight on both days cakes, cookies, candies, cigarets, dolls and toys, fruits and flowers, groceries, gifts, and a variety of other articles to tempt the Christmas shopper will be on sale. There will be entertainment by radio and screen artists on both evenings, boxing matches, and games. There will be a cocktail party both afternoons.

On display will be articles made by the boys in their handicraft classes at the Deborah club. Athletics, dramatics, and the editing of a newspaper are other activities of the young members. Mrs. Charles Edward Martin, president of the Deborah Woman's club, is chairman of the fête, with Mrs. Joseph Wolf, honorary president, Mrs. Lester Stern, Miss Esther Levine, Mrs. Arthur Lindheimer, and Mrs. Horace Lepman as co-chairmen.

Mrs. Joseph Wolf.

This evening the Mildred Hirsch Memorial will hold a benefit jamboree in the new Venetian room of the Southmoor hotel. There will be dancing, games, and contests. Joseph Pinkert is chairman, assisted by Miss Eva Zatz, Miss Zerna Rubin, Miss Sarah Wexler, Miss Ruth Rosenthal, M. B. Snyderman, Joseph Baer, and Samuel Kipnis. The organization is affiliated with the Jewish People's Convalescent home.

OFF ON WEDDING TRIP

The marriage of Miss Bette Jane Breit to John Barry O'Keefe took place at St. Nicholas church, Evanston, on Thanksgiving eve, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Breit of Evanston. After a wedding trip south Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe will be at home in Oak Park.

Thanksgiving a "Family Day" in Pasadena

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Social scribes may deplore the "sameness" of Thanksgiving day news, but it is that very sameness that gives a homey charm to the day. "Just a family affair," virtually every prospective hostess answers over her telephone, if you make inquiry. But what a happy event those four words imply.

Among the Chicago colony here were many reunions Thursday. The William 3. Masons joined their daughter, Mrs. Edgar Willrich, for a quiet family dinner, and the George Blossoms, whose three children did not expect to be here from Chicago so early in the season, went to Pebble Beach to spend the entire holiday week-end. There they are guests of other Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ingalls, with whom they spent last Thanksgiving, too. The Ingalls' lovely Monterey home has a setting of Monterey cypress, famous in pictorial art, and overlooks both the Pacific ocean and Monterey bay.

THE Falkenau family gathered at the home of the A. L. Howells of Altadena [Florence Falkenau], with the exception of the Eugene F. Rouses [Arline Falkenau], who were out of town. There also were Mrs. Marie S. Falkenau, mother of the hostess, and her other daughter, Miss Therese Falkenau, who resides with her; two cousins, the Ernest Brookmans, and Hollywood friends, Mrs. Charles Reynolds, Miss Harriet Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Reynolds, Mrs. Mabel Heminway, and Mrs. Molly Fitzgerald.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dick on Arden road had the pleasure of having with them their son and his wife, the Kenneth W. Dicks, visiting here from Chicago, and their grandson, Robert Dick, who is a freshman at Pomona college. The Dicks formerly resided in Sheridan road, and maintain a summer home in Wisconsin.

Peter Berkey arrived in Pasadena in time to spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Berkey and daughter, June, at Hotel Huntington, where they celebrated quietly.

Mrs. C. M. Anthony of Peoria, Ill., is at the Vista, and, with Mrs. Cora Baxter, enjoyed the holiday with friends. The Oscar MacMurrays of Beverly Hills, Chicago, who are at the Villa Raymond for their fifth winter in Pasadena, spent the day with the James Winns of South El Molino avenue, who are Chicagoans turned Pasadenans.

• • •

NOT waiting for the holiday, Mr. and Mrs. Lansing B. Warner of Hubbard Woods on the day before Thanksgiving left Hotel Huntington, where they had spent a week. Headed for Chicago, they expect to make several stops en route, one at Phoenix. Their son, Lansing Warner Jr., preceded them and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. William R. Tobey, of Glencoe, checked out of the hotel last Saturday. The Warners recently arrived in California after a cruise through the canal from New York.

The George W. Sturdivants, more or less permanent Pasadenans, arrived from Chicago this week. Mrs. H. M. Montgomery of Evanston has arrived for her usual winter visit and is staying with the Richard Mather Illsleys [Elizabeth Montgomery].

Mr. and Mrs. W. Rufus Abbott of Evanston, who have been visiting here, spent the holiday with Mrs. Abbott's sister, Mrs. Oscar Blattner of Beverly Hills. They left the next day for a winter in Melbourne, Fla. Mrs. Blattner and her daughter, Mrs. Seymour Thomas, entertained with a luncheon honoring Mrs. Abbott. Returning the compliment, the Abbotts were hosts at a dinner party, their guests including also the John H. Hardings and several others.

The William Magies, just back in their home here from Chicago, had a family dinner party which included their daughter, Mrs. Lolita Magie Tourtellotte, and son, James; their granddaughter, Billie Eilersgaard, now enrolled at Westridge School for Girls in Pasadena, and her father, Asger Eilersgaard. On the twenty-second they entertained a dozen close friends to celebrate their forty-ninth wedding anniversary.

Winter colonists and permanent residents were happy to welcome back this week Sir Montagu and Lady Allan of Montreal, who have reopened their Hotel Huntington cottage.

HAMILTON college alumni, twenty-five of them, gathered Monday night to organize the local division of the $400,000 campaign for a new gymnasium. Stephen W. Royce is regional director for the campaign, a position similar to that of James Soper in Chicago, where efforts also are being undertaken. Among those present were Robert V. Butler of Los Angeles, formerly of Oak Park. Leet Bisseel is local alumni head.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Willrich entertained a company of fifty friends with dinner and dancing this week at the Annandale Golf club, preceded by cocktails at their home. The affair honored Mrs. John F. Herdic of Winnetka, who was here with her brother, Lansing Warner, also a guest. The Ackert Bankses were among the guests.

Two former Chicagoans have been honored recently. A. B. Young, who was cited by the American Legion here for outstanding citizenship, and appointed not so long ago as chairman of the state relief commission, has been appointed to the state welfare bureau. Scott Brown was given a Legion citation for his work in connection with the improving of Carmelita Gardens.

WEARING FUR HALO HAT

Halo hats, especially fur halos, are popular with the younger set, and Miss Ruth MacArthur wore one when she attended a recent meeting of the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare society. The center is giving an Infanta ball Dec. 4 at the Palmer house.

All Italian Girls Are Taught Physical Training

ALL over Italy girls are being taught at a tender age the value of physical exercise and contact with the outdoors. Scores of women trainers scatter to the four corners of the country to put the young Italian girls, mere children, some of them into gym togs; to teach them field athletics and mass dances; to take them hiking and camping over the face of the land.

48th Annual Art Exhibit Is Big Mouthful

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE forty-eighth annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture is a tremendous mouthful to digest at one sitti.. The Art institute has rarely before spread quite such a bountiful table before art devotées; it seems at last to have gone out of its way to include at one fell swoop everything that has been perpetrated under the guise of painting in the last few frenzied years.

If you would like to enjoy a perfectly splendid attack of mental indigestion, go wander through the east wing galleries! Caviar and shepherd's pie are both served to you, with all the staples and condiments the Thanksgiving season can suggest.

Pop as well as sturdy beer and laughter-provoking champagne are ready to your hand. [Do not mistake me, these are metaphorically speaking only in the flesh, or shall we say bottle?] Never has the Art institute been so lavish in its entertainment. It will take time to sort these dishes, these cups, and find out on what sort of principles this exhibit is arranged.

• • •

FIRST off, one can only think that finally the desperately uttered plea of the last decade that both sides of the modern art question should be shown, has beer answered. Then this seems too easy a begging of the question. There are paintings here by the score that on the face of it have no business being included in an important show; are we being treated to a joke by those who invited part of these paintings and by the jury who admitted the rest? Or is this a serious effort, a discriminating choice exercised over the multitudinous entries that clamored for admittance to this much vaunted yearly function?

If these pictures, one by one, are the best being painted today by American artists, it is a sad reflection on the condition of art in our times. Art is frightfully sick and something more potent than government measures is needed to bring it back to health. We need a spiritual awakening.

Were it not for the presence of a number of proficient craftsmen in this show, Wayman Adams and Leopold Seyffert among them, there would seem justice in a brother critic's statement that art today is dead and will be for the next hundred years. Speaking from the evidence at hand, the painter of today of whom the museums take cognizance is moribund in every sense except the physical, and he is dead to things as well—dead to beauty, to delicacy, to fancy, to color, to spiritual values, to good workmanship.

Probably the most lasting impression you will receive from a visit to the current exhibition is one of weight; this is such a materialistic world and such little things matter.

• • •

AN exhibition of paintings of the American desert by Harry B. Wagoner is on view in the Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, and if you really care to see beautiful painting you might turn your footsteps that way after leaving the Art institute.

There is no man painting the desert today as eloquently and as beautifully as does Mr. Wagoner. He seems to understand its quiet and serenity, its eternal mystery. As an interpreter of the desert Mr. Wagoner is unparalleled. Whether it be by day or night, in spring or summer, the message of the sands and the purple hills never falls on deaf ears. A sensitive perception, an exquisite facility of stroke, translates in color upon canvas scene after scene that brings the desert in its myriad phases to life.

There are paintings filled with color, as in the golden flood of flowers that sweeps one stunning sketch and the sea of purple blossom that washed through another, and there are austere and aloof paintings, "Zuni Country," for one, and "Camelback," for another. There are lone wastes touched to flame by the sparkling fresh green of a single tree, as in "Squaw Peak," and there is a cool desert ruled over by a rising moon, "Beyond the Horizon." There is "Rain Valley Ranch," where little buildings cluster to prove that man has come this far into the sands and settled himself firmly, and there is "Santa Ritas," a field of desert picked out with the red flowers of a drouth resistant shrub.

Mr. Wagoner has shown other desert paintings here before, but his message is as fresh and keen as though he had never spoken. For the finest kind of contemporary American painting, look toward him and painters of his ilk.

THE twelfth annual fall exhibition of work by Illinois artists opened Nov. 20 in the third floor corridor gallery of the Stevens hotel, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. It will continue into January.

The annual fall exhibition of paintings by members of the Northwest Art league closes today at the Edgewater Beach hotel. It is a pleasant show.

The Palette and Chisel Academy of Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, has an unusually delightful small picture exhibit on its walls through Dec. 3. The exhibit closes that night with an auction. The sale of these paintings, which have been given by the artists, is for the benefit of the Palette and Chisel.

Here is a rare opportunity to get a really good picture at a small cost. You will go far before you can better "Summer Showers," by Maurice Greenberg; "Back Stage," by Othmar Hoffler; "Old Decoration, No. 1 and 2," by Leo Marzolo; "Autumn Tranquillity," by Arnold Turtle; "Peace and Quiet," by James Topping; "New England Harbor," by J. Jeffery Grant; "The Bather," by Tomanek; "Silence," by Karl Brandner, and "Springtime," by C. Curry Bohm. In this exhibit, as in the Wagoner exhibit, there is the best of contemporary American painting, the Art institute notwithstanding.

The Chicago Public School Art society is bringing to Chicago the exhibition of "Children in American Folk Art," which was very successful when shown in New York last spring. The exhibition will open at the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, Dec. 6, to continue two weeks.

A SEYFFERT PAINTING

Leopold Seyffert, cleverly disguised as an oasis in the desert, plays a memorable part in the current exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute. The picture is titled "Jesus Galvez with Baby Benjamin."

AIDS PLANS FOR INFANTA BALL

Miss Eleanor Connors is assisting with plans for the Infanta ball the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare society will give Dec. 4 at the Palmer house. Proceeds from the party will go to the Russell Square station of Infant Welfare at 83d street and South Shore drive.

Tableware Is Copying Basic Idea in Dress

By Claire Winslow.

ONE of the country's most ingenious modern designers, Russell Wright, has contrived a new set of tableware for informal entertainment that is as practical and clever as it is good looking. He followed the fashion idea of the "basic" dress, a simple frock to which you add different accessories, thereby changing its rôle for various occasions, and has made a basic set for serving supper foods.

The key to this set is a large flat aluminum ring. In the opening may be placed either a divided circular container for relishes, called a relish rosette, or an ice bucket and tongs, or a wooden cheese board disc and cheese knife, thereby making a highball set [when the ice is used], a cheese and cracker set, or a relish and canapé set.

This outfit takes up little closet space, yet it actually contains all the essentials for producing a complete range of serving equipment.

• • •

ANOTHER of Mr. Wright's inspirations for tableware comes from the French. He makes use of the artistic flower pot colored earthenware used by the French for casseroles, and he combines it with shining aluminum covers and natural maple handles. The effect is ultra-smart and again, as each dish has a number of uses, extremely practical.

Because of the functional design and the simple, clean cut lines of the various pieces they fall in the modern group. Yet they can be used with traditional china and glassware, or with gayly colored pottery plates, cups, and saucers, as well as with plates of wood.

The charming dead white or light yellow French Quimper china, for example, is quaint and old fashioned, yet it makes an ideal accompaniment for this new oven-to-table ware.

In a "harvest buffet supper" table set, with pieces designed by Mr. Wright, fruit tumbles out of a cornucopia, made of reed and cane and placed between two candles, making the centerpiece. Near by is one of the large earthenware pots with aluminum and maple cover to hold hot soup. A ladle comes with it.

• • •

RELISHES are served in the rosette included in the set and hot ones in two covered dishes. In the pottery casserole the hot course, which has been baked in the detachable pottery liner, is also ready to serve. Tiny rubber feet on the aluminum frame keep this dish from scorching the table.

The set also include a basic set of cheese tray. A small mustard jar holds the necessary seasoning, and mint julep cups are ready to serve the drinks. The small wooden plates and the interesting, modern table silver are also designed by Russell Wright.

The whole ensemble is a symphony of autumn colors, the cloth being burnt orange and tan and the pottery a russet color, while the maple and reed are tan.

Helpful Hints for Housewives

ALWAYS wipe off the clothesline with a damp cloth before hanging up the laundry. This prevents dirt from staining the clothes.

Glazed pineapple quarters are an excellent garnish for the scrambled egg and sausage platter to be served after the movies or the snowball party.

An Open Letter to Maude Adams.

Dear Maude: The educational work you are now doing is leading to something really big and will be connected with motion pictures eventually, as well as with radio. But there is a nebulous quality to it, so far as you are concerned. It is bigger than any one person, although you probably are the best head this new movement [for that is what it will no doubt become in the near future] could have. Be sure you get good advice; don't follow your feelings, even though they will rise often and easily during the next two years. Keep your money in a little tin box and lose the key. With best wishes, WYNN.

Maude Adams.

Violinist from Chicago Thrills London Audiences

LONDON Guila Bustabo, young Chicago violinist, again is charming English audiences. She was the soloist at the first of Sir Thomas Beecham's Sunday concerts at the Royal Opera house in Covent Garden, and won tremendous applause. Although still in her teens, she has so impressed the critics and the public that there is popular demand for further engagements and Sir Thomas and she plan another appearance in the near future.

Guila had a year touring in Europe when she was 17, and gave nearly 60 performances to large audiences both in England and on the continent. At that time the Baroness Ravensdale, eldest daughter of the late Mary Leiter of Chicago, presented Guila with a violin worth more than $10,000 to take the place of the ordinary one she had been using. Lady Ravensdale has been entertaining Guila at several dinner parties and evening receptions at which she distinguishes herself as an international conversationalist as well as a musician.

American Club Sponsors Unusual London Exhibit

LONDON The American Women's club in Grosvenor street, Mayfair, was the scene recently of a novel exhibition called "Very 1937." It was the annual event of the Alpha club, which is composed of 60 women doing 47 different things to earn their living.

It was opened by the duchess of Kent and the mayor of Westminster, who welcomed her. The exhibition was a revelation to the English public of the variety of work being done by women today. There was an exhibit of the work of detectives represented by Miss Maud West Jr.; of fox farming, cocktail cookery, of handmade pewter work, of hand thrown pottery, advertising consultants, and an endless variety of hand work.

In the capacity of an official of the American Women's club, Mrs. Herbert French was there. With the retirement of Mrs. Curtis Brown, who has been president of the club for some 20 years, it is likely that Mrs. French will become the president. Mrs. French was, before her marriage to an English army officer, Miss Helen Healy of Boston.

Another officer present was Mrs. Henry Koelsch, wife of the English manager of the National City Bank of New York. She is president of the executive committee of the club.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Feb. 6, 1889.

DEAR JULIA: Reception follows reception here in Chicago. Yesterday I attended a very elegant gathering at the home of Mrs. William A. Pinkerton, at 196 South Ashland avenue. The table arrangements and the flowers were especially beautiful, the entire mantel in the south parlor being banked with red and white tulips, surrounded by ferns and smilax. In the south parlor rare flowers were placed here and there. The prevailing color in the dining room was red, fairy lamps above the table casting a subdued light on handsome linen and silver.

Among the friends I saw at Mrs. Pinkerton's was Mrs. E. Nelson Blake. Her husband has twice been president of the Board of Trade and they are among our finest citizens, members of the Second Baptist church. He has been urged to run for mayor on the Republican ticket, but it would be difficult to win over Carter Harrison.

Young Bessie Ross, called "a pocket edition of Venus," was another person I saw at the Pinkertons.

From Ashland avenue I went to a reception on the south side. The day was cold and I didn't like to keep Michael out, but my dear Mrs. Cheney remembered to call me up and tell me to have Michael drive into their stable near by, the reception being at the home of Mrs. G. C. Campbell, 2826 Michigan avenue.

Our hostess received in a handsome black silk, draped with tulle. The south side was out in force. There was Mrs. Allison V. Armour, daughter of the David Kelleys, one of Chicago's belles; Mrs. Henry A. Blair, who tells dialect stories so admirably as to keep me in giggles whenever I'm with her; Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, her beautiful sister-in-law; Mrs. John B. Drake and her daughter, Helen, who is her shadow; Mrs. Le Grand Smith, dainty and exquisite in her manners; Mrs. Charles Re Qua, blonde beauty, recently married to a son of one of our first families; Mrs. M. D. Wells and Mrs. N. K. Fairbank. It was really a beautiful party.

Meanwhile, Will had been at the Marquette club, which has lately taken the E. B. Washburne house on Dearborn avenue for its home. Judge Leonard Swett entertained the members last evening with reminiscences of Lincoln. Mr. Swett and Lincoln had ridden circuit together and the talk was very personal and thus most interesting.

We are to see Mary Anderson tomorrow night in "A Winter's Tale," at McVicker's theater. She has played to packed houses here. One wonders what is the secret of her great popularity. There are other actresses as talented, I suppose. Will says it is because of her wonderful character, which seems to permeate all she does. Chicago people love the theater. Just now, the "Crystal Slipper" is playing to crowds; "Erminie" is equally popular, and Hoyt's "A Brass Monkey" is having great success.

With much love, Yours ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Robert T. Brewer sends us some interesting facts about the theater of the past in Chicago, together with a program of a performance of "East Lynne," at Hooley's. In the somewhat casual manner of the earlier days, the program is not dated, but from ad vertisments of the high bicycle and from a column of "Fashion Gossip," illustrated by a cut of a lady whose bustle is of ample proportions, we conclude the play was presented here in the late seventies or early eighties.

About this time folding-beds raged like an epidemic and the Hooley program shows many pictures of these singular articles of furniture. One such bed disappears into a table, over which a felt cloth may be thrown. Another becomes a wardrobe with a mirror in the door. But the most remarkable transformation is that in which the bed becomes by day, in semblance at least, a parlor organ.

Beauty culture, though in its infancy, had made a beginning in Chicago at the time of the publication of the Hooley program, for Miss Lundy, manicure and chiropodist, room 33, Central Music Hall, advertises herself as the "longest manicure in Chicago."

WAITERS OF CHICAGO.

Who is the senior waiter in any Chicago hotel or club, in point of continuous service? This question has been asked us and we shall be glad to have entries for the honorable title. The Illinois Athletic club has, as assistant head waiter, Joseph Wurbel, who came to the United States from Freiburg, Germany, working in Delmonico's, New York, for some time. In Chicago, in 1891, he worked at the exclusive Richelieu hotel.

Emil Weibel, now at the Stevens hotel, began his career at the Leland hotel on Michigan avenue and in 1892 and 1893 was at the Richelieu.

Satirist Puts the Windsors in Paris Skit

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

The recent episodes concerning the duke of Windsor, such as his postponed or canceled trip to America, and the incident in connection with the celebration of Armistice day at the British church in Paris, again have called attention to the lines in a revue now being given at the Théâtre des Nouveautés in Paris.

The show is a concoction by Rip, the well known Parisian specialist, who satirizes lightly and wittily almost all subjects of chief public preoccupation. In one scene, which does not last long, a personable young woman, whose resemblance to the duchess of Windsor is unmistakable, even if the lines she speaks could conceal the intention of the author, finds herself in a hotel in Nice.

• • •

SHE asks the waiter what apartment she happens to be in, and why the hotel is called the Regina. He answers that it was so named from the fact that Queen Victoria once stopped there, and in the very apartment occupied by the American woman. Barely has she urged the waiter to leave her, when, from a chair whose back is turned to the audience, and in which it was not apparent any one was hidden, rises one of the most famous figures of the Paris theatrical firmament, Mme. Marguerite Moreno, who has been as active in films in recent years as in the theater.

She is a remarkably gifted and accomplished artist, and, although tall, she wears a small crown, and in general shows considerable likeness to Queen Victoria. She immediately speaks a number of witty and meaningful lines, not only on the responsibilities of the crown and the need of placing it before all sentimental considerations but she pays her tribute to any one who would leave a throne because of love. Thus partisans of both sides have their case stated ex cathedra, as it were. It would be difficult for any language but French to convey, through delicate allusion and irony, mingled with sympathy, all the considerations which flock into the mind on such themes.

THE Théâtre des Nouveautés, which acquired its name over a century ago, did not assume its present location until 1866, in the days when the Paris boulevards were at the height of that prestige which made them, perhaps, the most celebrated, and certainly the most intriguing, of all promenades. Some of the oldtimers in Paris—and not so very old at that—will remember the little Théâtre des Capucines, on the boulevard of that name, where the wittiest of revues could be seen, played by remarkable troupes. The Nouveautés is at present run to satisfy the wishes of that sort of clientéle, and has, in its small, old-fashioned auditorium, the same sort of intimate atmosphere. The delicate playe of wit is so rapid that it has the effect of subduing the laughter, so that no tidbit may be missed.

But there were full throated guffaws for Pauley, one of the fattest men on the Parisian or any other stage, who appeared as Shirley Temple. Her name was pronounced in the French fashion, and she is shown unwillingly kept away from bonbons and protected from kidnapers. When she finds that she cannot get sweetmeats otherwise she herself telephones to the kidnapers to come for her. There are many laughs for the satire on Sacha Guitry and his "Perles de la Couronne," with certain personages quite miffed that they were among the few characters of history left out of his well known film.

And in another skit it is remarked that in Marseilles—or just off the coast—there are two Châteaux d'If, one, the historic Château d'If, for the French, and Château d'If-You-Please, pour les Anglais.

TO BE JANUARY BRIDE

Miss Marcia Weymouth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Emerson Weymouth of La Grange, will be married to Norman L. Stephens of Downers Grove on Jan. 15 in the Presbyterian church. The bride will wear the same gown worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Marcia Boothby of Hinsdale, more than 60 years ago.

Mme. Pompadour's Home to Become a National Museum

VERSAILLES.—[U. P.]—The home of Mme. de Pompadour, where in a time of Louis XV. she formed a second court life which has become famed in history, is to be made over into one of the national museums of France. It will be converted by the commission of beaux arts.

Thousands who have wandered through the halls of Versailles have wondered where the house of the king's mistress was situated, and have sought in vain. The famous palace and gardens, the creation of Louis XV. himself, have been restored to their old time splendor, but the home of Mme. de Pompadour has had many adventures since its heyday. A drab five story apartment building labeled today "Hotel des Reservoirs," which millions have passed on the way to the Versailles grounds, summarizes the decline of France's old time kings.

• • •

Where Voltaire and Quesnay once talked philosophy and medicine, tourists in the last hundred years have been talking shop and sightseeing. The stables that once held 60 well groomed horses are empty, and the sparrows have long since taken away the last grain of oats.

Jeanne Antoinette Poisson le Normant d'Etoiles de Pompadour, who dressed herself in good Elizabethan manner to die April 15, 1764, in full court costume, knew how to get places. Her early history is doubtful, for there is still a lively controversy among historians as to who was her real father. A wealthy financier and farmer, who may have been her father, offered to educate her.

The goal he had set for his protégé was to become the king's mistress, an enviable place for any woman to reach in those days. After an early marriage to her protégé's nephew, she became the queen of fashion of Paris. She had not yet forced her entry into the court circles, but made sure that the king saw her frequently when he went hunting. Four years after her marriage she met Louis XV. at a court ball and her future was assured.

• • •

She gave up her husband and by 1745 was established at Versailles with the title of marquise and the post of mistress. Ambition spurred her on, and made her house the center of France's leading literary and intellectual circles at a time when the theories of society, which later led to the French revolution, were being formulated. Voltaire was her firm friend and Quesnay, founder of the Physciocrats, her physician.

After her death her former two story home was taken by a real estate speculator, who added three more floors and tried to convert it into a coöperative apartment house. His venture failed and the house became the prototype of any other small town hotel in France. From this remote obscurity it will be converted again into a center of interest, this time for sightseers and not famous salon frequenters. The house will form part of the ensemble of Versailles.

Scotland Yard Enlists 50 More Policewomen

SCOTLAND YARD, in London, England, is enlisting 50 more policewomen to bring the standing force to 150. The would-be woman cop must be between 24 and 35, more than five feet four inches in height. If selected, she will get pay ranging from $11 to $15 a week while a patrolwoman, and a miximum of $27 a week if she rises to an inspector's job.

Mrs. Louisa Massy of Plymouth, England, recently celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary by having her first photograph taken.

More than 11,000,000 women are included in the ranks of the German Labor Front.

It Costs $8 to Give Birth to a Baby in Finland

By Mason Warner.

VIBORG, Finland.—Birth control is not popular in Finland. The birth rate here is the highest of all the advanced European countries. An addition to the family is not a financial catastrophe among the middle or working classes.

The cost of hospital care for a woman of moderate means is 25 marks—about 50 cents—a day. This includes expert medical care, night and day nursing, fee for operating room, medicines—everything; there are no extras. The total bill for a brand new baby runs from $8 to $15. This is the ward rate, for four patients in a room.

If a wealthy woman wishes to be exclusive and put on a lot of style, she can have a room all to herself, a special nurse or two, a doctor with his name in the social register, flowers every day, and any other fancy trimmings she can think of, but she will have to strain her ingenuity to the utmost to squander more than 4,500 marks on a blessed event. That is about $100.

I visited the city maternity hospital before I left Helsingfors. It is an institution that ranks with the best of its kind in the world, having a complete modern equipment, with every known hygienic and sanitary improvement in construction and operation. The death rate from childbirth in Finland is said to be the lowest recorded.

• • •

I sailed from Helsingfors for Viborg on a freighter that stopped over Sunday at Kotka to take on large rolls of newsprint paper and heavy banded sheafs of cellulose [wood pulp], the principal exports of this country.

Kotka is a sawmill town of 17,000 population, with a six story town hall or municipal building big enough for a city of 200,000.

Within a half hour's motor drive from Kotka is the "Czar's Villa," a fishing resort built by Alexander III. in 1889. It is in a picturesque location, through which wind several streams with rapids, bordered with pine trees and granite rocks. There are salmon, lots of them, in the streams.

The villa is a large and comfortable pine log country house, as good as new. It looks as if it were finished only yesterday. The original furniture is as it was in the days of the czars, with fine old samovars, china, plate, and linen. The book of guests has the autographs of Nicholas II. and Alexandra.

On the grounds is an elaborate shrine built of stone and sheltering sacred paintings that were worshiped as ikons. Near by is the tomb of Alexander III.'s 6 year old sister, Alexandra, 1888-1894. It is a huge natural mausoleum of granite, left rough hewn by the glaciers thousands of years ago. On its face is inserted a panel of black obsidian, bearing the intricately carved coat of arms of the grand duchy of Finland, a lion standing erect on hind legs, with upcurling tongue thrust far out, and holding a short sword in a forepaw. The memorial tablet was placed there by the Finnish people and bore an inscription in their language, but this was defaced by bullet or sledge hammer in the 1917 revolution.

No one about the place could tell the cause of the little one's death, or why she was not taken home to St. Petersburg for burial.

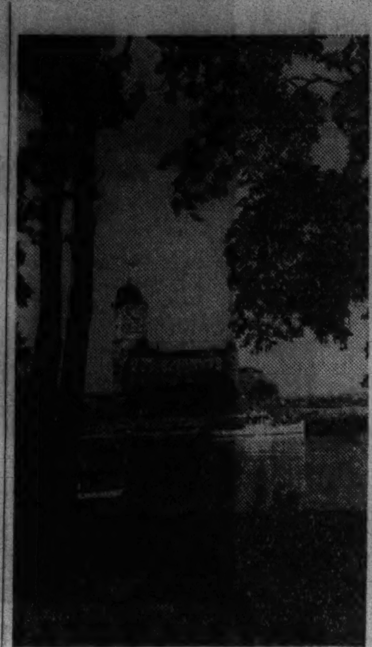
The entrance to the harbor at Viborg presents a striking scene because of the number and variety of sailing vessels. Those writers of romance who bewail the disappearance of sailing ships are wasting their tears. Coming out of the harbor were two huge and graceful four-masters, with all sails swelling with the breeze.

"I think a full-rigged clipper ship under sail is the most beautiful sight in the world," I said to an old sailor alongside of me on the forward deck and watching the approach of the two sea giants. That was not an original remark, but it was sincere. We had been swapping yarns about the South Seas and had become quite friendly.



The flag of free Finland now flies from old Viborg castle.

"Ah, but they ain't full-rigged ships," he said, with earnest emphasis. Then followed an explanatory lecture on ships and sails.

"Them is only four-masted barks. Can't you see—only the fore, main, and mizzenmast is full-rigged with square sails. The jiggermast has a spanker or driver and gaff topsail."

He carefully pointed out and named each of the thirty-one sails on a four-masted bark. Then he asked me for paper and pencil. I handed him my notebook and he proceeded to draw diagrams of eleven different types of wind propelled craft. He numbered and named each and every sail. His pencil strokes were quick, deft, sure —"like a hen picking up corn," commented the first mate who stood by for a minute—but Frank worked an hour on what to him was obviously a labor of love. He explained the difference between a full-rigged clipper ship, a bark, a barkentine, a brig, a barkentine, a schooner, a sloop, and a yacht. The teacher was competent and the pupil interested, but, alas, the lesson was not retained. Today it is only by direct reference to old Frank's detailed sketches that I can tell a barkentine from a brigantine.

Anyhow, the two four-masted barks, owned and manned by Finns, were starting on their way round the Horn to far off Australia to bring back cargoes of grain.

Viborg castle occupies a commanding position overlooking the city. It has stood there for nearly 700 years. Its construction was begun by the Swedish marshal, Torkel Knutsson, at the time of his crusade in 1293. However, Viborg was slow in starting as a city. It did not get its charter until late in 1403.

The town grew up in the shelter of the strong old castle which was an important outpost in fending off the attacks of the czar's armies, whose onslaughts were many.

Viborg was captured by the Russians, recaptured by the Swedes, again by the Russians, and again by the Swedes—so often that its history for the last six centuries is exceedingly monotonous.

One attack and repulse in 1495 is outstanding and famous. Knut Posse, the Swedish commander who became a national hero because of the incident, scattered the Russians and sent them home on the run by lighting barrels of tar and pitch and catapulting the flaming masses into their ranks.

The medieval fortress saw many changes of flags flying from its towers, first Swedish, then Russian, alternating with the fortunes of many wars. The last and perhaps the most bloody battle of them all took place in the war for the liberation of Finland in 1918, when the Russian communists capitulated to the Finns. Since then the flag of free Finland flies from the tallest tower of Viborg castle—now a historical museum haunted by tourists.

Where Yale Is Buried.

All around the Welsh village of Bryn-Eglwys, writes H. V. Morton in "In Search of Wales," lies property which once belonged to the Yale family, one of whom, Elihu, did so much toward founding Yale university. Elihu lies buried, however, not in the Yale chapel attached to the church of Bryn-Eglwys, but at Wrexham, ten miles away. Both places are much visited by Americans traveling in Wales.

● Jotunheim, the giant mountains of Norway. . . . A tourist land of impressive grandeur and beauty. . . . Explored first by Keilhau in 1820. . . . Named for the frost giants of the Edda, who were believed to have here their home. . . . The peaks of Tinder, Rigge, Horne, and Naebber range about six thousand feet high. . . . Huge glaciers. . . . Lakes over three thousand feet up. . . . A place for alpine climbers who are weary of the tourist riuden Alps. . . . Pathless woods, streams to ford and climbing without the comforts of civilization. . . . A lure for heroes and adventurers. . . . Mountain inns with solid, if rough comfort.

Jam Jars Get Church out of a Jarring Jam

GLASGOW, Scotland.—(AP)—Rows of jam jars on the walls of All Saints Episcopal church, Inverary, have turned sermons from nightmares to joys.

The jars ended the church's acoustic troubles which long had made the preacher's address almost impossible to hear.

The duke of Argyll, a worshiper at Inverary, remembered that an old Roman architect had ended similar troubles by placing the hollow horns of animals around the walls of a building.

So he rounded up scores of jam jars and placed them in rows around the church. All confusing echoes have disappeared.

Is it true that baseball as it's played in America is also played in Finland?—W. B.

Yes. Finland is the first European country to adopt baseball as a national sport. The Finns even have a "world series" in October.

Kindly tell me just where is the ancestral village of the Roosevelt family.—C. J. O'C.

It is Roosendaal, and it's near Oud-Vossemeer, Holland.

When does the Kungsholm sail on its cruise to northern Africa and western Europe?—P. L.

April 26, 1938.

What is the Bog Walk in Jamaica, and how did it get its name?—B. N.

It is neither a bog nor a walk. It is the beautiful gorge of the Rio Cobre river, just outside ancient Spanish Town. The name is a relic of the Spanish rule over Jamaica. When the British took control they retained many of the Spanish names, while others were corrupted into English words sounding like the originals. So Boca de Agua [Mouth of the Waters] became Bog Walk.

FLORIDA as you'll LIKE it!
Here's your ideal combination . . . a quiet, rigidly restricted, ultra-modern yet conservatively operated ocean-front hotel for your "headquarters" . . . with all the life and gaiety of Florida's "Gold Coast" near at hand.
PROGRAM . . . Choose your own pastimes from every conceivable sunshine sport. And the ocean is a complete "program" in itself... completely furnished private beach-walk, games, lazy sunning, brisk surfing...and bathers elevators so you can change in your room. Supervised play for children, too . . . and adult recreations up to and including a smart cocktail lounge.
FORT LAUDERDALE . . . is a friendly, uncrowded town of 15,000 midway between Miami and Palm Beach, with a quiet, well rounded resort life of its own . . . and with all the gayer centers within easy reach when you're in the mood.
 Ample parking. All rooms with bath and steam heat. American and European Plan. Ownership Management. For colorfully illustrated booklet, write: Arthur H. Ogle, Managing Director, Box 2015 FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA

PLAN your own "ALL-EXPENSE" winter VACATION!
Based on "comfortable" living figures, your family's winter budget in West Palm Beach would show monthly figures about like this for two or three persons: Home or apartment (completely equipped, everything furnished)—$75; Groceries—$60; Recreation—$30 (ample because so many recreations are city owned—free to visitors); Clothing replacement—$20; car or transportation—$8. Here's a total monthly expenditure, based on "comfortable" averages and season rates, of $193—amazingly reasonable for a sunshine vacation in South Florida. Larger families and longer stays further reduce the average. Doesn't this sound interesting? We'll gladly send you the complete story if you'll:

Transportation Is De Luxe on the River Nile

By Dorothy Schmidt.

A TRIP up the River Nile these days involves no discomfort for even the most "softie" of travelers. Hamilton M. Wright, an authority on Egyptian travel, has made another of his several fascinating journeys up glamorous Cleopatra's favorite stream, and assures coddled American travelers that the 3,000 mile trip may be made on trains and boats offering all that could be desired in the way of modern conveniences.

Mr. Wright's description of the transportation facilities is a far cry from the visions of the uninitiated who picture themselves, if in Egypt at all, swaying uncomfortably on the backs of camels, suffering from the heat, and wondering where the next drink of water will be available. The trains are exceedingly comfortable, Mr. Wright relates, but the boat accommodations hold the greatest surprise. Imagine traveling, in the heart of Egypt, and on the Nile river which has been symbolical of mystery and glamor since the beginning of recorded history, in a powerful, well built, steel river boat, thoroughly modern in every detail!

• • •

The Sudan Railways steamer took down six barges with her on the trip made by Mr. Wright.

"We were, in fact, a floating city of more than 150 persons," the Egyptologist said. "Our boat was equipped with a modern refrigeration plant carrying, in its capacious chambers, everything in the way of fresh food. There was an electricity plant, a laundry, a generous supply of tub baths and lavatories on every deck, and electric fans in every cabin. The capacious cabins themselves are designed for tropical travel.

"The steamer bar dispensed all the types of drinks customarily to be imbibed in the cocktail lounges of fashionable hotels in the United States or the continent. The boat also had cool lounges and card rooms, a spot for deck tennis, and plenty of room for exercise promenades around the deck.

"There was a traveling postoffice at which letters could be mailed and dispatched at the next stop at which Imperial Airways planes landed, the time involved usually being not more than three or four days from the time at which one posted a letter. This facility brings the Sudan within a few days of England by correspondence, and even faraway America is not tremendously distant in point of time. And yet I was in the heart of one of the most primitive and picturesque sections of Africa."

• • •

Picture for yourself, as Mr. Wright has, the thrill of viewing wild animals and aboriginal Africans in their native environment. From the windows of comfortably appointed Egyption railways and the decks of modern steamships, the traveler sees 3,000 miles of strange country, unusual birds and animals seen usually only in zoölogical gardens [unless one has been an explorer!], and stalwart natives living their primitive lives and wearing their native finery, passing in review as train and boat take their leisurely courses through the constantly varying geography of the Nile valley.

"I can conceive of no more varied journey within tropical limits than that up the Nile," Mr. Wright said. "The actual journey from Cairo to Nimule, as I made it, was 2,687 miles each way, a total of approximately 5,300, requiring one month and three days. I would not have made the trip shorter by a single day, although one can cover the journey downstream in eight or nine days."

The Egyptologist had a special purpose in making his latest trip. "I wished to see the upper reaches of the vast river upon which the very existence of Egypt depends. Without these waters verdant Egypt would shrivel speedily into the blistering desert which so hungrily surrounds it," he said.

• • •

"Every future development which the irrigation experts of Egypt now are studying, to increase the agricultural resources of the country and to extend its cultivable areas, must depend solely upon any additional supplies of water which Egypt can conserve from the head waters of the Nile and its giant tributaries."

Thousands of persons go to Europe yearly on their leave from British East Africa, Uganda, and the Congo.

To a great many of these, said Mr. Wright, the journey north from the great lakes of Central Africa and down the Nile through Egypt to Port Said or Alexandria will be a pleasing change from the monotony of a long sea voyage and the crossing of the hot equator. Rail and steamer connections with Nairobi and the Nile have been perfected, while the roads have been improved so that one may drive from Nairobi to Stanleyville, in the Belgian Congo, in two days.

Ozarks Grotto Built by Priest in Wheel Chair

ROCK CREEK, Mo.—[U. P.]—A grotto of honeycomb limestone, built by a priest confined to a wheel chair, stands today on a hilltop overlooking an Ozark countryside.

The priest, Father Joseph Wippermann, was forced to retire from his duties in Rock Creek seven years ago when he fell on an ice covered pavement.

Unable to walk at the time, he was taken to a hospital, where he remained for months. When he returned to his parish home in a wheel chair he was unable to serve his people.

"I was in the midst of a state of depression when I felt a sudden awakening," he recalled. "I decided to build a grotto in honor of the Holy Mother and to plead my cause and that of others."

He spoke of his restoration to health with gratitude, declaring with what appears to be a deep conviction that a spiritual power was instrumental in his recovery.

"From my wheel chair," said Father Wippermann, "I mixed the cement that was to be the foundation for the grotto. A stout Armenian helped me with the work I could not do at first. The stone was donated by a friend."

The grotto is at the top of a hill halfway between a small frame chapel and a white parish home. It is 26 feet wide, 14 feet deep, and about 15 feet high. Father Wippermann said it can accommodate about 18 persons.

The builder goes about hatless and in his shirtsleeves, donning the garb of priesthood only when he says mass or officiates in his religious duties. He is 56 years old.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE TRIBUNE TERRITORY.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—To the Travel Editor: You will remember the editorial mention made in your travel pages some months ago concerning our booklet, "Where to Dine, Drink, and Dance in the Capitals of Europe."

I am sure you will be interested in learning that several magazines saw fit to copy this notation in varying forms, to the end that we received a perfect deluge of requests for a sample copy. By far the greater number of inquirers mentioned having seen the notation in THE TRIBUNE, and, while some of those from distant points indicated the source was one of the magazines, I know whom we have to thank.

It all went to show how thoroughly and completely your travel section reaches travelers all over the country. Our experience is that the coverage is from Alaska to Mexico.

Such coöperation cannot be passed by without conveying our appreciation.

THE FUN OF TRAVEL.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—To the Travel Editor: For a while you ran a series of letters from travelers in which they told of places of outstanding beauty. It occurred to me that you now might be interested in starting another series. These letters would consist of amusing situations and people the traveler runs into. As representative of what I mean I am giving you in this letter some anecdotes from my own collection.

In Georgetown, British Guiana, I had occasion to be in a shoe store. While I was there a Hindu with very small feet came in to buy a pair of shoes. When the clerk brought him a pair that would fit him there was great howling and gesticulating. He wanted the largest shoes in the shop. You see, he was going to rent them when he wasn't wearing them himself, and he wanted a size that would go on large feet as well as small ones.

At Fort de France, French West Indies, I went into a shop and saw a large vase which I admired. It was on a very high shelf and almost beyond my reach. Not speaking a word of French I couldn't inquire what the vase cost. I figured that the price was probably marked on the bottom; so up I reached, intending to turn the vase over. Of course, I didn't suspect that it was filled with water, and as I endeavored to lift it it overturned. As a result I spilled water all over the place. With much embarrassment I stood by as the angry, muttering clerk dried her stock of curios and the floor. To this day she doesn't know why I had attempted to lift the vase, and I still can't figure out why it was filled with water.

While in London I wanted to see the Limehouse district, so one evening after the theater I decided to set out. From one of the ever obliging bobbies I learned the buses to take. I changed several times, and on the last bus told the driver my destination. Well, he forgot all about his Limehouse bound passenger and I ended up at the end of the run and it was well past midnight. Imagine my chagrin when I learned that there wasn't another bus back to London, nor were there any cabs to be had. I told a bobby of my plight and he graciously offered me the hospitality of the police station for the night. Finding it difficult to make up my mind to spend the night in jail, I stood there pondering, and wondering what my friends would think when they discovered I was missing from the hotel. It seemed as though I had stood there for hours when a vegetable truck came along and the bobby negotiated a ride for me back to town. The hotel at which I was stopping was a small one, and when I arrived there it had been locked for the night. I rang the doorbell at ten minute intervals and after an hour's effort finally got in. To add insult to injury, my friends hadn't even missed me.

It was in Amsterdam that I had a half hour until train time. I decided to do some last minute window shopping. Imagine how I felt on discovering that I had about ten minutes left, and I had no notion in which direction I would find my hotel. Giving the name of my hotel a very American pronunciation I could make no one understand me and I was desperate. Finally I found a cabby who seemed to know what I was talking about, so into his horse drawn cab I hopped. After riding a block I found my friends who had been in search of me. I dismissed the cab and meekly paid the equivalent of 75 cents in American money for the block's ride. At no time was I more than two or three blocks from my hotel.

I'll tell another one on myself. On this ocean trip I drew an upper berth in an inside cabin. That night I was dog tired and slept like a log. When a member of my family rapped on the door of my cabin in the morning I had completely forgotten that I was on board a boat. The cabin was pitch dark, and what did I do but step out of the upper berth. My berth mark was a gash on my forehead. To the amusement of my fellow passengers, and to my own shame, I had to tell the story of my accident a hundred times that day.

And one meets many amusing people while traveling. On one trip I shared a cabin with a Scotchman, a strapping fellow one would never associate with sentimentality. When he unpacked his bags the first thing he did was to take out a large picture of his wife. Later, on examining the picture, I found a very decided smudge at the lady's mouth. You see, he had been kissing her good night each night. I know because I caught him at it one evening.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20.—To the Travel Editor: I am a patient at St. John's sanitarium, and would appreciate hearing from travelers.

DOROTHY DURBIN.

Riverside, Mich., Nov. 9.—To the Travel Editor: Please put my name on your list to receive mail from travelers or from any one else who might care to write me. I have been a shut-in for six years. I would be truly thankful for cards, folders, travel booklets, or good reading of any kind. I will celebrate my 67th birthday Nov. 21.

JOHN F. HICKARD.

Maywood, Ill., Nov. 3.—To the Travel Editor: Will you kindly put the name of Mrs. Carrie Stumo, Northwood, Ia., on your list to receive mail from travelers? She is 64 years old, is more or less a shut-in during the winter months, and I know letters to her would be much appreciated.

A FRIEND.

Villa Park, Ill., Nov. 8.—To the Travel Editor: I should like to have you put the name of Miss Blanche Miner, Isolation hospital, 5600 Arsenal, St. Louis, Mo., on your list. She has a mild case of tuberculosis and she finds being a shut-in a bit hard, in that before she contracted the disease she was very active, vivacious, and happy, as most young girls are wont to be.

NORA VOLKMANN.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 8.—To the Travel Editor: Please put me on your list. I have been a shut-in for sixteen months and will deeply appreciate the courtesy. I have always wanted to travel, but somehow or other the opportunity has never come my way. I'm well on the road to recovery now, and hope that some day I'll be able to see the world. But right now I would like to hear from travelers everywhere. My address is St. John's sanitarium.

[MISS] MARY BASTIN.

La Grange, Ill., Nov. 6.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please put me on your list? I have been in a wheel chair for more than eight years with arthritis and have not been outside the house all this year. Any mail from your readers will be greatly appreciated, as the hours drag out awfully long while I am sitting here. My address: 207 North Stone avenue.

P. F. WENTZEL.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—To the Travel Editor: Please put the name of Frank Pezanovski Jr., 4161 Archer avenue, Chicago, on your list to receive mail from travelers. Infantile paralysis has caused this young man to be a shut-in all his life.

A FRIEND.

North America New Center of Winter Sports

NORTH AMERICA is threatening the supremacy of Switzerland as the center of the winter sports world. All the way from eastern Canada, New England, and New York state to the Pacific northwest scores of resorts are blossoming out with skiing, skating, and tobogganing programs.

Sun Valley in Idaho will open for the season Dec. 21, with Challenger inn, accommodating 400 persons, augmenting the service established a year ago.

Count Philippe de Pret of Belgium arrived in New York last Tuesday to teach Americans how to slide down Pike's peak. He will help Spencer Penrose transform the Broadmoor hotel at Colorado Springs from a summer playground to a year-round resort.

• • •

The Brewster people at Banff are putting the Canadian Rockies on the skiing and skating map with new slides and rinks. Canada's newest ski terrain at Lac Bauport, eight miles from Quebec, is awaiting heavy snows for the start of its program. The Canadian figure skating championships will be held at Ottawa, Jan. 28 to 30. Ski runs in Jasper National park are testing the skill of the experts. The Union of American and Canadian Snowshoers will hold its annual convention at Ottawa, Jan. 26 to 30.

This winter, for the first time, the Eastern Slope inn at North Conway, N. H., will be operated by the National Hotel Management company. Its Chicago representative is the Congress hotel.

• • •

In Chicago last week, Andrew Anderson, owner of the A-Bar-A ranch at Encampment, Wyo., announced that he had engaged Hans Teichner, European skiing instructor, to take charge of winter sports at his place. He predicted that other dude ranches would follow his example, and that soon the west would be dotted with sportsmen. He has appointed Carl J. Ross of the Drake Travel Service as his Chicago agent.

Throughout Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota the ice and snow places are looking forward to a record attendance from Chicago and vicinity.

Thermal Springs Draw Travelers

MANY health seekers who prefer to take their cures on this side of the Atlantic are turning to Chile's spas.

That republic has scores of resorts and thermal springs set among spectacular peaks. The mountains and volcanoes in the jagged chain which extends the length of the country are rich in salts and minerals. In these natural laboratories various chemicals and waters are combined and then used for their therapeutic properties.

The spas are approached from Santiago, Chile's capital, four hours' distant from Valparaiso.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

A TRIP around the world by way of the talkies will be made at the Fair store at 11 a.m. Friday. Movies of such a journey will be shown by the Dollar and American Mail lines. The travelogue is open to the public.

Amos Burg, sea rover and mountain climber, is to give an illustrated lecture on Cape Horn and the southern part of South America, Wednesday evening at the Town Hall of Albany Park, meeting at the Roosevelt high school.

"Strange Sights Around the World" is a title of a sound film to be shown at the Medinah club at 4 p.m. today. D. Vernon Evans will tell of his world cruise on the Franconia.

At the Old Heidelberg inn Thursday afternoon Dudley Crafts Watson will talk on "So This is Salzburg."

Cunard-White Star, Ltd., general agent for Imperial Airways [Bermuda], Ltd., last week announced that regular flying service had been opened between Bermuda and Baltimore. The schedule remains the same as when the planes used New York as their American base.

This season the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway is operating a series of weekly tours to Mexico in connection with the Simpson Travel Service. The agency has a similar series over the Illinois Central.

Effective next Saturday, the Grace Line will reduce the rates on its 31 day cruises to Peru and 38 day cruises to Chile. Weekly departures are made from New York.

R. M. Hartnett of Chicago is arranging a thirteen day railroad tour westward, with the Rose Bowl football game and the Tournament of Roses on New Year's day at Pasadena as the special objectives. The trip will be made by way of New Orleans, San Diego, Tia Juana, Agua Caliente, Hollywood, and Catalina, and on the way home the tourists will visit San Francisco and the Pacific northwest.

Ontario this year won the honor of producing Canada's most beautiful maple leaf. A committee of three Canadian artists has awarded the $100 prize to Mrs. A. Mitchinson of Toronto for the leaf she found at York Mills, Ont. In former years New Brunswick and Quebec each have scored twice. The contest is sponsored by the Canadian Travel bureau and the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways.

Early morning tea, without which no good Englishman can get out of bed, has come to America. At a cocktail party attended by 400 Chicagoans at the Palmer house Monday afternoon, P. G. B. Morriss, manager of the Hotel Clark in Los Angeles, let it be known that he had inaugurated the pre-breakfast service for Britishers and any others who might wish it. The tea is served in their rooms.

Sees British Decline.

LONDON.—[U. P.]—There will be 7,000,000 fewer people in Britain in 1971 than there are now, F. C. Honey, president of the National Confederation of Employers' organization, said in an address to the Institute of Actuaries.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

ONE of the great travel movements of history has been effectively placed on canvas by a Chicago artist. . . . Following a luncheon at the Electric club Wednesday, Lane Newberry gave a preview of his thirty paintings of the trek of the Mormons from Illinois to Utah. . . . The showing was attended by a group of newspaper men and a few others, including Charles G. and Rufus C. Dawes, Ralph Budd, and Albert Cotsworth Jr. . . . A public exhibition will open at the Drake early in December.

● Mr. Newberry, himself of Mormon extraction—his grandmother was a cousin of Joseph Smith—started out last summer to cover the ninety year old trail from Nauvoo to Salt Lake City. . . . Traveling by car and trailer, he spent six weeks in visiting all the historical spots, landmarks, and mileposts, and painting as he went. . . . His route led him across Iowa to Omaha, thence along the banks of the Platte through Nebraska, along the North Platte to Casper, Wyo., from there through South pass, and then over the mountains to Great Salt lake. . . . As far as Casper, this is the route now followed, in the main, by the Burlington railroad.

● "Without a doubt the Mormon exodus westward was one of the greatest mass movements ever conceived," the artist said at the preview. . . . "Traveling in 3,000 covered wagons, 20,000 persons set out to find a new promised land. . . . The first companies crossed the Mississippi on the ice in midwinter. . . . Eleven babies were born the first night, and all of them lived. . . . The earlier emigrants dragged their heavily loaded wagons across the snow covered and rain soaked plains, stopping on the way long enough to found temporary settlements and sow crops. . . . The crops were harvested by those who followed. . . . It took almost a year and a half to reach the Salt Lake valley, and when they got there all they found was a dreary desert.

"Out of that desert they built a vast garden, in the center of which now stands a splendid cultural center—Salt Lake City—with the best of the arts drawn from all over the world. . . . The tabernacle they erected still stands as a marvel in acoustics. . . . The pipe organ they installed is still the finest toned in the world. . . . The whole valley is a monument to the pioneers' initiative and enterprise."

● Mr. Newberry found that some of the original buildings at Nauvoo are still standing; others have been re-created along the original lines. . . . He encountered ruts made by the wagon wheels ninety years ago, and notches made in the mountains as the pathfinders passed through, and graves of those who failed to survive the hardships of the journey. . . . At Mount Pisgah, Ia., he visited the monument discovered a year or so ago by Ralph Budd and surrounded by buffalo grass that to this day has never been put to the plow.

In 1939, he said, some 50,000 Mormons will turn eastward. . . . They will come back to Nauvoo for the centennial of the town established by their forefathers. . . . Thus there will be another huge exodus over the Utah-Illinois trail.

● This department, knowing nothing about art, was unable to pronounce judgment on Mr. Newberry's paintings. . . . We shall leave that to Eleanor Jewett when the exhibit is thrown open to the public. . . . But one judgment already has been handed down. . . . At last Wednesday's showing Gen. Dawes remarked: "These are far superior to modern art; you can understand what they are all about."

The Personalized Christmas Gift

—it will say Merry Christmas for you for years to come—countless times a day every time it is used.

It's the cleverest and most thoughtful gift idea in years—for it says unmistakably—"This was selected especially for you! It has your own signature!"

A perfect lighter. Handy, compact, light, infallible, handsome. A wonderful value for $5.00.

*(Reprinted from New York Herald Tribune)

- LEKTROLITE is autographed with the friend's name in solid inlaid silver. It won't disappear into other pockets.
- It's windproof, flameless, odorless.
- LEKTROLITE carries an unconditional 3-year guarantee that it will live up to all its claims.

MANDEL'S introduces the "perfect" gift—
"Autograph" LEKTRoLITE

—the amazing new windproof flameless lighter, personalized with your friend's own signature in solid silver inlay

$5 With AUTOGRAPH ($3.50 Without Autograph)

NO CIGARETTE ever gets over the shock of having a flame sucked through it! No other lighter ever achieved the perfection of Lektrolite. Lights at a puff, goes months without refueling. It's flameless, toasting your cigarette alight over a platinum grill 1200° cooler than a flame. Thus, the insoluble tobacco tars that yellowed your teeth and fingers are not released.

PROVE IT with this "nose-bite" test, that cigarettes lit the Lektrolite way taste better. Light a cigarette with a match. Without inhaling, blow out the first puff through your nose. You'll "ouch" at its acrid bite. Now, light a cigarette with Lektrolite and repeat. You'll feel only the satisfying caress of natural tobacco smoke.

GET YOUR CHRISTMAS SIGNATURES EARLY . . .

Getting the signatures is half the fun. Make a mental canvas of your friends, then write notes, bring up arguments about handwriting, or plan your own campaign for their signature. Combine fun and pleasure in giving this gift!

27-In. Twisted Yarn Carpets

Originally $3.50 a Yard, Now $1.50 yard

Green, burgundy. Enough of a color to cover several rooms . . . but come early. Quantity is limited!

$4.50 Broadloom Carpets

9 and 12 ft., Now $2.99 sq. yd.

9 and 12 ft. Two most popular colors, burgundy and brown—in small two-toned effects. The small pattern gives a plain color effect—and does not show soil and footprints so easily.

$9–$15 Broadloom Carpets

Six Widths—9, 10.6, 12, 13.6 and 15 feet wide, $4.98 sq. yd.

Broken assortments and color ranges. Limited quantities. You'll find the values amazing! The saving outstanding. Have a new rug as your Christmas gift to your home!

The Bloody Business of Empire Building

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

● Timely, because of its bearing upon Japan's present program of expansion as seen in its undeclared war on China, is the whole subject of modern empires. How did these empires, the territories of which are shown in various colors on the accompanying map, come to be bitten by the bug of imperialism, and what methods did they employ to extend their powers over other lands and other peoples?

● History and governmental archives hold the answers to these questions. This review tells in a general way the story of the swallowing of weak nations, weak peoples, and unprotected lands by the dominant powers of the world.

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Million-Dollar Blunders of the Film Producers

(Photo by Frank Powolny.)
Loretta Young was turned loose by a producing company which did not see in her the qualities essential to a star. Today hers is one of the three top names among feminine performers of the screen.

Charles Boyer and Greta Garbo as Napoleon Bonaparte and Countess Marie Walewska in the picture play "Conquest." For this role Boyer got close to $300,000. Not many years ago he was released by the same company that now pays him a fortune for a single picture.

Clark Gable, number one in the matinee hero division. A producing company once failed to renew his option be cause it thought that he was not of the romantic typ preferred by feminine cinema fans.

Once misjudged as a sickeningly sweet ingenue with an air of too much meekness, Bette Davis has proved that her first producers, who turned her loose, were wrong.

Another of the top three of favorite film girls is Ginger Rogers, who once was released by a leading studio.

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

THE million-dollar blunders of Hollywood!!! Tyrone Power, in a recent interview with this reporter, suggested the story of the million-dollar boners, because he pointed out that he'd tried for three years to get a job out here and had been turned down by every studio. Edgar Bergen in his interview said that not only had he been rejected by every studio but that the Shuberts had fired him in New York.

Then I interviewed Deanna Durbin and learned that M-G-M not only had turned her loose but had failed even to use her in ONE feature picture. Sonja Henie pointed out that Paramount had screen-tested her exhaustively and that two other studios also had concluded she had no screen value.

Now, when you appraise performers like Tyrone Power, Edgar Bergen, Deanna Durbin, and Sonja Henie you are talking of folks who are worth at least $1,000,000 to any picture in which they appear. When studios either fail to recognize their possibilities or fail to capitalize on them they are tossing money right out the window.

• • •

Take, for example, the Warners. They turned loose at various times Myrna Loy, Loretta Young, Ginger Rogers, AND Clark Gable. These are the three top names of feminine performers on the screen today, and Clark Gable is No. 1 in the matinée hero division. Stockholders may well become fretful at such dissipation of assets, while admitting that to err is human.

Every studio here has committed these million-dollar blunders. Paramount turned down Fred Astaire's screen test, released Jeanette MacDonald, released Wally Beery, thumbed out Gladys George.

Universal rejected Norma Shearer, Janet Gaynor, and Bette Davis.

M-G-M released Grace Moore, Charles Boyer, and Joel McCrea, but atoned for those frightful lapses in judgment by signing Marie Dressler when no other studio would take the grand old veteran.

Sam Goldwyn canceled a personal contract with Bob Montgomery after the first day's rushes.

Columbia decided that Katharine Hepburn, Margaret Sullavan, and Aline MacMahon wouldn't screen well.

Let's examine the things that led up to the perpetration of these mistakes in judgment. Norma Shearer, then a professional model, was tested in New York by Universal for a leading rôle opposite Reginald Denny. They offered her $75 a week. Norma insisted on $100 a week and transportation for herself and mother to the coast. The Universal studio head on the coast was so irked by the nerve of the unknown girl that he instructed New York to cancel negotiations.

Ironically enough, the Universal studio head was the late Irving Thalberg. Years later, when he switched to M-G-M, Thalberg was to meet and marry Norma Shearer. He turned his million-dollar blunder into a wedding ring.

The case of Clark Gable was rather puzzling, because Warner talent scouts signed him after they'd seen him in "The Last Mile" on a Los Angeles stage. The screen at the moment, however, was offering romantic heroes of the type of Buddy Rogers, so when Gable's option came up the Warners didn't renew it. M-G-M thereupon grabbed him, and Gable might have passe out of the picture there had not been for astute Directo Clarence Brown. In "Fre Soul" it was Director Brow who suggested that Gable in on scene hit No ma Shearer o the chin. was that da ing scene tha made Gable f mous ove night and ush ered in a ne era in whic Cagneys an Robinsons kicked heroines c blinded them with grapefruit.

Janet Gaynor, who has been box office headliner for a goo many years, remembers whe she was an extra at Universa Came the big day, and she wa notified to report for a test f an important rôle. She wa so modestly situated financiall that she had to borrow makeu from Mary Philbin, then a sta The test was bad, and Janet Ga nor drifted out of employmen Not long after she was the se sation of the industry in "Se enth Heaven."

Universal released Bette Dav because she was nothing but sickeningly sweet ingénue, he air of meekness rivaling the h mility of Buster Keaton. Wa ners, who have committed the share of boners, get a credit ra ing because they analyzed Mi Davis correctly and turned he into a feminine menace in "C Human Bondage."

• • •

Paramount released Wallac Beery because the comedies h made with Raymond Hatton ha lost their box office power. M-G M promptly signed him an made a great star out of him "Min and Bill," "The Champ, and pictures such as those.

Myrna Loy was considered a washed up when silent picture gave way to the talkies. Sh had been playing exotic hal caste rôles. Warners release her, M-G-M signed her, and no she tops all of the money-maker in the films, with the possible e ception of Shirley Templ M-G-M recently paid Charle Boyer close to $300,000 for h appearance as Napoleon in th Greta Garbo picture. Not s many years back Boyer wa turned loose by the same studi that later was to pay him suc an extravagant salary. At th time he was appearing in Frenc versions of American picture but failed to impress M-G-M officials.

Just how many scars hav been burned into the hearts o sensitive performers by thes million-dollar blunders canno be estimated. The case histor of each victim must have bee identical — the same feeling o terror, the same impulse t tears, the same agony of despe ation at failure. But the fines steel is tempered in the hotte flame, and the stars are thos who have had the courage t carry on despite these initial di couragements and turn th shambles of defeat into persona triumphs.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I enjoy your column very much and would appreciate it if you would print a picture and tell me something about Cesar Romero. I think his performance in "Wee Willie Winkie" was wonderful. I want to see him in many pictures. I hardly ever see anything about him or see any of his pictures. I want him to succeed, and I think he deserves to. Don't you?

CESAR ROMERO
Writer wants to see him in more pictures.

Sincerely,
JOAN WILSON.

Editor's note: Cesar Romero was born in New York City, Feb. 15, 1907. He's 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, and has black hair and brown eyes. Educated Collegiate school, New York City, and Rosedale Country school, Rosedale-on-Hudson. Hobbies are sports and music. Appeared on the legitimate stage and in night clubs before going into pictures.

Dear Miss Tinée: Ever since I saw "The Go-Getter" I've felt such an urge to tell you, the most human of critics, how thoroughly I enjoyed it. Did you ever see a fellow winninger than Charles Winninger? (Pardon the pun.) He and his exuberant chuckle can sustain a picture with more genuine mirth than any other comedian. I do not know what your opinion of that picture was in your review, but I somehow feel that you enjoyed it, too.

It is an age since I witnessed such a completely captivating picture. It had nary a dull moment. George Brent had a rôle worthy of his ability, and he made the most of it. How delightful it was to get away from the usual overdose of musical, gangster, and newspaper yarns! I hope the powers that be in Hollywood will give us more human interest stories. "Make Way for Tomorrow" was another one that appealed to me. I trust I have not bored you, but my feelings as a "reel" movie fan must have a vent sometimes.

In conclusion, I would be indebted to you if you could tell me to which studio Louise Campbell, who appeared in "Wild Money," is under contract. I thank you.

DOROTHY BRUMM.

Editor's note: How could such a nice, enthusiastic letter bore any one? I'm glad you wrote and glad that you get so much enjoyment out of the movies. Louise Campbell is under contract to Paramount.

Dear Miss Tinée: I read your Sunday and daily columns and enjoy them very much. Recently I saw "Love Under Fire" and have noticed with repeated succession the very remarkable performances of Loretta Young, and I also believe that Twentieth Century-Fox has given Miss Young some very nice stories.

Hoping for many, many more film productions starring Loretta Young I am

Sincerely yours,

BERNARD SWEITZER.

Editor's note: Your hope will probably be fulfilled. Glad you like our movie column.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please tell me something about Bing Crosby and kindly print a small picture of his lovely wife, Mrs. (Dixie Lee) Crosby? This is the second letter I've sent you, and I do hope there will be lots more. Thanking you.

DIXIE LEE
In private life she's Mrs. Bing Crosby.

COLLEEN YOUNG.

P. S.—How old is Richard Arlen?

Editor's note: Indeed yes, to both requests! Re your second sentence, I hope so, too. Bing Crosby's real name is Harry L. Crosby, and he was born in Tacoma, Wash., May 2, 1904. He's 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, and has blue eyes and light brown hair. His hobbies are concert music, football, and short story writing. He sang with Paul Whiteman's orchestra for three years before going into movies.

Richard Arlen was born Sept. 1, 1900.

Dear Mae Tinee: You have failed me at last!

I read your column faithfully and find it both entertaining and reliable. Quite often we see pictures here before they are shown in Chicago, and I watch eagerly for your opinion, which 99 per cent of the time agrees with my own. Gosh, I have even passed up pictures I craved just on your say-so. And now you come along and disagree with me on Joan Davis.

Maybe it is my plebeian taste, but I think Joan Davis is new and different. I have always laughed at any one who starts to fall and goes from bad to worse, ending at last in a heap. For the same reason Leon Errol has entertained me on both the stage and screen.

Further indication of my plebeian taste is the fact that I cannot go into ecstasies over a Crawford or a Garbo. But a picture like "Captains Courageous" can make my makeup drip right off on my chest.

"Thanks for listenin'."

Truly yours. A J. D. FAN.

Editor's note: Thanks for writin'! I can be wrong, you know.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have never had a word in your column before, but I simply couldn't keep my silence this time.

I have recently viewed the picture "Wild Money," starring Edward Everett Horton, and as a supporting character Miss Louise Campbell, A CHICAGO GIRL. She was born and educated here, and the critics did not have one word of praise or whatsoever, but take some newcomer from some foreign country—critics pad the ladder of success with velvet so they don't slip; even though some of them are naturally flops, box-officially they are still made the best of.

Hurrah for Lawrence Tibbett and his colleagues for the idea of looking for more American talent. With such help as the Chicago critics give to their own it sure looks bad.

Be American and boost our American stars. Yours truly,

MRS. GEORGE MESCH.

Editor's note: Welcome to the column.

The Shooting of Jake Hamon

Clara's Trial Sensation of 1921

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

SEVENTEEN years ago last Wednesday Jake L. Hamon lay dying of a bullet wound in a hospital at Ardmore, Okla.

He was a man of note, this Hamon, and a man of power in widely diverse fields. He was a millionaire who owned oil wells, gas wells, railroads; he controled properties worth millions of dollars. Moreover, he was a politician whose influence reached into high places in the national capital.

Bulletins on the condition of Hamon, issued from the time he reached the hospital, were studied avidly by the thousands who knew him and the tens of thousands who had heard of him. There were strange rumors about how he had come to suffer the wound.

It was being whispered about even then that a woman had sped the bullet that laid him low. The official story that Hamon had shot himself accidentally was taken with many grains of salt. The gossips declared that Clara Barton Smith Hamon had shot him—Clara, who had been Hamon's mistress for nigh onto a decade. Why? The gossips shrugged. Why did a woman ever shoot a man?

• • •

At the bedside of the wounded millionaire that November day sat lean, bald, taciturn Bill Nichols, a former chief of police of Oklahoma City. He and Hamon had been friends for years.

Hamon stirred uneasily on his cot. "Bill," he muttered, "I ain't going to get well."

The ex-chief tried to comfort him. "Aw, Jake, we'll go to Palm Beach pretty soon."

"Where I'm going there'll be palms but no beaches," replied Hamon solemnly. "Bill, this is the end of the old man."

There was silence for a little while. Then Jake Hamon remarked that there were affairs to be attended to. He called for his pocketbook and took from it a check. The nurses who had been nice to him were to be tipped liberally. A political enemy was to be informed that in Hamon's opinion he had redeemed himself in every way.

"And now," the dying man commanded, "get me a piece of paper. I want to write to Warren Harding."

The note was written, sealed, and passed over to Bill Nichols.

"You're a real friend, Bill," said Hamon. "You never cost me a cent. When that letter's read I want it torn up."

Two days later this crude oil man who had become a maker of presidents was dead.

Ex-Chief Nichols was faithful to his trust. He journeyed to see President Elect Harding, and the magic of Hamon's name won entrance. Mr. Harding read the note, and tears ran down his cheeks. He returned the missive to the messenger, who tore it to bits.

"What a wonderful fellow he was!" said Mr. Harding. "Too bad he had to be taken out. Too bad he had the one fault—that admiration for women!"

• • •

Even in the oil fields that thrived under the iron hands of tough and predatory men, Jake Hamon was almost legendary in his lifetime.

In the beginning he was just a country boy, born on the southern boundary of Kansas. He was graduated from the law school of the University of Kansas and set up in practice first in the old Indian town of Lawton.

He married. A son, Jake L. Jr., and a daughter, Olive Bell, were born. The ties of domesticity held the lawyer, who was now approaching 40 years of age. He appeared to be headed for a comfortable, uneventful middle age. But about 1911 oil was discovered in southern Oklahoma. The finest producing wells were in the Healdton field, near Ardmore. Into that town floated the strong men of the oil business. And there also floated Hamon.

He took leases, and, miraculously, paying wells came in. He took more leases. The mantle of incredible success wrapped itself about him. He planned and put through railroads to tap the rich black floods of liquid gold and transport them to the east. His properties extended over Texas as well as Oklahoma.

Men began to magnify his achievements and his wealth. He never had the twelve million he was reputed to be worth—he did have three or four million.

Hamon was a bold man, a hard drinker, and unconventional in his morals. When he went to Ardmore he left his wife and children in Lawton—they later moved to Chicago. With him he took Clara Barton Smith, who was then 20 years old and a clerk in a store. She became Hamon's stenographer.

It was not long until her status changed. A marriage in name only to Frank L. Hamon, a nephew of Jake, was arranged. Later there was a divorce, but Clara was officially Mrs. Hamon. She ceased to be a stenographer. She wore beautiful clothing; she had her own automobile. Jake Hamon gave her shares in oil and gas leases and stock in established oil companies. The wages of her unconventionality were not meager.

Jake Hamon never established a home in Ardmore. For eight years he occupied room No. 28 in the Randol hotel. Clara occupied room No. 29. It was a convenient location; the Hamon office, in which millions were bandied about, was just across the street.

Indubitably Clara Smith Hamon carried an air of refinement. She did not intrude in his business affairs. If Hamon, the heavy drinker, invited her to have a highball, she took it. At his command she exerted her social charm on his guests, but always with a modest manner. Her destiny seemed to be wrapped up in his. There must have been a deep and true affection on the part of each partner in this strange combination—they lived together for nine years.

• • •

The evening of Nov. 21, 1920 (it was Sunday), there was one pistol shot in the hotel room of Jake Hamon. In that room were only Hamon and Clara Smith Hamon.

In a few minutes Hamon, alone, tottered downstairs and out of the Randol hotel. Unaided, concealing the fact that he was wounded in the right side, he walked to the sanitarium of his friend, Dr. Walter Hardy. Just as he was about to collapse the physician met him in an anteroom. The stricken millionaire kissed the doctor on the forehead.

"I'm shot," he said. "Clara Smith shot me. I told you she would do it. I'm going to die; I'm weak, and I want to go to bed."

When he had been made comfortable he spoke again.

"Doctor, take my right hand. Promise you will never reveal how I was shot except in open court. For God's sake don't tell anybody about this. I want it kept a secret for the sake of my family."

There was an operation, and Hamon rallied, but Dr. Hardy was not hopeful. Later he disclosed that his patient was suffering from a liver ailment and probably would have died a natural death in two years. Still the oil man temporarily became more cheerful. Clara Smith Hamon remarked this when she came to see him. Before she left she bent over and kissed him.

"That's the woman who did it," murmured Hamon as she left, and Dr. Hardy heard him. "I was lying down, in the position I am now."

Friends called. Among them was the Rev. T. E. Irwin, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Lawton. To him the dying man made a confession.

"I have been living in adultery with Clara Smith," he said. "We were equally guilty." Perhaps his mind wandered a little and he forgot that the shooting was officially an accident. "Clara said the shooting was a frame-up, for which she was sorry." Hamon sighed. "Three times I paid her off . . . this is the last time."

Regardless of what he said to his intimates, Hamon was firm in his orders that the public should hear of his shooting only as an accident. He called in his business manager, Frank Ketch, and ordered that he pay Clara $5,000 and get her away from Ardmore at once.

Hamon's word was law, and when the money was passed over Bill Nichols was Ketch's witness. Clara accepted the sum, but as she agreed to go she asserted her innocence.

She went away the next morning, the 25th. Hamon was still alive. After that he grew weaker and on Friday, the 26th, he died. The funeral, which was held just seventeen years ago tomorrow, attracted a crowd of 2,000 mourners.

• • •

Shortly after the funeral was over a public demand developed for the prosecution of Clara Smith Hamon. Within a few days there was a well organized search for her.

Detectives and newspaper reporters took up her trail. They found that she had ridden in her car into Texas. She was traced to Fort Worth. She had changed to a train at Cisco, Tex., and had been transported to El Paso. There she crossed into Mexico and disappeared.

On Dec. 24 it was announced that she was in Fort Worth, where she wished to spend Christmas with her parents. She would return on the 26th to Ardmore and surrender. She was as good as her word. Given her examining trial on the day after Christmas, she was held on the murder charge but was permitted her liberty in bonds of $12,000. The amount was at once guaranteed by wealthy oil men.

From that time on it was apparent that there was in Ardmore a deep sympathy for this handsome young woman. There was also a tremendous curiosity about her.

When the trial began on March 10, 1921, dozens of extra deputies were put on duty to handle the courtroom crowd and to keep orderly the overflow of hundreds who congregated outside the courthouse. They succeeded only in a measure; the prosecuting forces claimed afterward that the crowd was "all for Clara" and that the jurors were influenced by this sympathy and its loud expression.

Pale and calm, the defendant took notes and was apparently absorbed in that task as the jury was speedily selected. Not far from her in the courtroom sat Mrs. Georgia Hamon, widow of the slain man, with her son, Jake L. Jr., and her daughter, Olive Bell.

In the opening statements to the jury it was made plain that the state, whose forces were led by Attorney General S. P. Freeling of Oklahoma, would attempt to prove that the killing of Hamon was deliberate and that he was lying on a bed when his sweetheart shot him.

The presentation of evidence began with a display of the garments that Jake Hamon wore when he was wounded. Then came a procession of state witnesses.

On the fourth day of the trial Mrs. Georgia Hamon was called to the stand. A wife in name only, she had been in Chicago, in the church at Wilson avenue and Sheridan road, when the fatal wound was inflicted on her husband. But she had visited her husband and his paramour in the Randol hotel once at least.

"Clara came in while I was there," she testified, "threw her hat and gloves on the bed, and ran out. I took a pistol from her room that day."

The voice of the widow broke as she told of the rich lingerie that she beheld in the room, the beautiful finery of Jake Hamon's mistress.

Slowly the trial moved to its climax, which came when the slim, dignified defendant took the stand to tell her own story.

With the audience tense and silent, she said that she was 29 years old and had been educated at Hamon's expense so that she could "work for him." Asked about her marriage to Frank Hamon, the complaisant nephew of the oil millionaire, she replied:

"That was for the convenience of Mr. Hamon. I never lived with Frank for a minute."

Then without preliminary she swept into her version of what had happened to her lover on Nov. 21. They had breakfast together, she said, late in the morning. Hamon had then gone to his office, and, returning at 2 p. m. or thereabouts, had conversed pleasantly with her. He then went out again, and she, to pass the time, took a drive in her car.

"It was about 7 o'clock, dark enough for the street lights to be on, when I returned," Clara continued. "When I drove up to the hotel Mr. Hamon was on the porch. As I left the car and started into the hotel he grabbed me and shoved me into a chair. He said he wanted to talk to me. His language was profane, and I said to him: 'Don't curse here; don't make a scene. If you want to be mean let's go to the room.'"

"So he got up," she said, "and I went up to the room. I was afraid of Mr. Hamon, very much afraid. I saw a look on his face that I had never seen before. He was both drunk and crazy.

"When I got up to my room the door between our rooms—the bathroom door, I mean—was locked. I rang for the porter. He came, bringing ice water, and when I let him in Mr. Hamon slipped in with him.

"As Bill, the porter, poured the ice water in the pitcher, Mr. Hamon paced up and down, running his hand through his hair. And when Bill went out he said with a curse, 'Where have you been?'

"He grabbed me at the same time and choked me until I was blind and could not seem to think. He hit me and threw me on the bed, and slapped me some more, and took me by one foot and jerked me off the bed on my back. I have been operated on in the back and it still hurts me a lot.

"He kicked me in the back, and when I struggled up he choked me again and backed me to the window and slapped and hit me. Even then he wasn't satisfied. He twisted the skin on my hand. He bent my fingers back and tried to break them. He said, 'I'll cut your throat,' and reached for his knife.

"The knife had fallen out of his pocket in the afternoon, and I had put it on the table when he walked out. So he didn't have the knife in his pocket, and he reached for another one, one on a little gold chain, that I had given him. And it wasn't there with him, either. So he just kept beating and choking me.

"He said, 'You've been riding with somebody.' I said, 'No, you know I haven't.' Just about then he saw a knife over on the dresser, an old one that I used to sharpen pencils. It was very sharp. He reached for it.

"I knew the time had come for me to act. Somehow, consciously or unconsciously, I reached to my purse, that was on the window sill, and got my little gun. I asked him to stand back and let me pass."

"What did you do with the gun?" was the question.

"What would anybody do with it if they thought their life was in danger?" snapped Clara. "I held it on him. He backed away and put his hands on a chair. He didn't raise them; I didn't ask him to.

"I passed him. I was close to him when I went between the bed and Mr. Hamon to get to the door. He backed 'round to the door between our rooms. I was holding my hand like this [indicating] to back up to the hall door and unlock it. I could not see him while I was doing that.

"Understand, when I unlocked the door, in that very instant, he turned off the light and raised the chair to strike me—and did strike me. I could see by the light from the hall, coming through the transom. The light in my room was not lit. He had turned it out."

• • •

Slowly Clara came to the most dramatic point of her story.

"He hit me with the chair—and—the gun—went off," she said.

Then she rose from the witness chair and walked over close to the jury box, illustrating with gestures as she repeated her refrain:

"I was unlocking the door like this and holding the gun on Mr. Hamon, but he was out of my sight just an instant. The chair came down on me, and it knocked the gun on the floor—like that—and it went off as it fell—or I pulled the trigger, or something, as he hit me. I don't know. But the gun went off. It was in my hand when the chair hit me, and it went off."

Dramatically Clara dropped the weapon to the courtroom floor. It clattered loudly.

Q.—Did you have any reason to kill Hamon? A.—None.

Q.—Did you love him? A.—A great deal. When he told me I had shot him I wanted to kill myself.

Unquestionably Clara Smith was an effective witness in her own behalf.

The next day the jury of twelve good Oklahomans retired. It required only one ballot for them to reach a verdict.

That verdict was not guilty.

The Mandarin May Have a Hundred Wives

Indo-China Marriage Customs

● Of recent date there appeared in the Graphic Section of The Chicago Sunday Tribune an article by Alex Small describing the curious marriage rites and customs of the natives of certain sections of French Indo-China. The accompanying article is a sequel to the original and tells the story of marriage practices in those parts of Indo-China known as Cochin China, Cambodia, and Laos.

By ALEX SMALL

Paris, France.

IN COCHIN CHINA marriage rites are comparatively simple, except in the case of the Catholic Annamites, who have abandoned the old rituals for the marriage performed by Catholic priests.

Cochin China has first and second degree marriages, and mandarins may have up to 100 wives if they are rich enough. In fact polygamy is honored and unless he has many wives a mandarin may be considered to lack prestige—or money.

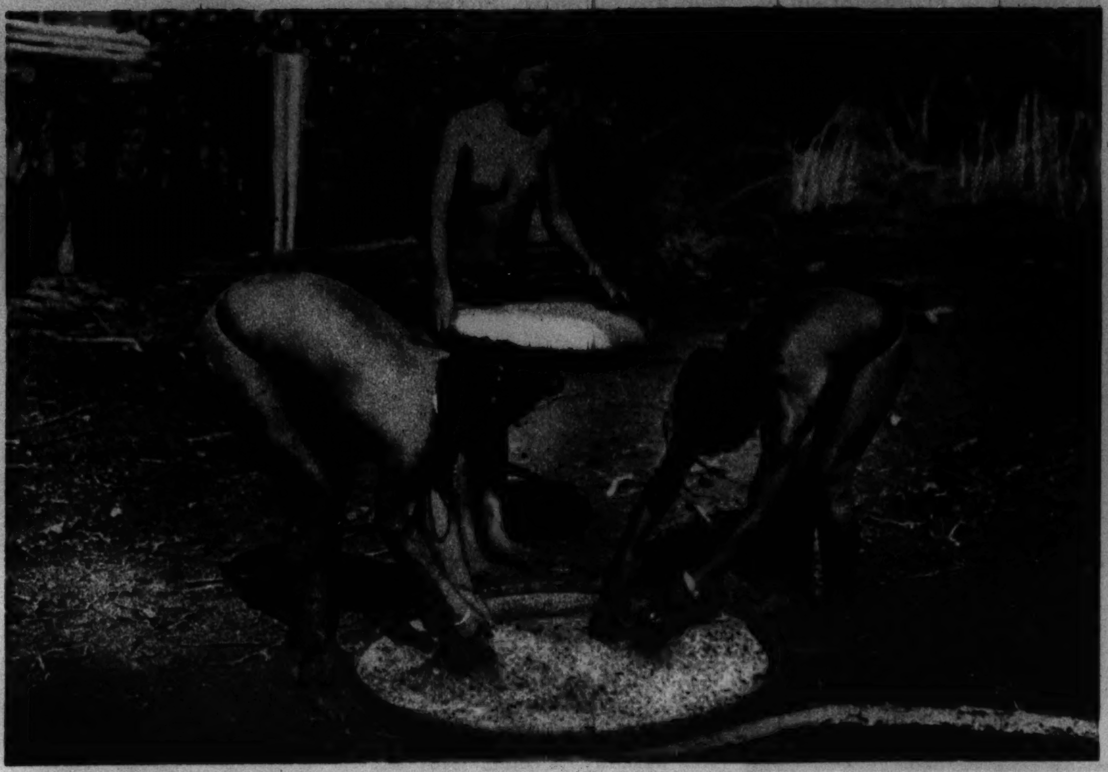
There can be only one first-rank wife at a time, but second rankers may take first rank if the first wife dies or is divorced, and each moves up one rank to the top places.

In some quarters of Cochin China under judiciary régime, marriage must be performed by officers of the civil state; and of course Christians there have only one wife.

Among wealthy mandarins, only first-rank wives live with their husbands, the second rankers being housed separately and can be visited by such husbands only during the daytime.

Divorce is recognized among the Cochin Chinese, and a man can divorce his wife for sterility, considered greatest unhappiness; for misconduct, disrespect to her in-laws (no mother-in-law troubles are thus taken lightly), for gossip, theft, jealousy, or other infirmities.

A man is rather obliged, however, not to divorce his wife if she has mourned for three years for any of her in-laws; if through the couple's combined labors they have become richer; or if the wife has no family to return to.



In remote regions of Indo-China, including Cochin China, Laos, and Cambodia, women often go about their daily tasks wearing a minimum of clothing. The trio here are winnowing rice. (Paul's photo.)

Divorce notices are addressed in Chinese characters to the wife along with half of the family goods. The law has been legally regulated since October, 1883, permitting either divorce or separation for adultery, desertion, disrespect either to in-laws or ancestors, and by mutual consent. Women guilty of adultery are barred by law from marrying those with whom they have violated the law.

The Cambodian populace, whose territory lies between Annam and Siam, follow much the same marriage rites. In preparation for marriage the girl usually has her hair cut and is perfumed, thus considered marriageable.

• • •

Here frequently the future bridegroom goes into the service of his fiancée's family in lieu of dot, is liable to "improvement" by his future in-laws, and should his faults be found fewer than his good qualities, the wedding is held.

An achar or master of ceremonies presides at the pagoda service, and the bride is bedecked with artificial flowers and a silk scarf, and the achar gives the signal of Krong Baley, invocation of ancestors and good spirits.

Certain mandarins even prostrate themselves before the urns containing the ashes of their ancestors, though there are few other rights, no discussions nor gaiety, other than three day feasting. There is a provision-carrying ceremony, Boncho Sema, when a shadowy place is chosen in the pagoda court where for 72 hours the feasters are domiciled, and the usual betel-pepper, cakes, and other traditionally festive provisions are passed around.

Cambodians usually marry young, are generally monogamists, but rare cases of polygamy are looked upon as affairs of sentiment by the natives.

The rites are numerous and traditions differ in certain details, though the betel-pepper and gift carrying is much the same. Among these people the men more frequently serve their future bride's parents to earn the right to the wife, and often they live with their brides, beget children, and yet are not considered married until the day fixed by the achar or master of ceremonies. Often thus several children are present at their parents' wedding ceremony.

• • •

The rite frequently includes the binding of the couple's wrists with cotton thread, and the guests sit in a circle as there are passed around from hand to hand seven times metal discs called babel.

This nuptial rite ends differently from that of the man who enters the nuptial chamber first to avoid his wife's "wearing the trousers" in the family. The Cambodian woman leads her husband into the bridal suite, he holding the end of her shoulder scarf. Then he removes his gala coat, throws it at his wife and rejoins the festivities outside as she waits for him to return.

• • •

Divorce among these people is also permissible, depending upon the indiscretions, usually of the wife, since the husband is more frequently, among the Asiatics, lord and master of his house.

There are heavy legal penalties for adultery and incest, and law condones even murder in such cases, providing, however, the husband makes sure that he murders not only his faithless wife, but the guilty object of her extramarital affections.

The people of Laos live in the main under the Buddhist faith, there is more freedom among the sexes and the young people even decide upon their own marriages, choose their own wives and husbands.

In courtship, however, the manner of demanding a girl's hand in marriage is much the same as with the other natives of distant Indo-Chinese sections. The prospective bridegroom usually has an older man friend go to the parents of the girl to ask her hand. A dot is established, the figure running anywhere from 10 francs to 1,500 francs (50 cents to $75), depending upon the financial status of the pair.

Having favored their daughter's matrimonial choice, the parents invite the boy, his family, and friends, neighbors, and some official to great feasts. The date and hour of marriage is fixed and the boy, accompanied by his friends and musicians, calls upon his future parents-in-law, bearing the dot and numerous gifts as well as candles, flowers, various foodstuffs, liquor, and tobacco.

The marriage contract is drawn in the presence of a mandarin and notables of the local society, and is inscribed much as our wedding licenses, with the names of the boy and girl, their parents, the witnesses, and the sum of the dot.

Should either of the pair be unable to write, the signature consists of a thumbprint in black or red, and sometimes a print of the index finger, usually of the left hand. The altar ceremony also is followed here. Set before the altar are a copper tray, a milkfed pig, a chicken and a rooster, two bowls of rice, two hard-boiled eggs, two jars of alcohol, and cotton thread.

As the couple kneel before the altar, the solemn ceremony begins. An older man, soothsayer or intermediary, recites prayers and attaches the cotton thread like bracelets to the wrists of the bridal pair.

• • •

Polygamy is unusual among the Laosians, except among the rich, who feel it is necessary to their position to have many concubines, and even in some cases even two first-rank wives.

Divorce among them may be obtained by the husband if there are no children, but he must give his wife half of their mutual property upon divorcing her. Nomads from among these people may be polygamous, but they have a method in their madness, and marry not more than one wife in a section of the country. But like the proverbial sailor who has a girl in every port, the nomad marries a wife in each different part of the country he roams, and thus when he leaves for other parts, he has a wife in each spot to act as his agent in his interests, to say nothing of insuring him a harthstone no matter where he hangs his turban.

Where there are rivers in Indo-China there are houseboats. The bride who is brought home to a floating house such as these is considered fortunate indeed. (Paul's photo.)

(Paul's photo.)

Buddhism has a firm hold in various parts of Cochin China. These priests of the faith are called upon for divers ceremonies, including that of marriage.

Beauty Treatment Chases That Tired Feeling

Head-to-Toe Service Is Suggested

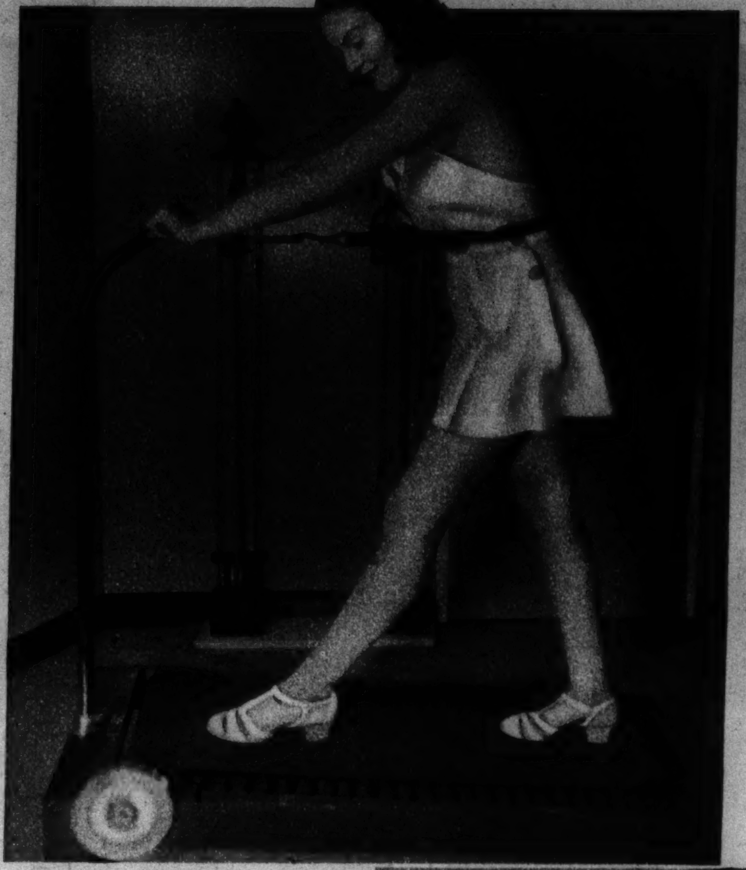
By ELEANOR NANGLE

WHAT TO DO when the day is bleak and your spirits are ditto?

If you take our advice you'll drop every dull, disturbing duty and hie yourself to the beauty shop which gives the "head-to-toe" beauty treatment! We don't know of a better way to spend at least half of a day than being ministered to by beautifying angels. They're mortal angels, to be sure, skilled in the arts of the pedicure, the manicure, the face massage, the body massage, and the hairdress and makeup, but they restore to the most bedraggled, world-weary woman the divine gifts of courage, confidence, and the sense of well-being.

The head-to-toe beautification is exactly that. It's luxurious and lengthy but doesn't cost as much as you might think, because its so well organized. It can begin with an exercise session, well supervised. Swathed in a sheet, you progress from that to a body treatment, which begins with a hot citrus cocktail, continues with a relaxing heat treatment, and is climaxed by a luxurious massage. After this, a soothing bath or a bracing Scotch spray.

Your next stop is a shadowy room where you lie down for a face treatment, a skilful massage that lasts about an hour. You may have your pedicure during this, or, if you prefer, go later to the special chair where both hands and feet are manicured and massaged to perfection.



1 First stop on the "head-to-toe" beauty treatment route is the exercise room. This damsel, on reduction bent, is taking a long walk on a treadmill.

2 Next comes a luxurious body treatment which begins with a hot citrus cocktail, continues with a heat treatment, and is climaxed with a body massage.

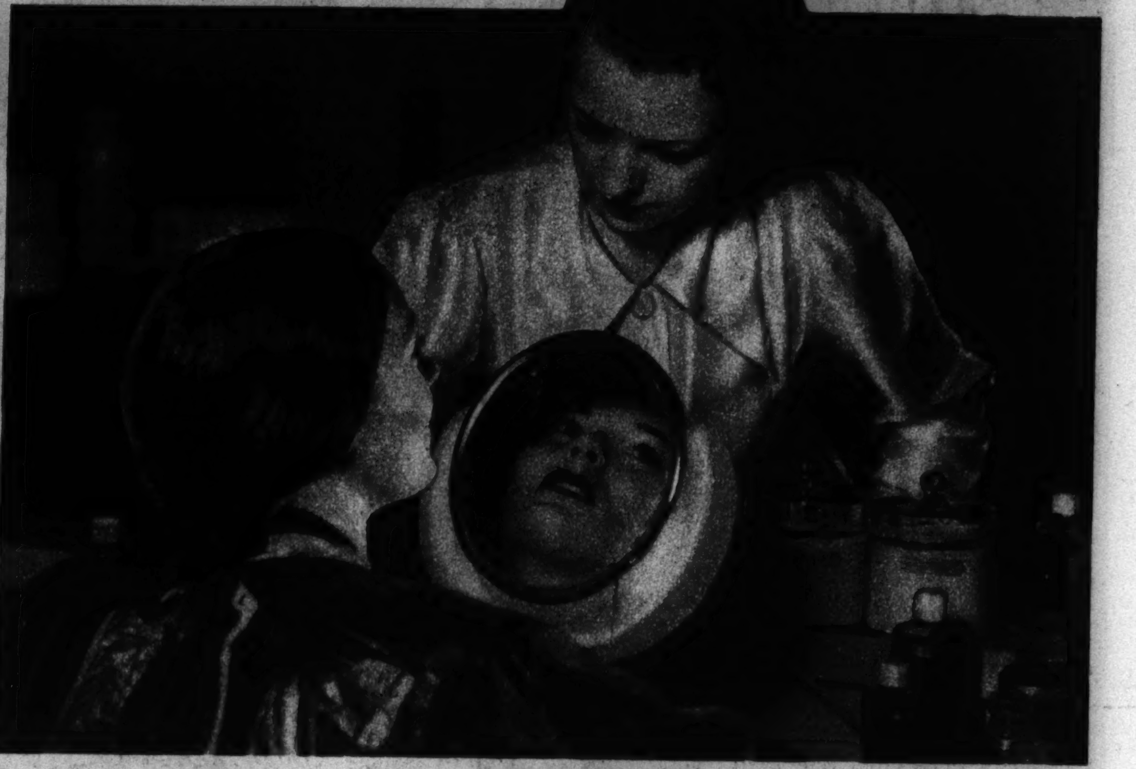
3 After the body treatment you may choose to have a soothing, beautifying bubble bath like this. The sturdier souls choose a salt rubdown, followed by an invigorating Scotch spray.

4 Your face treatment follows—a lengthy, expert massage that stays the hand of time and leaves the skin radiant. After this come both pedicure and manicure to groom and glorify your hands and feet.

5 Next stop is at the shampoo bowl, after which an expert hair stylist creates the coiffure that is perfect for your individual contour, your tastes, and your years. (Tribune Studio photos.)

Then comes your shampoo, a ~~good one with oil to bring out~~ the glory in your hair. Next a hair style, an individual and expert one that gives you chic. Under the dryer for you then, and when your tresses are dry you dress, still carefully netted so your hair won't muss. Your next-to-last stop is the makeup bar, where a white-clad expert blends a powder for you, chooses your rouge and lipstick, and adds a final touch of deft and flattering eye dramatization. After this the man who did your hair gives it a last-minute inspection.

All this, of course, is much more quickly described than done. You'll spend something like four hours being beautified, but at the end you'll be a new woman, better looking and infinitely better spirited! Your own private world, you'll realize, is no longer bleak.



6 Last comes a makeup, with powder, rouge, and lipstick chosen by the expert behind the bar. You have been quite literally beautified from head to toe. You've spent four hours and surprisingly little money—and you're a happier and handsomer woman!

Three Kinds of Cookies from Same Dough

By MARY MEADE

THREE KINDS of good cookies may be made from one basic dough for afternoon tea, after-school snacks, or for packing into holiday gift boxes. Goodies made from one original mixture for the picture at right were varied with chocolate, spices, and coconut.

THREE-IN-ONE COOKIES

¾ cup butter.
2 cups light brown sugar.
3 eggs.
3½ cups flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
¾ cup milk.
2 teaspoons vanilla.

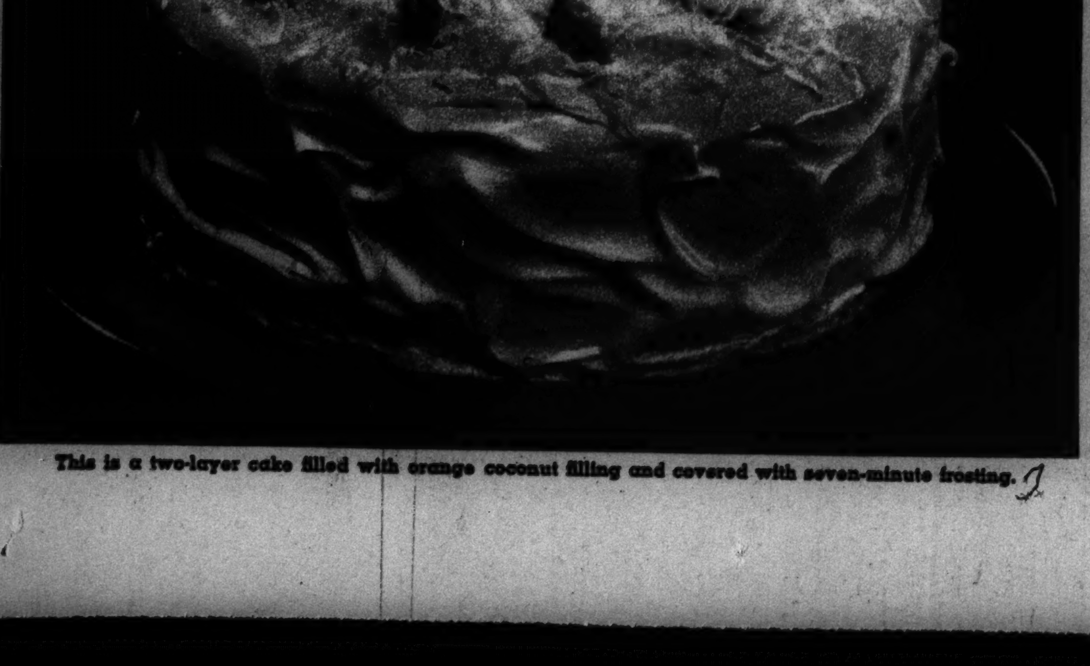
Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift flour, measure and sift with baking powder and salt. Add flour to first mixture alternately with milk. Add vanilla and mix to a smooth, stiff batter. Divide in thirds. To the first third add 1 teaspoon mixed spices and ½ cup raisins. Blend well. To the second third add 2 squares melted chocolate and mix well. To the third portion add ½ cup coconut and mix well. Drop the cookies from a spoon onto a greased baking sheet and bake at 400 degrees for from 12 to 15 minutes.

Cake, like cookies, may start out in one form and turn into another. Cakes are most often varied by the kinds of fillings, frostings, and decorations used upon them. The one pictured here is a two-layer white cake flavored with orange and lemon rind, filled with orange coconut filling, and frosted with seven-minute frosting decorated with coconut and orange sections.

To make the filling for your favorite layer cake, combine 1 cup sugar, 5 tablespoons flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅛ cup orange juice, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, and 4 tablespoons water in the top of a double boiler. Add 1 slightly beaten egg or 2 egg yolks, mix thoroughly, and cook over hot water for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add 2 teaspoons butter, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, and ⅔ cup coconut.

NEXT WEEK:
Special Dishes for Holidays.

All of these cookies were made from one basic cookie dough recipe and baked in the same manner.



This is a two-layer cake filled with orange coconut filling and covered with seven-minute frosting.

You put less work in Crisco cakes—but you get fluffier cakes!

Don't deny the family their favorite cakes, now that food prices are going up. You can actually bake finer, fluffier cakes without using expensive shortening. Use new Crisco—the shortening that's creamier than you've dreamed a shortening can be! This super-creamed Crisco adds lightness—makes cakes even fluffier.

Easier cakes! Crisco is the one shortening all ready for the sugar and eggs. You just mix all three together to get your cake started. Three to five minutes of work is cut out—isn't that grand?

All-purpose shortening! Use Crisco and get pies so tender and flaky that men will rave about them! Save delicate digestions by frying with Crisco, the health shortening that's all vegetable. You'll marvel at the new crispness of foods fried with Crisco—at the lightness of foods that are not grease-soaked.

Buy thrifty 3-lb. Crisco. Save money. Save digestions by cooking everything with digestible Crisco. Save refrigerator space! Crisco keeps absolutely fresh on a handy kitchen shelf.

A Superairport on New York's Doorstep

Giant Plane Base Being Built

By WILLIAM FULTON

New York City.

SWINGING into the view of passengers on excursion steamers plying the East river these days is a scene of hiving activity on a sand prong of land jutting north from Long Island and almost in the shadow of Manhattan skyscrapers. What they see here is the initial stage in the conversion of small North Beach airport into a super land plane and seaplane base. This promontory, created by scrap from auto junk yards and peppered now with hot dog and chowder stands, is the humble nucleus of a mammoth airdrome from which land planes will start winging across the continent and big flying boats will skim over nearby sheltered waters en route to England, less than a full day away.

It's a big job. To build this airways crossroads of the future, equipped with facilities comparable with those required by the merchant marine, the size of North Beach airport will be increased fourfold through the filling in of bay waters and the leveling of a hill. The project will take 21 months. The cost is estimated at $12,762,500, of which the federal Works Progress administration (generous as always toward New York City) will contribute nine million dollars.

• • •

North Beach possesses the twin advantages of useability and accessibility. Not only will a safe and attractive harbor be provided, but the new terminal will be located on the doorstep of the city.

The field is but a 20 minutes' drive from the Grand Central railroad station and Times Square in midtown Manhattan. As shown on the accompanying sketch, Grand Central parkway provides a direct connection to the Triboro and Queensboro bridges spanning the East river to Manhattan. When the new bridge from Whitestone to the Bronx is completed an additional link will be afforded to the northern part of the city, to Westchester county and to Connecticut.

The location will also be advantageous for incoming and outgoing planes because of the water approaches from Long Island sound and Flushing bay. The sea clippers may land in the relatively sheltered waters of the sound and taxi to the terminal. Likewise the water furnishes unlimited takeoff space for departing planes free from the hazards of tall buildings, factory chimneys, or high tension lines.

Spurred on by threatened competition of other seaboard cities, New York is hurrying to complete this marine base as the home port for Pan-American Airways of this country and Artist's conception of the completed North Beach superairport on Flushing bay as seen from the air, with congested Manhattan Island in the background. This great crossroads of the airways will provide accommodations for both land planes and seaplanes. Inset map shows New York City and surrounding territory, arrow pointing to new airport.

the Imperial Airways of Great Britain. The two companies are coöperating in the enterprise of establishing regular trans-Atlantic service, with schedules forecast for next summer. The British member of this joint operation, it is known, expressed a preference for Baltimore as the terminus but was persuaded by Pan-American to accept New York on the promise that suitable facilities would be furnished. Sponsors of North Beach think it will fill the bill.

What is that bill?

These great seabirds of the future, now on the drawing boards, will need facilities for dockage and repair, for customs inspection, and for the landing and loading of passengers and mails approaching the ports for steamship lines. The new airport also must be adequate for the reception of the future land planes weighing 60,000 pounds, carrying 40 passengers, flying at a speed of 240 miles an hour, and landing at 68. And for the convenience of passengers the heart of the city is but 20 minutes distant. Floyd Bennett airport in Brooklyn, one of the finest in the east and the landing place of Gen. Italo Balbo and his flotilla of Italian planes several years ago, has been discarded by the trans-Atlantic services as too difficult of access.

Another field that may feel the competition is the airport at Newark, N. J., which grabbed off the designation as air mail terminus in this area at the dawn of the service while the city of New York was asleep at the switch. The city officials hope to persuade the postoffice department to transfer the business to North Beach.

• • •

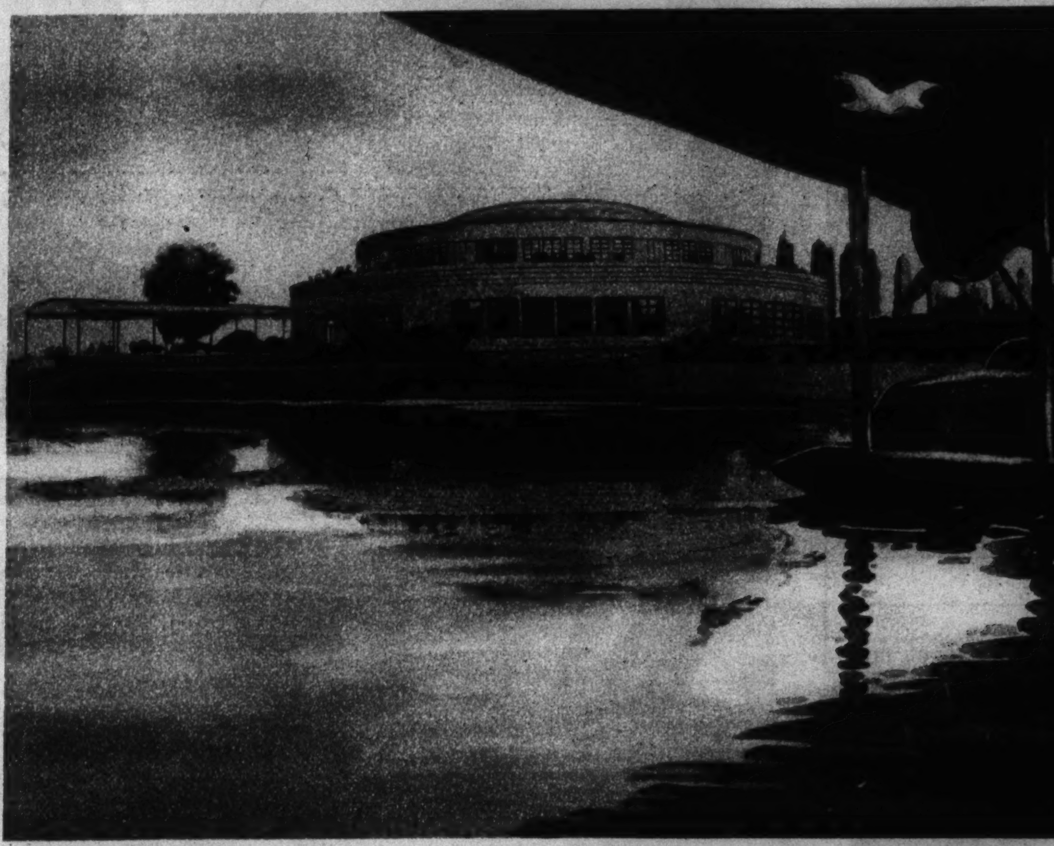
Planners of the expansion at North Beach took a leaf from the building of the airport at Rio de Janeiro. That South American metropolis obtained a suitable base for three international services as well as domestic lines by shearing off a mountain into the bay to make Santos Dumont airport at Calabozo point. From there the principal hotels are only five minutes away by automobile. There is more to the phrase, "Flying down to Rio," than just another popular song.

The new development at North Beach was begun on Sept. 9 with Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia piloting a steam shovel and Lieut. Col. Brehon P. Somervell, WPA administrator for New York, as the headliners at the ceremonies.

The area of the airport is now 105 acres and this space will be quadrupled. The city has taken steps to acquire 96 acres southwest of the present field located on the peninsula formed by Flushing bay on the east and Bowery bay on the west. Under the planned acquisition the inland boundary will be extended to Grand Central parkway with all its important vehicular connections and the land suitably graded. The existing sea wall in Bowery bay will be moved outshire and the new area will be filled in.

Just inside the new bulkhead, approved by the war department, will rise the seaplane base administration building. This will be a circular fireproof building of brick and steel, 136 feet in diameter and 38 feet high. Its main entrance will face Grand Central parkway, about 2,000 feet away.

Public spaces and waiting rooms will be located in the center of this building on the ground floor. Office units earmarked for navigation, flight control, health, customs and immigration will be grouped about the main waiting room. Seaplane passengers will land at a platform in the bay and take a short walk up a ramp directly to the administration building.



Drawing of the proposed seaplane base administration building of New York's new superairport as it will appear from Bowery bay. It will be a circular fireproof building of brick and steel, 136 feet in diameter and 38 feet high.

Transfer from seaplanes to land planes, as for example, the gentleman from London who has business in Chicago, may be made readily.

Bowery bay will be utilized as the turning basin for the seaplanes. These large airliners will be hauled out of the water on a concrete ramp with one end extending into the bay and the other connecting with a service field at the northwest end of the seaplane base.

The seaplane housing unit is planned to include four hangars, placed around a central machine shop and office building. The hangars will have electrically operated doors opening 100 feet wide and 40 feet high, with sidewalls which can be extended easily to provide more space. There will be room left for the future construction of four additional hangars on the western side of the seaplane base. The base will also include a 20 acre parking field for automobiles.

The land plane division of the airport development will embrace the newest type hangars, administration building, and runways built with regard to the bureau of air commerce ruling requiring them to observe a 750 foot clearance from the building line.

The proposed administration building for land plane activities will face Grand Central parkway and will be flanked with hangars on either side. The structure will be 304 feet long and 75 feet wide, with a semicircular pavilion 175 feet in diameter. The building will be fireproof of brick and steel and will be decorated with murals depicting outstanding flights by American pilots.

• • •

Ticket offices, the hospital, and baggage room will be in the administration building. One wing will include dining rooms and a kitchen and personnel offices. The other wing will house the postoffice and express office. Operations office units will be located on the second floor.

Under present plans only one hangar for land planes will be built. This will be 350 feet long, 160 feet deep, and 35 feet high. It will be the first unit in seven hangars planned for the field, one of which will service amphibian planes. All hangars will be equipped with modern sprinkler systems. Gasoline will be brought in on tankers and discharged into storage tanks at the field.

The new made land area of about 228 acres will consist of 9,300,000 cubic yards of cinder

20 Minutes' Ride from Midtown and top soil. The cinders will be trucked from Rikers island over a specially built temporary bridge. This operation, incidentally, will remove a civic eyesore, for the ash dumps on the island had been allowed to accumulate for many years. The field will be raised to 11 feet above mean low water. Continuous passing of the trucks will serve to pack down the cinder fill.

• • •

Four runways are planned. The one extending north and south will be 150 feet wide and 3,650 feet long. The east and west runway will be the same width but will lengthen out to 4,160 feet. A third runway from northeast to southwest will extend 4,770 feet and will be 200 feet wide.

The blind flying runway will extend 4,400 feet and will be 200 feet in width, running along the rim of the field from the southeast to the northwest. The radio marker in line with it will be located in Kissena Park, about three and a half miles away. Neon tubes will be installed to guide pilots using the runway, and the plans provide for floodlights and other facilities. Cement runways will not be laid until the fill settles. Meantime the runways will be surfaced with tar or asphalt.

Elaborate drainage arrangements are being planned for the new field since the present runoff of water will be eliminated by the new grading of the surface. Tile or concrete pipes will lead from the field into the waters of the surrounding bays, while catch basins and drop inlets will be installed at various points. Sewage disposal will be handled through septic tanks and existing sewers.

The privately owned hill that will provide the topsoil for the fill as well as adding to the area of the field must be acquired by the city and condemnation proceedings already have started. The present field is owned by Curtiss-Wright and negotiations are now on foot between the company and the city for its purchase. The purchase figure is expected to be in the neighborhood of $1,300,000.

To those who argue that some day the field will be outgrown and too congested as air trafic increases in volume, the planners declare that when that day arrives the problem will be met by the catapult method of launching planes which is being rapidly developed.

According to the progress schedule laid down by the engineers it will take five months to construct the proposed sheet steel bulkhead, three and a half months to build the trestle to Rikers Island, and 15 months to complete the filling in of the enlarged area.

Modern Empires – How They Have Grown

Conquest, Colonization, and Purchase

scattered vastness, is the number one empire of the world. Without a doubt, and despite the fact that much of its territory has been acquired through peaceful colonization, it has been in the past one of the worst offenders against the rights of other peoples.

Great Britain today controls more than 13 million of the world's total of 57 million square miles of land. It dominates a total population of nearly a half billion, although the population of its own British Isles is under 50 million. It possesses territory on every continent; the whole of the continent of Australia.

Despite all of this greatness, the British empire has been only about 350 years in the making. It was not until 1583 that Sir Humphry Gilbert landed in Newfoundland and formally took possession of the country in the name of Queen Elizabeth. Newfoundland, as the result of this act, is known as Britain's senior colony, although it actually was not settled until many years later. The decade after Sir Humphry's exploit saw a futile effort to establish a British colony on the mainland of North America in what is now North Carolina. The first permanent settlement of the British on this mainland was in Virginia in 1607.

How Great Britain gradually entrenched itself along the eastern coast of North America, took eastern Canada from the French by conquest in 1763, and finally lost the thirteen original American colonies as the result of a war brought on by its stupid colonial policy are subjects familiar to every one acquainted with American history. It was the defeat of the French in Canada that actually set the British to dreaming of a great world empire. And it was the loss of the American colonies that was the first setback to this ambitious plan.

The seventeenth century saw territorial acquisitions by the British on the continent of Africa when they made settlements in Gambia and on the Gold Coast; in Jamaica, which they took by conquest; in the North West territories of Canada, through the offices of the Hudson's Bay company, and in various minor points and scattered islands, including the Bahamas, the Virgin Islands, and St. Helena.

• • •

The eighteenth century was barely under way when, in 1704, the British took Gibraltar, one of the world's most important strategic positions, from the Spaniards. This century also saw the aforementioned conquest of eastern Canada and the placing of the first British colony in Australia. Of the six Australian states New South Wales is the oldest, Port Jackson having been settled in 1788 as a penal station for criminals from England. Among other important British acquisitions of the eighteenth century were the Falkland Islands, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, Trinidad, and Malta.

The British had hit their full stride in empire building by the time of the arrival of the nineteenth century. The whole of Australia was taken over. Also acquired were Tasmania, British Guiana, Natal, New Zealand, many islands in the South Pacific, and the first British foothold in China, at Hongkong. The tag end of the century saw much new territory in the East Indies put under the British flag, vast territories in Africa, the lease from the Chinese of Wei-hai-wei, and finally the settlement of the Boer war gave Great Britain full possession of Orange Free State, Transvaal, and Swaziland to add to its other territory in the region to form the present-day Union of South Africa, a self-governing division of the empire.

The growth of the Indian empire as a part of the British empire has taken virtually as long as that of the parent body. From the first settlement at Bombay in 1608 until the conquest of Beluchistan in 1876 the British have had plenty of trouble in India. The Indian section of the British empire for many years functioned under a royal charter grant made to the East India company by Queen Elizabeth. After the mutiny title was transferred to the imperial government, and in 1877 Queen Victoria was proclaimed empress of India.

As a result of the World war Great Britain acquired under a mandate parts of the Cameroons and Togoland, all of Southwest Africa (to the Union of South Africa), part of the former German East Africa (now Tanganyika), the eastern half of New Guinea (to Australia), and Naru Island. These all were former German possessions. Also since the World war the British have acquired certain protectorates and mandates in the near east, including Iraq and Palestine. The Iraq mandate has been renounced, but the British still keep troops in the land. Virtually all of Arabia, although divided among small nations, is more or less under domination of the British. Egypt, recognized as an independent kingdom, actually gets its orders from the British high commissioner. Britain reserves the right to move its troops over Egypt, keeps several thousand of them there, and maintains military, naval, and air bases in the land.

In the map on page one Portugal and its possessions are shown in the same color as the territories of the British empire. That is because Portugal, under a treaty with Great Britain, is to all purposes concerned with national defense a dependency of the British. Its rather insignificant fleet is looked to by the Britons to help defend possessions in the far east.

In connection with this close tie-up between Portugal and Great Britain, David Darrah, Chicago Tribune foreign correspondent, writes from London of recent date that Portugal has agreed to place her military, naval, and air bases at the disposal of Great Britain.

This agreement, Mr. Darrah points out, is one of the most closely guarded secrets of the visit recently paid to France by Leslie Hoare-Belisha, British secretary of state for war.

Officially Mr. Hoare-Belisha went to France in company with Field Marshal Sir Cyril Deverell, chief of the imperial general staf, and other high military officers, to attend the French army maneuvers. While they were in Paris, however, the British delegation had secret conferences with a Portuguese military mission.

The Mediterranean situation—particularly in the light of possible developments in Spain—was the chief topic of discussion. Britain's position at Gibraltar and the safety of the routes to Africa and the far east were carefully reviewed.

As a result it was agreed that in certain specified contingencies Britain should have the use of Portuguese bases not only on the mainland but also in Madeira and the Azores. The agreement applies to airdromes as well as to naval and military bases.

It may be further revealed that a British mission consisting of representatives of the three services is to proceed to Portugal to work out details.

Portugal—a country with rich colonial possessions—long has been known as "Britain's oldest ally."

Impregnable stronghold on the British empire's road to the east is Gibraltar, taken from the Spaniards in 1704.

FRANCE

France and its colonies comprise a sizable empire as empires go these days, with a population of more than 100 million and a total land area of nearly five million square miles. It is two-thirds greater in extent than the land area of the United States of America proper and five-eighths as large as all of Russia, including the vast stretches of Siberia.

German colonies (the darkened territory) in Africa that were lost as result of the World war.

French colonial possessions at the present include, in Asia, French India and French Indo-China; in Africa or African waters, the protectorate of Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, French West Africa, parts of the Cameroons and Togoland (under mandates), French Equatorial Africa, Reunion, Madagascar, Comoros, and Somaliland; in America or American waters, St. Pierre and Miquelon, Guadeloupe, Martinique, and French Guiana; and in Oceania, New Caledonia, Tahiti, and other islands.

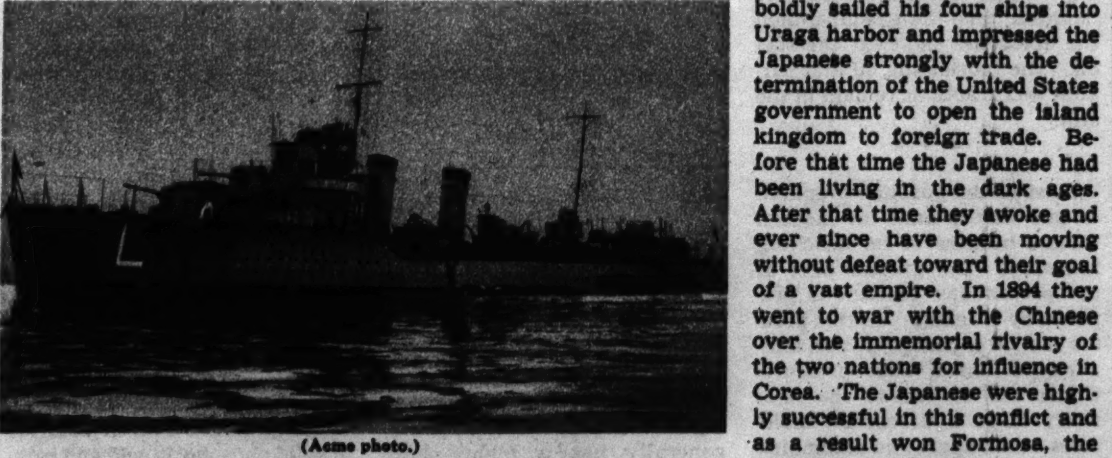
Much of the territory acquired by the first empire under Napoleon Bonaparte—the countries seized by him to provide kingdoms for his brothers and his favorites—was lost when the great conqueror began to slip, but the foundation of the empire in Africa was laid only six years after Napoleon's death at St. Helena. Algeria had been supplying France with wheat, when a dispute arose as to certain shipments from Algiers. The French consul, one Deval, went to see the dey, Hussein, about the matter one day in April, 1827. The dey lost his temper and struck the consul with a fly swatter. Thereupon the French government blockaded Algeria for three years, finally invaded the country with an army of 37,000, and on July 5, 1830, captured Algiers, thus putting an end to Turkish rule in that portion of North Africa. It was not until many years later, however, that the natives of Algeria finally were subjugated. French Equatorial Africa was acquired in succeeding years as the result of explorations, and Tunisia was taken over as a protectorate in 1881 when France was obliged to send a military force into the country to protect Algeria from raids of the Khroumer tribes.

French West Africa was for many years a source of supply for the slave trade, but it was not until the middle of the nineteenth century that steps were taken by the French to properly colonize it. Most important events in its history under the French were the campaigns of the upper Niger from 1876 to 1890, which resulted in the destruction of the old native kingdoms; the campaigns of Dahomey, from 1889 to 1894; and the occupation of Timbuctoo in 1894. Madagascar, the great island lying off the east coast of Africa, became a French protectorate in 1885 and was declared a colony in 1896. The French zone of Morocco, which comprises four-fifths of the total area of the country, dates as a protectorate from 1912. French Somaliland was acquired in 1862 but not developed until more than twenty years later. Part of the Cameroons and Togoland were taken over under mandates by the French after the World war.

Cochin China was ceded to France by the king of Annam in 1862. With that as a nucleus, the French have gradually swallowed up the whole of French Indo-China. Reunion, an island in the Indian ocean, has belonged to France since 1643. French India dates from about 1814, although there had been earlier French settlements there. France has had a penal colony in French Guiana, on the northern coast of South America, since 1885; has held Martinique as a possession since as early as 1635; Guadeloupe since 1634, and St. Pierre and Miquelon since 1763, when they were given back by the British, who had seized them. They had been settled and fortified by the French in 1660. French possessions in the Pacific ocean were acquired at various times in the nineteenth century, New Caledonia, for example, in 1854. A French mandate over Syria, which dated from the World war, was virtually dissolved by treaty in September, 1936.

ITALY

Most aggressive in the matter of empire building in the modern states of Europe is Italy. Mussolini has golden dreams of reviving the glories of the ancient Roman empire, but he is badly handicapped from the fact that Italy, young as a nation, got a very late start in the business of creating an empire. Most of the desirable locations were staked out by rival nations when Italy in 1870 started its first African colonial venture in Eritrea. With the purchase of the port of Assab, the Italians turned their efforts toward Ethiopia, and met with a serious defeat at the battle of Adowa in 1896.



(Acme photo.)

To practical purposes a dependency of Great Britain, Portugal maintains a small navy. This is the British-built Portuguese destroyer Lima.

The strip of African coast land known as Italian Somaliland was added to the Italian empire by various stages that culminated in a final cession in 1905. As the result of a war fought between Italy and Turkey in 1911 and 1912 Italy came into possession of the two African colonies Tripoli and Cyrenaica.

Besides certain territories bordering on the Adriatic (the Trieste and Fiume regions), Italy acquired as a result of the World war the area in Africa known as Jubuland. This was taken from Great Britain's Kenya colony to balance former German colonies taken by British and French.

The Italian empire comprises just a little more than one million square miles of land, a poor showing in comparison with the empires of Britain and France. Its grand total of population is just under 45 million, more than 41 million of whom live in Italy proper. These figures, however, do not include Ethiopia's 350,000 square miles of territory and its estimated 10 million people. The recent conquest of Ethiopia by Italy has not been officially recognized by the world at large.

GERMANY

Germany, before the great war one of the imposing empires of the world, now is fretting itself into the possible perils of a new war—mainly because of the colonies that it lost. Hitler wants the former colonies in Africa and the Pacific returned to Germany, is building an army toward that end, and has struck up a curious international friendship with Mussolini with the aim of obtaining Italy's support.

Most important territories in addition to Alsace-Lorraine and chunks of Germany on the eastern frontier lost to Britain and France as the result of the war were German East Africa, German Southwest Africa, and the Cameroons.

Germany today is not an empire, only a rather restricted nation set down in the center of the boiling pot of Europe, but it would be idle to say that it is not powerful. According to most reliable authorities, it dominates the Baltic sea through its influence over the small Baltic and the Scandinavian nations. It stands as a barrier to the advance of communism in a westerly direction.

RUSSIA

Like Germany, Russia of recent years has been a dwindling rather than a growing nation. Starting with a collection of small dukedoms back in the middle ages, it was united under Ivan III. in the latter part of the fifteenth century and from that point on continued to grow until relatively recent times.

Siberia, a vast land of scattered tribes, was finally conquered and placed under control of the Russians only after almost three hundred years of sporadic warfare. Beginning the conquest in 1555, the Russians could not call the land theirs until well toward the middle of the nineteenth century. In the meantime they had been sweeping westward, overrunning the Baltic lands (including Finland) and a large part of Poland.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century Russia established control over Alaska, a control that was recognized by Great Britain and the United States of America in treaties in 1824 and 1825. In 1867 the American government purchased Alaska from Russia for $7,200,000.

The historic country of the czars received its first important setback of modern times in the Russo-Japanese war, as a result of which it ceded to Japan the half of Sakhalin Island that it had annexed in 1875, surrendered its lease on the Kwantung peninsula and Port Arthur, evacuated Manchuria (now Manchukuo), and recognized Japan's sphere of influence in Corea.

The World war and the bolshevik revolution sank Russia still lower. It lost all of that portion of Poland it had conquered in prior years, the territories that make up the present countries of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, and the country of Finland.

Although still a great country, with more than eight million square miles of land and nearly 150 million people, Russia today is definitly dwindling.

JAPAN

The Japanese empire's current activities of a warlike nature in China indicate that it is bent upon further expansion in the Asiatic mainland, despite its contention that it is acting only defensively.

Japan's modern history can be said to date from 1853, when the American Commodore Perry boldly sailed his four ships into Uraga harbor and impressed the Japanese strongly with the determination of the United States government to open the island kingdom to foreign trade. Before that time the Japanese had been living in the dark ages. After that time they awoke and ever since have been moving without defeat toward their goal of a vast empire. In 1894 they went to war with the Chinese over the immemorial rivalry of the two nations for influence in Corea. The Japanese were highly successful in this conflict and as a result won Formosa, the Pescadores Islands, and the southern portion of Manchuria and obtained China's agreement to recognize Corea as an independent country. The portion of Manchuria involved in the settlement was returned to China when Germany, France, and Russia insisted that it should not be occupied permanently by the Japanese, but in 1910, without creating much of an international stir, the Tokio government quietly annexed Corea, making it part of the empire.

The Russo-Japanese war brought further territorial acquisitions to Japan, as mentioned in the paragraphs dealing with Russia. Out of the World war Japan got very little, but, of course, it had played only a minor rôle in that conflict.

As an aftermath of Japan's oiling up of its war machine and setting it in motion, the former Chinese province of Manchuria was proclaimed an independent nation in 1932 and the former Manchu boy emperor of China was placed upon the throne. This newly created kingdom, now known as Manchukuo, is independent in name only. It is purely a puppet state set up by the Japanese and should be considered in all respects as a part of the Japanese empire.

Before very long the Japanese were rolling their guns down through Manchukuo to the northern Chinese state of Jehol, which they soon added to Manchukuo.

Then within recent months Japanese imperialistic ambitions have been instrumental in turning loose the highly efficient Nipponese army onto the Chinese state of Charar. Hopei, Shansi, and Shantung also are occupied or partly occupied by Japanese forces. Military observers have seen in these recent moves a determination on the part of the Japanese to drive a wedge into China, separating that part of the country under control of the Nanking government from the soviet Mongolian state, to block the advance of communism toward the east. The capture of Shanghai was part of the Japanese program.

The Japanese empire, including Manchukuo, today comprises about 725,000 square miles of territory and takes in a total population of more than 125 million.

As an empire China is losing territory and people so rapidly that it is threatened with total dismemberment before many generations if aggressive nations do not decide to let it survive. How far Japan will go in its empire expansion into this ancient land only time will tell.

AMERICA

The United States, although the greatest and most powerful nation in the world from almost every angle of observation, is definitly not an empire, because it has no imperial ambitions. Even today it is in the process of giving back to the people of the Philippines the islands that it was forced to take as a sequel to the Spanish-American war.

Outside of America proper, which was the result mainly of natural expansion, Alaska, which was purchased outright, and the aforementioned Philippines, this country possesses only minor territories. As a result of the Spanish-American war it acquired Porto Rico. When its soldiers took the Philippines from the Spaniards they were immediately set upon by the native inhabitants and compelled to conduct a war of pacification.

The Hawaiian Islands were annexed to the United States of America in 1898 because the inhabitants thereof were in favor of annexation. The American Samoas were acquired in 1900 through a treaty with Germany and Great Britain. Guam was ceded to us by Spain in 1898. A handful of other tiny islands constitutes the remainder of our possessions in the Pacific. In 1917 three of the Virgin Islands in the West Indies were bought from Denmark for $25,000,000.

The Canal Zone, a ribbon of land extending five miles on each side of the Panama canal, is American territory as the result of a grant made by the Panama government in 1904.

Increased Speed Seen in New Motor Fuels

RECENTLY one of America's leading chemists predicted that the next decade would see average motor cars capable of traveling steadily at 150 miles an hour, as well as passenger planes cruising at 500. The prediction was based not only on the expected improvement in the mechanical design of these vehicles but also on the probable improvements in fuels and lubricants promised by developments of the last few years.

These fuels of the future will be made from petroleum, as is the present-day gasoline. Surprisingly, they will contain no more energy than does the gasoline of today. The many compounds (known as hydrocarbons) which make up petroleum differ very little from each other in the heat energy given off during combustion, and it is most improbable that chemists will ever discover a synthetic hydrocarbon of much higher heat content.

There is much more to a good fuel, however, than its heat content. Two gasolines may give off equal amounts of heat when burned, but in one case a greater part of the heat may be converted by a motor into energy of motion. From the standpoint of the driver this gasoline would appear superior to the other.

• • •

If all of the heat could be converted into useful mechanical energy, then a fuel's value would depend solely on its heat of combustion. Unfortunately, complete utilization of heat appears impossible. Losses due to friction, imperfect insulation, and imperfect design may be reduced to small fractions of the total, but they will always be with us. In addition there is a theoretical energy loss inherent in all engines that convert heat into motion; no matter how perfect the motor, some heat must always be blown out the exhaust.

In internal combustion motors this theoretical energy loss can be decreased by increasing the compression of the fuel and air mixture within the cylinder. Too high a compression, however, causes engine knock; that is, the gasoline burns too quickly, giving the piston a hammerlike blow instead of a steady push. Hence the improvement of engine efficiency depends on the elimination as far as possible of the knock from gasoline.

The knocking tendency of gasoline can be reduced by the addition of anti-knock compounds such as tetraethyl lead, but there are limits to the amount of such improvement for a particular kind of gasoline. Further improvement in anti-knock quality must depend on chemical changes in the fuel itself.

Petroleum as it occurs under the ground is a mixture of a great many hydrocarbons, varying in volatility from gases to heavy tars and waxes. At atmospheric pressure the gas boils off. The principal step in refining is the distillation of the oil, which separates it into several arbitrarily chosen hydrocarbon mixtures of different boiling ranges. Most volatile is the naphtha, then the gasoline, then the kerosene, and next the fuel oil. The lubricating oil and paraffin wax fractions remain in the still.

• • •

Most of the gasoline prepared in this way is unfit for modern motors because of its knocking tendency. The greater part of our present-day gasoline is prepared by cracking. In this process fuel oil is heated to high temperature under high pressure. Under this treatment the relatively large hydrocarbon molecules break apart and recombine in wild confusion, so that the final product is a mixture of gas, gasoline, fuel oil, and tar, which are then separated by distillation.

By means of cracking it is possible to raise the gasoline yield of crude oil from 10 to 50 per cent. In addition it so happens that gasoline from the cracking still has a higher anti-knock value than does the natural fuel. Thus while cracking was introduced about twenty years ago in the hope of conserving oil resources, it is now valued chiefly for the excellence of the fuel it yields.

In the last two years a third type of gasoline has been developed. This product is obtained by polymerization, essentially a reversal of cracking. Hydrocarbon gases are passed under high pressure and moderately high temperature over a catalyst to promote the reaction. The small molecules combine into larger ones, forming gasoline and higher-boiling hydrocarbon mixtures. The gases used are usually those unavoidably formed in the cracking still. The gasoline so formed generally has a higher anti-knock value than does cracked gasoline.

Why should different gasolines, which consist of similar compounds of carbon and hydrogen, behave so differently in a motor? Chemists have a rough idea of the answer to this. The hydrocarbons of gasoline contain six to twelve carbon atoms per molecule. The carbon atoms of each molecule are hooked together. In view of the number of atoms, there are obviously quite a few ways in which they can be combined.

• • •

As a general rule, when the molecules are linked in a straight chain the resulting gasoline knocks very badly. The more branched the carbon group the higher the anti-knock value. For example, the first grouping in Figure 1 is that of normal heptane, one of the worst knockers known. The second is that of iso-octane, the standard of anti-knock value (although not the best hydrocarbon in this respect). Mixtures of the two are used to measure the knock of gasoline. A fuel with an octane rating of 70 knocks the same as a mixture of 70 per cent iso-octane and 30 per cent heptane.

There is good reason to believe that the refiners of the near future will not depend upon the haphazard reactions of the cracking still or the polymerization chamber to produce gasoline, but will synthesize individual hydrocarbons of known motive efficiency in the same way in which pure drugs or dyes are created.

Typical of these expected syntheses is some recently reported work of Prof. Vladimir N. Ipatieff of Northwestern university. Isobutylene, whose molecule shows a T-shaped group of four carbon atoms (Figure 2), is an easily condensed gas obtained in great amount from cracking-still gas. A mixture of isobutylene and hydrogen is passed under pressure over a catalyst of solid phosphoric acid and nickel. Two molecules of isobutylene combine to give the carbon arrangement of iso-octane, and the hydrogen then adds to complete the molecule. The fair yield of iso-octane so obtained obviously has an octane rating of 100.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

The coonhound, a breed that is truly American, loves to "sing" at night. These musical-voiced hounds are a lot of fun on the trail of raccoons or 'possums. This flashlight picture was taken after the four dogs had treed a 'possum in the woods. Note the long ears on the dog at the left. (Tribune photo.)

CLOSELY associated with pioneer life in America as well as with the sport of hunting today, the different breeds of hounds in this country not only are affectionate companions, but also efficient hunters and "singers."

Every owner of a foxhound, beagle, or coonhound knows what we mean by "singer" when we are discussing dogs, because it takes a foxhound on the hot scent of a smart old fox, a beagle running a rabbit through the brush, or a floppy-eared coonhound in the dark woods trailing a raccoon to really make music. These dogs provide unique woodland concerts for their owners . . . the kind of music that is pleasing to every one who likes the thrill of a chase.

Although the most popular hounds are efficient workers in this field of activity, they also are real companions in the home, because of their disposition. We have had contacts with many packs of foxhounds in the south when we have been on hunting trips, and we have spent many an hour with the coonhounds that were trailing raccoons and 'possums in the big timber of Tennessee and Louisiana.

(Tribune photo.)

Kindly and friendly is the expression of this American foxhound, of a breed popular among hunters.

On all of these trips we have yet to see a hound that wasn't friendly, didn't like attention, and obviously was not a good pal. The merry little beagle certainly needs no note of commendation from anybody with regard to his affectionate, happy-go-lucky disposition. He is merry in every sense of the word. And being such a friendly little hound he fits into the home in an ideal way.

One hunting and dog authority says that one-half to three-quarters of all the hunting dogs used in the United States are hounds, the principle breeds being the coonhound, foxhound, and beagle. If such is the case, America still is aware of the fact that a lot of outdoor sport can be had with the "trailers." The coonhound is distinctively American the foxhound Americanized, and the beagle but little changed from the old English type. The coonhound is distinctly our American dog. We feel like doffing our hat to this breed when we consider that he grew up with America like a real pioneer. Used for deer, coons, bears, wildcats, and all kinds of "varmints" by the early settlers, he had a lot to do with the development of our country. We sometimes wonder what those hardy pioneers would have done on the frontiers without their hounds to help them make a living. Davy Crockett, one of the greatest bear and coon hunters that this country ever knew, had one of the best packs of the old southern coonhounds (we like those old names, "pot-licker" or "smell dog"), and he used to give away many puppies to his friends. What he did is an example of how many breeders in those early days spread the cause of the coonhound in America and gradually improved the breed.

Today there are many thousands of dog fanciers and outdoor fans who have lots of fun with their coonhounds. Having spent many exciting evenings in the dark woods with packs of these trailers, we know the sport they can provide when they have a chance on coons or 'possums. Always it's a thrill to hear them "sing" and follow their work.

The American foxhound also is associated with early days of outdoor fun in America. Hunting the gray fox was the principle sport of the southern gentry and from Maryland and adjoining states to Tennessee every wealthy planter had a pack of hounds. When you read George Washington's diary you may see this entry, obviously one that he liked to record: "Ketched a fox today." It tells a story of the popularity of fox hunting in the early days. Down through the years from colonial days has come the foxhound . . . always associated with the thrilling fun of running the fox. And today when the red foxes are not available the hounds get to work on so-called "drag" hunts.

All through the middle west, south, and the east field trials for foxhounds and individual breeders and clubs are keeping the breed in the public eye as well as constantly working to improve the hounds. Not even when we are in Florida, with our principle interest in quail hunting and pointing dogs, are we able to get away from the musical baying of the foxhound after dark. Down there the boys run their hounds on the gray fox. We go out about 8:30 in the evening for a race. A fire is built in the pine woods. We sit around the blaze as we listen to the hounds carry the fox up and down the woods. One evening the pack of seven hounds ran the fox within a few hundred feet of our fire.

A pack of beagles, all champions. The favorite of the rabbit hunter, the merry little beagle is widely used in America. Many are entered in shows and in field trials.

The beagle must be glad that the rabbit population still is holding up in most parts of the country. He'd be lost without the cottontails. To watch one of these little hounds rushing through cornfields or thickets and to hear his music when he has a rabbit on the run is almost as much sport as the game of actually bagging the rabbit.

The beagle also makes a good companion in the home, being quiet, intelligent, and friendly. Because of its short coat it is easily cleaned and groomed, another advantage of owning it as a house dog.

MARKETING

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1937, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Little housewife holding up traffic at the chain store because she can't remember what she came for. While clerks suggest this and that she giggles and says over and over, "Isn't that FUNNY? I know it just as well as my own name!" Wastes about fifteen minutes and then remembers it was a yeast cake.

This girl thinks she's been short-changed. She's no good at mental arithmetic and very hard to convince. The boy behind the counter works it out on paper for her and then she says, "But I gave you a quarter and the celery was nineteen cents, and you only gave me back six cents!"

Mother and daughter marketing. Mother is excitable and is mad because the string beans they sold her yesterday were old. Accuses the grocer of putting a few fresh ones on top of the stale ones. Daughter pretends to be engrossed with the cat to hide embarrassment.

Boy trying to get away to the store without more directions from his mother. Has been sent for half a pound of top round, ground if tender. "And no gristle in it. And be sure he grinds it coarse for hamburg. And tell him the last meat we got was simply vile. Tough and tasteless. And don't forget to tell him," etc., etc.

The girl with the terrific crush on the handsome clerk behind the meat counter (the one who looks so much like Robert Taylor only tougher), stops by to purchase four lamb kidneys. Gives him the sweetest smile.

The careful buyer. She always has to snap the beans, taste the peas and the store cheese, sniff the butter, and pinch, poke, jab, lift and compare melons. Sometimes she pokes right through something and has to hide it from the storekeeper.

The woman who is vague about concrete things and has to point and describe till the clerks are desperate. Tells the girl behind the counter at the bakery she wants half a dozen of "those little round things—plain on the outside with jelly inside—sometimes they have sugar on them but not always, and they are sticky." (She means jelly doughnuts.)

Showing the male shopper who boils over when some one gets ahead of him and is waited on out of turn. Stamps out of the place, saying to whom it may or may not concern, "This is the last time I patronize THIS market!"

The Only One

1 England's only second-generation prince, Edward, son of the duke and duchess of Kent, is fifth in the line of succession to the throne. Viscount Lascelles and Gerald Lascelles, sons of Edward's aunt, Mary, the princess royal, are not princes and could succeed to the throne only through unprecedented mortality among the royal heirs.

Charming Subjects for Color

Anita Louise Alert and lovely in her green gown, this is how Anita Louise looked as she posed for the photograph that appears in the picture section.

Miss Louise (it's her real name!) was born in New York City, Jan. 9, 1917. Both of her parents hail from Alsace-Lorraine. She received her education in New York and Hollywood. At the age of 7 she appeared in various New York stage plays, including "Peter Ibbetson," "The Greatest Thing in the World," "Gloss of Youth," and "The Marquise"—with Billie Burke.

Anita Louise registers fright for the camera.

She had a film contract for a year without playing a part, because the casting director declared her lovely—but not fitted for any of the rôles that came along. Then Warner Brothers signed her up and she started work in "Du Barry." From then on she became a busy young lady.

Anita likes all out-of-door sports and is an accomplished musician. She doesn't bother about diet and favors soap and water for her complexion. She has just one pet, a Scottie yclept Wee Thistle. Yellow and blue are her favorite colors, and she "does" her own hair and nails when the studio will let her.

This gracious young star is 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 106 pounds, and has blue eyes and blonde hair.

Item: She constantly carries two good-luck charms, a small moose foot and a hat ornament made from the tuft of a gemser. Gemser? Member of the reindeer family, living in the Alps. She also prizes an 80-year-old piano and a 200-year-old violin.

• • •

Sonja Henie The smiling redbird in the picture section is Sonja Henie, the ice witch. (And plenty there is behind that smile of ambition, determination, and accomplishment.)

Miss Henie hails from Oslo, Norway, where she was born twenty-four years ago in a post-seasonal blizzard on the night of April 8, 1913. Her father, a fur merchant, asked an artist friend what he should name the baby, and the friend replied: "Sonja. It will sound well to the public." So Sonja it was.

At the age of 4 Sonja began to study ballet dancing. She learned to skate, just as other children do—but from the start she adored it. The second winter after she had learned she earned honors at figure skating. When 9 years old she won the junior competition at the Oslo Skating club. At 11 she attained the Norwegian championship and went to the Olympic games in Switzerland. She refused to enter the competition the next winter, but spent the time in training, three hours in the morning and three or four hours in the afternoon. From that time on she has skated her way into much honor—figure skating championships, Olympic crowns, and a movie contract with Twentieth Century-Fox. You've seen her in "One in a Million" and "Thin Ice." Her next release is "Happy Ending," with Don Ameche.

Miss Henie is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, and has blue eyes and blonde hair. She eats what she pleases and likes to wear colored hair ribbons.

Sonja Henie is at her best on skates.

Barnyard Aristocrats in the Spot Light

Live Stock Show Again Centers Attention on Prize Animals

NOW in progress at the International amphitheater in Chicago is the thirty-eighth Live Stock show, a revival of an exhibition that annually calls attention to the fact that horses, cattle, sheep, and swine are highly important in this busy world of ours.

● The horse as a draft animal continues to perform its daily task on highway and farm despite the amazing increase in automobiles and auto trucks. And for show purposes and racing and in other equine fields the horse today is regarded more highly, perhaps, than ever before. The fancy prices that it brings is proof of this.

● Cattle, sheep, and hogs are raised principally to provide food in the forms of beef, veal, lamb, and pork, although dairy products and wool are no small items of world consumption and world trade, and countless other commodities, such as hides, hair, glue, and fertilizer, are derived from slaughtered animals. Pure-breds of these species are held in the greatest esteem for show purposes and breeding and often command high prices.

● The Live Stock show, the correct appellation of which is the International Live Stock Exposition and Horse Show, sees approximately 14,000 animals of thirty different breeds, from this country and Canada, on exhibition. The value of these animals is conservatively estimated at three times that of all the automobiles, trucks, and trailers that filled the vast amphitheater during the Chicago Automobile show, held during the second week of this month. That the live stock industry of the United States of America ranks among the leading industries is evidenced by the fact that animals on the farms and ranches of this country in 1936 were valued at almost five billion dollars.

● The purpose of the Live Stock show is to promote the breeding and raising not only of pure-bred stock but of the types of animals considered best for slaughtering purposes. The exposition actually has set the standard for the type of market hog demanded by the great packing companies. And in this connection it might be pointed out that by many economists the price of hogs has come to be considered the most dependable index of general business conditions.

● So specialized has become the raising of quality steers for the beef market that astounding prices have been paid for the grand champions of the Live Stock show. In 1929, for example, the grand champion steer was sold for $8.25 a pound, or more than $7,800 for the entire animal.

● A commendable feature of the Live Stock show is the interest that it takes in the youth of the country. Farm boys and girls of more than forty states are taking part in animal judging, exhibiting, and other contests.

HEALTH WANTED

A message to men and women who want to regain intestinal health...and youthful regularity

"PEOPLE who really feel healthy rarely think about health." Sufferers from habitual constipation do not often enjoy that kind of carefree well-being. They fall into the habit of thinking about themselves. They worry.

Does that describe your own state of mind? Then consult your doctor about trying Saráka.* This is a new-type laxative which has been signally successful with cases of constipation. Many users recall healthy youth when constipation was never thought of.

LAZY MUSCLES

Sufferers from constipation usually have intestinal muscles that have "gone soft". In civilized life, we get too little exercise—eat rich, over-refined food. Result—our intestinal muscles generally become weak and flabby. Saráka helps correct that condition. Saráka gives intestinal muscles the exercise they need—internal exercise.

The principal ingredient in Saráka is bassorit (sap of a tree found in India) in the form of tiny granules. After passing into the intestines, these granules absorb water. Gradually they e-x-p-a-n-d. They turn into soft, smooth BULK.

This extra bulk is the secret of Saráka's "exercising action". It encourages the lazy intestinal muscles to get busy. It gives them something to exercise on—encourages them to do their duty. The results are not violent or purgative. There is no embarrassing urgency. That is why so many users say "Saráka isn't always reminding me that I have taken a laxative".

In addition to bulk-producing bassorit, Saráka contains specially-prepared cortex frangula (bark of a European shrub) which mildly stimulates the intestines to keep waste products in motion. So you have Bulk Plus Motility.*

HOW TO USE SARÁKA

You will find this laxative very pleasant to take. The tiny granules are easily swallowed with water. Usually it is not necessary to increase the dose. In fact, since Saráka tends to strengthen intestinal muscles, many users find that the quantity can be gradually cut down.

The coupon below will bring you a free trial-size tin of Saráka. While you are waiting for it to arrive, we suggest that you ask your family physician for his opinion of this laxative—and be guided by his advice. Mail coupon today.

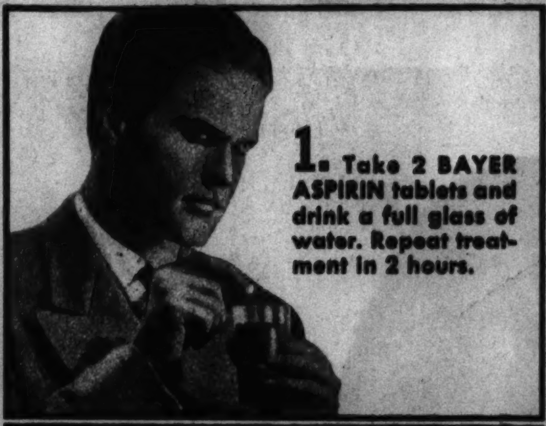
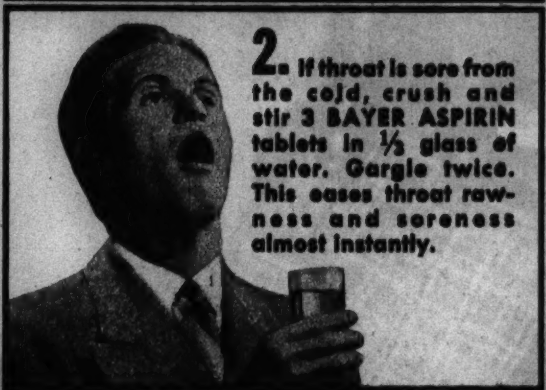
Sore Throat Pain due to COLDS

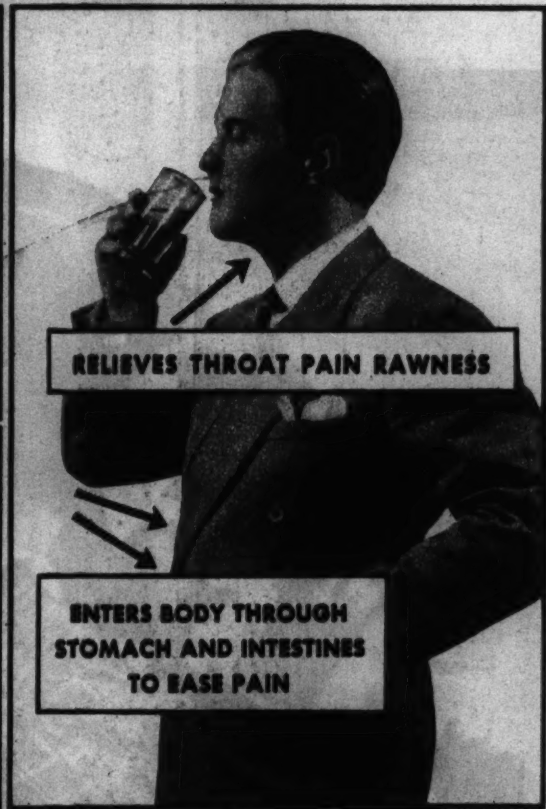
Eased Almost Instantly



1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.



2. If throat is sore from the cold, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.



How Genuine Bayer Aspirin Aids in Easing Throat and Body Pain—Reducing Fever

The speed with which Bayer tablets act in relieving the discomfort of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing . . . and the treatment simple and pleasant. This is all you do.

Crush and dissolve three genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases promptly; rawness is relieved.

And—when you use this Bayer Aspirin treatment you are acting on medical experience.

For, instead of unknown remedies you are using a remedy known to doctors throughout the world—a daily stand-by in millions of families.

Use this way regularly to ease the pain of sore throat accompanying a cold. We believe your doctor will approve it. You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over expensive "throat gargles" and strong medicines.

When you buy, see that you get genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by asking for it by its full name—"Bayer Aspirin"—not the name "aspirin" alone.

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.
